Thought For The Day

Confidence always gives pleasure to the man in whom it is placed. It is a tribute which we pay to his merit; it is a treasure which we intrust to his honour; it is a pledge which gives him a certain right over us, and a kind of dependence to which we subject ourselves. — La Rochefoucauld.

MYSORE STATE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT

The Annual report of the Medical Department for 1939 with Government review thereon makes an interesting reading. It is no exaggeration to say that in the past quarter of a century the State of Mysore has made rapid strides in the matter of establishing Medical Institutions and giving medical aid to people. Public generosity has flowed like a regular stream in the direction of erecting fine buildings and endowing wards in respect of medical aid. Our hospitals compare very favourably with the hospitals of British India. In some respects, we may say they have a better reputation. The very fact of the people of neighbouring British Provinces frequenting Bangalore to have their diseases cured speaks eloquently of the medical system here. We have a modern equipped Medical College and Medical School which turn out graduates and licentiates in large numbers. It is a happy feature of the times that in addition to Government Hospitals and Dispensaries, Private owned clinics and nursing homes are rising and thriving in the State. The number of medical private practitioners is on the increase. To crown all, the Industrial and Testing Laboratory have been preparing drugs which are considered to be in no way inferior to the foreign prepared ones.

The report discloses that the total number of Medical Institutions at the close of the year 1939 was 330, compared with 311 at the close of the previous year. The number of beds available for inpatients was 3,210 as against 3,056 in the previous year. A total number of 65,285 inpatients was treated in the various hospitals and dispensaries as against 61,537 in the year 1938. The number of out patients treated was 61,40,706, as against 56,12,993 in the previous year. The total number of parturition cases was 39,093 of which 13,808 were attended to inside institutions. The number of midwives during the year was 330 as against 335 in the preceding year. There are 26 sub-divisional medical practitioners working in rural areas.

Coming to the finances, the expenditure on the department during 1939 was Rs. 19,82,217 as against Rs. 19,53,674 in the previous year. A sum of Rs. 1,49,100 was received as donations during the year either for construction of buildings or for equipment. A special grant of Rs. 1 lakh was made during the year for providing up-to-date surgical instruments and other equipment to the major hospitals in Bangalore and Mysore, the District Hospitals and certain selected local fund dispensaries, so as to bring the most modern methods of diagnosis and treatment within the reach of the rural population. A notable achievement during the year was the formation of a State Tuberculosis Association for the organisation of a State wide campaign against tuberculosis.

We have given in brief some salient facts and figures in connection with the Medical Department. One who desires to make a more intelligent study of the report would do well to secure a copy of the published report and study it. We are sure the reader would profit by a study of the report.

As usual the hospitals were visited by many eminent professors and distinguished visitors from India and abroad, who were pleased to record their praise for the upkeep and management of these institutions. Her Excellency Lady Linlithgow expressed great satisfaction on the good work conducted at the P. K. T. Sanatorium, Mysore, in the following remarks. "It has given me the greatest pleasure to see this delightful Sanatorium which is doing such magnificent work. I am looking forward to the commencement of the after-care colony".

The birth control clinics in the Vani Vilas Hospital, Bangalore, the Cheluvamba Hospital, Mysore and the Maternity Hospital, Kolar Gold Fields, continued to be popular and well attended. Suitable advice was given at all these centres about the various methods of birth control.

It is gratifying to find that 172 Ayurvedic and Unani Dispensaries have been working in the State. Of these 28 are Unani. As many as 1,541,096 patients were treated in these institutions. The amount spent on these institutions by the local bodies was Rs. 46,380. We would like to add one word of comment. These indigenous institutions require to be attended to much more carefully. After all in a country like ours, where the earning power of people is very low cheap medical aid and treatment of the Ayurveda and Unani systems is a blessing. In spite of lip homage from higher quarters as much as is required to be done is not done in the matter of these institutions.

The report contains an account of medical inspection of students. As many as 14 suggestions have been offered in the report. It is stated that health education must be made compulsory, provision should be made for mid-day meals in all the schools, school camps and excursions must be made a regular feature of school life, a greater provision should be made for free treatment and gratuitous supply of medicines, cod-liver oil etc. in the case of the necessities

Scouts' Display

Mysore, April 16
In connection with the Refresher Course of the Scout Masters' Camp of the Mysore District, conducted under the auspices of the Mysore District Scout Council, a display was given this evening at the Camp at the Nanjangud Travellers Bungalow.

Mr. K. Subba Rao, Deputy Commissioner and President of the Mysore District Scout Council, presided.

Literacy Campaign

Mr. B. S. Raghavendra Rao, President of the Mysore City Municipal Council, accompanied by Mr. M. A. Khadir, Secretary of the Mysore University Union and Mr. M. A. Srinivas, convener of the Literacy Campaign, visited the various centres of Adult Literacy classes conducted by the Mysore University Union. He greatly appreciated the work that is going on in those classes whose number has now increased from 35 to 47.

An Arrest

The City Crime Branch police have arrested one Subbaiah Alwa of Mangalore. It is alleged that he has committed some thefts in Mysore. Further investigation is proceeding.

H. H. The Yuvarane

It is learnt that Her Highness the Yuvarane and her daughters who have gone to Bombay will be returning to Mysore by the end of this week.

and last but not least physical education should be improved and more adequate playgrounds should be provided for all schools.

The following remarks are also worthy of consideration. The general health of the student is fair; but much below the average of most advanced countries. As a rule most of the Primary and Middle School buildings are over crowded with very little regard for sanitary and hygienic requirements. The equipment of furniture in most schools is inadequate. Playgrounds and arrangement for physical exercise are limited and so on.

Regarding the institution of the Board of Visitors we would like to suggest that the present method requires to be changed. Instead of Government selecting anybody they like, it is better if people who enjoy the confidence of the public and who are likely to offer valuable suggestions without fear or favour are appointed. The Municipalities, the District Boards, and the educational institutions may send in their representatives to the Board of Visitors. It is high time that the rate-payers of Bangalore form an association of people who seek medical aid with a view to organising their grievances in a methodical manner to be redressed by the concerned authorities. The Assembly and the Council have no doubt agitated but in times to come they have to concentrate on all State problems of legislation, taxation and finance. They may not be able to do full justice to the problems of seekers of medical aid. We therefore think it necessary that some public spirited people who are dispassionate and disinterested should lose no time in forming an organisation of the type we suggest.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

P. G. WODEHOUSE IN NAZI CAMP—PRISONERS AND GREAT BOOKS—EXAMPLES OF TILAK, GANDHI, NEHRU, BUNYAN AND MALORY

I chanced to secure a recent number of Tit Bits. I was much pleased to find an article by Captain W. E. Johns who writes about people in jail. He gives examples of great men who in spite of their being imprisoned in jails did not allow their soul to be killed. After all the soul is a substance which cannot be killed. We are told that P. G. Wodehouse captured at Le Touquet is now writing a book in a Nazi prison camp. In India we have seen how great men have written monumental books during their imprisonment. Lokamanya Tilak wrote Gita Rahasya in Mandalay jail. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru wrote his autobiography behind the prison bars. We are told he is engaged in writing another book at present inside the jail. Mahatma Gandhi wrote a number of essays on Brahmacharya in the Yerawada prison. Nearer home we find Mr. Dwaker producing a number of books inside the jail.

Though the body is imprisoned, the mind can roam freely. And people with a highly developed organised brain can produce wonderful stuff if they are provided facilities. They are denied speech. Therefore they must write. In solitude, a man can write well. Without the safety valve of this outlet, melancholia and madness would overtake him. Dominant among the instinctive impulses of the kind is the urge of expression.

John Bunyan, the famous author of "Pilgrim's Progress" wrote it in jail. He was a tinker and was thrown into prison. History says that Sir Thomas Moore wrote his Utopia while in the prison. Sir Walter Raleigh who was a prisoner in the Tower for 12 years wrote his celebrated History of the World and other books. There are many more such illustrious examples. Thomas Malory wrote "Morte d'Arthur" in New Gate Prison. William Tyndale completed translation of the Bible while in the prison. Herr Hitler we all know, wrote his "Mein Kampf" inside a prison.

I have given these instances to show that a prison is an inspirer of great works by great men. According to the Hindu belief the Great Lord Krishna, Deliverer of Humanity was born in a prison. People suffering for what they consider to be truth and justice can never be allowed to remain dumb. Their movements are restricted and if their mouth is gagged their soul will flow out in the form of writings which remain immortal.

CHIKMAGALUR NOTES

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BIRUR

Chikmagalur, April 15
The necessity of the establishment of a High School for Birur was brought to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, day before yesterday when a deputation of the leading people of Birur waited in deputation on him. Mr. D. V. Halappa, a veteran citizen of Birur who is a member of the Mysore Assembly, led the deputation and explained the need for the institution in view of the growing strength of the various Middle Schools in the area. A sum of seventeen thousand rupees was stated by the deputationists to have been promised by some of the wealthy and influential men of the District towards the High School Building and they also represented to the Deputy Commissioner that they would influence the local bodies to give their quota for the maintenance of the School. The Government was asked to contribute liberally towards the building fund of the School and also to pay a third of the cost of the recurring expenditure.

Mr. Charles Noronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, gave a patient hearing and made sympathetic enquiries regarding the educational facilities of the town and promised the deputationists that he would do his best in the matter.

The Deputationists thanked the Deputy Commissioner for his patient hearing and retired.

Rainfall

After a summer of over one and a half month of great intensity Chikmagalur and its neighbourhood had a good shower of rain last evening accompanied by

'errific wind and thunderstorm. At the Chikmagalur Taluk Office the rain gauge showed a record of fifty-four cents of rain fall. The absence of a rain gauge in the southern portion of the town is keenly felt as it has been considered that last night's rain was greater in the fort area. It is hoped that the authorities of the Meteorological department will consider the establishment of a second rain gauge here. The rainfall is considered to be very heavy on the Bababudhi Hills. The Coffee Planters were all very eagerly expecting the rain which was badly required for blossoming of Coffee flowers.

Urs Festival

The Urs festival of His Holiness Sahabunnam Hazrat Gorigundi in Chikmagalur Taluk was held yesterday which was a large gathering of Mohammedi disciples had come from different parts of the State. With a view to affording all possible help to the poor and the travellers who visited the place during the festival Lokamanya M. S. Dyave Gowda, M.L.C., Proprietor of the Shankar Motor Company, Koppal, allowed double journey for fare and in the case of P. S. and Sadhu no charge was levied for their journeys. The authorities of the Darga have expressed their sincere gratitude to the generosity of the Proprietor of the Shankar Motor Company.

Deputy Commissioner

Mr. Charles Noronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, left Chikmagalur day before yesterday on an inspection tour in Mudigere Taluk. At the same time the Deputy Commissioner inspected the Taluk Revenue offices and depots at Kalasa yesterday. The Deputy Commissioner is expected to be in the town in a day or two.

THE WARNING OF Dacca

"National Herald" writes:— "Who who do not desire a repetition of the recent situation in East Bengal must come under the influence of a campaign of loot, arson and murder would spend its fury under sooner than an hour. Frankly, Mr. Fazlul Huq's Government has broken down and the territory round Dacca seems to be no-man's land. It is feared rather badly in that area of the disappointed nationalists are carrying the sword into the interior. The flight of refugees from their homes elsewhere is a most certain indication that the order have disappeared. It must be something extremely wrong with a Government which cannot promptly take suitable measures to the onslaught of anarchy. Due to a communication from Mr. Nalin Kanjan Sarkar, a Bengali defence organ, it has been banned out of the country. The Office in the case of Sind, some seem to have lost the initiative, having been pushed for several years by political intrigue and back-stairings of legislators."

Sits Still

Strange that the head of Government still sits in Calcutta in a farago of internal frenzy when the place for him is the very where wild men are cutting another's throat. Mr. Huq seems to have perfected an ancient technique for situations. He suppresses the press, he silences news, prevent comment when he thinks that in this darkness of his creating Government can thrive. We tell him that this foolish will be his undoing. Not the European friends out of his hands he eats from day to day to reconcile themselves to an unreason and disorder, to certain to affect their interests; not even the horror of Bengal will, if it goes on at this rate.

Frank Analysis
A frank analysis of the situation that have led to the present situation must take account of the fact that the mischief is directly traceable to the presence and absence of a ministry which draws its support from community rather than from class. We can trace it to the communal Award, which is unnecessary for one of the people to seek the goodwill of the other and thus puts a premium on communalism. Mr. Huq, more a prisoner in the hands of his followers than a leader, has made a habit of giving on the misfortunes of his country and the backwardness of their own religionists as the only contribution to the disorders that have broken out. He is not reckless verbal incense in India today. His recent statements about the census operations have excited communal passion to a high pitch, creating, as they did, the belief in the mind of his community that, through loss of population strength, it might lose political power. How can Satan rebuke Sin? By the measures his Government has adopted, it has done little to assuage the public mind of India that it can be relied upon to deal out even-handed justice. It is one thing to elevate a community; it is another to uplift it by unnecessarily antagonising others.

Contributory Causes

Is it all for this that one of the most popular men in Bengal has been returned to power at the head of a party which by its very name calls itself the People's Party? We do not, for a moment, forget that one of the most important contributory causes has been the slowness of the vested interests in Bengal in adjusting themselves to the new situation, in sensibly reconciling themselves to a diminution of the power and a whittling down of the possessions they have hitherto enjoyed. The agitation against the doings of the Ministry has at times gone too far, and criticism of its measures has been often indiscreet. In a democracy the party that is returned to power in a majority must necessarily have the right to carry out its policies to a large extent without, however, doing gross injustice to the minority. A certain awareness of this wholesome responsibility in some classes of the people of Bengal might not have driven Mr. Fazlul Huq into the hands of the more reactionary of his followers. We cannot but regret that the unreasoning and thoughtless opposition of some Bengal Congressmen to the authority of the High Command has tended to weaken the power and impair the prestige of the Congress and thus prepared the way for the emergence of communalism. The Muslim League and the Mahasabha have not only popped in but have both overplayed their hand in Bengal.

Blood Bath

The Province has its blood-bath long enough. It would be a heroic measure that the Governor should take over the administration from the hands of an elected legislature and a ministry of its choice. It is a calamity to be most devoutly avoided. We gain nothing by loss of nerve and by a blinding of vision. Mr. Huq will gain much if he gives up his devilish dances which have ceased to amuse the world. He should shake off the bad bold bargains, of whom he has got too many around him—men who are not worth a pice in the political market. A ministry must not be an asylum for political bankrupts and effete aristocrats.

Communal Bigotry

Bengal's Prime Minister has more than once shown a remarkable capacity to think independently. The time has come for him to act courageously. The incubus of the Muslim League has been too much for this coun-

HASSAN'S BRIGHT VILLAGES

(Contributed)

The problem of making the villages of Mysore brighter than ever is tackled vigorously in Hassan many villages are practically subjected to a scheme of rural welfare on approved lines. For example the progress of work in about 43 villages in Hassan District during the last half of 1940 furnishes proof of rural revivification. Five wells have been sunk in villages selected for intensive work. A fresh well was provided for the Adikarnatakas at Basavapatna. The expenditure incurred by all the villages over such an important item of improvement as drainage was Rs. 2,286 as against Rs. 1,960 in the previous half year. Drainage work is being continued in Belgod, Mallapura and Yeslur villages. A sum of about Rs. 2,657 as against Rs. 1,000 in the previous half year was spent over tunnels, culverts and roads to make communications possible and permanent in many of the selected villages.

Civic amenities have been provided to village residents by opening libraries, giving lighting facilities, construction of Panchayat halls and by the erection of fountains and forming parks. Reading rooms opened a few months ago in the Jayachamarajapura, Doddametikeke Gandasi and Javagal in Arsikere Taluk and in Basvanahalli and Gorur in Hassan Taluk continue to work satisfactorily.

Medical aid is being provided in Keralpur in Arkalgud Taluk, Navile in Channarayapatna Taluk.

Now about 33 villages possess schools and night schools for educating adults are held in 8 places with a fair degree of progress. Under the auspices of the Karnataka Sangha at Chennarayapatna an adult education campaign was started and it was conducted by Mr. Devadu Narasimhasastry. Here a number of young men were trained to spread adult education in rural parts. As an adjunct to adult education rural libraries have also been started at Gorur and Dudda. Of the total population of 33,060 in all the selected villages, 32,470 have already been vaccinated so far.

The popularisation of improved seeds and manures in villages is vigorously being carried on, much more so for Bengal. Politically and historically, the two sister communities in East India have much in common and have together little uncommon with the rabid communalism that prevails in some parts of the country. Bengal's Hindu and Muslim leaders should reach a provincial solution of their own for their provincial difficulties without getting themselves tied to the chariot-wheels of the Hindu Maha Sabha and the Muslim League. The blood of the innocent men, women and children who have been killed at Dacca and around is a heavy price to pay for foolish and rancorous political partnership and communal bigotry.

by the Agricultural Department by means of demonstration plots and the results are said to have been very satisfactory. Two varieties of paddy, particularly S661 and S139 have been introduced in K. Hoskote, Yeslur, Ballu, Palya, Hanchur, Halebidu, H. M. 320 sugarcane and M. A. 11 Cotton varieties introduced during previous years in Halebidu have attracted the attention of the raiyats on account of their high yield and better sugar yielding qualities. Arrange-ments have also been made for the opening of model manure pits and sugarcane subvention farms. The importance of compost making and the use of chemical manures for raising crops are incessantly demonstrated to the raiyats.

The village of Gorur is now an active centre for such cottage industries like mat weaving and Khadi cloth, tile making, pottery and paper. The recently constituted Gorur Cattle Society is a typical non-credit society for improving the general economic condition of the people in addition to giving an impetus to the improvement of the condition of their cattle. Cows and buffaloes are purchased by the Society and given to its members who in turn are permitted to make repayments in easy weekly instalments.

CHIKMAGALUR BUS CONDUCTORS' STRIKE

Congress Secretary's Statement

(From our correspondent)

Chikmagalur, April 15
Mr. C.V. Dhruva, Secretary of Kadir District Congress Committee has issued the following statement to the press in connection with the strike of the bus conductors of the Chikmagalur Public Conveyance Company.
"The strike of the C.P.C. Company is going on peacefully. Though the Government officials are showing some sympathy no settlement has been reached so far. So the Kadir District Congress is obliged to intervene in the matter. It has definitely come to our knowledge that the Company was extracting work in contravention of factory rules or the rules laid down by the Government for the working hours of bus conductors and drivers. Though the proprietors of the concern seem to be Mysoreans, the management is in the hands of Mangalore people. The Mysore workers who were in the concern are being removed on trivial reasons and their places are being regularly filled in by South Canara people. In other walks of life also, South Canara people are getting a higher standing in Chikmagalur. This can be seen from the number of South Canara people who have been appointed as police constables, and also the number of Public Works Department contracts given to Mangaloreans. If the existing state of affairs continues Mysoreans here will have shortly to vacate their places for outsiders. It is my earnest appeal to the Government and to the public to encourage Mysoreans wherever possible."

Adverting to the question of the strike again, I have come to

German Army's Prospects In Yugoslavia

"DIFFERENT CASE FROM THAT OF POLAND"

Mountainous Country May Diminish Advantages

(By Cable) London
Vernon Bartlett writes in the News Chronicle.

News from the Balkans emphasises the advantages to Germany of her relatively short lines of communications and her preponderance in air and mechanical equipment.

It is obvious that the Germans are concentrating their attack on the narrowest part of Yugoslavia in order to reach Albania and divide Yugoslavia and Greece. The Yugoslav withdrawal is reported to have uncovered the left flank of the Greek Army.

It cannot be said to what extent the Germans and their allies are advancing over relatively easy territory between Hungary or Rumania and Belgrade. It appears that the Yugoslav Government has been somewhat astonished by heavy bombing of the capital after it had been declared an open city.

Fighting in Southern Serbia, however, is by far the most important since the Germans hope that it will lead to the severance of communications between the Yugoslavs and their Greek and British allies.

The German advance in western Thrace seems to cause no particular disquiet. The Turks, in closest possible co-operation with the British General Staff and encouraged by the significant Russo-Yugoslav Treaty of non-aggression, are waiting along the line of River Maritsa to check any German attempt to reach the Dardanelles.

The collapse of France and the resulting increased pressure on British resources have made it difficult for the Turkish General Staff to be adequately equipped to face the prospect of hostilities outside her national frontiers.

This is understood by the Greek and Yugoslav Governments despite their courageous stand and their great need of help.

In the circumstances, a glance at the map will show why the Greeks, with their strength already taxed to the limit, are not trying to defend the eastern end of the long and narrow ridge between the Bulgarian frontier and the Aegean Sea.

While the German mechanised forces may be expected to achieve successes at the beginning of this campaign, it is probably true to say that they have much greater difficulties ahead of them than in Poland, where their mechanised transport could travel unhindered across the plains, or in France and the Low Countries, where they were able to make most of their attack in depth.

The country over which they are now fighting is so wild and mountainous that it should do much to diminish the advantages to their mechanised divisions.

Understand that the conductors of the said company who are on strike, it appears, saw the District Superintendent in the matter, who expressed his inability to help the strikers.

We have been following the strikers' affairs and have been seeing to prevent all outward nudges.

FEDERAL COURT DISMISSES APPLICATION

A. P. New Delhi, April, 17

The Federal Court today dismissed an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty-in-Council from the Federal Court's judgment of last year in the United Provinces Government versus Iqa Begum and others wherein it had been held that the United Provinces Regulation of Remissions Act, 1938 was within the competence of the United Provinces Legislature.

In dismissing the petition the Federal Court pointed out that the operation of the U. P. Act was only temporary as it sought to regularise certain remissions of rent which according to the opinion of the High Court in another case were granted in violation of certain provisions then existing in the Rent Act.
Those sections of the Rent Act themselves had been repealed by another Act and the question was hardly likely to arise in the same form in respect of claims for rent for future years.

"CONGRESS POSITION ARROGANT"

MR. JINNAH INDICTS RAJEN BABO

Statement In Reply

A. P. Madras, April, 18.
"The principle of partitioning India is to be accepted first and then only comes the question of details" asserts Mr Jinnah in a statement in reply to Babu Rajendra Prasad. Mr. Jinnah says: I gather that Dr. Rajendra Prasad is not opposed to the basic principles of the scheme of partitioning India but he wants full details of the scheme and then alone the Working Committee of the Congress will be pleased to discuss it. Will it not be a more logical course for the Congress that they should first make their mind and accept basic principles laid down in the Lahore resolution of the League.
Let the Congress drop the pistol of non-cooperation and civil disobedience and come to the arena of peaceful settlement and negotiation on the basis of Pakistan proposals and then only they would have rendered greatest service to the Hindus and Mus-salmans and other interests and minorities inhabiting this great sub-continent.

When Mr. Subhas Chandra Bose the then Congress President and Mahatma Gandhi met me in Bombay the position taken up by the Congress was an impossible one. I requested Hindu-Muslim question be settled first and communal question be settled only after we had wrenched freedom from the British is that stand was also taken by them before the Viceroy. After this to say I am elusive and hardly fair and to say they are disappointed is really incorrect.
The truth is that the Congress position has been most arrogant and dictatorial.

Thought For The Day

Don't object that your duties are so insignificant; they are to be reckoned of infinite significance, and alone important to you. Were it but the more perfect regulation of your apartments, the sorting away of your clothes and trinkets, the arranging of your papers, "Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," and all thy worth and constancy.

STORES PURCHASE COMMITTEE

The report on the working of the Stores Purchase Committee during the year 1939-40 contains some interesting facts and figures. We know that this Committee has been serving a useful purpose in the matter of placing orders in foreign countries and in India for the articles required for our Government and Industrial concerns. It provides a medium through which we may find out how many things we need to equip our concerns and from where all we may get the supply. It goes without saying that the Committee purchases the best articles in the cheapest markets. They call for Quotations of prices. The requirements of the several departments are very widely published by circulation of the copies of enquiries to firms both in foreign countries and in India and the insertion of notices of the requirements in the Mysore Gazette and in the Indian Trade Journal.

The total number of orders placed in foreign countries was 259, of the value of Rs. 24,31,409 as against 358 of the value of Rs. 33,85,107 during the previous year. The bulk of the purchases was for the Electrical and Railway Departments and the Government Electric and Porcelain Factories. The total number of orders placed with firms in India was 675 of the value of Rs. 38,97,539. The total value of the Purchases arranged for by the Stores Purchase Committee on behalf of the several Departments of Government, both from firms in India and abroad amounted to Rs. 63, 28, 948.

The work of the Committee continued to be satisfactory, but Government regret to note that the defects pointed out in previous reports regarding the preparation of indents, estimation of requirements and obtaining of sanction for purchases still continue, thus causing much inconvenience to the Committee and the firms concerned, apart from loss to Government. The Heads of Departments are once again requested to see that such defects are strictly avoided in future.

It is to be noted and a strange fact is that the Committee did not meet during the year under report, as the work of the Committee is almost standardised and there were no subjects of importance on which the views

MORE THAN THIRTY PERSONS SEE THE DEWAN

Interview Day at Bangalore

Bangalore, April 18
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore, granted interviews to more than 30 persons and gave a patient hearing to their grievances.

Messrs Benegal Ramarao, A.N. Subbarao, Subodha Rama Rao, J. Mohamed Iman, G. Srinivasalingar, Wyne, D.S.P. and many others interviewed the Dewan. Under the leadership of Mr. Annaiyappa, about 50 Tegalars waited in a deputation and requested him to arrange the supply of drainage water to their kitchen gardens near Sir Puttanna Chetty Road.

The Dewan after hearing their grievances replied negatively and later assured them that he would speak over the matter with the Municipal Commissioner.

Mr. Benegal Ramarao and Mr. A. N. Subbarao interviewed the Dewan and requested him to perform the opening ceremony of the Mysore Art and Frame Wood Works sometime in June next.

Messrs J. V. Doddaveerappa, Rangannath Rao and Srimathi Kalyanamma of the All Karnataka Children Conference interviewed the Dewan and invited him to be present at their conference to be held at Bangalore in the last week of this month under the presidency of Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswami.

of the Committee were necessary.

It is also to be noted that immediately after the declaration of War in Europe there was complete dislocation of trade activities, and prices of all commodities rose due to the speculative tendency of the trade. As a result of this, extra prices ranging from 15 to 40% had to be paid on various articles ordered by the Committee during the period from July 1939 to December 1939.

The report repays perusal. We congratulate the Secretary of the Committee on the nice report he has produced.

BANGALORE'S BUS SERVICE

IMPROVEMENTS URGENTLY NEEDED

Bangalore, April 18

A frequent Bus-Traveler has written to us enumerating many hardships of bus service.

Visiting Bangalore after an absence of nearly 3 years it is indeed a pity to find the Bus Service in the city grown less efficient and more irksome. The Service, as it is, is a disgrace to the fair name of Bangalore in as much as it being a Government undertaking is a sad reflection on the Administration. One had expected an improvement after the Government took over but instead one finds that the laziness and inefficiency, so well known and observable in many of the Government Departments, has crept in. The condition and comfort of the Buses, the very uncivil attitude of the staff in general and the insipid inspectors in particular and the general air of luxurious laziness preponderating the entire atmosphere breathes foul in the face of one who has seen and admired the efficiency and punctuality of the Bus service elsewhere.

It would be in the interests of the public if some of the following suggestions were to be taken up for consideration and adoption:—

1. Routes should be chalked out and in spite of the traffic conditions should be adhered to (and not alterable according to the whims of the Inspectors.)

2. Every Bus must be a through Bus or at least it must be so arranged that within 5 minutes of the arrival at a junction a through bus is available for long distance passengers. For this the Buses should have to follow a strict schedule of timing and once again in spite of the condition of traffic. This will also enable the wayside passengers to have a fair chance of utilising the service.

3. The number of people enjoying free rides should be very severely checked and put a stop to. This is causing much inconvenience to paying passengers and deprives legitimate passengers a Seat.

4. Obliging a police constable (even in uniform) with a free ride should be prohibited except in extraordinary circumstances.

5. The conductor should be severely dealt with in case of overloading.

Will the Superintendent of the Transport Co., wake up and give us a fair deal?

A PUFF OF SMOKE

GAUBA AN INSOLVENT—'TIMES OF INDIA' FALLS FOOL—TAGORE POET INDICTS Br. RULE—TRUE INDIAN HISTORY.

It is strange how millionaires turn insolvents. Mr. K.L. Gauba son of the late Lala Harikishan Lal and who has represented the Muslims of Lahore City in the Punjab Assembly since 1937 was declared insolvent by Mr. Justice Sale of the Lahore High Court on the application filed by the official liquidator. His Lordship directed Mr. Gauba to apply for his discharge within three years. Mr. Gauba in the course of an appeal to his constituents says, "to the many thousands of men and women whose interests have had the honour and privilege of representing in the Legislative Assembly, I would say that they should now look around for another champion for their cause." It may be mentioned that a member of a Provincial Legislative Assembly is disqualified from membership if he is an undischarged insolvent.

Mr. K.L. Gauba is well-known to newspaper readers. He is a born Hindu who embraced Islam. He is a colourful figure on the Indian scene. He has written quite a number of books of which two are well-known. He has written a book called "Uncle Sham" in reply to Miss Mayo's Mother India. Another well-known book of his is "Their Highnesses," dealing with Indian Princes. Both of these are readable books. I am sorry for Mr. Gauba. His father Lala Harikishan Lal was called "Napoleon" of Indian Banking. But his last days also were miserable.

The Times of India has fallen foul on Dr. Tagore. It says "Dr. Rabindranath Tagore celebrated his 80th birthday by an unusually embittered attack on western civilisation. Coming as it does from one who has dedicated his life to international amity and good-will his outburst reads strongly." Continuing in this bitter strain, the Bombay Paper says, "Asia has produced its Gengiskhans and Taimores." After all what is it that Tagore has said to provoke 'Times of India.' Here it is—He says "how could I help thinking that it was India that had kept the coffers of the British. Such travesty of the history of the so called civilisation such criminal and complete indifference to the helpless Indian people, I never have imagined. The dead-weight of the administration, India the very bottom, state utter helplessness. At that the blackest of evil has come in the wake of Administration was more than the rulers shameful and apathy to provide minimum amenities of existence. Their failure was more apparent than in any way in which they have tried to divide the world amongst themselves.

Dr. Tagore is indeed bitter. But he is not unbearably bitter. In his agony "the wheels of Fate" may day compel the English to up their Indian Empire. The words might have provoked Bombay paper to a tirade. Dr. Tagore. But is his word of untruth in what Tagore has said? It is history to say yes or no.

News is published that Jadunath Sircar, Prof. N. S. Sastry, Mr. Mohamad Hanif and several other scholars have been thinking of writing a true history of India. The history is in ten volumes. The first volumes will be ready within a year. I welcome this enterprise with open arms. We have offered a good deal from our Indian History. Our boys and girls would do well to learn all that they have about the "mountain" and other epithets vilely used against great Indian heroes. Our present trouble in connection with the Hindu-Muslim problem is all due to this distorted history. Text Books which are obliged to read. Thanks to the boys and girls of this nation would have for the first time the Text Books of Indian history based on truthful facts. They will no more be with "blackhole lies."

HER BODY IS LIKE A REED'

MISS SADHONA BOSE IN BANGALORE

Captivating Dance Performance (By Daily News Reporter)

Bangalore, April 18.—A good evening. How did you like the Dance? Tell me whether you are wondering of this ancient art of dancing as presented in the Bangalore Municipal Theatre with these words Miss Sadhona Bose and a pride of dancers of India and a pride of the city greeted me soon after the stage show at the Select last evening.

She had just entered the green room after the Ras Leela Ballet when a group of Pressmen were present at the performance were shown in and duly introduced to Miss Sadhona Bose. She was captivating in her beauty and after her beautiful performance in Ras Leela and with that vibrating atmosphere the journalists entered the sanctum sanctorum of her room.

Miss Sadhona Bose belongs to a cultured family of Bengal. She is the grand-daughter of that great soul of India Keshab Chandra Sen. Foot lights separated her and she is seen ascending the spiral heights of fame. Dancing as understood by us is an emblem of the universal harmony of individuals with man, music and the trot. In India no one is wedded to a particular school of thought and dancing from Udaya Shankar

Ballet lovers combine Shakali, Bharatha Natya and Kathak into sublime rhythmic movements, Miss Sadhona Bose is an adept in moulding different schools of Indian dancing into one well knit art. She is at her best in 'troupades' where her presentation of five qualities righteousness, strength, bravery, beauty and competence through several 'muhuras' reveal how well she has mastered the principles of Bharata Natya.

Under the able hands of Mr. Amir Baran the background music was at its best with Sitar, Hind, Jalatarang, Tabla Tarang and other numerous instruments. The Select stage though smaller in width didn't take away a bit from the artistic beauty of the performance. With the paucity of theatres like the Aldwych one has to content with what one can have here and merge our lines with the divine art.

Miss Sadhona Bose has all the equipments of a Dancer. She is an angelic profile. Her body can be bent to any curve and a reed. Her lustrous eyes captivate those who see her dancing on the stage. In company with Madhava Menon she blends the rhythmic heights and bodily movements in keeping with the hoary traditions of Bharata. Her smile is all-pervading and the changes of expression are promoted by the switching on of the pathos to delight and from pathos to enthusiasm pours forth as sparks of divine acting.

Miss Sadhona Bose reminds me of the figure of Damayanti as

MYSORE MERRY-GO-ROUND

(By Sami)

I am writing under a pseudonym in spite of my aversion to the cheap and convenient shelter of anonymity. I have chosen this cover, to be frank, because of the freedom of expression it gives one and also because of the fine latitude a writer enjoys behind such a screen. What is more, I am looking at the whole social vista as a tragic-comic merry-go-round, with its futility, its hope and its pain. Either as a spectator or a participant, if you happen to be a merry-go-round, you prefer to cloak your identity.

Isn't it customary to say that 'the civil service is "heaven-born" or something to that effect? I should say that the civil servants could function better if they were a little less heavenly and a little more earthy. I am concerned with the Mysore brand of the civil service. I know this service harbours some fine and brilliant men and some of its members can hold their own anywhere in the world. I also know that some of them are of the "heaven-born" type and would resent any earthly criticism or a suggestion of common genesis. I am sure most of them will resent the suggestion that they are somewhere near the Mysore merry-go-round.

I am worried about Messrs A. V. Ramanathan and M. Venkatesa lyengar. For sometime now, these two gentlemen are being shuttle-cocked between spells of new jobs and spells of enforced leave. If Mr. Ramanathan is functioning as the Inspector-General of Police, Mr. Venkatesa lyengar is on leave. The latter is put at the helm of the Excise Department and Mr. Ramanathan is asked to have a brief respite from active work. And so it goes on, the Merry-go-Round!

painted by Ravi Varma. She has a round face with a pair of artful eyes ever radiating the essence of Dancing. Her personality is pleasing to those who watch her clever bodily movements of grace and charm. She abounds with eloquent expression strictly conforming to the cannons of Natya Shastra.

Jaya Shankar, Vasant, Bhargavi, Ammini, Hira, Jyotikhana and Gayatri all have contributed to make the programme a class one. The public of this city should never miss this golden opportunity of witnessing Sadhona Bose in person. The Street Dance wherein Sadhona Bose appears as a vagrant with Madhava Menon is the troupe's best. The portrayal of poverty through art is a new thing and you congratulate Miss Bose for that.

In Usha and Aniruddha, the manifestations are supreme.

Miss Sadhona Bose will be with us for a couple of days more.

[Please watch for the 'Daily News' of the 20th for Sadhona Bose's frank talk with our reporter. E.D.]

I suggest that our civil service, like "the profession of man" is over-stocked! There must be a good many on "special" duty, pigeon-holed in the Secretariat. I think that the time has come for a civil service parade, a roll-call, a stock-taking. The whole world is taking stock today and parades are the front line fashion. "Company! attention!"

Somehow this congestion must be eased. May I make a suggestion? Get hold of some of the young and smart civilians of, say, few years' standing and shut them on to the Education Department for a while, as District Educational Officers! I know that many a civilian looks upon the Department of Education as unworthy of his interest or attention. I know that the village PATEL and his immediate boss, the Revenue Inspector, wield more power than a D.E.O. or, for that matter, the D.P.I. I know of no D.E.O. who has ever been saluted by a Policeman.

I am not projecting this suggestion light-heartedly. The Department of Education is clamouring for new blood. Take any D.E.O. He has been, in most cases, a head-master and has been given a preferment and a promotion and made a D.E.O. Having been in a particular educational rut, having known some sort of teaching himself, he is satisfied if things go on just as they have always been going, just as he left them before he became an inspecting officer. This headmaster D.E.O. just immortalises the old way and resents innovation.

The new type D.E.O., I have visualised, is young, alert and dynamic and just out of the university. He has not yet lost interest in progress and is prepared to grapple with problems with an unfettered mind. He is not too young and certainly not very old and that is our man. Mr. McAlpine, our education chief, knows that our education needs a new affluence, a new orientation; but he goes the wrong way about it and sacks the unfortunate teachers of schools!

The Head-Masters will not take kindly to a suggestion like this. But if it is a little more money they ask for, give it to them and keep them as head-masters. You put a civilian through the whole Governmental Mill. Some time or other, the head of a district would have functioned as a police officer. If you want him to keep an eye on the whole gamut of social activities and progress in his district, why not put him through the Educational Mill?

I heard a fine story the other day. It is a municipal tale. In one of the new extensions in Bangalore, a gentleman bought a site to build a house. His was the last one of a stretch of half-a-dozen or more sites. The owner of the first in this line appropriated a little land from the neighbouring site, the neighbour in his turn pinched a little land from his neighbour, the third

MOTOR DRIVER MURDER CASE

WITNESSES EXAMINED

Bangalore, April 18

The case against Syed Ahmed Motor Driver in Dr. (Mesa) Albuquerque's establishment for an offence of murder of one Balu and causing injuries to Patamma on the night of 8th March last, came up this afternoon before Mr. M. Ramaswamiah City Magistrate, Bangalore.

As usual, the Court Hall was full of lawyers and visitors.

Mr. Sharief, Over-seer in the Bangalore City Municipality was the first witness examined today. In the course of his examination, he said that he visited the spot on the 20th March last and prepared the sketch of the spot according to instructions given by the Police Inspector.

In the course of cross-examination the witness said, I had been to Dr. Albuquerque's house at about 8-30 a.m. on the 20th March last accompanied by the coolies and a clerk. I sent word to the Police Inspector. He came there within half an hour. The Inspector took me round the house. I prepared the plan.

Dr. S. Rajan, Messrs Basappa Motor Driver of Dr. T. Seshachalam and Govinda Rao Motor Driver of Dr. T. L. Narasimha Pandit were examined.

The case has been posted to 25th of April.

from the fourth and so on. Result: my friend, who has paid the municipality good money, finds, to his horror and amazement, that his site has disappeared into thin air! He is haunting the corridors of the municipal offices, day after day, to no purpose! Why blame Hitler for grabbing a bit of Europe here and a bit there? Just a little more elbow room! Might is Right. Even Nature is red in tooth and claw. So on.

The other day, on the bus, two gentlemen were in intimate conversation, loud enough to be heard even by pedestrians, and one was holding forth on the philosophy and practice of paying one's bills. Being an incorrigible defaulter, I got not a little interested. But the whole thing turned out to be a vehement diatribe against the P.W.D. and the gentlemen in question building contractors. One of them had presented a bill five months ago and that was the last he heard of it. But the work had to go on workmen had to be paid and he had borrowed from a Sindh Banker at a shocking rate of interest. The other, not to be outdone, was playing the waiting game, just double the time. The aggressive of the two, who, as he said had spent a little fortune in oiling the palms of P.W.D. clerks who was now holding forth, ended up rather dramatically, "The Government, in all conscience, have no right to prosecute peasants who default payment of land revenue. The Government" I was about to have my say and opened my mouth but I shut up.

They say what say they? Let them say. They say prices of food-stuffs are soaring. Let them soar. Let them say Who cares?

seems to be a rumour set afloat in the city that Sikhs intended to take out a procession with music in front of Jumma Masjid. On enquiries it is learnt that no such procession was to be taken out and that the Sikhs had assured the authorities to that effect.

The atmosphere in the city is surcharged with Sikh-Muslim tension in consequence of the murder of a Sikh over a money-lending transaction in Raipur Hindu locality a few days ago.
The climax was reached today when the false rumour of the intention of the Sikhs to take out procession was circulated. In order to allay public anxiety the District Magistrate has issued a notification stating that the Sikhs had not asked for permission to take out procession and that their leaders had assured the authorities that they did not intend to take out procession.
The District Magistrate is touring the affected areas.

Eighteen persons injured have been admitted into hospital as the result of stray assaults reported to have been committed in some parts of the city. One later died in the hospital. Stray assaults continue still. Labour area is quiet and mills are working normally. Additional Police have been drafted to meet the situation. One Police constable was injured. Cars of Deputy Police Superintendent and Public Prosecutor were attacked and six other private cars have been damaged.

Thought For The Day

A great many people imagine that the pressure of burden and care is wholesome: to take life hard is considered praiseworthy. It is looked upon as a kind of self-indulgence to take life easy. Now there is no doubt that a spirit of intensity and care, up to a certain point, is required for a wholesome condition of mind. But a care that brings burdens, that takes away light, that deprives us of happiness, has passed beyond the wholesome line.

THE TRAGEDY OF CLASS PROMOTIONS IN SCHOOLS

The merciless and unjust treatment meted out to young aspirants who are on the high road for search of careers has created such a furore in this State that we cannot shut our eyes or bandage our ears to a wanton wrong. We mean the recent departmental circular detaining a number of students from going up. We do not know and it has not been confirmed that a modification has been made in the circular already in vogue and which was the cause of so much trouble recently. If it is a fact that the Director of the Education Department thought fit to modify certain clauses in his famous death dancing circular, we congratulate him for his excellence of procedure though late. We have all heard the familiar saying "once bitten twice shy" and never it has been aptly quoted than in this imbroglio, which has been a speciality in Mysore.

If the modification improves the atmosphere it is well and good but how best to utilise the concession that has been so "graciously" granted by the Education Chief is a question that has to find a ready answer. Great many students are made to limp after the unfortunate hurdle and to right that manifest wrong after a lapse of well nigh a month is curious or rather intriguing. We have all heard and were treated to an excellent joke wherein an Head master of a High School was compulsorily made to detain students who were already experiencing the thrill of a lift to an higher class. This is a case of snatching away the right of discretion from the helpless Headmasters. It is unfortunate that so many students were left in the lurch as a result of the D. P. I.'s vagaries to find themselves a drag on their poor parents. To enjoy the thrill of a promotion and at the same time to feel the pinch of detention—all in a period of two weeks is nothing but betrayal. We hope such phoneying tactics will not be repeated in this State.

The abrogation of all discretion from the Head masters in deciding class promotions should never have been encouraged by the powers that be. All this happens—due to the vagaries of a Chief who under his cool Panka breeze forgets the difficulties of others and has his own way unmindful of the public criticisms. We hold no brief to the dazed students whose minds have been agitated over this dictatorial episode but all that we need is a better efficiency and a higher purpose in the decision of policies. It was a manifest wrong to have detained so many young aspirants for no fault of their own save a lesser minimum in one subject. It is all very well to pluck those whose brains have no spark of intelligence but to detain as many as 50% of the boys even after getting more than the minimum in several subjects is less than fair.

We hope the Government will soon come to the rescue of these unfortunate young aspirants and right the unjust wrong done to them for no fault of theirs. After all it is the duty of the state to see the young generation grow in stature. We are sure that our Government will set the matters right in keeping with their sense of fairness and justice.

HOW LALBAGH LOOKS LIKE IN SUMMER

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS IN SIGHT

Orchids in Plenty
(By Gardener)

Those who are interested in trees and flowers should not miss visiting the gardens during this month when some of the most beautiful trees in bloom can be seen.

Tabebuia roses.—A small erect tree of Guatemala which produces light rose coloured flowers in large, many flowered terminal panicles. The flowers are large trumpet shaped with short tube and large spreading lobes. There are two trees in the garden, one of them can be seen on the right of the Main gate to the garden and the other near the Picnic House beside the Royal Palm Avenue.

Cassia javanica.—This is the right on entering the Statue Garden from the Main gate and is one of the most beautiful of Cassias. The flowers which are white and pink are borne in clusters all along the branches. It is one of the most glorious sights during summer and none should fail to see it.

Lagerstroemia flos-reginae.—There are two varieties of this tree viz. the mauve and the pink flowered. The group of the pink variety can be seen on the lawn to the west of the Restaurant in the Lalbagh and the mauve coloured trees can be seen around the Statue garden and below the tank bund. The large flowers are borne in terminal panicles and the tree presents an appearance of great beauty and loveliness. This tree is commonly called as "The Pride of India" and it is also known as the "Queen's Flower."

Cassia renigera.—This is an another beautiful tree among Cassias. The lovely pale pink flowers are borne in clusters all along the branches like cherry blossom. This tree is near the west entrance opposite to the Herb garden.

Sterculia acerifolia (Flame Tree).—A strikingly handsome tree when in flower, with its brilliant scarlet flowers produced in large showy trusses. This tree can be seen in the south-west corner of the Fernery adjoining the Pot garden.

In addition to these trees there are some interesting orchids Saccolabium Blumii, Coelogyne Dayana, Dendrobium infundibulum, Cypripedium bellatulum. These are kept in the Plant House behind the Office building.

SADHONA BOSE LIKES BETTIE DAVIS

SPECIAL INTERVIEW TO THE "DAILY NEWS"

DESIRES TO TROT ROUND THE WORLD

Indian "Mona Lisa" in Bangalore

Bangalore, April 18

"It is very easy to express one's expression and feeling in acting than in dancing" said Srimati Sadhona Bose, the celebrated Dancer and film 'star' in an exclusive interview to the 'Daily News' reporter yesterday in the course of a long talk with her in her room in the West End Hotel.

The tall, slim lovely looking Sri Sadhona Bose dressed in typical Hindu fashion with a gorgeous georgette and a small dot of Kumkum, accorded an interview to the 'Daily News' reporter with her bewitching smile. In the course of a talk the reporter asked a number of questions to which she replied:

Q. Why don't you sing in the course of your dancing on the stage?

A. I do not like singing on the stage. In the Russian and European dances it is not in vogue.

Q. Of the various Dances which do you prefer?

A. Kathakali, Manipuri and Bharatanatyam.

Q. Which do you prefer, acting or dancing for expressing one's emotions and feeling?

A. It is very easy to show one's feelings in acting but it is a bit difficult in dancing.

Q. With what clear idea did you enter the films?

A. Ever since I was a young child I had a special liking for Dancing and Films. My husband himself was in the films to boot.

Q. Do you like serious acting or funny bits?

A. I like serious ones.

Q. Which Director, actor and actress in India do you like most?

A. Among the Directors I like Messrs. Shantaram and Nitin Bose. Among actors I like Ahin Choudry and Motilal and among actresses I like Devikarani and Kannanbala.

Q. Of the foreign film 'stars' whom do you like best?

A. Bettie Davis and Charles Boyer.

Q. Have you any idea of going abroad?

A. I like the idea of a sea voyage, but due to the international situation it is difficult now to secure a passage. When the war ends I shall trot round the world.

The 'Daily News' reporter thanked Srimati Sadhona Bose for this pleasure of an interview.

An Appreciation

This is what a footlight fan writes about her.

"I first heard of Sadhona Bose from a friend of mine. He rapturously talked about the expressive beauty of her face. He called her the Indian Mona Lisa. That made me curious and I wanted to see her very much.

Later, she came to Lalbagh to give a dance recital at the Plaza. Of course, I went. I saw and I was conquered. On this day I can vividly recall the impression she made on me. The curtain parted and to the accompaniment of sweet music, she floated in radiant and resplendent. She stood still-right in the centre of the stage, close to the footlights and I was seated, right in front of her. Her eyes were closed. They seemed as lovely as those of a Buddha. Slowly, she raised her eyes till they were full open. They seemed as beautiful as blown flowers. Then she cast a glance up and down, right and left and just in those four movements of her eyes, she revealed to me the divinity that was in her. They brought home to me in a flash what a finished superb artist she was. She was the rhythm and such was the life in them, in those movements of her eyes!

Since then, I have seen her dance on the stage as well as on the screen and I find that she is marching from triumph to triumph day by day adding to her stature as a dancer and actress.

There is quite a galaxy of women artists who have distinguished themselves for their interpretation of Indian classical dancing and Sadhona Bose stands at its head. She is our greatest female dancer. Today is our greatest day for her.

I have often tried to imagine as to wherein lies the genius of her art and I have come to the conclusion that it lies in the fact that her form and her soul are in complete harmony with form and the soul of the classical dancing.

My friend called her the Indian Mona Lisa. There is some truth in that, because you look at her, you are irresistibly reminded of the 'Mona Lisa' of Leonardo da Vinci. The expression of his masterpiece, 'Gioconda' especially when she is the head upon which the ends of world are converging, eye-lids are a little strained, a beauty wrought out of nature upon the flesh, the deep cell by cell of strange things.

Our Cine Review

By "Bee"
"LAGAN"Producers: New Theatres Ltd.
Direction & Photography: Nitin Bose M.S.C.Musical Direction: R.C. Boral Audiography: Mukul Bose
Acted by: Kanan, Saigal, Nawab, Jagadish, Nemo & others

Few pictures had raised such high hopes in the minds of picture-goers as had "Lagan". N.T.'s latest production which was released in Bombay on 10th Thursday of this month. By the very names of the artistes and the director the picture has an unprecedented attraction. Kanan, Saigal and Nawab, what a cast! New Theatres have in the past started each of these artistes individually.

The three together, with Nitin Bose to direct them, were certainly enough to make filmgoers sit up and take notice.

New Theatres, Nitin Bose and the three stars in the picture have justified all the expectations about "Lagan".

Ably directed, consummately acted, beautifully photographed and superlatively mounted "Lagan" is a motion picture with a message. The message is so aptly told that it does not intrude in the entertainment of the picture.

In the so called modern India of today, the youth mind is slowly being poisoned by pernicious forces let loose by demoralised and licentious people who pride themselves of their modernity and free thinking. The screen has been a happy hunting ground for such people under the pretence of laying bare social evils. Some screen writers have created characterisations of young men and women who have thrown epicureanism in to shade.

It is therefore a great relief to find that "Lagan" glorifies a modern young woman who is Indian enough to distinguish between right and wrong in the face of a youthful infatuation.

"Lagan" tells us, as a credit title naively says, the story of a husband, his wife and the other man. There have been innumerable film stories based on the eternal triangle. But "Lagan" is much more than that. It is a reflection of and an eye opener to the callous and selfish young men of today who mistake passion for love, licentiousness for free thinking and selfishness for ambition.

Saigal, the singing idol of millions, portrays this type of young man in "Lagan". He plays the role of a poet whose only ambition is to become famous. When he realises that all his encomiums are showered on his pupil Kusum Kurnari (Kanan) he becomes miserable and tells her that he would no longer be her friend. But the bond of friendship between Kusum and the poet is stronger than that of a mere teacher and a pupil. The poet loves Kusum madly and so does the girl until the former's selfishness rears up its ugly head. Kusum is married to a successful but elderly newspaper proprietor (Nawab) whose devotion to his wife is great indeed. The girl is equally devoted to her husband when the newspaper magnate learns that the ambition of his wife's music teacher is to become famous, he calls him to town and gives him all the publicity he can. The two become friends until the poet mistakenly supposes that Kusum loves him and not her husband. Possessed by mad passion, the poet is lost to all sense of right and wrong. Flouting the bond of his friendship with the news paper man, he makes advances to his wife who defends her honour at the point of a pistol.

In the end the poet realises that he had made a mistake in supposing that Kusum loved him. He also realises that the love between Kusum and her husband is something more sacred than physical attraction.

As is only to be expected the three stars Kanan, Saigal and Nawab give out standing performances. Kanan who appeared to have lost a bit of her charms in one or two recent pictures of hers, returns to her old charming self in this picture. Nawab gives a stupendous and thrilling performance.

"Lagan" is a great triumph. The background music by Wizard Boral is masterly introduced, especially in the psychological situations of the picture. Music is another high light of the picture.

There are pictures which are great but not popular and there are pictures which are popular but not great. But "Lagan" is both.

It is the right kind of film for today's India.

Nitin Bose saves New Theatres and brings back the standard of their original pictures, after a long hiatus.

"GLEN VIEW"
FERNHILL NILGIRIS

DEWAN'S SUMMER RESIDENCE

Bangalore, April 20

Sir Mirza M. Ismail the Dewan of Mysore is leaving this morning for Mysore en route to Nilgiris where he will be in residence during the best part of this summer. "Glen View" his summer residence in the suburb of Ootacamund is a lovely abode overlooking a peaceful glen not far from the Sultan's battery a place where Tipu halted for a rest.

"Glen View" is the property of the Mysore Government and is in charge of the Public Works Department. Though small it affords all the luxuries of a small castle with high eucalyptus and lovely ferns all round. The place abounds with serenity unsurpassed even in the Riviera of the west.

Looking through the plate glass window of Sir Mirza's study one is struck by the nice pastoral scene yonder enlivening those who feel tired after pressing state duties.

We wish the Dewan long life and prosperity. We are sure he will return fresh after his summer stay in the Queen of the Hill Stations.

RAPID INCREASE IN AMERICAN PRODUCTION
Country's "Participation in Military Situation"

(By Cable) London

The new American aeroplanes are superior in horse power and bombing capacity to the German, declares the American columnist David Lawrence. The quality of the fighting planes furnished to Britain is something of which America can already be proud.

These developments, together with the plans for ships, tanks and motorised equipment show large American participation in the Military situation during 1941. By July, 1941, American production will come rolling like an avalanche.

Bombay, April 21

Mahatma Gandhi refused to withdraw civil disobedience movement replying to Times of India editorial appeal, in an exclusive interview to the paper. "When I launched it out," he said "I had no foolish illusion about sudden miracle happening. It was conceived to be and it remains silent declaration of unquenchable faith in the power of nonviolence even in the midst of circumstances so terrible and so baffling as face the world today. There is no drawing back for me. It must continue against all odds. It was never intended that it would create appreciable impression above war effort but it is a moral and from that stand point grand protest against the conduct of war in name of free people."

Gandhiji affirmed that the Congress would disband tomorrow at the sacrifice of single legitimate interest consistent with interests of the dumb millions and denied that the present movement was against Muslims or against British. He asked in conclusion whether his friends would like him to forsake his faith which had sustained him for the past fifty years and added that if the British would only be true to India everything could be settled satisfactorily.

ECONOMIC UPLIFT MORE IMPORTANT

Sir Jwala on Industries

A. P. Cawnpore, April 20.

"Government should do away with red tapism and set up immediately a machinery to determine conditions wherefrom Industries may expect to get post-war protections," observed Sir Jwalaprasad Srivastava in the course of his Presidential address at the Silver Jubilee Celebrations of the United Provinces Chamber of Commerce.

Urging the need for intensive Industrialisation to raise the standard of living among Indian masses Sir Jwala Prasad said that the economic spirit of the country was more important than the attainment of nominal freedom. He criticised the Supply Department for not associating itself with non-official business opinion with broad outlines of its policy.

Referring to the increase in Excess Profits Tax he said: "It is possible for the Finance Minister to offer post-war reward or at least a post-war reward. Excess Profits Tax has been done in England."

WEDNESDAY—APRIL 23, 1941

MR. GUNDAPPA GOWDA'S
"PYRRHIC" VICTORY

Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda the pillar of the Mysore Rashtriya Mahasabha and a veteran figure in the regions of Malnad has at last succeeded in his attempts to walk into the sanctum sanctorum of a legislature. We are by no means in any haste to congratulate him for his "signa" success though belated. The success which he has achieved after a breath-taking hurdle lasting well nigh a fortnight has been a sufficient solace to his nerve racking endeavours to be elected at any cost. We are sorry that a person of his political eminence should undergo all the unpleasant hardships which, at all costs, Mr. Gundappa Gowda does not merit. If the Mysore State Congress had not introduced any dash of its own colour into the election scene Mr. Gundappa Gowda would not have experienced all these break-neck tactics of party politics. We are sorry that the custodian of Rashtriya Sabha's interests was made to swallow these pills. We are reminded of the familiar saying "Better late than never".

The Hassan victory has its own significance and one should not miss the meaning of its political tale. The electorate which once defeated the stalwart has in a space of two months changed its mind and has plumped its votes in favour of a candidate which it never favoured previously. How is it? The implication is too delicate for clarification. We leave it to the readers to judge.

Stretching this story a bit we are definitely of the opinion that public life in our state has yet to attain perfections before it can advance on the high road to supremacy. It is not to be taken or surmised that we are taking sides with either of the candidates who fought so fierce a "battle" to secure the coveted place in the bi-annual gatherings at the Jagan Mohan Palace. The election atmosphere was not free. What with gagging orders, prohibition of placards and the like the election went on with muffled calm. Even the legitimate canvassing ordinarily given to candidates was nipped by the all pervading authority. So the election chariot rumbled rather slowly much to the chagrin of the electorate. We are given to understand that the whole atmosphere in and around Hassan was anything but desirable. We do not know when our glorious State will be free from these contaminations.

Mr. Gundappa Gowda was a candidate both to the Repre-representative Assembly and the Legislative Council in the last general elections. He was defeated in both constituencies after which his hurdle began. An obliging co-worker of his who had already secured his berth kept it vacant but the benign Government after going through the legal aspects of the matter decided to fill it up with a bye-election. So the historic fight was enacted as a result of which the electorate plumped their votes to the hors-de-combat and made him victorious. It is certainly a "Pyrrhic" victory.

The Mysore State Congress need nurse no sorrow for having lost this battle. For them the public have always extended their ready hand of help.

The collapse of this key seat is due to extraneous causes over which the Congress had no control. The whole atmosphere was surcharged with rumours so distasteful that one should hang down his head in shame. The election is over and in the quietude let us search our hearts. It is alleged and it is a matter for strict and impartial enquiry that unseemly things took place wherein neutrals also joined in the fray to put the last shred of their shirt on their favourite. If such is the course of elections in our State God forbid anyone from enmeshing themselves.

Mr. Gundappa Gowda has at last secured his berth. Let him prosper well and co-operate with others in the land to the speedy attainment of Responsible Government.

Mr. M. A. JINNAH IS IN
MIDSTREAD WHAT SIR C. Y. CHINTAMAN
WRITES ABOUT HIM

'HIS INSUFFERABLE SUPERIORITY'

1919 Episode Recalled

("From the Leader")

Mr. M. A. Jinnah, never noted for courtesy, is out to fight everybody and everything excepting of course his own great self great beyond the point of recognition because it is so magnified, it is so swollen. He reminds us, at least his words do, of a tete-a-tete in the House of Commons. A certain M. P. solemnly rose in his seat and drew the Speaker's attention to the presence of a contagious disease in the House. The Speaker having asked for particulars, the M. P. said the Rt. Hon. gentleman, Mr. Winston Churchill was suffering from beriberi or a swollen head.

This has been Mr. Jinnah's ailment all his life and we are sorry to think that instead of age bringing him a little modesty it has made him vainer and vainer still.

We are not Congressmen but we strongly object to his most unfair attack on the Congress. Nobody would have expected it to have the merit of courtesy when its author was Mr. Jinnah. But it was so far removed from facts, so unjust that any leader with the slightest sense of responsibility would have thought twice before allowing those words to escape his lips.

Mr. Jinnah's characterization of the Hindu Mahasabha is that it is "incorrigible and hopeless". The Hindu Mahasabha would not have expected a bouquet from the President of the Muslim League and to be sure. Mr. Savarkar would hand none to his fellow-citizen of Bombay.

Mr. Jinnah next fell upon the Bombay Conference. He has referred to its president, Sir Tej Bahadur, in language which indicates that Sir Tej Bahadur Sapra thinks himself to be the one possible saviour of India. The answer suffices for as long as Mr. Mahomed Jinnah is living no one else can surpass or equal or threaten approaching him in self-conceit. Sir William Vincent was Home Member once marked to a friend of our always attack us. I am sorry for being arrogant. My fellow I wish you to point single I. C. S. officer who approach Mr. Jinnah in arrogant offensiveness and insulting treatment of others?

When Mr. Jinnah was a member before the Joint Select Committee of Parliament on Government of India in 1919, he was so rude in answers to questions that member, the Rt. Hon. D. Acland said, 'Mr. Jinnah has not been courteous to you. May I know why you rude to me in answering questions?' And when it came to Lord Sinha's turn to speak, Mr. Jinnah said, 'I shall address every question as to a limit of the answer "or" or "on". I will not want argument and explanation. I will not be insulted as my colleague have been. If you can prove that you will simply say "or" or "on" in reply to my question. I will examine you. Others I shall leave you alone. May you put your mind whether you so far restrain yourself as whether you can make that "or" or "on". Mr. Jinnah answered the affirmative. But he lapsed into argumentative and was sharply pulled up by Lord Sinha, reminded of initial promise and kept to it.

Such being Mr. Jinnah's modesty, reputation for modesty and record of modesty, it is indeed a bit of a joke that he should accuse any other man of thinking too much of himself.

KING PETER ARRIVES IN JERUSALEM

PLANE ATTACKED ON THE WAY

King Peter of Yugoslavia arrived in Jerusalem from Athens along with Yugoslav Prime Minister and other Ministers. The plane in which King Peter and his party made their journey to Jerusalem was attacked over the Mediterranean and a member of the Yugoslav Cabinet killed.

Conversations between Herr Von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano regarding the partitioning of Yugoslavia have already begun in Vienna.

Japanese aircraft conducted a raid over the Burma Road and the suspension bridge over the Mekong road was heavily damaged.

Various parts of the function was held. At the Muhamangalath time a very large congregation of devotees had gathered and Mr. Charles Naronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, was also present at the temple. After the mangalarathi, the Dharamadarshis of the temple informed the Deputy Commissioner that the Municipal authorities of the town were not bestowing as much attention towards the improvement of that part of the town as was necessary. It was also brought to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner that the temple premises including some of the adjacent roads had not been cleaned since the last few days and the worshippers who came to the temple were put to a lot of inconvenience. Mr. Charles Naronha, Deputy Commissioner heard every thing from the people of the locality and promised to look into their grievances.

Soon afterwards all the Brahmins were fed sumptuously at a grand mass dinner. Unfortunately in the middle of the dinner the water supply was stopped and the devotees were again put to very great difficulty. Half an hour later water supply was again given.

In the evening the Gods and the Goddesses were taken in procession in the main streets of the town.

But for the few short comings caused by the Municipal Council the function was a grand success. Mr. K. S. Rangaswamy, Mr. T. Manjanna Aiyar, and other leading public gentlemen of the town had contributed liberally towards the cost of the function.

Thought For The Day

What do we live for if it is not to make life less difficult to each other?
—George Elliot.

Daily News

THURSDAY—APRIL 24, 1941

THE POSITION IN THE BALKANS

The immediate prospects in the Greek War front cannot be comfortably viewed. The War communiques issued from the General Head Quarters at Athens reveal that the enemy's numerical superiority is enormous and the sudden witting of resistance in the Yugoslavian scene has helped the Germans to dash forward. The British War Lords knew before hand the prospects of their Grecian venture. The evacuation of Mount Olympus by the allied troops have made the Nazis to advance beyond Larissa and at present the enemy claim to have occupied a post about twenty miles North-east of Yainina. The losses suffered by the cruel invaders have been very severe. Even if the Nazis over-run the mainland territory of the Greeks that will not bring Hitler any nearer the final decisions. The North African campaign is proving hard and Hitler is feeling the pinch of cracking that toughest military nut around Tobruk.

The Imperial forces have systematically withdrawn to new positions with their line of resistance intact. Though today's messages indicate that the situation is serious the Nazis have to sacrifice enormous men and material before they could have a foot-hold on the Grecian soil. The lands which the Nazi hordes have over-run present a great responsibility to the invaders and they should keep their eyes open to see that nothing untoward happens there to the detriment of their authority. The Allied Army though overwhelmed by superiority of forces are convinced beyond doubt that the ultimate triumph is theirs. The Fascist Chief who is taking shelter behind his axis partner is enjoying the thrill of his life and gloating over the situation.

It is depressing indeed to read the cryptic statement of Mr Herbert Evatt the labour member of the Australian Advisory War Council wherein he makes mention of the misleading statements of earlier communiques. It was revealed earlier that the Anzacs were a part of a large and fully equipped Army. It is tragic indeed that at a time when the whole Balkan situation is in imminent peril the allies should go without the Anzacs' full strength. The Ministry of information should be so over hauled that it is free from any possible lapses. President Roosevelt in his refreshing candour as sums up that so long as the main defence of democracy-England is intact the War can be won. We are heartened by his assurance. So long as Britain is fighting for the cause of righteousness, humanity need not get itself depressed. "WORLD ISSUE DEPENDS ON BATTLE OF ATLANTIC"

Importance of American Policy (By Cable) London
Mr. J. L. Garvin writes in the Observer:

A world issue depends on the Battle of the Atlantic. That issue depends absolutely on American effort and American policy. An unparalleled output of new ships is required from American yards and from our own. But saving to the extent of that counterpoise cannot be available until next year.

Meanwhile and now we need more escorts for convoys. America has given us ten cutters. They will save many a merchant ship. We are heartily thankful for it. The great gain is that this emergency is stirring the American people to their depths. They are ready for the strongest measures. When full action of the American Navy to guard convoys is ensured, the irresistible rise of the confederate democracies to overwhelming air mastery will do the rest.

This stern Easter sounds the tocsin for free peoples. As never yet, fateful scales are at the trembling balance between danger and hope. The Nazis are at the height of their effort; the democracies have to come to it. Awakened to supreme decisions by the final warning, Britain and America together will make good by the doggedness of our breed and the tenacity of theirs.

AMERICAN CARGO VESSELS Immediate Transfer Of Four To Britain

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph's Washington correspondent cabled on April 17:

Four American cargo vessels have been acquired by the United States Maritime Commission for immediate transfer to the British Government under the Lease and Lend Act, it was announced here tonight.

They will be registered under the British flag and manned entirely by British officers and crews, the Commission stated.

The ships are the Robin Doncaster (7,440 tons), the Almeria Lykes (2,637 tons), the Exemplar (2,736 tons), and the Nightingale (6,100 tons). The Robin Doncaster is a new ship which has just been delivered at Baltimore.

According to the New York Daily News, many other fast vessels now in Atlantic ports are to be taken over within a few days to provide, it is thought, a fleet to take United States war supplies to the Red Sea area.

THEIR HIGHNESSES WITNESS ROPING OF ELEPHANTS

Special Khedda in the Jungle

Wild Elephants Rush Through the Ropes SCENE AT KAKANKOTE FORESTS

Mysore, April 22
With a view to catch a few Elephants for the forest department a regular Khedda operation was undertaken at Kakankote during the second week of this month, under the supervision of Mr. M. G. Venkata Rao District Forest Officer, Mr. D. N. Nilakanta Rao Game Preserve Officer and Mr. S. R. Bapu, Officer in charge of Elephants aided by Range Officers of Kakankote, Begur Iyannur, Mastigudi and Heggadadevankote and game staff. A herd of elephants were surrounded on the Begur side on the evening of the 10th instant. Before the coolies on the surrounding line could put up temporary shelters there was a tremendous down pour of rain at midnight for nearly 2 hours which gave a seated. As the Elephants on the river a long way back roping stockade they had to reverse a long stretch of the and hence the drive was a long period. The operation was a grand success and better than the previous Khedda operations. The elephants were impounded in the stockade by 10 a.m. and after the roping operation started in the presence of Their Highnesses. About 10 were impounded which were mostly small tuskers elephants. There was one calf only about a week days old. This calf was every now and then ever it was jostled by the elephants. Their Highnesses parted after a few minutes were roped. Before the seven selected best thorough drenching to all the officers mentioned above and to all the coolies engaged. The rain put out nearly all the fires in the surrounding line and there was a great danger of elephants escaping. But the vigilance of the officers in spite of the adverse weather kept the elephants in the surrounded area. On the 11th instant the Elephants were kept in the jungle and on the 12th at about 8-30 a.m. the drive was started under the distinguished presence of their Highnesses the Maharaja and the Maharane. Within less than an hour the Elephants were successfully driven into the river and all the Elephants travelled along the river in the prescribed direction and passed right under the place where Their Highnesses were were roped including one and one "Makana" (male tusks). The rest of the elephants were driven out of the stockade. In this case has to be noted that the calf a week old, went to its mother quite unharmed. This is the first time that a river drive and roping completed in a single day. The morning never been undertaken. This is the first time it has been done. The Elephants are already being trained. Nanjangud where the trained. The officers are to be congratulated for work done so successfully. extremely low cost of 2000 Rupees.

STUDY OF DWAITA
SIDDHANTA

DUTY OF EVERY MADHYA

Address to Soale Swamiji

Coimbatore, April 22
The following is the full text of the address presented by the address of Coimbatore to His Holiness Sri Sri Vidya Sri Prabhakar Theertha Sri Padangalambha of Sri Vyasaraja Mutt at Coimbatore. On Sunday the 23rd April 1941.

We, the humble followers of Your Holiness, residing in Coimbatore consider it a great good fortune that you have vouchsafed to us the bliss of an auspicious visit. Your stay of His Holiness in this city, though brief, has been an unbroken spell of profound devotion to us. The celestial atmosphere of the Puja hours permeated our being. The clear evenings have recalled the historic memories of the holiness attained by the sage Sri Vyasaraja. The holiness and rare affability of Your Holiness have filled our hearts with respectful love and devotion.

The worshipful and magnetic personality of Your Holiness and the picture of daily divine work by your hearts till life lasts. They have awakened in us faith and religious aspiration in a measure that a thousand learned discourses could vainly hope to achieve. For this inestimable boon graciously conferred on us by Your Holiness, we are eternally grateful. And for the sins of commission and omission that are guilty of in our conduct towards Your Holiness we, in our littleness, can do no more than crave for forgiveness.

We are immensely proud of the fact that an illustrious son of the district occupies so worthily the Peetha sanctified by Sri Vyasaraja of immortal fame and glory.

We believe that the study of Dwaita Siddhanta is an inviolable duty of every Madhya. We are, however, apprehensive that, on account of adverse forces in the social and political life of the country, religious study and practice are encountering serious impediments. For the task of preserving faith and true knowledge, who is more competent than to whom can we look forward with greater confidence than to your Holiness, who is blessed with the rare combination of ancient and modern spirit. Pardon us, Your Holiness, for expressing our view that God, in his omniscience has made the choice of his messenger for the great task of the restoration of faith and knowledge among good souls and that the choice has of set purpose fallen on a type most suited to the times and the task. We are convinced that ere long the wheels of progress will be on the start from Sacred Soalal bringing hope and peace to good men and true.

Lastly, believe us when we say that the departure of Your Holiness from our place leaves us sad and forlorn. We hope and pray that the happy memory of the stay of Your Holiness at Coimbatore will sustain us.

OUR NEW DELHI
LETTERH. E. The Viceroy In Communication With White Hall

New Delhi, April 17

It has been a quiet week following the departure of Sir T. B. Sapru after his interview with the Viceroy. No further developments of any importance have occurred, for evidently he was anxious to wait and see what would be done at the meetings of the Hindu Mahasabha and the Muslim League. It has not come as a surprise to anybody here that the meeting of the Sapru committee has been postponed by a few days. Communications between New Delhi and White Hall take time. It is also not known on what day the Commons debate on India will be held, for even if the Viceroy is not in a position to give a final reply to Sir T. B. Sapru, the speech of Mr. Amery in Parliament may give some indication of the British Government's attitude. And unless there is some such indication to go upon, the Sapru committee will have very little to do beyond ratifying the demands made by Sir T. B. Sapru in the course of his talk with the Viceroy. In New Delhi the question which figures prominently in political discussions is - what is the effect of these recent meetings of the Hindu Mahasabha and the Muslim League on the Bombay resolution which is now before the British Government? Opinion generally favours the view that the Hindu Mahasabha has taken a helpful attitude. It has not officially endorsed the Bombay resolution though its leader was present at the Bombay conference and gave his support to the resolution, but at the same time it has done nothing to queer the pitch for the leaders of the Bombay conference. The Muslim League, however, has taken up a definitely hostile attitude. In his speech Mr. Jinnah has offered no counter proposals, nor has he indicated how he would like the Bombay resolution to be altered in order to satisfy him, but his attitude was one of general opposition.

What Next?

It is true that if the British Government is so minded it can easily point to the Muslim League's resolutions and say that in the face of these differences still continuing between important political sections, it is not possible for His Majesty's Government to do anything. On the other hand there are not people wanting who now strongly urge that the very intransigent attitude adopted by the Muslim League should serve as a warning to the Government that instead of sitting with folded hands and letting these differences grow they should do something to prove their own bona fides and state clearly how for they are prepared to go to meet popular demands. Those who still favour a "do nothing" policy as the best under the circumstances seem to be influenced by the fact that the Congress is keeping the Satyagraha moment within such bounds as to cause no interference with the war effort and that so far as the general situation is concerned it is quiet. This however ignores one important aspect of the question. The war has entered its most serious phase. The time may soon come, if it has not already come for the country to put up with much greater sacrifices and sufferings. The whole-hearted energy and enthusiasm of the people has to be mobilised. Is it possible to do this without political contentment in the country and the association of the people's leaders in the administration? The gross unwisdom of allowing political discontent to grow, even though it is passive and will continue to be so, is not a factor to be ignored at a critical time like this. The very fact that the Commander in chief has broken away from the past traditions of his Department and is now trying to cultivate public opinion as an aid to his work shows that the truth of it is slowly being realised. Vision and imagination are necessary not only to understand present needs but future problems as and when they arise. As the Indian policy is being dictated from White Hall the word has to come from that quarter for initiating a change. In ordinary times there is full and constant consultations between New Delhi and White Hall but at present the members of the British Cabinet are so much preoccupied with war problems that there is a pronounced tendency to let things drift in India. That more than anything else is the reason for the appeal made to the Secretary of State that he should pay a visit to India an appeal born largely of a feeling of despair.

Indo Burma Relations

The details of the Indo Burma Trade Agreement have now been published. They clearly show the great sacrifice which India has made in order to meet the viewpoint of the Burma Government. The scheme of mutual preferential treatment which has now been arranged introduces a new principle, and it remains to be seen how it works. The prime consideration which weighed with Burma was to find a crore of additional revenue but it is still too early to say whether the system of preferences agreed upon is sufficient to retain the present volume of Indian trade with Burma. In business circles the general opinion is that though some cases, particularly in the case of textiles, more could have been done to help Indian interests, there is no reason to fear any serious dislocation during the war period, for at present owing to war conditions there will be no serious competition from foreign countries, but as soon as the war is over, exporters from India may not find the position quite the same. It is obvious that as soon as the war is over the position will have to be reviewed though the agreement has been entered into for an indefinite period. Apart from the text of the Trade Agreement which has first to be tried before its effect can be accurately judged, the general hope is that the friendly relationship established between the two countries and the ready willingness with which India has agreed to make a sacrifice in the interests of Burma will lead to a satisfactory settlement of the immigration question and the claims of the Indian community in Burma. It is understood that formal negotiations will soon begin between the two Governments on the issues raised in the Baxter report.

Trade Problems

The importance of developing our export trade with Burma and other near countries is heightened by the fact that by reason of shipping and other difficulties the volume of our exports abroad is steadily going down. In the month of February for which figures are now available, Indian merchandise exported to the United Kingdom was just over a quarter of what it was last year. Next in importance to the United Kingdom our chief customer used to be Japan, but we find that while in February last year it bought from us goods worth more than Rs. two crores, it has come down to just over Rs. 42 lakhs in February this year. Even the United States have begun to take less though the difference is only about Rs. 4 lakhs. It was expected that as a result of the Eastern Group Conference India's exports to the Eastern Group countries would increase, but the latest figures do not justify this hope. Australia's purchases have fallen from Rs. 70 lakhs in February last year to Rs. 36 lakhs this year. Hongkong's share has dwindled to a quarter while that of South Africa has come down to a third.

The three countries which have increased their share compared with last year are Burma, Kenya and New Zealand. Our export trade with Burma rose during the month from a crore to a crore and three quarters, that of Kenya from Rs. 5 lakhs to Rs. 50 lakhs, and lastly that of New Zealand from Rs. 74,000 to Rs. 4 lakhs. These figures clearly show that the Empire countries, especially those associated with India in the Eastern Group Council can do a great deal to help India's export trade, but apparently not much is being done in this direction. It is far India's representative in the Eastern Group Council, Mr. M. S. A. Hydari, to take up this question and see what he can do to develop India's export trade. Unfortunately no effort has so far been made to associate representatives commercial and industrial opinion with the Eastern Group Council. The existence of a body of this description will help both the Council in its work and the exporting interests in the country who find their old markets gone and are struggling to secure new markets.

Viceroy's Tour

It has been announced that the Viceroy will leave New Delhi early next week and reach Simla on May 8th. There is a great deal of surprise that despite the seriousness of the war situation the Government of India have not cancelled the Simla excursions.

FILMINDIA CHIEF AND MYSORE STUDENTS

"Clever College Guys"

TRIBUTE TO THEIR INTELLIGENCE

By Rita Carlyle on her Grand Holiday

(From the Film India April 1941)
The following is an extract from the Film India wherein Miss Rita Carlyle the popular secretary to Mr. Babu Rao Patel eulogises the Bangalore Inter-College students.

It is refreshing to read what she says.

Under the caption with the students she writes as follows:—

"Sharp at noon we arrived at the Intermediate College where in the college quadrangle, thousands of students were anxiously waiting for Baburao Patel, the Editor of 'Film India'.

I had seen students but never so many together and as they were all keyed up to heckle our bullying Editor, warnings of which having been given to us previously; the general atmosphere was tense.

Finally, I was nervous and for a moment I wished that the whole thing had been called off. But when our Editor entered the quadrangle with his easy non-chalance throwing about uninvited smiles, meaning that he was really a friend of boys, I felt a little more assured as I saw the boys relaxing their tense expressions a bit.

And let me tell you that these were not ordinary boys. They were clever college guys, their eyes sparkling with knowledge and confidence, and their brains spooling for a fight with our prize champion.

The most gentle among them was their Vice-President Mr. Mir Mohiyuddin Hussain.

Baburao Patel went to the dais with the confidence of a war-scarred hero. The boys were still sulking. They received him quietly with a strange but silent antagonism to a guest they had themselves invited. They had probably sworn in their mind to let this big guy through an acid test.

We took our seats behind. For the first time I snuggled close to Jayantial and he didn't seem to mind it. The entire atmosphere was charged with expectancy. We had been previously told that the students of Bangalore were a tough lot who had once taken charge of the city for three days in a demonstrative riot.

THE HEROES OF THE INTER COLLEGE

Knew Him Too Well

Mr. Hussain said the familiar words "It is hardly necessary to introduce our guest. You know him already." "Yes, we do," "And too well"—that was the quick response Mr. Hussain went on to eulogize Mr. Patel's services to the Indian film industry. The boys heard their Vice-President with a patient respect but they were clearly aching for the "guest" to get up and get going.

As Baburao ultimately got up, there was a thunder of applause. For a moment I was taken aback. Had he become already popular? But, no, it can't be so soon. With a deliberate action, Baburao pulled the microphone towards him. Some seconds of silence passed. With a cool patience, he adjusted the height of the " mike." More seconds passed. Then with a blank face he took in a deliberate panoramic view of the crowd. And then his short, irresistible smile with, "Now to the day's work, friends."

And then he began. "The good things, you didn't know about me your Vice-President, Mr. Mir Hussain has just told you." (They laughed) "Somehow for no fault of my own, all the good things about me, though they are not many, remain good secrets." (More laughter) "Your Vice-President has been generous and he found more goodness in me than I have myself ever realized." (More laughter) And it went on this way for nearly an hour. The bullying Editor had got into the good books of the boys who were kept giggling all the while amidst exhortation for demanding better film fare from the producers and the usual advice to be strong and to strike to get what one wants.

A Ticklish Hour

The next hour—the question period—was perhaps the most ticklish job any speaker can ever be called to handle. A long typed list of questions was placed on the table.

I reproduce below some questions to enable you to judge the temper of the meeting with the ever ready answers given by our Editor;

Q—You have some remarkable qualities but you are venomous. You are a "money maker" and a man who is susceptible to "flattery."

A—"I admit that I am not all milk and water. If I had been you would not be here to listen to me today. Well, only poison can cure a fell disease and if I am venomous it is because our film industry is suffering from a fell disease. I have the poison that doesn't kill, it cures. I am not much of a "money maker". Even the little money you give me, I have to shell out in giving you a good magazine. Besides, what little money I get is through my own intellectual labour and not by exploitation of any one else's labour. As regards flattery, well, even the gods love it, then why deny the privilege to me?" (Laughter and applause).

Q—"With your partiality, you have spoiled many producers."

A—"The producers are spoilt enough without my helping them. I am trying to reform them and they hit back by trying to reform me. Let us see who wins" (Laughter).

Q—"Who was that old fellow hanging on Leela Desai's back whenever she went on her Southern tour and who put on a rather provoking air about him, especially towards students whenever they were anxious to talk to her."

A—"If you mean Mr. Chunilal Desai, he is an old man and ought to be quite harmless. But what was he hanging to Miss Desai's back for? Couldn't he hang himself away from her? Well, Chunilal had no business to choke off the boys. After all you pay for tour and Chunilal takes, the profits" (Continued laughter).

Q—"Shall we have the unique privilege of knowing the length of your belt?"

A—"Forty inches. Do you want any more measurements?" (That silenced the boys).

I have purposely recited the frivolous and personal questions leaving out the serious ones, to give you an idea of the uncomfortable time an ordinary man would have to pass through. But Baburao Patel is not an ordinary man.

Their Soft Corner

He answered all questions—over forty of them, some serious, several frivolous, some cruel, several personal, some intimate, and a few scandalous—to the complete satisfaction of his audience. The lecture ended amidst a thundering applause and the next minute, he was mobbed for autographs.

The autographing business lasted for an hour. It began with the full "Baburao Patel", passed on to "B. Patel", then to "Patel" and ultimately to "B. P."

Mr. Patel had to rush for the next meeting of the Kanarese Literary Society, but before we go there let me reproduce what Mr. Mir Mohiyuddin Hussain, the Vice-President of the Intermediate College Association wrote to Mr. Patel in his letter of the 3rd March.

"I may tell you on behalf of the students that they have a soft corner for you. They are fascinated so much by your witty answers during your address in our College, that they cannot forget its happy memories just as Wordsworth, the great poet could not forget his "Daffodils." We are eagerly awaiting the day when you will be again amidst us."

And I was grateful to the students because it did pass off so well. As Baburao said to me. "They are already men, my dear, and they know their responsibility already. Those are great students." And they are.

At 9 p. m. in the night, we were faced with a frowning crowd of elders in the Kanarese literature. The discussion here was all academic and some of the dramas of Kalidas and Bhavbhuti came on the anvil. But as I had anticipated, none of them agree with the other and they parted friends after letting the steam off for an hour.

Next morning we were on our way to Bombay. But isn't that enough for one month?

ITALIAN TROOPS IN OCCUPIED FRANCE

REPLACING NAZIS AT CERTAIN POINTS

Reasons For Substitution (By Cable)

E. B. Wareing, ex-chief of the Daily Telegraph's Paris staff, writes in the Telegraph that confirmation has been received in London of reports that Italian troops are gradually being brought into Occupied France to replace the Germans at certain points.

The full extent of this movement has not yet become apparent, but the appearance of Italians has been definitely reported at several points north of the internal demarcation line. This particularly applies to Moulins, the first railway station inside the occupied area, on one of the main lines running from the South of France through Vichy to Paris, and at Angoulême, an important railway junction 250 miles further west. The reason for this substitution, which will probably extend to the Paris area, is threefold.

(1) The release of German invasion troops at present employed in garrisoning and other routine work in the interior of France who could now be transferred to Amiens, Rouen, and other points nearer the coast for intensive training.

(2) To find employment for Italian troops at places where they will not be expected to fight except possibly against the Greek population.

(3) To compensate the Italians for the German occupation of Italy by allowing them a proportion of the occupation of France. This has been recently much resented in Italy over German control of communication and administration generally.

The drawback to the substitution lies in the intense hostility of the French population to the Italians. The Germans are becoming increasingly disliked, but are regarded as efficient soldiers. The Italians, on the other hand, are despised for having stabbed France in the back at a moment when she was obliged to capitulate to Germany.

It is, therefore, probable that a skeleton German force will have to be kept to protect the Italians from the populace.

The Station staff at Ahmedabad worked at a high pressure and afforded all possible aid to the panic-stricken people who sought refuge in the railway premises. The order prohibiting Assembly of five or more persons is being withdrawn today. The City is fast returning to normal, tension having considerably eased. The night passed off peacefully except for single incident. Textile mills are gradually beginning to work but complete working may not be resumed for sometime to come. Mass exodus evidenced in the last few days now practically eased. The police continue to patrol the city. Apart from eight hundred arrests made by the police more bad characters are being rounded up. The order under Sec. 144 prohibiting orders of local newspapers from publishing any news about recent riots in Ahmedabad except official news given to news Agencies been served on editors of three local newspapers by the District Magistrate. It will remain in force for one week. As a protest against this order three newspapers Sandesh, Gujarat Samachar and Prabhat declared they would not publish any news pertaining to riots.

GANDHIJI REFUSES PERMISSION

SIND ENTHUSIASTS RETURN DISAPPOINTED

(Associated Press of India)
Wardha, April, 23
The Sind P. C. C. deputation led by Mr. R. K. Sidhwa leader of the Sind Congress Assembly Party when asked by Associated Press about Gandhiji and his talks regarding Sind said: We fully explained the Sind situation to Gandhiji and sought permission for Satyagraha. Mahatma Gandhi refused permission because firstly he did not wish to interfere with Maulana Abul Kalam Azad's decision; secondly he personally felt there was no justification for civil disobedience movement in view of public safety in Sind and advised Congressmen to carry on constructive programme.

Mr. Sidhwa left this evening for Bombay enroute to Karachi. His colleagues will be leaving to-night or to-morrow.

Mr. AMERY'S ATTITUDE SHORT-SIGHTED

LIBERAL LEADER GETS ANGRY AT THE DEBATE

Bombay, April, 23
Mr. V. N. Chandavarkar, President of the National Liberal Federation in a statement on India debate in the House of Commons says that Mr. Amery's speech is bound to create a deep sense of depression and spirit of helplessness in the minds of those who have been working strenuously to bring about better understanding between the British and Indian nations. He adds Mr. Amery's attitude seems to be that 'We are getting money we are getting men and munitions from India. Why worry and disturb the present state of a fair's'. Such attitude is very short sighted. Mr. Chandavarkar continued that the proposals of the Bombay Conference which had the support of the President of the Hindu Mahasabha were not the ideal solution of the problem but in view of the attitude of major parties in the country they seem to be the only possible means of bringing closer association in India's war effort of that large section of Indian public which are outside the Congress and Muslim League.

He continued: "If the Bombay Conference proposals were accepted and worked in spirit of generosity, magnanimity and confidence the British statesmanship will be restored and substantial portion of the Indian public who don't like the Congress and Muslim League methods and who are only waiting for genuine gesture of friendship from the British Government will provide basis for formation of a Centre Party."

Bangalore, April 24
As a protest against the dismissal of one Linga a cooly in the Mills, the workers of the Minerva Mills have gone on strike from today. In this connection the Management of the Mills have put up the following notice on the front gate of the Mills.

"Since the beginning of the strike on the 31st instant, the workers have shown no intention to work properly or to conform to the discipline. There is an organised slowing down and dislocation of work in spite of repeated advice. A few of the men have been neglecting their duties and going about the mills intimidating the constituted authority."

"Linga (Reg No. 346) committed repeated breaches of discipline and was warned and excused on three occasions. For repeating the offence for the fourth time he was dismissed yesterday. The workers struck work in the afternoon of yesterday and refused to work till Linga is reinstated. In the circumstances the management have no option but to keep the Mills closed until further notice."

It is learnt that the Labour Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner visited the Mill area and were acquainted with the situation.

Some workers it is further learnt interviewed the Labour Commissioner later.

THE MANORAMA ROAD

It is astonishing indeed how the all round improvement of the City is taking in the hands of our newly elected City Fathers whose motto and catch word during the last elections thrilled the vast electorate. We are by no means satisfied at the way in which the civic needs of the City's mainstay are being met. The Manorama Road is an instance of the kind where our City Fathers have pursued a wrong line of action to the detriment of the City's needs at the present juncture. The resolution that was passed on the 22nd February 1941 does not in the least speak well of the enthusiasm and dash of the new element that was introduced into our Council to infuse vigour where it was needed badly. Even the Congress party were not unanimous in their view has been ably brought about by the brilliant dissenting note of Mr. M. A. Gopalaswami Iyengar whose arguments have been well advanced to the satisfaction of the rate payers.

Considering the congestion and insanitation in the heart of our City the amount spent or any hardships caused to the inhabitants of that locality is a fleabite indeed. Formation of new roads would certainly involve demolitions of old structures and it has to be faced as such. One cannot run away from the scene merely because alignments of new roads are detrimental to a handful of people who at all events desire to shift themselves to more spacious extensions of Bangalore. If the scheme is confined to the acquisition of 50 feet width only and not as at present contemplated the scheme would not prove a self supporting one. The new road with its fine shop fronts and lovely footpaths will add to the grandeur of this enviable City and any Municipality with an iota of aesthetic sense in them would never nod their head negatively.

For a Municipality to whose coffers nearly eighteen lakhs of rupees flow into every year it is incomprehensible how an ordinary improvement scheme costing three lakhs would upset its balances.

Another argument—whose propriety we do not like to question has been advanced to the effect that it would cause a great hardship to the house-owners of the area. We do not understand it. The imaginary difficulties that the Council has contemplated will be there at all times to come and to run away from these difficulties without facing them would be unworthy of anyone who would to City's improvement. We certainly agree with the Secretary of the Congress party when he says "If the object of every improvement scheme is to promote the health and the well-being of the City's population it would be the clear duty of the Council to make proper provision for re-housing those who would be rendered homeless. Unless the demolition of bad houses is supplemented by the provision of cheap and good accommodation, it would be hardly possible to remove congestion and overcrowding. No scheme of slum clearance can be really successful, unless there is an abundant supply of new houses, which are reasonably cheap and which are not too far from the places of business of the dwellers concerned."

The Council should face the difficulties and should see a way out before torpedoing such a grand scheme as the one contemplated and agreed to by the Government.

If the formation of roads, demolition of buildings and such other improvements needed from time to time are to be subjected to the whims and fancies of the people and their sentiments, the City would remain where it is and not advance on the high road to perfection. It is the duty of the Municipal Council to dash forward in several schemes that would improve the City and not impede it. A time has come to see that improvements are not checked by people whose only object is to safeguard their personal interests.

We hope the Special General meeting of the Council will have the dash and vigour to go forward with the scheme and not abandon it for the sake of imaginary fears which at all events doesn't appear to be serious. We congratulate Mr. M. A. G. Iyengar for his able analysis of the scheme though he had to taste the odium of dissenting from the wishes of the party to which he has been wedded. We feel that the City's interests demand that people like Mr. M. A. G. Iyengar should come out of the rut and voice bold protests against procedures which would ill serve the rate payers. We once again request the Municipality to give effect to the former resolution passed by the past Council and provide suitable accommodation to those whose houses have to be demolished for the formation of the new Manorama Road.

FINDING OF THE BOOTHBY INQUIRY

"CONDUCT DEROGATORY TO THE DIGNITY OF THE HOUSE"

PRIVATE INTERESTS IN CZECH ASSETS

The finding of the Select Committee on the conduct of a Member of the report from which was issued, with the proceedings of the Committee and the minutes of evidence (Stationary Office, S. 7, 7a) is that "Mr. Boothby's conduct was contrary to usage and derogatory to the dignity of the House and inconsistent with the standards which Parliament is entitled to expect from its members."

The Committee were appointed to investigate the conduct and activities of Mr. Boothby in connection with the payment out of assets in this country of claims against the Government of and institutions in the Republic of Czechoslovakia; to report generally on these matters and in particular to consider and report whether the conduct of the honourable member was contrary to the usage or derogatory to the dignity of the House or inconsistent with the standards which Parliament is entitled to expect from its members.

The report states that Mr. Boothby, who until about 4 years ago was a member of the firm of Chase, Henderson and Tennant, stockbrokers, left them to join a new firm, the First British American Corporation, Limited, of which he became one of the managing directors. In the course of business he met Mr. Richard Weininger, an international financier, whose wife and to step daughters, the Misses Kahler, had large interests, including cash balances, in Czechoslovakia.

In August, 1938, Sir Alfred Butt made a temporary unsecured loan to Mr. Boothby of £5,000. By January, 1939, Mr. Weininger had become anxious as to the security of his and his family's assets in Czechoslovakia and proposed to Mr. Boothby that he should assist in endeavouring to get these funds unfrozen and should go to Czechoslovakia if necessary. Mr. Weininger verbally agreed to pay Mr. Boothby 10 per cent. of the amount of any assets which obtained release from the bank block in Prague, and paid Mr. Boothby £1,000, stated to be on account of expenses.

"Facade Of Interests"

In order to facilitate, as they hoped, the release of the Weininger funds in Prague, it was agreed between, Mr. Boothby and Mr. Weininger to set up in respect of the Weininger funds what they described as "a facade of British interests." By about February 23, 1939, an arrangement for this purpose had been agreed between Mr. Boothby and Mr. Weininger and Mr. Chase. The arrangement was that a private British limited company, the Zota Company Limited, of which Mr. Chase was governing director, was to agree to make a fictitious loan of £120,000 to Mrs. Weininger and her two daughters against the security of a charge by the ladies in favour of the Zota Company, Limited, on the ladies' assets in the Boemische Union Bank of Prague amounting approximately to the value of £240,000 sterling, and that the Zota Company, Limited, was then to claim against the assets in Prague by virtue of this charge.

On March 15, 1939, Mr. Waley, Under-Secretary to the Treasury, arranged that Czech balances in this country should be blocked, and on following day Mr. Boothby was aware of this action, rang up the Treasury and certain officials, urging that these balances should be blocked.

Mr. Boothby told the Committee that from the time of occupation of Prague, when the original arrangement for the payment of 10 per cent. commission in his view automatically came to an end, he did not regard himself as having any personal interest in the Weininger claims. On June 30, 1939, however, Mr. Boothby wrote to Sir Alfred Butt, who was then pressing for repayment of his £1,000, "I am, at the moment, the possessor of assets amounting approximately £20,000 in the form of cash and bonds in Prague."

The report then tells of the formation of a committee at the offices of Messrs. Herbert Oppenheimer, Nathan & Vandersol, solicitors, representing claimants against Czech assets, of which Mr. Boothby was chairman. In this committee the Peters family was not represented though theirs was one of the largest claims. When approached they declined to be represented.

Attitude Resented

Mr. Boothby resented this attitude, and wrote to Mr. Weininger on July 23:—

Dear Richard,

The more I think about it the more impenetrable my case becomes.

(1) I got the Czech assets blocked at your request, and can bring Chase to give evidence of this.

(2) I accepted the position of chairman of the committee of Czech holders, at your invitation.

(3) I received assurances from you that I would be compensated out of the assets held for what I had advanced and proposed to do.

(4) As chairman of the committee I conducted long and arduous negotiations with the Chancellor and with Treasury officials on behalf of the holders, including the Peters, and was accepted by Treasury as representing interests.

(5) I continued these negotiations with Weininger. In these circumstances it is really incredible that whose case is by no means cast-iron one, and decided—should seek to get the whole of their claim.

Yours ever,

On August 1, 1939, Mr. Waley, Under-Secretary to the Treasury, wrote to Mr. Boothby.

"MANORAMA" ROAD

Necessary for the City's Improvement'

COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION ELECTED BY GOVERNMENT

Special Meeting Arranged
Bangalore, April 24
Government of Mysore has accepted the recommendation of the Bangalore City Municipal Council in the matter of the Krishna Iyengar Road and say that the resolution has been accepted as the scheme is considered to be necessary for improvement of the City.

A letter of the Law Secretary will be discussed at a special meeting to be held on the 28th instant at 3

PRESIDENT'S NOTE

The President of the Municipality has forwarded a note to the Government on the subject. The Council do feel the necessity of a road and are anxious to that they request Government to do so to suspend the proceedings for a time in order to enable the Council to submit to Government an alternative comprehensive scheme, after going into the matter thoroughly, in consultation with the Municipal Commissioner. Government may be willing to accept this request in view of the fact that it is urged that the direct withdrawal of provision for the time being is a question of a thorough investigation becomes all the essential as the Council insisting in their opinions the commencement and entirely due to a lack of a scheme prepared before-

There are two City Improvement Committee resolutions which are conflicting, one on the 1935 recommending for the opening of a road 50' wide and the other on 23-5-1940 for a road wide. Two plans and two schemes have been prepared number of houses involved and to be 99 in the earlier scheme while it is stated to be in the later one. The cost of provision is estimated at Rs.
100 and Rs. 64,000 respectively under the two schemes.

Under the above, there are conflicting resolutions of the Council itself, one for a 50' road, the other for 90' a third for a 40' and a fourth for 50' road.
The state of affairs, the Commissioner has been pleased to direct that there should be two roads, one of 50 feet width and one conservancy lanes of 10 feet width each, parallel to each other on either side and the shops intended to be removed. It has to be examined whether this will be a self supplying scheme. If 70 feet are made away for three roads, only 10 feet will be left over to be used. What amount could be raised by the sale of this area, which will be the cost of construction of these three roads, some of the problems which will have to be gone into in the future.

The first duty of the Municipality is to ascertain the financial position of any scheme. At present, the Municipality has only run into a debt of 20 lacs of rupees. The Council

OUR MAYOR

[Mr. W.H. Hanumanthappa who submitted a detailed note to the Govt on the Manorama Road]

has to consider whether the scheme has to be worked out in one stage or to take it up in several stages and when funds permit.

So far as the compensation to be awarded is concerned, the Government are aware that, in most of the cases, the Courts have awarded enhanced compensations. Formerly, in this Municipality, there used to be Valuation Committees for such big schemes, consisting of the Chief Engineer, some Official and some non official members, to arrive at an amicable settlement with the parties without reference to Courts. However this question of compensation deserves the consideration of Government.

It is undoubtedly the desire of every one, that congestion should be removed in the City, but if only 10 feet conservancy lanes are opened out, then not only will the congestion be perpetuated but it will also obstruct traffic and the lanes will become a most dark on account of the eave-boards or projections of the rear portions of the shops and the houses facing the lanes.
There is also the probability of having upstairs to the shops, in which case, it will completely shut out lights and air to the houses behind the shops.

Above all, this scheme includes the question of some temples which is naturally opposed to the sentiments of the people.
Further the road, as proposed,
will not be straight.

In all such big schemes, the policy hitherto adopted by the Government and the Municipality, has been to make provision for the dispossessed people with houses and sites in the vicinity before acquisition is taken up.
I may quote here some instances in this behalf. New Patnoolep was formed before Old Patnoolep was removed and the New Bamboo Bazaar was laid out before Old Bamboo Bazaar was removed. Similarly, sites were provided in Seetha athy Agrahar for houses acquired in Siddikatte.
The Labour Colony was built at great cost only to house those who were living in the huts in Pit Colony at Malleswaram, and elsewhere. Mysoreans, who are living in their ancestral homes from generations cannot be asked to quit their homes with their families and belongings, before they are provided with either houses or sites elsewhere. Nearly 200 houses have to be acquired, which means rendering nearly 400 families homeless.

Not only will the people be subjected to great hardship and suffering, they will also have to undergo unemployment, as they are all artisans pursuing handicrafts, such as weaving, carpen-

Mrs. Sadhona Bose

Mrs. Sadhona Bose the well-known Indian Dancer who is now at Mysore paid a visit to the University Union this afternoon. She was cordially received by Mr. M.A. Khadir, the Secretary who showed her round the Union and explained to her the various activities.

try, preparation of the lace and gota and sandal sticks etc. And these small industries will be seriously affected in these days of economic depression.

This matter deserves the serious consideration of Government.

Another equally important aspect to be considered is whether, in these times of war, when the cost of the building material and wages has gone up very high, it would be possible for these poor people to purchase sites and build houses in the vicinity out of the compensation they get. If at this critical juncture, their houses should also be acquired, they will be left adrift. On this consideration also, the acquisition proceedings have to be held in abeyance.

The Government have supreme powers but they have to consider all the implications involved in the matter. The acquisition is to take place in the heart of the City. All that the Council request the Government is to postpone the acquisition, pending submission of another considered scheme, for the approval of Government. In case, Government are not pleased to concede the request of the Council, then it will be forcing the acquisition of the Municipality, possibly imposing very heavy financial commitments, without giving an opportunity to the Municipal Council to thoroughly investigate into the matter in all its aspects. The subject in question is not free from complications and the Council will endeavour to solve them to the satisfaction of Government and the people, if some time is allowed.

For the above, among other reasons, I request that Government may be pleased to order the withdrawal of the acquisition proceedings for the time being, as resolved by the Council at their meeting held on 22nd February 1941.

FINDING OF THE BOOTHBY INQUIRY

purpose of pressing him to join Mr. Boothby's committee. The receipt of this letter, taken in conjunction with the letters which the Petschels had already received from Mr. Weininger, obviously caused them grave anxiety in case, by refusing to be represented by Mr. Boothby's committee, their claims might be prejudiced. As a result the Petschels took advice, and the letters from Mr. Weininger and Colonel Nathan were sent to the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

On August 3 the Chancellor of the Exchequer sent for Mr.
Boothby and complained that the letter from Colonel Nathan to Dr. Walter Petschel plainly conveyed that Mr. Boothby was the authorized and recognized channel for negotiating Czech claims with the Treasury, and further conveyed that the Treasury, regarded him as speaking for all claimants, and that if Dr. Petschel refused to be represented by him his claim would suffer.

On August 4 Mr. Boothby wrote a letter to the Chancellor of the Exchequer with rather explanatory words, ended—"I have received no remuneration and have no financial interests of any sort or kind in the work of the committee." On the same day he wrote to Mr.
Weininger a letter enclosing a copy of the letter to the Chancellor, and containing the following paragraph: "I am afraid it will not now be possible for me to have an agreement of any kind either with you or Zeta, because legislation may be necessary, and in I do I shall not be able to take any further part. Mr. Boothby's committee was dissolved immediately."

On August 9, being further pressed by Sir Alfred Butt in respect of his war, Mr. Boothby requested Mr. Chase to confirm his letter of May 3. Mr. Chase did so, and on or about August 10 Mr. Boothby handed to Sir Alfred Butt a document purporting to be a copy of a letter of that date addressed to Mr.
Chase as follows:—"I have to acknowledge, with thanks, your letter of the 9th instant. I should be obliged if, immediately upon receipt of payment from the Treasury in respect of my assets, you would pay to the account of Sir Alfred Butt, Bt., at the Midland Bank Ltd., Cambridge Circus Branch 138, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2, the sum of £5,000 (five thousand pounds), and regard this as a prior charge against all my assets." Mr. Chase informed the Committee that he had never received any such letter.
Sir Alfred Butt continued to press, and on October 27 Mr.
Boothby signed a further document as follows:—"I, Robert John Graham Boothby, M.P., of 17, Dal Malla Lodge, S.W.1, do hereby assign to Sir Alfred Butt, Baronet, the sum of £5,000 sterling (five thousand pounds) out of the Czech assets now held on my behalf by the Zeta Company Limited. And I hereby pledge these assets as security for the payment of the said five thousand pounds, so that an effect, until such payment is made, they are mortgaged to Sir Alfred Butt." This was given to Sir Alfred Butt.

"Pakistan Within The Next Five Years"

Raja Of Mahamadabad's Speech
Bangalore, April 24

The "Aligarh Day," of the Aligarh Old Boys' Association Bangalore, was celebrated last evening at the Sir Puttanna Chetty Town Hall, under the auspices of Dr. Abdul Azizpuri of Aligarh University.
There was a large gathering including Raja of Mahamadabad, Yussof Hatoon Sait and others.
After invocation Mr. M. A. Subhan, President of the Muslim Students' Federation, welcomed Dr. Puri, and explained the aims and objects of the Muslim Students' Federation.
Nawab Syeda Aktin Begum, the Muslim lady from Hyderabad also spoke in this connection.

Raja Of Mahamadabad's Speech

In the night a public meeting was held at Sir K. P. Puttanna Chetty Town Hall. The hall was fully crowded. Dr. Abdul Aziz Puri presided.
Raja Sahib of Mahamadabad, speaking in Urdu for more than an hour, gave a true picture of the present conditions of Muslims in India and urged that the Mussalmans should improve their economic status.
"What is needed to day is unity" continued Raja Sahib and said "Pakistan and the demands of Muslims is a just one. If the Muslims live up to the ideas of Islam and if they organise themselves as directed they will certainly achieve Pakistan within the next five years Pakistan is not only a message for the Muslims but also to those who live in foreign countries."

Explaining the implication of the demands of the Congress and Muslim League, he said, that Muslims would live honourably only, if Pakistan is achieved. It is a pity that Hindu leaders have not made up their mind to study the question of Pakistan. "Now the days have come when Muslims can no longer be made to wait and watch, and the achievement of 'Pakistan' is the only goal of Muslims."

Dr. Abdul Aziz Puri gave a summary in English

The Governor General has now decided that the Government of India shall refer such cases to Bench of three Judges of Calcutta High Court and pass orders in conformity with the recommendations of the bench.

REACTIONARY GROUP TRIUMPHS

How New Delhi has Reacted to Mr. Amery

(By Wire) New Delhi, April 23
The slogan of "practical difficulties" raised by Mr. Amery came as a rude reminder that reactionary group in London had once again triumphed to prevent any advance. The speech of the Secretary of State which curiously enough came at the same time as the Viceroy's departure on a holiday tour has caused considerable disappointment as it shows no way to Rt Hon. Sapru to pursue his efforts. One supporter of the Bombay Conference bitterly said "The more moderate our proposals are the more intransigent is the tone of the Secretary."

Rt. Hon. L.S. Amery

It does not appear that Mr. Sapru has so far received any letter from the Viceroy so that Allahabad discussions next Sunday will have to proceed in the light of Mr. Amery's speech. A detailed statement is expected to be drafted by the Sapru Committee to controvert Mr. Amery's arguments, but whether it will be released for publication or sent to H. E. the Viceroy for submission to the Secretary of State is not yet known. Mr. Amery's objection that the Bombay resolution asks not for modification of the present form of Government but for supersession by entirely different type of Government is opposed to Sapru's claim that his scheme is in full accord with the present constitution. It is asked whether in Mr. Amery's opinion retention of the European element in the Viceroy's Council and insistence that subjects like finance, defence should not be entrusted to Indian hands is part of the constitution. It is also asked whether any Provincial Ministry has objected to the Bombay resolution. There is also no information to show that Princes have objected, for they have always been against interference in British Indian affairs. The point brought out by Mr. Amery's speech is that though the so called differences between political parties in India were

Strategy Of The Middle East Command

WHY TROOPS WERE TRANSFERRED FROM CYRENAICA How Did So Many Germans Land In Libya?

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph, in a leader on "The Perspective in Libya" writes:
One question that is canvassed not without considerable flavour of wisdom after the event, is whether the fall of Benghazi ought not to have been followed up by a swift thrust at Tripoli. Undoubtedly, if the enemy had been cleared out from Libya entirely, the possibility of what has just happened in Cyrenaica would have been virtually ruled out. It is, however, by no means certain that Tripoli would have fallen quickly in view of the extended line of communication which its reduction would have involved. In the meanwhile, there were strong compelling claims for the Army of the Nile both in the Balkans and in East Africa. If we were going to help Greece, as it was essential we should, it was no use helping her with less than the maximum force at our disposal and it was also clearly necessary to make every effort to finish the East African campaign before the spring rains.
In the problem thus set, the decision was taken in favour of leaving Tripoli unassaulted and holding Cyrenaica with a skeleton force and in throwing our maximum effort in other campaigns. It was realised and the event has proved that there was a risk in such a course. But to risk nothing is in war very often to lose all, as the Maginot strategy has only too grimly taught us. Last autumn we staked a great deal when we sent to the Middle East forces and equipment advanced as reason for not proceeding with changes at the centre it is now clear that agreement or no agreement there is no intention to transfer power at the centre to fully Indian cabinet or treat it as a dominion cabinet. In the circumstances there seems to be little chance of reconciliation between Government's position and Sapru's view point. Attention is also called to the contradictory position taken up by Mr. Amery in his reference to the Muslim League and their Pakistan demand. While he points out the dangers of attempting to break up India's unity he doesn't hesitate to give undue encouragement to Mr. M. A. Jinnah indirectly by recognising him as the spokesman of Muslim India and referring to his growing strength and so on. "Why not consult Premiers of the Muslim Provinces themselves" is the question asked in political circles.

ment which we could ill spare from the threat of invasion at home. That decision, as we have said abundantly worth while, the taking of it has greatly mitigated the course of the war. We had feared to take a somewhat analogous risk in Libya should not now be receiving the surrender which the Duce's Aosta is reported to have offered in East Africa and which carries any case not be long delayed.

Let it not be forgotten that we have been operating in the Middle East with armies much smaller than the forces of our enemies. That imposed on our Command not only the most economy in the use of resources at its disposal, but a delicate time-table involving the transfer of contingents from one theatre to another at exact moment and in the strength calculated to give maximum effect. With this and admittedly serious evacuation of Cyrenaica, the disposition have met with resounding success. Circumstances attending the exceptional resources are in many ways unavoidable and are in no way further explanation. No further explanation is not an omission or misjudgment of the part of our command. How the Germans managed to appear on Libyan soil is a completely unexpected stroke. No one would for a moment suggest that in leadership a particular campaign should be exempt from public discussion and no one wants to "stifle" That sort of "censorship" What chiefly matters is the hour of anxiety and adversity that we should keep our trust in those who have eminently proved their confidence.

SATURDAY—APRIL 26, 1941

THE LOCAL MILL STRIKE

Of late labour strikes have become common in this City and the tragedy of it heightens when one looks at the helplessness and misery of a large body of sweetened folk who rub their eyes for guidance and light from those who are placed in more convenient positions in the code of society. The relationship between capital and labour is anything but desirable and we are tempted to offer the suggestion that evil begets evil, if it is not nipped in the bud itself. Some of our Mr. hierarchy who are comfortably berthed in sine positions with four figured salaries to boot look askance or look obliquely at those who need a comforting word or a pat in the back. Strikes are the result of bad words spoken unguardedly, or looking down upon those who are far less inferior to them or in its extremity the adamant attitude displayed by those in authority. It soon vogue with those who drink milk and honey always to put on the mantle of graciousness and forget that there is anything like poverty around or anything like want of comfort for those who toil for them. If the rich and distributors of wages understand the misery of people who work for them, surely would certainly see the light where darkness is pervading now.

We abhor strikes and at the same time we abhor wretchedness of those who sweat day in and day out. In the absence of necessary legislative machinery to settle labour disputes in our State a great responsibility rests on the shoulders of the Labour Commissioner who should act in a manner that would infuse confidence in the labourers. He should never nod his head in helplessness nor he should show how weak he is before the management who stand on the pedestal of prestige and never swerve from that stand. The Labour Commissioner is an authority from whom the labourers and the management alike can get their grievances redressed provided each value his high office. We are assured of the officer's ready sympathy when things go wrong. We hope the local strike will be settled to the labourers' advantage. We request the Mysore Government to introduce a bill on the lines of the Trade Disputes Act and forthwith settle all the differences of capital and labour which are having sporadic outbreaks. The wages are poor, the unions are never recognised by the management in the absence of a Trade Union Act. We are assured that the Government when things

ANOTHER STRIKE-YET ANOTHER INDUSTRIAL CONVULSION!

NO JUDICIAL MACHINERY FOR RESOLVING INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

New Legislature Must Undertake Immediate Legislation
(T. L. A. Acharya)

Call it strike, stay-in or stay out, call it lock out, give it any appellation that appeals to you. It is all the same to me. Bangalore has another major industrial convulsion on its hands. No social minded person could be indifferent about it. The spectacle of these idle men just shatters your self complacency. You know there is something wrong somewhere.

I said the other day that Mysore would be caught napping. Here we are. We are caught in the terrible grip of another crisis and we could only deplore the utter lack of machinery to resolve such a crisis. Mysore has emerged as a pace-setter in industrialism but is hopelessly mediaeval in the matter of creating the requisite atmosphere and the social technique to afford industrialism a beneficial and healthful growth. The point in history has innumerable object lessons, a plethora of warnings and we, in Mysore, do not heed them to heart, study them and benefit by them. Mysore has set an example in State-sponsored and public-owned industries. Mysore must set still another example in thorough-going legislation to prevent the growth of uncontrolled industry and incessant social friction.

Where are our Trade Disputes Acts and our statutory tribunals to adjudicate in the event of quarrels and conflicts between the employees and the employers? We have a Labour Commissioner who can only dish out pious platitudes to the warring sides. He stands on prestige and will not move till he is approached. The employer is a prestige-ridden person too. The employee has his own armour of prestige. What weapons do we have to batter and break down these concrete walls of prestige? Where are our Labour Codes, our Industrial Welfare Codes, our Trades Union Acts and so on? Can we look on with equanimity while industrialisation is advancing with momentous speed and people are suffering?

Something must be done while our industrialism is young and receptive, something must be done before it gets out of hand.

The responsibility of our Government is great and unavoidable. This is so because the Government itself is an employer. The Government, surely, cannot be going from bad to worse. It is time that the Labour Commissioner suggests a plan of legislative action to his Government and see that labour is put on its safety never to get itself distressed. We do hope that the local trouble will end ere long.

play the role of an impartial mediator or a cool-headed judge. We want a statutory third party. There need never be strikes. But there will always be strikes till labour is welcomed as a partner in the adventure. In its own interest, to safeguard its fair name, our Government must undertake, and undertake immediately, labour legislation in quite a good number of directions. When the Government displays its willingness to place its case before a tribunal the private employers will follow suit with alacrity and labour will be won over. The Government must put shackles on its own hands in order to prevent hasty and unsocial action on the part of other employers and labour.

I suggest that the State must forthwith interest itself in the promotion of constructive Trade Unionism in Mysore. There should be no hesitation in according recognition to Trade Unions. This is, I suggest, the first line of defence against industrial convulsions in all that such convulsions mean. Trade Unions must be organised even in all Government-owned industrial institutions.

I have a special appeal to make to the new legislators who will start functioning before long. I charge them and the Government with this task of legislation for industrial reconstruction. The importance and the need for such legislation cannot be exaggerated. The present industrial development is demonstrably lop-sided. With industrialisation must come, in a parallel stream, planned social amelioration. Industry is service and for the people. For the people yes! because the natural resources that industry exploits are the people's.

I suggest that a special meeting of our legislators be called, on a non-party basis, to plan out legislation, to draft Bills for the benefit of the Government. This is a matter that vitally affects the Government as well as the people. A common platform, co-operative action and a helpful exchange of thoughts are eminently desirable. It involves serious and earnest study and brain-sweat. The task has to be faced as it can no longer be postponed.

I want the first achievement of the new legislature to be a Mysore Trade Disputes act, or a Mysore Trades Union act. That could be followed up with legislation in regard to wages, welfare and so on. I suggest that Mysore has a duty by the rest of the country. Mysore has shown the industrial way. Mysore must also show what industrialism ought to mean from the social standpoint. Industrialism must accept shackles "to prevent its hands from shaking." We do not want class warfare in Mysore.

"Mr. BOOTHBY'S AFFAIRS WAS OF TENUOUS CHARACTER"

Findings of the Special Committee
HE WAS CONSTANTLY PRESSED BY HIS CREDITORS

Dirty Linen that had to be Washed

In continuation of the article that appeared in our yesterday's issue we give here ample facts to prove that Mr. Boothby kept secret and never disclosed to the House of Commons or to the Chancellor of the Exchequer or any official that he had any personal interests in any claim. The conclusions of the Committee have also been given.

Pressed by Creditors

Mr. Boothby told the Committee that about September or October, 1939, he informed Mr. Weinger that he was being pressed by his creditors, and that Mr. Weinger promised that he would pay Mr. Boothby's debts out of any Czech assets which Mr. Weinger might receive. There is no documentary evidence of this promise.

In December Mr. Boothby was being pressed by other creditors for the payment of a debt of £5,400. He applied to Mr. Chase for assistance, and on January 30, 1940, the Zota Company, Limited, made a loan to Mr. Boothby of this amount against a promise that it would be charged against his 10 per cent share. Mr. Boothby did not inform Mr. Chase of any prior charges in favour of Sir Alfred Butt. Had he done so the advance would not have been made. The first intimation the Zota Company received was a letter from the solicitors of Sir Alfred Butt on April 15, and after some controversy between the solicitors it was agreed that Sir Alfred Butt's charge should rank in priority and Mr. Boothby signed a charge in favour of the Zota Company, Limited, to secure the £5,400 and interest "on all that my interest in 10 per cent of the moneys which will ultimately be collected by you from the Bank of England when Treasury sanction has been granted in respect of the said Czech assets charged in to you by Mrs. Weinger and the two Miss Kahlers."

About the same time Sir Robert Boothby, Mr. Boothby's father, became aware of the debts owing to Sir Alfred Butt and the Zota Company, Limited and he took steps to pay off these debts, including interest and expenses claimed by Sir Alfred Butt.

After August Mr. Boothby did not take any very active political steps in respect of the Czech claims until January, 1940, when he made a very material speech on the second reading of the Czechoslovakia (Financial Claims and Refugees) Bill.

Mr. Boothby admitted that at no time did he disclose to the House of Commons, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, or any official that he had any personal interests in any claim.

The Conclusions

The conclusions of the Committee are:—

Your Committee find that throughout the whole of the period in question subsequent to May 3, 1939, Mr. Boothby made a claim to participate to the extent of £24,200 in the realisation of the Czech assets belonging to the Weinger estate, which, whether legally recoverable or not, Mr. Boothby assured the Weinger estate would be prepared to waive. In addition Mr. Boothby made further expectations in respect of the Hans Weinger estate.

Your Committee are satisfied that, generous as Mr. Weinger may have been and anxious he was to help his friend with political activities he admitted the promise to pay him a considerable sum of money given on the understanding that Mr. Boothby would render services in return. Such services included political speeches under pressure on Ministers of the Crown and Treasury officials.

Mr. Boothby could not but be influenced in his advocacy of this fact; and the knowledge that Mr. Weinger might draw his promise or be bound to fulfill it would make Mr. Boothby all the more anxious to get Mr. Weinger his money and to get it promptly. In his speeches in Parliament his interviews with Treasury officials, and in his letters to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Boothby did, in fact, make early intimation in full of the class of claims to which the Weinger ladies belonged.

As to whether Mr. Boothby had expectations of payment for his services as chairman of the Committee, your Committee find the evidence inconclusive.

Mr. Boothby took no steps at any time to disclose to the House of Commons or to the Treasury that he was one of those members to whom he wrote urging particular action to the Treasury that he had interests were in any way affected by what might be done about the Czech assets. In an interview with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on August 3, 1939, regarding the affairs of the committee, Mr. Boothby was expressly protected in honour that he had no personal interest.

Mr. C. V. Basave Gowda, Zadar, Fort, Chikmagalur in a statement issued yesterday strongly condemns the action of the Government in giving representation to major committees by way of nomination to the elected representatives, and considers that the Government has totally neglected the minor community members of Chikmagalur town. He regards the question of non-official representation Mr. Basave Gowda states that as many important schemes like Chikmagalur Water Supply, drainage, and tarring of roads are being conducted, he opines that a political President who has no connection with the work of the middle and the non-official representation privilege, should be given only at the termination of the town improvement schemes now under execution.

It is reliably understood that many persons have petitioned to the Government to continue the present President for some years more.

The Indian Jewellery Mart Case

"BOXES CONTAINED NOTHING BUT SMALL CUTPIECES OF PAPER"

The Examination Of The Secretary Of The Vaisya Bank

Bangalore, April 24

The whole of yesterday and today Mr. J. Suryanarayana Setty, Secretary of the Vaisya Bank was examined as the prosecution witness (the first witness) in the Indian Jewellery Mart Case before Mr. T. S. Ananta Murthy, Special Magistrate, Bangalore City.

Mr. Suryanarayana Setty in his evidence said, that all the fifteen dealwood boxes (sealed) which were said to contain Silverware and which were deposited by the Indian Jewellery Mart in the Vaisya Bank were afterwards found to contain nothing but small cutpieces of paper generally used for packing purposes. He also said that these boxes opened in the presence of Panchayatdars by the Police and examined the contents therein.

There was no Silverware in it though the lists given purports to say that those boxes contained Silverware described therein. The packing paper was found compressed into the size of the box. The paper was found little wet. It was all removed and the boxes were thoroughly examined. The papers were refilled into the empty boxes to the extent we could and the remaining papers were put into a separate gunny bags. The total amount paid by the Bank to Indian Jewellery Mart on the security of all these 15 boxes amounted to Rs. 22,065. No attempts were made by the Indian Jewellery Mart to repay the loans and get the boxes released."

They were cordially received by Mr. Krishnabai Jayaram Rao, Mrs. Sushilabai Naghesha Rao, Mrs. Gowdappa Cheluvaiyah and other officers of the Sadan.

The various activities of the Sadan were explained to Mr. Ramaswamy who appreciated them very much.

Later an Assembly was held in the hall of the Sadan.

Mrs. Sushilabai Naghesha Rao eulogised the services of Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy and paid tributes to the qualities of his head and heart.

In the course of a short speech Dewan Bahadur Ramaswamy expressed his great appreciation of the splendid work that was being done at the Sadan. He appealed to the women of upper classes to take in amidst them more and more women and children of the lower classes and improve the standard of living of the latter. In the eyes of creation everyone was equal and hence every one should have equal opportunities for development. He referred in particular to Mysore and said that in Mysore there was no class distinction and that every one belonged to only one class called the Mysorean. The only subdivision under that head was the male and female. Mr. Ramaswamy pointed out that the ideal of every Mysorean should be the progress of the State. He hoped that the Vanita Sadan would become a model association and work for the greatness of Mysore.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

A.P. (Mail)

Hyderabad, (Dn.) April 22.

At an extraordinary meeting of the Hyderabad Trade Association held at Raghunathmal Bank a condolence resolution on the death of Hazrat Badi Begum Saheba expressing its deep sorrow was passed.

Mr CASEY WARNS

A stern warning that any disturbance of the Pacific waters would be met with the stubborn resistance of Australia and New Zealand, was made by Mr. Casey, Australian Ambassador in Washington.

"Mr. BOOTHBY'S AFFAIRS WAS OF TENUOUS CHARACTER"

Your Committee do not accept the plea that this interview occurred in an interval in Mr. Boothby's affairs, when his expectation of reward was of such tenuous character as entitled him to deny it. This plea is not in accord with the view expressed in evidence by Mr. Chase, and in fact the interview came between the letter of June 30, 1939, to Sir Alfred Butt, in which Mr. Boothby stated positively that he was the possessor of assets amounting to approximately £20,000 in Prague and the request to Mr. Chase on August 9, 1939, for a letter confirming the original letter of May 3, 1939. This was followed on October 27, 1939, by the document in which Mr. Boothby assigned £5,000 out of these assets to Sir Alfred.

Your Committee equally do not accept the plea that Mr. Boothby's disclaimer related only to the question of whether he was to receive special remuneration as chairman of the Committee of Czech claimants. It was certainly not so understood by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the letter which Mr. Boothby wrote on August 4, 1939, using the words "I have no financial interests of any sort or kind in the work of the Committee" was not likely to mislead him. If Mr. Boothby intended to disclaim his disclaimer it was essential that he should have stated expressly what his interest was and what it was not in the whole matter of the Czech assets.

The finding of your Committee is that Mr. Boothby's conduct was contrary to the usage and standards of the dignity of the House of Commons, and that his conduct was inconsistent with the standards which Parliament is entitled to expect from its members.

★ Gandhiji Speaks Out

LET BRITISH WITHDRAW FROM INDIA

Mahatmaji on Mr. L. S. Amery's Recent Outburst

"HE HAS NO REGARD FOR TRUTH"

Wardhaganj, April 25
Mahatma Gandhi has issued the following statement on Mr. Amery's speech in the House of Commons: "I have read painfully the long report of a debate in the House of Commons on the Distress has been known have softened people's hearts and made them mindful of facts. But Britain's distress has evidently left Mr. Amery absolutely cold and untouched. This hardness makes me more than ever confirmed in my opinion that Congress must abide by its policy of non violence in spite of heavy odds facing it."

Mr. Amery has rendered no service to Great Britain by his contemptuous disregard of the situation as it exists in India. He talks glibly of British rule having given peace to India. Did he not know what was happening in Dacca and Ahmedabad? Who was responsible for keeping peace in these two places? I hope he will not throw in my face the fact that Bengal at any rate has a government. He knows what a mockery that self-government is. He knows what little power for such emergencies the "toy" ministers have when they wear Congress labels and assign blame or any other. I ask this very pertinent question: Why has this long spell of British rule has left people so emasculated as to disable them from standing up against a few hundred goondas? It is a humiliating spectacle more for the British than for us to see that thousands of people are running away from their homes through sheer fright because a few hundred goondas have found a favourable atmosphere for resorting to arson and loot and murder. The first act of any Government worth the name would be able to teach its people the art of self-defence but the foreign British Government had no concern about this fundamental welfare of India's citizens and it deprived people of the use of arms.

Let them withdraw from India and I promise Congress and League and all other parties will find it to their interest to come together and devise a genuine solution for the Government of India. It may not be scientific, it may not be after western pattern but it will be durable. It may be that before we come to that happy state of affairs we may have to fight amongst ourselves. But if we agree not to invite assistance from any outside power the durability will last perhaps a fortnight and will not mean even one day's destruction of human heads such as goes on in Europe today for the simple reason that thanks to the British rule we are wholly unarmed.

Mr. Amery in utter disregard of truth misleads his ignorant audience that Congress wants all or nothing. Let me remind him that in order to placate British sentiment Congress descended to the Poona resolution and when at Bombay it undid Poona resolution I authoritatively stated that the British Govt. could not at the present moment grant or declare India's independence and that therefore for the time being we should be satisfied with complete freedom of speech and pen. Was that all or nothing with Mr. Amery's state of mind? I suppose it is too much to expect him to have elementary grace of knowledge, studied moderation of Congress in its desire not to embarrass British Government whilst it was fighting for its very existence.

"India's millions are becoming pauperised. They are miserably clothed and ill-fed. It is proof positive that India is being ground down under British heel."

It is the duty of every Indian who knows anything about the distress of the peasantry to rise in rebellion against this autocratic rule

FIRST NAVAL VESSEL IN BURMA

A.P. Press, Rangoon, April 25.
Lady Gohbarah wife of the Governor of Burma launched the first naval vessel built in Burma for Burma's navy today. H.E. the Viceroy telegraphed to the Governor of Burma: "On behalf of India I send my most sincere congratulations and good wishes on the launching of first vessel of Burma's navy today." Governor of Burma in course of reply said: "I hope that this is the occasion when great things will grow from small beginning."

Mr. Gandhi concludes by saying, "I must not carry any further the painful dissection of Mr. Amery's performance. It hurts me to have to undertake even this very brief analysis of his speech but it is so amazingly misleading that I felt I should be failing in my duty if I did not point out at least some of the most glaring discrepancies in that unfortunate utterance. Surely he could have rested content with the undisputed way he exercises over the destinies of four hundred million people."

Rigorous Curfew in Bombay City

BRITISH TROOPS READY TO MEET SITUATION

Casualties Reported So Far

Bombay, April 26
British infantry troops have been called up in connection with communal disturbances. The Chief Presidency Magistrate has extended the curfew order in the worst riot affected area from 7 P. M. to 5 A. M. Two buses and two trams were badly damaged as a result of heavy stone-throwing by a crowd along Mahomed Ali Road. The Motor car belonging to the Deputy Commissioner of Police Mr. Wilson was also stoned. Two police constables were assaulted and sent to hospital. Latest reports from the hospital show nearly forty persons have been admitted into various hospitals since 2 P. M.

H. E. the Governor has issued the following warning in connection with the riots: "There has been renewed communal disturbances in Bombay City today. I must give a plain warning that the authorities will take sternest action against any further breaches of peace."

A number of Honorary magistrates have been called up for special duty tonight in connection with the communal disturbances. Police have been given instructions to strictly enforce extended curfew order from 7 P. M. to 6 A. M. and not 5 A. M. as reported earlier.

The Bombay Government have amended the Abkari Act so as to withdraw restrictions placed on the publication of liquor advertisements in Bombay newspapers.

Stray cases of stabbing continued to be reported during the evening although generally the situation has been brought under control. Four cases occurred after 4 P. M. making the day's total 2 dead and 51 injured. Military detachments have been posted at police headquarters and Bhendi Bazaar. Curfew has been rigorously enforced. It is now ascertained that the rioting is accompanied by incendiarism and that the City's fire brigade had been called out seven times. There was however no serious fire. Total casualty since the outbreak of disturbances on Sunday is 4 dead and 30 injured.

After the afternoon's excitement and tension the riot area is quiet at midnight. For the Washington first time in the history of Bombay curfew has been enforced between 7 P. M. and 6 A. M. On the previous occasions when there were communal riots in the City curfew hours had always been between 10 P. M. and 5 A. M. But this time curfew had been made effective from 7 P. M. to 6 A. M. which means none is allowed to come out between dusk and dawn. Contingents of British troops have been posted at six different strategic points in the affected area while armed police have been stationed at many other points. Enquiries at various hospitals at late hour last night show the total casualties for the day are 2 dead and 57 injured while the total since the commencement of the trouble is 4 dead and 26 injured.

"CHILD IS THE FATHER OF THE MAN"

In a country where systematic Child Welfare work is conspicuous by its absence the All Mysore Children Conference comes as a pleasant surprise. This organisation is the outcome of the selfless devotion of Srimathi R. Kalyanamama to whom the care of others' children is a God given task. Though childless she has dedicated her whole life for the advancement of young kids. We heartily congratulate her for her noble task which is in keeping with the highest traditions of Indian womanhood.

The proceedings of the fourth annual session of the Conference of children which was opened by Dewan Bahadur K. Ramaswamy is a refreshing reading of the many sided tasks which the local children have taken upon themselves. In all civilized countries there will be found effective legislation directed towards securing care and protection for children. Under the British Act of 1918 provisions are made for the education and care of physically and mentally defective children, for the feeding of necessitous cases under the poor law Act of 1889. Boards of guardians have ample powers enabling them to adopt neglected children. Child Welfare is an interest common to every country and we are sorry that in our own State many legislations of the kind are wanting.

In 1890 France was responsible to organize in Nancy an institution called "Consultation des Nourrissons" which attracted wide spread attention and which was largely instrumental in inspiring other countries notably England to develop Infant Welfare work. The Federal children's bureau established in Washington in 1912 is another interesting scheme of Child Welfare work.

Compared to the rapidity with which people in those countries have advanced, we in this country are no where nearer to that ideal. The English law has always in theory given to children the same remedies as to adults for ill-usage, whether by their parents or by others and has never recognised the patria potestas of earlier Law. But in this land children are at the mercy of so many ill-effects which go to stultify their growth to healthy stature. Beyond providing three Rs to those who care to enter primary schools—and even here the paucity of schools must be noted—the State never cares about the welfare of children or their needs. If the parents are affluent there is a chance for the child to taste the pleasures of this modern world and enjoy all the comforts of a sound education. We have the Doon school in Dehradun. We have the Rishi Valley School in Madanapalle. But are they for the poor? Those who could afford to waste money like water need dream of the finesse of these "Aristo" abodes. There are children in our land who are destined to the misery of going without a cup of sweet milk. When such is the case the State should proceed further to see that children are put on the high pedestal of safety.

In America the law has enlarged the rights of the child and a great measure of protection is afforded against ill-usage, exploitation and conditions affecting his health morals and general well-being. The Mysore Government should dash forward with legislative protections of the kind that are in vogue in America and England.

There are numerous problems affecting the children and we hope the sponsors of the Conference will show a way to our Government as to the necessity of legislations of this kind. Barring the rich the poor have no means to train their children. Here a duty is cast on the state to fill the picture. We hope the deliberations of this Conference will be an eye opener to our Government. They must act without delay.

VESTED INTERESTS HAVE A WAY OF OPPOSITION

They Throw Bucketfuls of Cold Water on Every Endeavour

MOTOR INDUSTRY--OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE

Mysore Factory Will Have Bright Prospects

The Motor Factory about to be established in this State is being stoutly opposed by the vested interests. Here is an instructive article refuting the many adverse arguments put forward. It is hoped that patriotic Indians will promote the industry against all odds.

(Contributed)

That they were not surprised at the criticisms launched against their project was expressed by the promoters of the motor industry, at an informal meeting which took place this week. A group of local businessmen, financiers and brokers met and discussed with them the Mysore motor factory scheme. It was explained on behalf of the promoters, that every industry had witnessed similar opposition from vested interests when it was started in India. The usual theory of "saturation point", "consumer's interests" and etc., was advanced in the case of all the big industries that were undertaken by industrialists.

The promoters went on that the history and growth of sugar, cement, iron and steel, textiles and salt, to mention a few of the important industries—set their own examples for the public to judge, of the two—whether the promoters of these industries or the critics, were in the right. In 1929, India imported about one million tons of sugar mainly from Java. When protection was granted, the industry attracted 24 crores of rupees of Indian capital, always called shy—in spite of the worst depression the world was then passing through and over a hundred sugar factories sprung up. The Government and the Legislature thought that India would take at least 15 years to become self-sufficient so far as sugar was concerned. But the fact remained that within four years of the grant of protection to the industry, India was able to produce 14 lakhs of tons of sugar—two lakhs of tons in excess of Indian consumption.

It was emphasised that this trade which was in the hands of Europeans before the grant of protection, was now mostly in the hands of Indian nationals. Facts showed that the grant of protection to the sugar industry had not in any way affected the consumer's interests; on the other hand the price of sugar had gone down because of the internal competition, and the consumer was actually benefitted by the expansion and control of sugar industry passing into the hands of Indians.

The example of the iron and steel industry was then given. This industry had now come to occupy a very important place in Indian economy. Similar opposition that is being witnessed now against the motor industry was also raised against the Tata Iron & Steel Industry. When the Mysore Government started the Bhadravathi Iron & Steel Works, it received considerable opposition from the Government of India and other quarters. The founder of the Tata Iron & Steel industry was actually ridiculed by the opposition. But, however, is very gratifying that those wise industrialists who started these factories in India. Both these factories are now doing well. Tatas have always said that they do not want protection any longer as the industry is not only able to stand on its own legs but compete with other manufacturers of foreign markets like America and elsewhere.

The promoters then took example of the cement industry. It was stated that only those who have a peep into the past of the industry could appreciate its present position. Foreign competition was very keen. The petition of the Indian cement companies to the Tariff Board for protection against foreign competition proved abortive. In next four years, 1926-30, witnessed a sustained chapter of putting their houses in order. Indian cement manufacturers formed their own association and concerted joint measures to bring down the prices of cement and thus eliminated foreign competition by stages. Today cement is imported into India and the Indian factories have been able to meet the ever increasing demand in this country at cheap rates.

Indian textile industry had the same tale continued the promoters. Before the first Great War, India was mainly dependent on Lancashire to clothe British. Same arguments of "saturation point" and "consumer's interests" were raised when the Indian industrialists started cotton factories in Bombay and elsewhere. Within a period of 10 years, Indian mills were able to meet a large bulk of the demand effectively bringing down the prices, and import from Lancashire.

Lastly the history of the industry was referred to. The makers of foreign countries said that they would be able to sell salt to India at cheaper rates without hitting the Indian industrialists. Their accounts and a good part of the salt trade was now in the control of Indians to the advantage of India. In conclusion the promoters told those friends that progress made by those who were quite instructive. (See Page 2)

WOMEN AND CO-OPERATION

(By Feminist)

It is now definitely known that the ceremony of inaugurating the new reconstituted Councils will take place in the near future. The new Reforms are in the nature of a will to the late Maharaja and by the late Maharaja's profound interest in the welfare of his subjects, it is known that the women who make a little money by sewing and knitting for their neighbours and friends. The contributions of these women towards smoothening the affairs of their respective families have minimised to some extent the difficulties in their way of making the ends meet. Naturally, they fight shy of publicity for the things that they make. In other words, while they are as a matter of course prudent and contented enough with what they get they are indifferent to the idea of augmenting the incomes of their families by adding from time to time, by a corresponding increase in the out-put of their articles and putting the same on the market. It is here that Women's Co-operative Sales Societies come in quite handy and where Societies started in all Taluk Head-quarters in the first instance, it should be a glorious success and it is needless to add that the capital of these Societies must come from women, that their management must be in the hands of women. The articles manufactured by the women would then not only receive due publicity but also bring larger business and better prices.

In order that the idea may develop itself into a practical scheme, the experiment has to begin with the families of public servants in our several taluks for the women members of these families are better adapted for organisation and management than those living in our villages. I trust that this idea will commend itself to all women in the public life of Mysore and to Government in the Department concerned.

Before I conclude I would like to say that in order that the Scheme may work satisfactorily and produce substantial results, our women must receive the necessary training in Co-operation. It would be interesting to know whether the Co-operative Institute provides for a course of instruction to women in co-operative matters. In the absence of any such provision a Scheme for the training of women in this department of public welfare ought at once to be prepared and given effect to. Another idea that strikes me is, that in the same way as there are Teachers, Doctors and Nurses in the service of Government there must be a small staff of women officers attached to the Department of Co-operation. Every District ought to have an official Woman Co-operator for the spread of knowledge and for inspiring enterprise. Our University has produced many women graduates and it should become possible in the near future to recruit women graduates for appointments in this department. For the present it seems to the writer that a lady graduate with a knowledge of History, Economics and Sociology must be taken to the department.

This is a very poor show for a small State. Those who have known even a little of the life in the State a hundred years ago, and life in the country, would be economically less of an eye for the present. But as the population is several thousand and they are desperately in want of work, there have been no efforts to bring any manner of improvement to them. Middle class families are the most affected of the population, and it is very necessary that the department of Co-operation should collect statistics giving particulars of the Cottage Industries which the women members of these families know. So far as the writer is aware, knitting, embroidery, sewing (which covers all varieties of children's garments and clothings for the families in general except coats and pants for the men and sarees for the women), making and spraying of curtains, decorative designs are some of the hobbies of these families. As poverty has grown to be more and more pinching, several of these families have begun to show a little enterprise, and there are many women who make a little money by sewing and knitting for their neighbours and friends. The contributions of these women towards smoothening the affairs of their respective families have minimised to some extent the difficulties in their way of making the ends meet. Naturally, they fight shy of publicity for the things that they make. It is here that Women's Co-operative Sales Societies come in quite handy and where Societies started in all Taluk Head-quarters in the first instance, it should be a glorious success and it is needless to add that the capital of these Societies must come from women, that their management must be in the hands of women. The articles manufactured by the women would then not only receive due publicity but also bring larger business and better prices.

In order that the idea may develop itself into a practical scheme, the experiment has to begin with the families of public servants in our several taluks for the women members of these families are better adapted for organisation and management than those living in our villages. I trust that this idea will commend itself to all women in the public life of Mysore and to Government in the Department concerned.

Before I conclude I would like to say that in order that the Scheme may work satisfactorily and produce substantial results, our women must receive the necessary training in Co-operation. It would be interesting to know whether the Co-operative Institute provides for a course of instruction to women in co-operative matters. In the absence of any such provision a Scheme for the training of women in this department of public welfare ought at once to be prepared and given effect to. Another idea that strikes me is, that in the same way as there are Teachers, Doctors and Nurses in the service of Government there must be a small staff of women officers attached to the Department of Co-operation. Every District ought to have an official Woman Co-operator for the spread of knowledge and for inspiring enterprise. Our University has produced many women graduates and it should become possible in the near future to recruit women graduates for appointments in this department. For the present it seems to the writer that a lady graduate with a knowledge of History, Economics and Sociology must be taken to the department.

(S.A.M.)

I know most of you have read Edward Thompson's "Enlist India for Freedom". In that striking little un-amerishy book, the author tells us of some British Officers in India who bemoan their bad luck in having to leave India without having met Mahatma Gandhi and taken tea with Pandit Nehru. Mahatma Gandhi is the Viceroy's exclusive portfolio and special charge and the lesser men of the British Administration in India have to keep out of the way! To a Mr. Galetti I.C.S. there must be ninety nine British Officers itching to shake hands with Mahatma Gandhi.

In Mysore, we have as the head of the executive; a person who is on visiting and "mutual-regarding" terms with Mahatma Gandhi. This cannot be said of any other unit of Indian India. Yet, I learn that an over-zealous boss of one of our districts has hauled an Agricultural Inspector over sufficiently and dependably hot coals for mentioning Mahatma Gandhi. I do not know if this gentleman of agriculture has a portrait of the Mahatma, smiling at him in the ineffably sweet way that is his from a wall in his drawing-bed room. I am sure Mr. T. G. Rama Iyer would not mind if he happens to have one. Mr. Rama Iyer would, perhaps, even argue this way: "This Inspector of mine does not know the A. B. C. of Agricultural Science. He needs an inspiration and Mahatma Gandhi is an Agricultural Messiah. That smile of his is more effective than a hundred Ford tractors". Mr. Rama Iyer is that sort of man.

My friend, the Agricultural Inspector, is, it is alleged (I believe that is the safest and the most Secretariatist way of putting it) put on the rack just because the Police caught him talking Mahatma Gandhi to the peasants while, on one of his official beats. He told them, it is alleged, that if they would only give up toddy they could buy good ploughs. It is further alleged that the Inspector almost sounded like preaching temperance! It is still further alleged that this gentleman, wanting to reinforce his appeal, quoted Mahatma Gandhi as having said that drink is a dehumanising force. Coupled with the name of Mahatma Gandhi, temperance sounded like prohibition to the Police ears. To an ordinary policeman the word "prohibition" is synonymous with "picketing" and lathis, white caps, broken heads and processions rush through his mind in a confused and mad rush, befuddling him completely.

Imagination is the sworn enemy of over-zealousness. With a little imaginative thinking, it would have been obvious to the D. C. that the poor agricultural officer was not preparing to give up the toddy and that he had given the necessary training in administrative and functional matters. While in due course this Officer will be entrusted with the duty of controlling and supervising the work of existing Societies and those that may hereafter take birth, the women Supervisors in the district may with advantage endeavour to promote the aims and objects of any scheme that may be prepared. I trust all those prominent in the public life of Mysore and the Registrar of Co-operative Societies will exert their energy and translate the idea into reality.

to get into the shoes of Mr. H. Siddappa. What he was doing was not Congress propaganda; he felt the need of a new approach to the problems confronting him and was attempting to evolve a new technique. I do not know if that district boss is aware of it, the peasant is an obstinate mule and the lace-turban has lost its original terror striking magnetism.

Why should not an Agricultural Inspector even mention Horatio Bottomley or the unpronounceable name of some former Minister of one of the Balkan States, if that will come in handy to bring the peasant round to the idea of a more reliable and less ancient plough? What the Agricultural Inspector knows the D. C. does not. Mahatma Gandhi, the man Gandhi, is a fact today even in the most inaccessible parts of the hills of Assam and the tiger infested jungles of Central India.

The action of the D. C., if the allegation is well-founded, is amazing. The administration in Mysore is not averse to what has come to be called "constructive work". There is a lot of it being done under Government auspices. The latest essay is the University's tlement, something that is calculated to steal the thunder of Wardha. Nobody can tell me the present dynamic industrial drive is "destructive work". The point is the Mysore Congressmen themselves are talking of confining themselves to and concentrating on constructive work. This is just the time for discovering an approach to the common-ground that is already there in the shape of the universal desire to undertake constructive work. I think the head of the Mysore administration is all out to accept the implications of what is called constructive work, even placing the most orthodox Wardha interpretation on that phrase. The D. C. in question ill serves his master and the cause that is greater than all.

alleged that vested interests did not want India to progress industrially as was evident from Mr. Richardson's speech in the Council of State four weeks back.

The promoters of the motor industry drew the attention of the public to its strongest aspect viz., its national importance. India would reach a high level of industrialisation when the motor factory was established. From defence point of view a motor factory for India was a great necessity. Their case was that there were natural advantages such as the abundant supply of raw materials, cheap power, sufficient labour and the existing import duty. There was a large home market too. They stated that the above factors were their justification for starting the industry, and they felt confident that the Indian consumer, would be immensely benefited by the establishment of this industry in this country. Owing to war, import of automobiles in India had been restricted to a large extent.

The population of the country was increasing. The transport problem was now growing into a serious proposition. The country required more buses for carrying passengers and more trucks to transport their agricultural products to the market. Hence in their opinion time was ripe for starting the industry in India.

An account of Mr. Adve's negotiations with Ford was also given to those present. In conclusion it was emphasised that the proposed factory had very bright prospects and the promoters were confident of making a successful proposition from the third year when they would be manufacturing sixty per cent of the required parts.

(By Mail) Hyderabad, Deccan, April 24
That the Nizam has the best squadron in the R.A.F. was the view expressed by its commander in a speech at a dinner held at Dorset (England) in February. The function was made possible through an Xmas gift of £ 75 to the Hyderabad Squadron by H. E. H. the Nizam.

Proposing the toast of the Nizam, the Commander said, "As you all know, the Nizam of Hyderabad presented the sum of £ 100,000 to the British Government to form a Royal Air Force Squadron and we are fortunate in becoming that Squadron. I myself have served under the Nizam in his State, which I can tell you is the best State in India, and we can tell Nizam that he is as lucky as we are, as he has the best squadron in the R. A. F."

The record of the Hyderabad Squadron by that time (January) was a mixed "Bag" of Messerschmitts, Dorniers and Junkers number 65. Since then the Squadron has surpassed the figure of 100.

WHO HAS GAINED BY SOVIET-JAPANESE PACT?

RELATIONS BETWEEN AXIS AND RUSSIA

German attitude to Far East Issues (By cable) London
In a leader headed "Japan and Europe" The Times writes: No body believes that Japan would become an "object of military operations" on the part of any other power unless she herself deliberately and wantonly provoked them. On the other hand, Soviet Russia is bound to reckon with the contingency of an attack on her territory. She has now a formal promise from Japan to remain neutral in such an event.

This promise has come opportunely at a moment when Soviet leaders appear to have become alive to some hazards of a purely passive foreign policy. The rebuke to Bulgaria upon her accession to the Axis was quickly followed by assurances of a "full and understanding neutrality" to Turkey in the event of that country becoming involved in war, by the fact of friendship with Yugoslavia and by notably warm professions of sympathy with the Yugoslav people in the brave resistance offered to Hitler's brutal assault on their liberties. All these steps have been hailed by the Soviet press as manifestations of the Soviet policy of peace and neutrality. But they betray the growing uneasiness of the Kremlin at the grandiose development of Hitler's eastern policy. One source of that uneasiness will be mitigated by the assurance that Japan's vaguely defined obligations to the Axis do not include participation in any action against Soviet Russia.

The pact will bring no corresponding alleviation of what must still be the chief anxiety of Japanese statesmen—the inability of the Japanese armies to bring to an end the four-year-old "China incident". Our correspondent in China draws a vivid picture of the skill and tenacity which enabled the Chinese to frustrate the worst designs of a foe superior in equipment, organization and—so far as the regular fighting forces are concerned—in numbers. The most significant feature of the campaign, and one which has contributed most to the successful Chinese resistance, is that Chinese national unity, far from giving way under the strain as many observers including Japanese expected, has emerged strengthened and cemented by adversity.

The belief fostered by some Japanese newspapers that Stalin has undertaken in the negotiations with Mr. Matsuoaka to suspend Soviet assistance to China is a piece of wishful thinking.

which finds no confirmation in the text of the Japanese authorised comment on Soviet Press.

From the Japanese side the agreement signed in Moscow seems to be open to present criticism in Japan against the pact—that Japan's diplomacy has again been reduced to give something. Whatever the criticisms of this new pact, clearly not drawn Soviet into closer sympathy with Axis policy. Indeed it is received with some cold Berlin. It did not resign diplomatic mission to assure Japan that Russia did not intend to have any Japanese adventures in the Southern Pacific, for could better suit Russia than to see Japan raise its enemies for herself and her strength in distant. Nor has the tripartite pact been made to look attractive to prudent in Tokyo by the personal receiving reception accorded Mr. Matsuoaka in Berlin.

Hitler continues to make which are obvious to many efforts, to embroil Japan, Great Britain and the United States. Nothing that Japan can achieve will be of any use. But the fact remains that many is important to the East and can give to Japan substantial than words. ever policy Japan will follow in a position where ever power in the world would not be used to fit of Japan. Japan would find already found, but victories bring little glory to German.

MODERATES TO MEET AGAIN IN POONA

Group Meetings to be Organised Throughout India

CONFERENCE TO BE MORE REPRESENTATIVE

Allahabad Talks Clarified

[Associated Press of India]
Statement To Be Issued

ALLAHABAD, April, 27.—Members of the Standing Committee of the Bombay Congress Conference opened their discussions this morning at Sir Tej Bahadur as President at his residence. Sir Sapru most likely submit a memorandum and after full discussions the light of the latest speeches Col. Amery in the House Commons the Committee is expected to embody their conclusions in the form of a statement or resolution which will be passed to the Press sometime this evening.

Earlier—The Standing Committee of the Moderate Leaders' Conference held two hours' discussion this morning which was ended after lunch.

The Associated Press understands that as a result of to-day's discussions at the Standing Committee meeting of the Moderate Leaders' Conference it has been decided to hold a full andenary meeting of the General Conference in the near future in the central place. The actual date of the Conference will be settled after due consultations with the members of the Conference and it may take place in about a month's time.

The venue of the Conference will probably be Poona. The Council will, it is further believed than at Bombay. The Standing Committee finished its deliberations at about 6 in the evening. It is believed that several group meetings will be held throughout the country to establish contact among various sections of leaders for the solution of the political problems.

Consequently it was deemed desirable to enlarge the Conference in order to make it more representative and hold the meeting in the near future at the central place. The statement which was discussed by the Committee to-day will be a formal touchstone now and will be forwarded to the Press tomorrow.

Lengthy Statement Issued
The standing committee of the Bombay Conference in a lengthy statement issued this morning say that they very much regret Mr. Amery's two speeches which should have betrayed such amazing misunderstanding of the real political situation in India and displayed such unsympathetic and unbending attitude towards the aspirations of India.

The Committee's opinion is that Mr. Amery has missed the opportunity of winning public confidence which was offered to the British Government with the best of intentions by those who have a vivid appreciation of the dangers of the international situation. They have however reason to apprehend that one certain effect of these speeches is going to be to strengthen the forces of disruption in the country and create an impression that in point of fact British Government have no desire to part with real power at this juncture. The committee regret very much that Mr. Amery should adopt attitude of self-complacency regarding the position in India which was bounds to create wrong impression in Parliament and probably on large audiences in America that the present system of the Government of India commands not only acquiescence of people of this country but also their goodwill.

The Committee have no hesitation in saying that this is a complete travesty of situation in India.

PRISON CELL IS NOT THE PLACE

Rt. Hon. Mr. Sastri on the Present Need

A.P. Madras, April, 27.—"We ask the Congress people to come back and lead us and protect us in this time of great trouble. Their place today as people who hold our confidence is beside us and not in the prison cells" declared the Rt. Hon. Srinivasa Sastri presiding over a public meeting at Mylapore. It was essential, said Mr. Sastri, that the chosen leaders of Congress should be at the helm of affairs if new situations that arise every day and complications not to be foreseen now were to be successfully tackled. The modus operandi for bringing back Congressmen to office, he said, ought to be considered. Either the Government should be asked to release them so that they might consult together and advise the course of action or the Congressmen should be asked to agree to come-back.

As regards Mr. Amery's speech Mr. Sastri said it was all a repetition of old ideas of taking their stand on the "famous August declaration". He however referred to the portion of Mr. Amery's speech where the latter had said that he and the Government of England were profoundly sorry they had not got the assistance of Congress Governments and Mr. Sastri asked "If this is so and if our appeal to congress leaders finds favourable reception and the Congress decides a come back. May we hope that Mr. Amery and the Viceroy will not have any difficulty but will welcome them with open arms?"

BOMBAY RIOTS SITUATION

IMPROVEMENT REPORTED

Bombay, April, 27.

There was an improvement in the riot situation today in that the number of assaults were less. The Major incident of the day occurred at 4-30 this evening near Sonapur cemetery where the police had to open fire to disperse a crowd. When a Muslim funeral procession reached Chandanwai stones and soda water bottles were thrown and the processionists got excited. Police had to open fire to restore order. None was injured. One Police officer had his wrist cut by splinter. Military guards were posted near the burning ground and processionists escorted back to Mohammed Ali Road. More cases of stabbing assaults reported. At Gaiwadi three persons who came to the City only yesterday from America and who were unaware of the riot situation were set upon by hooligans and assaulted with sticks and knives. Earlier another person was stabbed. Total casualty for Sunday upto 2 P. M. is one killed and nine injured. Tram bus and other traffic continue with small number of passengers. Tension and feeling of nervousness is noticeable in affected areas in spite of effective police and military patrolling. Scared-stricken people in the affected areas have begun to leave the City.

It is officially stated two million copies printed and published on the battle of Britain were sold out. Illustrated copies have been printed.

Manorama Road Affair

Decisions Arrived At The Special General Meeting

Bangalore, April, 28.—A special General meeting of the Bangalore City Municipal Council was held this evening to consider the letter forwarded from the Secretary to Government, Law Department, that the resolution of the Municipal Council in the matter of deferring the scheme of continuing B.V. Krishna Iyengar Road to join the Arcot Srinivasachar Street cannot be accepted as the scheme is considered to be necessary for the improvement of the city and the reasons adduced are not convincing. Mr. W.H. Hanumanappa, Municipal President was in the chair. Mr. S. Narayana Rao, the Municipal Commissioner was also present.

The above subject was discussed by the Council for more than four hours.

In the beginning Mr. Razvi moved a resolution saying that the Government order might be recorded and that the work of acquisition might go on. This was seconded by Mr. A. J. Khaleel and was further supported by Mr. Chickellappa. The Congress party members opposed this resolution. When put to vote the resolution of Mr. Razvi was lost by 3 to 12 votes.

Afterwards the Council adopted the following two resolutions. These resolutions were moved by Mr. L.S. Raju leader of the Congress party in the Council and it was duly seconded. When put to vote these two resolutions were carried by a majority. Only Messrs. A. J. Khaleel, Razvi and Chickellappa voted against.

The resolution passed by the Council are as follows:—

Resolution Carried
"This Council while reiterating its former resolution approves of the President's Note submitted to the Government in matter of the scheme of continuing B.V. Krishna Iyengar Road to join the Arcot Srinivasachar Street, and while feeling that the scheme is one of the important items of improvement of the Bangalore City, is nevertheless constrained to resolve that it is necessary to defer the scheme temporarily with a view to examine the same thoroughly in all its aspects and submit a fresh scheme, particularly because:—

1. The price of land has gone up and the acquisition proceedings are certain to be much costlier than the estimate.
2. That provision has not yet been made for the accommodation of those who would be rendered homeless.
3. The prices of building materials have gone up and it will be difficult for the people to rebuild their houses now.
4. No provision has been made in the Budget for payment of compensation.
5. And that to be examined whether the financial resources of the Municipality will permit of a loan being taken and at all as proposed by Government.

The Council accordingly resolves that the Commission shall not take any action from the Government and place at the disposal of the Special Land Acquisition Officer without special provision for the same in the budget and specific sanctioning of the Government.

MYSOREANS SHOULD RESIST IT WITH VIGOUR

The visit of Mr. Green Director of Industries, Madras with the avowed object of sounding the sponsors of the Motor Factory to transfer their present location to the neighbouring presidency, is an attempt that must be checked with all our vigour. Though they have kept mum all these days and never raised their little finger at the Industrial potentialities of the tar-drenched presidency, they have now the temerity to run helter-skelter in order to prevent the neighbouring State to have the factory located here. We have never seen such tempo anywhere. Whether the Madras Government will succeed in their present attempts or not is a question that is for them to answer.

There is a babble already from down the valleys, to see that Mysoreans do not run away with the plum. The Southern India Chamber of Commerce too have filled the picture by passing a well-worded resolution that Madras is more congenial for the Automobile Factory than Bangalore. Looking between the lines of the resolution one can perceive the trepidation of our "Industrial enthusiasts" there that Indian made cars would be running in the streets of Bangalore much to the detriment of their interests. What do they want after all?—that Mr. Walchand Hirachand should come away bag and baggage to Madras and start the Factory there. We commiserate with our friends in Madras for their dazed condition. They have entered the ring too late to carry away the trophy. Mysoreans have already won it and they are going to hold it—come what may.

The starting of this Motor Factory is in the air since several years from the time Sir M. Visvesvaraya sponsored it. Bucketsful of cold refrigerated water have been thrown by all and sundry beginning from the smallest "westerner" in our land to that of the highest "white" Industrialist. They have shuddered at the idea of Chryslers, Packards, Fords, Buicks, Rolls Royces, Austins, and Morris being displaced by pure Indian made cars. All the theories of "saturation point" "consumers' interests" have come out of the fertile brains of those researchers who worship the only deity—the vested interests. When that grand old man Sir M. Visvesvaraya was running the possibilities of this industry no one came forward who was ready help except Mr. Walchand and others of his way of thinking. But now

ALLEGED SUICIDE BY A FAILED STUDENT

Tragedy in Mysore

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, April, 28
It is reported that a youth by name M. C. Shankarappa committed suicide.

Having found that he had not secured a pass in the Intermediate Examination, it is alleged that Shankarappa committed suicide on Saturday night after the publication of results. His body was found hanging to a tree near Lalita Mahal.

The deceased, a 18 years old youth is learnt to be the son of one Mr. Devanna.

It is learnt that a letter addressed to his father in English was found in the pocket of his coat. The letter was a request to his father to excuse him for his action. He had also expressed his regret at not having been useful though the parents loved him much and spent money on his education.

The Nazabad Station Police held an inquest yesterday on the dead body.

when the venture is about to commence persons like Mr. Green begin to turn over the pages of the Railway Guide to fix the journey in the earliest train leaving Madras Central towards Bangalore—the cynosure of Industrial India. And associations like the Southern India Chamber get into hot haste for passing resolutions of the kind that has been reported in newspapers.

They say that they possess Mettur for cheap electrical power and they feel proud that Madras is bristling with investors to take shares in the concern. Mysore too has its investors and cheap electrical power to boot. Who supplied power to Mettur when they were pounding the stones to manufacture concrete? Long after this State started its various Hydro-Electric Schemes Madras Govt. woke up rubbing their eyes. It is comical indeed that they should now come forward with a proposal that their energy is cheaper than Mysore's. Would this tempt Mr. Walchand? We say no. When the whole scheme is well under way we fail to see the hurried attempts of Mr. Green and others to have the factory located amidst their jurisdiction. Mysoreans will have to answer this challenge. We request the Mysore Durbar not to enmesh themselves in this art of coquetry which at all events does not pay them in the long run. Mr. Walchand Hirachand as we know is a tough guy (pardon for the expression) and our interests are safe in his hands.

Patriotic Mysoreans should rally round our Government to see that this Automobile Industry is started right now and without delay. All attempts to befool us must be stoutly resisted. We are sure that the Mysore investors will not let go this splendid opportunity of promoting a National Industry which are long will solve the economic needs of the country.

SADHONA BOSE CHEERS STUDENTS ON THE EVE OF THEIR RESULTS SHE CAME SAW AND CONQUERED

Tumultuous Welcome at the Inter College

Bangalore, April 28

She came to the College and won over the students. Such is her spell. Mrs. Sadhona Bose has a pull with the students. They long for her art as they long for the films. If the film world is affluent it is because of our students' generosity. They crowd the box office whenever they hear of Sadhona Bose, Lila Desai or Leela Chitnis. They would rather forego their evening lunch—to occupy strategic positions for their critical onslaught.

On the eve of the publication of results Sadhona Bose cheered them. She said that Art is the mission of life. Why not in this dull dreary listless world?

Bangalore students have a way of pleasing their guests of honour. They had in their midst Baburao Patel, Shanta Apte and many others.

Wearing a beautiful georgette she came dancing to the platform amidst deafening cheers. Her artistic movements radiated a spell of her own.

This is what she said:—

You have asked me to speak a few words and I may as well begin by quoting the translation in English of the first sloka "Abhinaya Darpan." "We bow to the great Siva the God of Dance whose body is the Universe, whose voice is the entire language, whose costume is the moon and the stars." From this we find that according to the message of our Lord that Dance art is Universal.

As you have so kindly requested me to speak, I am sure you want to know what my aim and object or mission is. Here I will have to quote the great Tagore "Art is the expression of the Universal through the individual." So we cannot delete individuality from any form of art. I have often been questioned why I do not belong to any particular school of dance. As you know we have schools, Bharat Natyam, Kathakali, Manipuri, and Kathak. An ideal has always been in me a new form that combines the best elements of different dances though I do not know whether I shall ever be able to achieve my aspirations.

The Indian dance is limitless and too vast to be found for any body to master one's life time. In my opinion if the Manipuri style is blended with the Bharat Natyam, we shall have a perfect school.

The different schools of styles of which I have spoken make up the backbone of dancing. They are the grammar and the syntax of which the language of our dance is born. But they come from another and if we love and work in an accelerated, find inspiration from it shall have to add to it creative abilities.

Let it not be misunderstood that this will mean the destruction of the purity of technique but it must be realised that dance is only perfect when technique is not blatantly visible. It must find its place in the creative genius of the artist. In this connection I would like to mention that this is particularly important in the case of modern stage presentations. The theory of Dance is so vast in India that it would require the research of a life time to evolve a new classical school, but if that is the objective there does not seem to be any other way then by adding the creative touch to the technique which is the foundation of the art. Of course, this is only my humble opinion of one who is still but a student of the Dance.

K. D. Karia Convicted

Karia an old K. D. of Kanne-gowdan Koppal was convicted and sentenced yesterday to 18 months rigorous imprisonment by Mr. N. Madhava Rao, City Magistrate, Mysore.

The charge against him was that he attempted to commit theft at the residence of one Sri-mati Thimmamma.

Letter To The Editor

THE MANORAMA ROAD

To The Editor,
"Daily News"
Bangalore.Dear Sir,
I fail to understand the logic of your main leader of the 25th instant under the heading "Manorama Road." I am afraid you have come to wrong conclusions which will be apparent from my explanation. Should you be convinced will you please review your leader in your next issue?1. The President's note and the speeches of most of the Councilors unambiguously prove that the Council in toto feel the necessity for this road and are anxious to have it.2. This question was on the anvil of the previous Council for nearly four years without any clear cut programme. Conflicting and unworkable resolutions were passed at each Council until the final disposal became a legacy to the present Council, which is barely three months in existence.3. The scheme has many defects and if rushed through in the present state the intention with which this is undertaken will be frustrated apart from financial loss and untold sufferings to the poor.4. The desire of the Council is only to get some breathing time to examine the financial implication and so mould the working of the scheme to get the maximum benefit with the minimum inconvenience to those whose properties are to be acquired.5. I am afraid you voice a wrong note in stating that the dissenting note goes to satisfy the ratepayers which is not the case as you may have already come to know.6. The financial position of the Municipality is such that not three lakhs but even a few thousands would upset everything at present.In conclusion the present Council is not out to hitting stunts or big displays. Our ambition is to provide necessities for decent healthy normal life before even attempting at the beautification of the City. We leave the latter to those who

Death-Roll In Bombay

STABBING TAKES A HEAVY TOLL

BOMBAY CITY IN THE GRIPS OF A WORST FURY

COMMUNAL TROUBLE ALL OVER THE LAND

Bombay, April 28

Six persons were killed and a dozen persons were injured as a result of stabbing and stray bullets up to 10 p.m. today. Total casualty is 14 dead and 140 injured since the outbreak of the communal disturbances. The Police so far have arrested nearly 2,000 persons in connection with the riots. One disconcerting feature of today's incidents is that the disturbances have spread to the labour area for the first time. Hindu and Muslim workers in the mill situated on the Gorabdhve Road off Byculla staged a pitched battle wherein sticks and stones and bricks were used. At 5-30 p.m. Hindu and Muslim workers of another mill on their way home fought among themselves. Police rushed to the scene and arrested 10 persons and brought the situation under control for the moment, but disturbance broke out again on Rey Road when one man was stabbed who later died in the hospital and two others were injured by stone throwing. Yet a third flare up occurred a little later at Dakurabhuwadi. Police arrived on the scene and arrested a person. While they were searching the place the body of a man stabbed to death was recovered from a wood depot on Rey Road. Many other cases of stabbing and assault occurred between noon and 6 p.m. in different parts of the City. Nulbazar was the scene of considerable commotion and excitement. At 3 p.m. three persons were stabbed here and one of the victims later died in the hospital. Half an hour later a fourth man was stabbed in the same locality and he also died later in the hospital. About the same time at Doctor Street, a little distance away from Nulbazar, a man was stabbed and dropped down dead. Cases of stabbing were also reported from Duncan Road Pirkhan and Golpitha.

In view of the happenings in Gorabdhve Road curfew is being more rigorously enforced in Byculla area tonight that has been the case hitherto.

COMMUNAL FURY IN CAWNPORE ALSO

Police Open Fire

A. P. Cawnpore, April 28
The following communique has been issued by the District Magistrate:

"I regret to announce that outbreak of communal rioting has occurred today about noon on Meston Road and Moulganj, Cawnpore City. This was quickly quelled by the Police who however were forced to open fire. After the first outbreak three cases of stray assault took place.

In all 19 casualties have been reported whereof 15 persons have been admitted to the hospital. Full riot scheme has been enforced and an order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C. including curfew from 7 P. M. to 5-30 A. M. has been promulgated. The public are warned if any further trouble occurs it may be necessary to extend hours of curfew and impose additional police on city the cost whereof will have to be met by the inhabitants. All responsible people of Cawnpore are earnestly requested to do all in their power at once to restore complete order."

About 20 persons were arrested today in connection with the riots and for breach of the curfew order. Local mills which worked day shift remained closed during the night. Additional police consisting of a hundred constables and officers have been requisitioned from an out-station. Authorities are taking stringent measures and have brought the situation under control.

COMMUNAL FURY IN PATNA

Patna, April 28

One boy is reported to have been killed in stray assaults at Bihar Sharif this afternoon following recrudescence of communal incidents.

An order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C. has been promulgated and an Additional Superintendent of Police has been sent from here with an armed force of 70. The District Magistrate of Patna proceeded to the spot this morning and is still there watching situation.

SIR SAPRU'S STATEMENT

No Inspiration From Gandhiji

Allahabad, April, 29

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Chairman of the Bombay Leaders' Conference in the course of a statement says: "I was most reluctant hitherto to say publicly that for nearly two months before the Conference met in Bombay I did all I could in my individual capacity to bring Gandhiji—Jinnah together. Even now I should not like to disclose without their permission anything of the correspondence that passed between them and me. All I can say is I have not been unmindful of the need for communal settlement.

Sir Sapru says "In the ordinary circumstances I should not have taken notice of what Mr. Jinnah said about me or the Conference over which I presided in Bombay and I should certainly not have followed his example of lowering personalities. Let me however say I am not aware of any kind of wire-pullers in the Congress or non-Congress and during my long public life I have never known any body laying any kind of trap. I am surprised Mr. Amery should have referred to what Mr. Jinnah said about wire-pullers having laid trap for me."

Sir Sapru emphasises that not a word passed between him and Gandhiji or any other Congress leader either in correspondence or in personal conversations in regard to the idea of holding Bombay conference or to the character of resolution to be passed by the conference. On the contrary he had made it a condition precedent to his accepting chairmanship of the conference that no communal issue should be raised and he was glad to say persons like Dr. Moonjee and Mr. Savarkar played the game and accepted the resolution in the spirit it was conceived.

Referring to Col. Amery's appeal not to cease in our efforts to concentrate bringing contending parties together or on building up a strong centre party Sir Sapru says, I believe that Mr. Amery's indiscreet and unfortunate speeches on this subject have done worst service to us when he himself has done nothing to promote unity among the contending elements in India.

As regards our continuing these efforts I shall be very glad if those in India who parrot-like repeat Mr. Amery's spurious sentiments will do something to show that they are in earnest about it.

As regards the formation of a centre party Sir Sapru says that he does not see any prospect of such a party coming into existence or functioning effectively so long as the present policy of Mr. Amery and the Government of India as maintained.

TERMINABLE STERLING DEBT Repatriate Ordered

(Associated Press of India)

NEW DELHI, April 28

Operations connected with the repatriation of India's terminable sterling debt announced on 8th February, 1941, has been virtually completed, states a Press Communique.

The total face value of outstanding terminable loans on 8th February, 1941, was approximately £84 million and the market value a little over £89 million. Of this stock of face value about £56.77 million has been surrendered and cancelled under United Kingdom yesting order. This probably includes some stock surrendered by non-resident holders in exercise of option given to them but separate futures are not available. The face value of stock surrendered but not yet cancelled is £2 million. Total sterling payment made to holders amounts to £62 million (Rs. 82-2/3 crores) and a further payment of £3 million or Rs. 4 crores will perhaps have to be made. As regards Indian order of Rs. 11.27 crores (£8.45 million) of the stock cancelled Rs. 10.23 crores will, it is expected to be paid for in the same manner. NAGPUR IS IN TROUBLE Public Appeal Issued

A. P.

Nagpur, April 28

A public appeal signed by the District Magistrate and the leaders of the Congress, the Hindu Sabha and the Muslim League, has been issued this evening asking the people not to do anything which may disturb tranquility in Nagpur.

The appeal has been occasioned by some factional fights in Nagpur during the past few days.

The appeal further assures the public that in the event of any signs of disturbances the police will take all measures to keep 'bandobast'.

tence or functioning effectively so long as the present policy of Mr. Amery and the Government of India as maintained.

"Alert" was sounded by the leaders of the Hindu community last night when Sjt. Shyama Prasad Mukherji, M. S. Aney, Sardar Shant Singh of Layallpur addressed a mass gathering of Hindus in the Parshottamadas Park in connection with the Anti Pakistan Day celebrations. Mr. Aney presided. Dr. Mukherji referred to the Anglo Muslim conspiracy in Bengal in order to keep down Hindu rights and the indication of the Pakistan Raj could be seen during dacca riots. He regretted the inferiority complex among Hindus when they said unless such and such did not join they would not win Swaraj. Let Hindus take a noble part in the race for liberty. Referring to the fact that Hindus nowhere in India had any voice at present, he urged the Hindus to rally round the political organisation which stood for the integrity of India. Mr. Prakash Narain Sapru in a spirited speech said that he will never let India be split up. He hoped that post war reconstruction will build up a new order in India in which all would be able to work harmoniously. Sardar Shant Singh in a fighting speech declared that Sikhs would never permit the creation of Pakistan. Even though they are 14 percent of the population in Punjab, but by their organisation self sacrifice they all maintain the integrity of India. Large number of police were posted in and around the park as there was some tension in the city today.

AGAIN
THE WOEFUL TALE

The Intermediate examination results have been mounted up in full view of so large a circle of students that it provides a thrilling hardly annual much to the detestation of those whose numbers have been plucked—why once sometimes thrice. The stagnation of so many failures who refuse to pass the flood-gates is a thing that has to be tackled with vision and foresight. Between 1286 and 1388 all are plucked as hopelessly bad. It is surprising indeed that our young aspirants have to stop staring at the missing numbers. What have they done beyond not getting a few numbers to add to their minimum for obtaining the charter to study further. We sympathise with the lot of those to whom the Intermediate has become a terrorized hurdle—a break-neck venture. It is all very well to dub these failures as a gang with immature mental advancement. No doubt it is a pet theory that immature brains never move beyond the "intelligent" border, but it is the duty of pedagogues to see that the boys get up the ladder for reaching the maximum level of intellectual advancement.

More than 70 per cent of the "Inter" boys have been made to eat the humble pie. No doubt the University Board have done their duty by declaring who wins and who has not, but we are constrained to say that their duty has not ended there. Boys who know where Sollum is and who have mastered all the intricacies of the strategic positions on the Grecian front have been maimed by this "inter" hurdle and the wonder of it is that they fail in the King's English! What a tragedy for the young impressionable minds. We wonder whether their receptivity is unsound or they lack in the vigour of serious study. With the experience we have of written examinations we feel that the slaughter of so many students in the prime of their collegiate career is a waste of human endeavour.

We refrain from being harsh but at the same time we are compelled to draw the University's attention to this year's percentage which is abnormally low. "Intermediate College compares with what we call in the Education Department 'Incompetent Middle School'" so said our witty Second Member. True to his word the examinations have also to grow to that appellation. We are sorry that so many young students have to dash their heads in this annual hurdle—not that they are poor in intelligence but poor indeed in

Deputation

Some of the villagers of Sakrepatna waited on a deputation the eyes of those who sit across the table for moderating their marks.

Intermediate Examination has become the wailing wall of so many bright boys. The authorities should open their eyes wide to detect where the fault lies. If it is expedient to revise the whole scheme in its entirety we totally agree with the view. Something must be done to see that the result barometer shows the 50 per cent indication. It will be futile to waste the hard earned money on a hurdle that breaks one's necks for no fault. There is something wrong somewhere and it is the duty of those who hold the torch of guidance to flash it generously on those unfortunate students who grope in the dark. This woeful tale should end.

on Mr. Charles Naronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, on Saturday and represented to him that the filling of the drinking water pond of their village has caused acute difficulty for water. They also told that on account of the late rainfall all the wells in the village had dried up and so requested the Deputy Commissioner to stop the work of the filling of the pond which is in progress. The Deputy Commissioner while sympathising with the difficulties of the villagers expressed that the Government had instructed the filling of the tank with a view to improve the health of the village which is very badly suffering from Malaria and adequate steps would be taken to supply water with enough water by means of a bore well. The Deputy Commissioner stated that he could not intervene in the stopping of the work as it has been sanctioned by the Government.

Mr. Srinivasiya, leader of the Deputation thanked the Deputy Commissioner for his kind and patient hearing and sympathetic reply and withdrew. The matter of the water scarcity of Sakrepatna has now been intimated to Sir Mirza Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore, by wire to his Ootacamund address.

C. P. C. BUS SERVICE CONDUCTORS' STRIKE

—:—:—

Negotiations Break Down

Chikmagalur, April, 28
It is really unfortunate that the negotiations between the bus conductors of the Chikmagalur Public Conveyance Company which is managed by the Mangalore C. P. C. Company and the management has broken down. After the interview with the District Superintendent of Police, the conductors deputed Mr. C. V. Druva, Secretary of the District Congress Committee to go and see the Manager of the company on their behalf. Mr. C. V. Druva was told by the manager that the conductors should give an unconditional apology for their strike and only after that the conductors would be taken to work.

The Manager it appears told the Congress Secretary that the question of enhancement of the salary and allowances and other things would be considered later. When this matter was reported by Mr. C. V. Druva, the conductors are stated to have decided that as they have not committed any mistake, they could not give the unconditional apology as required by the management. So the approach that was going on till now came to a close. Mr. C. V. Druva today has submitted a detailed note on the strike situation to the Labour Commissioner to the Government of Mysore, and to the Deputy Commissioner of Kadur District. In his letter Mr. C. V. Druva has stated that if a settlement is not arrived before the 4th May 1941, he would commence fasting in this connection. It is understood a letter to this effect was sent yesterday by Mr. C. V. Druva to the management of the concern which they refused to take it as a result of which the letter was returned.

Further developments are awaited.

"The Civil and Military Gazette" of Lahore, dated April 23, 1941, has reported the filming of the Punjab Assembly in session on April 22, as follows:
The main interest in the proceedings of the Punjab Legislative Assembly on Tuesday was the filming of the House for cinema purposes.

The members turned up in their best attire and many colourful "turrahs" were in evidence. Begum Shah Nawaz wore a beautiful sari with a broad silver border, but the other women member present in the House; Begum Rashida Latif Baji, came in her usual black veil.

There was a record attendance and from the start of the proceedings till powerful reflectors were turned on the House and the cameras started rolling, the members remained more concerned with their dress than with the transaction of business. There was so much conversation that the Speaker had to shout for order several times and he remarked that he had never heard such noise in the House.

When the actual film was being taken there was a race between members to secure possession of the House. In order of members used to address the House. Opportunity was provided for some of the members to speak when the film was being taken.

"The Tribune" of Lahore dated April 23, 1941, reported the same incident as follows:

"The Punjab Chamber wore an unusual appearance this (April 22) morning. Movie cameras and visitors galleries. The members were seen in their best dress. They were to be filmed by cameramen as they proceeded to their day's business. A large number of members were present in the House. Many who seldom seen in their seats during the early hours were conspicuous by their presence. "Turrahs" were more prominent and many back-benchers, generally come in their characteristic rural attire, came dressed in Achkans; many of them were seen busy with their "turrahs" stand erect the member was seen combing his "pattas" (long hair) with help of the glass in his spectacles.

THE FIRST MYSORE HINDU MAHA SABHA CONFERENCE

Prof. Bhopatkar's Stirring Appeal

VEER SAVARKAR'S MESSAGE

(From Our Correspondent)

Shimoga, April 27
Prof. Bhopatkar and Mr. Hardikar Manjappa arrived yesterday evening in connection with the First Session of Mysore State Hindu Maha Sabha.

Procession
Prof. Bhopatkar and Mr. Manjappa were taken round in procession today in the morning in a well decorated chariot pulled by two bullocks. All through the procession the enthusiastic residents of Shimoga offered flower garlands to them. A well disciplined volunteer band of the Hindu Mahasabha in uniform along the procession controlling the crowd. The beautifully decorated chariot with band and Nagaswaram through the important streets of the town.

Flag Hoisting
After the procession is over flag hoisting ceremony took place near the Korpalaiah's bungalow. Prof. Bhopatkar hoisted the National Flag while Mr. Hardikar Manjappa hoisted the State Flag.

Open Session
In the evening the open session began with prayer and song Vandemataram. Mr. Manjappa Chairman of Reception Committee in the presence of a short address welcomed the guests, delegates and members.

Prof. Bhopatkar addressed the gathering on the fundamental principles of the Hindu Mahasabha and declared open the session for business.

DR. BHOPATKAR'S ADDRESS
While opening the proceedings of the Mysore State First Session Conference held at Shimoga on Sunday 27th April at 6 p.m. on the spacious grounds of the Korpalaiah's bungalow, Prof. L. B. Bhopatkar, U.S., Vice-President of the India Hindu Mahasabha, expressed his deep sense of indebtedness to the organisers of the Conference for the high regard done to him in inviting him to initiate the proceedings and then handsomely compensated them in having courageously come out in the open as well as with a view to create a consolidated Hindu public opinion in regard to problems, both inside and outside the Mysore State.

He then explained to the audience some of the fundamental principles which actuated the Hindu Mahasabha in so far as its policy and programme were concerned. The first principle was not any the least, that no community, party or group in the country, though the Mahasabha reserved itself the right to differ from the majority in the larger interests of the nation it deemed it was either necessary or desirable. The second principle was that the Mahasabha was for full and complete independence and India's rightful place in the comity of the free world as the free people of the world as the complete goal of her political struggle, though as an immediate objective it would be content with being an equal partner in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The third principle which animated the Hindu Mahasabha was the unity and indivisibility of Hindustan as a nation and its staunch opposition to any attempt to cut it up into parcels. It condemned the Pakistan movement as a highly mischievous propaganda, pregnant with grave menace to the peace and tranquility of the country at large. In the Mahasabha's opinion Pakistan would spell not only as a source of continual irritation between the two great communities of India, but also the perpetuation of foreign domination here. Mr. Bhopatkar hoped that wiser counsels would prevail with the sister Muslim Community and would induce it to abandon this ruinous agitation.

The fourth principle was that full and absolute guarantee of the Indian States should be given to all minorities in so far as their religion, culture, traditions, language and other rights of citizenship were concerned. But in the walks of public life equity and equality should be the guiding principles and no preferential treatment should be accorded to them, as any preferential treatment to minorities meant in the last analysis the deprivation of the legitimate rights and privileges of the majority. In this behalf the principles laid down by the League of Nations in respect of the minorities would prove of great service to India.

The fifth principle was that if India really wished to rise to the full stature of its nationhood and to take her proper place in the scale of nations, its future constitution must be broad based upon the principles of nationalism and democracy. Any deviation from these principles would necessarily result in ill-will and heart-burning and the consequent stagnation of all political progress.

The sixth principle was the establishment of cordial relations between British India and the Indian States. The Mahasabha looked upon the Indian States as the relics of India's past glory and power, and as the future centres of political and economic consolidation of India. Mr. Bhopatkar complimented the Mysore State as one of the most progressive States in India and expressed the hope that the rate of progress, educational and industrial, would be maintained in the future. He cautioned the Mysore Durbar and the subject peoples in the Mysore State against the mischievous propaganda carried on in the State by some interested persons in looking upon rank outsiders as their leaders in preference to His Highness the Maharaja Sahab. In his opinion the Maharajasabab was the most natural and legitimate leader and ruler of all his subject-peoples, whether Hindu, Muslim or Christian. He exhorted all the Hindus in the State to stand by the Maharaja through thick and thin, and to wholeheartedly support him in all his actions and activities conducive to public weal and prosperity.

Mr. Bhopatkar said that after a careful perusal and study of the State Constitution he could not get over the feeling that in several respects injustice had been done to the Hindus of the State and the Durbar would see their way to right the wrongs. He exhorted the Hindus of the State to bear in mind that right would not be worth even a moment's purchase unless it was backed up by might, and, therefore, to get themselves military-minded, the earlier, the better.

It was really deplorable that while the Hindus of the State constituted 94 per cent of the total population, the police and the military of the State should have been disproportionately manned by other communities. He called upon the Hindu Youth in the State to look upon this situation squarely in the face and to agitate for more effective power and importance in the police and the military of the State.

In conclusion, Mr. Bhopatkar requested the Hindus of the State to rally round the banner of the Hindu Mahasabha and to bring about solidarity amongst themselves, let "Educate, Organize and Agitate" be the slogan of the Hindus, and as sure as day follows night the Hindus of the State were bound to come by their own and be a happy, prosperous and self-respecting community in the State.

Mr. Hardikar Manjappa President of the Conference then addressed the gathering.

Swatantrya Vir Savarkar's message wishing the Conference success was then read by Mr. Bhooapalam Chandrasekharaiah.

Swatantrya Veer B. Savarkar's Message

"Your letter dated the 14th instant as well as a copy of the programme of the first Mysore State Hindu Sabha session to hand. Thank you for the same. I am desirous by Swatantrya Veer Savarkar, the President of the Hindu Mahasabha to write to you to the following effect:-

(1) The President Veer Savarkarji was glad to note that you are holding a Mysore State Hindu Sabha Session at Shimoga.

He is quite sure that under the able lead and guidance of Dharmaveer L. B. Bhopatkar and Sjt. Hardikar Manjappa, the Session will prove fruitful in reaching results.

(2) The chief aim of the Mysore State Hindu Sabha must be to consolidate and strengthen the Hindu power in the Hindu State and to stand by the Maharaja and the Hindu State weal and woe extending the most Loyal and patriotic support to them in defending the price and the State against any subversive activities carried on by any non-Hindu forces or by the Hindu dupes of the Pseudo-Nationalistic organization who bow their head low before the most tyrannical Moslem States but are always threatening hostilities even against the most progressive Hindu States and would only bless their stars if but the Hindu State are wiped out altogether from the Indian map.

(3) But the Hindusabhaits want to see the Hindu States grow in strength to strength as citadels of organized Hindu powers, administrative experience and capacity and well

SIR CHIMANLAL SETALVAD

Bangalore, April 29
Sir Chimanlal Setalvad, Liberal leader of Bombay arrived here last evening from Bombay. At the City Railway Station Rajasevaprakashta B. T. Keshava Iyengar, Chief Secretary to Government of Mysore received the guest. He is staying at the Kumara Park as State guest. He is expected to stay here for five days. During his stay he will visit some of the important places in the State. He will also visit Mysore and Krishnarajasaagar.

armed and well trained Hindu Military camps.

This should be in short, the leading objective and the policy of the State Hindu Sabha in Hindu States throughout India.

(4) So far as Mysore State is concerned, it is fortunately one of the progressive Hindu States-educationally and industrially.

But your session should emphasize the point that Mysore State must develop its military strength and under these war circumstances should increase and equip land, sea and aerial forces to an up-to-date efficiency and should be ready to send these efficient forces to the war-zones in all parts of the world in aid of the forces of British Government. Offering the aid of the State forces to the British Government under our present circumstances is an act of an inevitable patriotic duty as well as beneficial policy. In doing so, every Hindu State helps none else in the main but the pan-Hindu cause.

(5) One other important point the President wants to emphasize is that the leading plank of your grievances in Mysore State quoting facts and figures from authenticated Government statistics and other sources showing how the Hindus are deprived of their legitimate proportion in the army and how the Moslem encroachment is threatening Hindu rights and Hindu position in all branches of the state services, political and military, revenue and such other departments. How even the civic rights of the Hindus are suffering at the hands of the Moslems brethren in the state. You should publish a handy booklet detailing out these well authenticated facts for the use of general Hindu public all over India.

This message which the President of Hindu Mahasabha likes to be read out in the session and suggests to you that its copies should be printed and distributed and broadcasted as widely as possible.

SAPRU CONFERENCE TO MEET IN POONA

Suggestion of Conference of All Premiers Including Congress Premiers

COME LIGHT THROWN ON SAPRU-GANDHI CORRESPONDENCE

Question of Gandhiji Meeting Mr. Jinnah—Stipulated Conditions

(From our correspondent)
NEW DELHI, April 30
Understand that the Sapru conference will meet in Poona some time in July. In the meantime efforts will be made to bring more representative support for the Bombay resolution to organise a country-wide campaign—in particular an attempt will be made to secure support of all Provincial Ministers now functioning.

Conference of All Premiers
At the Allahabad meeting a suggestion was considered that the Viceroy should be asked to call a Conference of all Premiers including the Congress Ex-premiers now in jail but the question was postponed for the present. It was revealed by Sir Sapru at the Allahabad meeting that according to the letter addressed by Sir Sikander to a common friend now in Sir Sapru's possession the Punjab Premier expressed himself very willing to cooperate with Sir Sapru in any attempt that he might take to bring about a settlement. It appears that Sir Sapru met Mr. Fazlul Huq also last month and that the Bengal Premier expressed great concern about the increasing deterioration in relations between Hindus & Muslims and was anxious something should be done to put an end to these disputes. Mr. Fazlul Huq asked Sir Sapru to suggest to the Viceroy that he should call a Conference of Congress and Muslim League and others to bring about a settlement.

Gandhi-Sapru Correspondence
Some details are now available of the correspondence which passed between Sir Sapru, Mahatma Gandhi and Mr. Jinnah.
It appears that after regarding Sir Sapru's statement last year
Gandhiji himself wrote to Sir Sapru saying he wanted very much to meet Mr. Jinnah but the latter seemed unwilling as he was probably consolidating his position both against the Hindus and the Rulers. Mahatma Gandhi asked Sir Sapru why if he had faith he did not himself see Mr.

Jinnah without being asked by anybody. Sir Sapru is reported to have again urged on Gandhiji in his reply that he should meet
Mr. Jinnah.

Mr. Jinnah's Conditions
In another letter Gandhiji said that Mr. Jinnah would expect him (Gandhi) to see him as a Hindu on behalf of the Hindus and that he could not assume that role. Gandhiji asked Sir Sapru to pursue the subject in his own style with whomsoever he thought fit. Sir Sapru then wrote to Mr. Jinnah who replied saying that he was not reluctant to see Mahatma Gandhi or any other Hindu leader on behalf of the Hindu community and that he was ready and willing to see Gandhiji or any other Hindu leader on behalf of the Hindu community. On receiving a copy of this letter Mahatma Gandhi wrote to Sir Sapru that he could not go to Mr. Jinnah "on behalf of the Hindu community". It will be seen from this correspondence who is really standing in the way of unity talks for achieving a settlement, for Mr.
Jinnah has always been refusing even to meet Mahatma Gandhi unless the latter is prepared to assume the role that he comes "on behalf of the Hindu community."

HINDU MAHA SABHA CONFERENCE

Thanks to the enthusiasm of a few ardent Hindu Maha Sabha members of Shimoga, the First Mysore Hindu Maha Sabha Conference was organised and from the report that is to hand we find it has been an unqualified success. Professor Bhopatkhar who opened the Conference made a highly suggestive speech in which he expounded the policies and principles of the Hindu Maha Sabha movement. We need not go over all the phases of the Hindu Maha Sabha movement. Our readers know what it stands for. It is not opposed, to any institution, party or community in the country though it differs from them in policy and programme. It stands for full and complete independence and an Indian's rightful place in the comity of the free nations of the world as the ultimate goal of the political struggle though as an immediate objective it would be content with being an equal partner in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

There is a very vital principle for which the Hindu Maha Sabha stands. And that is the unity and individuality of Hindustan as a Nation and its staunch opposition to any attempt to cut it up into parcels. Holding to this principle the Hindu Maha Sabha condemns the Pakistan movement as a highly mischievous one resulting in grave menace to the peace and tranquillity of the country. It is of the opinion that Pakistan means the perpetuation of foreign domination. Mr. Bhopatkhar hopes that wise counsels will prevail with the Muslim community and they would abandon the Pakistan idea.

We being the people of an Indian State highly appreciate the principle for which Hindu Maha Sabha stands, viz, full and absolute guarantee of the Indian States together with safeguards for minorities in respect of religion, culture, traditions, language and other rights of citizen ship. There need be no preferential treatment to minorities in other respects. We heartily agree with this principle. Coupled with this principle of guarantee of Indian States the Hindu Maha Sabha stands for the principle of nationalism and democracy. Though the Indian States are the relics of India's past glory, they have to move with time and introduce democratic forms of Government. We hope the Conference would pass a resolution embodying the above principles as far as the constitution of the State is concerned.

We are glad to note the appreciation was in which Prof. Bhopatkhar has spoken of Mysore and its Mahaja. His call to the people to stand by the Mahaja through thick and thin is to be appreciated very much. As a matter of fact the people of the State without any distinction of caste, creed or community adore their Mahaja and in a corresponding degree the Mahaja loves his people. This is a happy state of affairs which is unique to Mysore.

Mr. Bhopatkhar made a reference to the percentage of Hindus in the Police and the Military services of the State. He advised the Hindus to get themselves military minded. Perhaps Hindus as a whole are not military minded in Mysore also. But this mildness should not degenerate into cowardice. And when the time comes for defending themselves against injustice, Hindus ought to be prepared for it. They should have training for the purpose. As long as violence is not ruled out from the affairs of the world there is a certain amount of necessity for people to be trained in the military fashion. Unless Hindus fall in line with the modern communities of the world and steel themselves with modern methods of offence and defence there is every reason to fear the Hindus would be reduced to the position of hewers of wood and drawers of water to stronger and better organised races. The Hindus have to consolidate and strengthen themselves as a community. They should give up their panicky mindedness in times of trouble. They should summon up courage and stand on all fours against odds. It is the disunity of the Hindu Community that has reduced them to the position in which they are today. The Hindu Society requires to be organised in conformity with the modern conditions of life. Old and effete ideas and customs should be given up. And anything that is calculated to separate one Hindu from another should be abandoned. India can never become a nation unless Hindus organise themselves and knit themselves into a strong community. A strong Hindu community is a blessing not only to Hindus but also to Muslims, Sikhs and other communities in India. Pakistan or no Pakistan we want a free and independent India in which strong Hindus and strong Muslims live like brothers protecting the common home-land from invaders. This is the objective and the goal of the Hindu Maha Sabha. We hope the conveners of the Conference at Shimoga will bear in mind the true purpose of the Conference and devise ways and means to further it. We congratulate those who are responsible for the Conference on the brilliant success they have achieved.

It is officially announced that there will be an open debate in the House of Commons on the war situation, next week. Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, may also take this opportunity of making a statement on his recent visit to the Middle East.

"IRAQ MERELY CARRYING OUT HER DUTY"

Iraqi Press View On Landing Of British Forces

(By Cable) London 'The Times' Baghdad correspondent cabled on April 23rd:—The political situation in Iraq remains quiet. The local press emphasizes that by permitting British troops to pass through the country, Iraq is merely carrying out her duty under the provisions of the Anglo-Iraq Treaty, and their presence here does not imply the slightest affront to the honour or national sovereignty of a completely independent country.

The Government required all holders of United States or Canadian Dollars to offer them within the limit of fourteen days.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

WAR SITUATION—SOARING UP OF PRICES—COMMUNAL DISTURBANCES IN INDIA—GANDHIJI AND CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE EXAMINATION RESULTS—BYE ELECTION SUCCESS.

Since I wrote last, much water has flowed below the bridge. The war situation has been worsening. Yugoslavia capitulated and Greece is in an unenviable position. All the same, Mr. Churchill, British Premier, has been instilling courage in the minds of his people. He is confident of the ultimate victory.

Correspondingly, the situation in India has been deteriorating. The uncertainty of the atmosphere and the political stalemate have weakened people's nerves. The price of food-stuffs has been soaring high. Unless Governments take prompt and immediate steps to regulate and control the markets, distress is bound to increase. A friend of mine who had been to some interior parts of the neighbouring Presidency tells me that in some villages rice is sold at 3 seers per Rupee. This is really an unsatisfactory state of affairs. I hope in Mysore, the Government and public men would watch the situation carefully and devise measures to see that the food stuffs are made available at reasonable price to people.

Added to the distress of the soaring up of prices of foodstuffs, the communal disturbances in several prominent Northern Indian Cities have added to our anxiety. It is a pity that these disturbances have been spoiling the Indian atmosphere. In spite of so much law and order that there should be so much bloodshed and loss of life speaks volumes about the acuteness of the problem. The more we think of it, the earlier we come to the conclusion that it is only a Swaraj Government that can restore communal harmony. As long as there is a third power, the tendency for such disturbances will always get a fillip. If British Government are really anxious to help India, they should forthwith settle the political problem.

Mr. Amery's statements as ever have been creating greater difficulties in India. Even the Liberals have felt that Mr. Amery is not sincere and is not playing the game. As is natural for an Englishman he is more engrossed with the war situation in Britain than the political problem in India. Meanwhile, Gandhiji has made it crystal clear that he is not going to let the individual civil disobedience movement unless Government permit him to use his propaganda of non-violence.

Looking a bit closely at the communal situation in India today, it is open for one to see that these disturbances have been instigated by the particularised movement. Because the movement that the moment it bursts out in any part of the movement in that particular locality it is to what effect these communal disturbances produce on Gandhiji's mind.

In Mysore, we find a change in weather, or three showers of rain occurred though the weather not sufficiently cooled. People from outside who afford, have been crowding Bangalore to enjoy the weather. We find a new Gujarati already in Bangalore. The Lalbag is practically closed in the evenings.

The results of some examinations have already been published. The failed students find it very hard to bear failure. One or two have committed suicide. People have much sympathy for students who have not been successful. What can they do? The miserable examination system works like a blind slaughter machine moves down hopeless. It is a terrible wrong. We cannot ignore this vital problem. I hope the young men who have not been blessed with success will bear their calamity in good cheer and use their energy in a manner profitable to themselves and to those who are dear and dear to them.

There is not much to be noted in the political situation in the State, excepting the success of Mr. H. B. Gowda in the bye-election to the Assembly. It is a success which, I feel, he himself is proud. It may be some consolation to him that something got in. It is futile to discuss that transpired behind the scenes. It is better silent ponder over than waste words.

OUR "BURKES" AND "PITTS" OF THE UNIVERSITY

MYSORE STUDENTS' CENTRAL COMMITTEE

President's Statement

Bangalore, April, 30.
Mr. Mir Mohammed Hussain the President of the Mysore University Students' Central Committee has issued the following statement:-

Mysore State has well been complimented as "The Model State". She is not only a successful originator of novel things and novel ideas. The idea of having a University Settlement is the first of its kind in India. "The Mysore University Students' Central Committee" will be a happy addition to the existing activities of the people.

Our learned Vice-Chancellor Hajj Ali Rahmatulla N.S. Subba Rao, M.A., (Cantab), Bar-at-law, was kind enough to inaugurate the Mysore University Students' Central Committee on the 19th of October, 1940.

Mysore University can boast of several democratic institutions managed by students. The Mysore University Students' Central Committee is one of them. It is a sort of federation formed not only to serve the interests of a particular institution, but also to render all possible help in co-ordinating the various activities of the University Institutions in the State. This Committee consists of student-office-bearers of all the Unions and Associations of the University. Its representative character and its purpose of serving as the mouthpiece of the University Students cannot be doubted as its members come only from elected bodies.

As the students of the University engage themselves in specialisation of various branches of study, a need was keenly felt for a magazine which would serve as a forum of discussion for the student community of the University. Therefore the Committee decided to publish a half-yearly magazine and enable the University Students to place before the country their share of contribution towards the betterment of society. The "Flag Days" on 6th and 7th November 1940 conducted for the magazine fund had a ready response. Our grateful thanks are due to the students and the public for their co-operation in making it a grand success. Our thanks are also due to the University authorities for having graciously accepted the idea of a "University Students' Magazine".

The student getting out of the portals of the University is facing himself to practical life. It is the endeavour of this Committee to solve this problem as far as possible by co-ordinating the three elements, namely, the Government, the parents and the students, in a body called the "University Students' Council". Also, this Committee tries to organise the

WHY "HITLER HAS CHANGED HIS TONE"

Arabic Press Comment

(By Cable) Cairo
Al Dastour, discussing Hitler's warning to the Germans that the struggle will be hard, says that the Nazi Fuehrer has greatly changed his tone and does not use his former bombast and threats. It adds: "He has changed his views regarding the strength and capability of Britain after his troops had encountered the stalwart and gallant forces of the British Empire in the Balkans. In the past Hitler interpreted Britain's honest desire for peace as weakness, but after 20 months of fighting he realises that he was totally wrong and Britain is stronger than ever."

"The Balkan campaign has proved beyond the least doubt that British troops are far more than a match for the Germans, and the R.A.F. has established once for all supremacy over the Luftwaffe, apart from the numerical question which will soon be settled. American help is on the way now and when it has come the Germans will lose for ever their numerical supremacy. It is not strange, therefore, to hear Hitler warning his people that disastrous days are in store for them. Yet Hitler has no cause for complaint. He wanted war, it is just that he should reap what he has sown."

Al Balagh writes: "President Roosevelt's opening of the Red Sea and the expected arrival of American vessels have been received with great satisfaction by trading circles and Government circles concerned... difficulties created by the war are now removed by Britain's magnificent victory in East Africa."

University debating team and to provide sufficient opportunities for our "Burkes" not only to display their talents but also to bring about happy relations with other Universities. Great men in and outside India have repeatedly stressed the need of students coming in contact with the rural masses. A sub-committee has been appointed to chalk out a scheme for the students touring the rural parts in Mysore State.

The Committee after long deliberations has resolved that a representation should be made to the University in order to get student members included in the Senate. This would enable the students to put their point of view and make a great annual in the History of the University. The members of the Committee at Bangalore presented an appeal to our beloved Vice-Chancellor when the Senate was at session in Bangalore. He was kind enough to assure us that it would be placed before the Council.

We are aware of the fact that we are not equal to the great task on hand. But the courage and the desire to make this organisation a success impels us to stand up to the occasion. Hence, we feel confident that with the co-operation and guidance of the general public and the University and the students, we will be able to make all our enterprises a success.

Sepoys In Malaya Have Their Own News Sheet

SIKH WATCHMAN READS ROMANISED URDU PROOFS

Singapore's First Hindustani Broadcast

(By Air Mail) Singapore

A daily news sheet printed in Romanised Urdu is now being published in Singapore for distribution to the Indian troops serving on the island and in various parts of the Malaya Peninsula. It contains a summary of world news with special messages about war developments, and items received from India by cable and air mail are also included.

The news sheet has developed from a small bulletin which was cyclostyled by Force Ema, the headquarters of the first Indian troops to arrive in Malaya. When the circulation grew with the arrival of thousands of Indian reinforcements, difficulties were encountered in finding a printer.

There are no inlotype compositors in Singapore who understand Romanised Urdu, and the type has to be set a letter at a time by an operator who merely "follows copy." The work is done by one of the biggest firms of printers in Singapore employing many South Indians, and the only employee who can read Romanised Urdu sufficiently well is a Sikh watchman.

The military authorities pay only one-quarter of the cost of preparing and printing the news sheet, the balance being paid by the Malayan Government through their Department of Information and Publicity, as a contribution to "welfare" work among the Indian troops.

The news sheet has a wide circulation, each Indian unit receiving as many copies as it can use. The Malayan Government also issue a daily news sheet in the Nagari script and in Gurmukhi which is also read by some of the Indian troops in Malaya.

The first broadcast talk from Singapore in Hindustani was given recently and was heard in many Indian camps.

NEW TYPE OF U. S. TANK FOR BRITAIN

Also More High-Speed Torpedo Boats

(By Cable) London
Walter Farr, the Daily Mail's Washington correspondent cabled on April 23:

The first of a new type of American 26 ton tanks is beginning to come out of the factories. Many of these are going to equip the British armies.

They will follow 20 more high-speed torpedo boats specially equipped for countering German naval units in British waters and help to solve the Atlantic convoy problem. These have been sent to Britain. They are the first batch of at least 100 similar vessels which the United States will eventually hand over to the British Navy. Asked about the Battle of the Atlantic, Colonel Knox said he understood that large fast freighters had been trying independently to run the gauntlet of U-boats and bombers for some time.

LANDING OF BRITISH TROOPS IN IRAQ

TURKEY'S APPRECIATION OF MOVE

London
(By Cable) The Istanbul Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph cabled on April 23:

The landing of British forces and British control of all communications in Iraq has caused the greatest satisfaction throughout Turkey, where it is considered most timely and opportune. The general view here is that Iraq, particularly since the recent coup d'etat there, may play one of the most important roles in the war.

Because of her inability to conquer the British Isles, Germany, it is felt, will do her utmost to spread into Asia the conflagration she started in the Balkans.

A high political personality in Turkey stated that whoever has faith in Britain delivering the world from Nazism could not but applaud her swift move in Iraq a move which denoted a possibility of rushing British forces wherever they might be required to oppose Nazi aggression.

Another politician considered the presence of British forces in Iraq as an insuperable bulwark against German pretensions in Asia and in immense contribution to confidence in the political and military situation in the Near and Far East.

German circles are obviously very annoyed at the Iraq landing, and have launched another whispering campaign of an impending Turkish-German agreement, but in many quarters it is felt that Turkey burned her boats long ago when she adopted a pro-British attitude.

HOME RULE FOR VICEROY

AUTHORITY OF THE PARLIAMENT TO DISAPPEAR

Mr. Arthur Moore's Suggestion

Home Rule for Viceroy should be Britain's next step in India is the view of Mr. Arthur Moore, Editor, 'Statesman' of Calcutta. Authority of British Parliament over India, he suggested in an interview with 'Yorkshire post', should disappear and the Crown should exercise its authority through the Viceroy. The Viceroy instead of bargaining with parties would call upon Indians to recognise the gravity of the hour and would summon to his Council men of his own choosing not because of their party affiliation but because of their power to mobilise India's war potential and rouse the country. No refusal should be accepted and any man who attempted to refuse would automatically be branded as a traitor to India. Such a Government would be a mirror of the Federation. It would represent the most effective minds among the Princes, martial classes, Congress, captains of industry and labour.

GERMAN CASUALTIES IN GREECE

(By Cable) London

A hint of the terrific casualties that have been suffered by the Germans in Greece was given by General Sir Alexander Godly who commanded the New Zealand Expeditionary Force in the war. Speaking at a meeting of the Royal Empire Society, he said:

Whatever may be the outcome of this grim struggle the Anzacs and Greeks will inflict on the Germans such losses and such destruction as will make a considerable difference to what the enemy is able to do for the rest of the war.

I believe, and I have reason for saying it, that already they have inflicted tremendous casualties on the Germans.

In this rear-guard fighting the Germans have hurled their troops in masses against the Anzacs and Greeks and they have suffered out of all possible conception.

Sir Alexander added that there was no doubt in his mind that the performance of the Greek Army during this campaign has been second to no other feat of arms in the history of warfare.

The New Zealand War Council expressed full support to the despatch of New Zealand troops to Greece.

FRIDAY—MAY 2, 1941

NOMINATIONS TO R. A. AND L. C.

The air is thick with rumours about the nominations that are to be made to the newly constituted Representative Assembly and Legislative Council. So many names are bandied, that it is difficult to forecast correctly who are all the people that are going to be nominated. There is a feeling in the minds of the people that those who are the favourites of Government and those who are in their good books, are to be nominated. There is no wonder in this. As long as the power of nomination is in Government they would naturally nominate those who are likely to support their policies and programmes. The Government retains the power of nomination only with a view to counterbalancing the opposing popular forces. In all ideal constitutions the system of nomination is abandoned. The seats in the legislature are filled by election. In England, in the House of Commons all the members are elected. It is only in the bicameral legislature and it is to the Upper House that members are nominated. The House of Lords in England is a body consisting of nominated members. In the 1935 Government of India Act, in the Provincial Legislatures, it was only to the upper Chambers that members were nominated. Only those who were recommended by the Leader of the Lower House were to be nominated to the Upper House. It is a well accepted democratic principle not to nominate members to the Lower House which is the principal legislative body.

And as such it has been the desire of forward and progressive people in Mysore that the system of nomination should be abolished.

This being the desire of the Progressive Section of the people it is natural that they are anxious as to who are going to be nominated to the newly reformed Assembly and Council. The Government can fill 12 seats of the Assembly by persons whom they nominate. They have to fill 8 seats in the Legislative Council by people whom they nominate. This is what the Srinivasa Iyengar Committee says on the principle of nomination: "We consider it essential for the Government to nominate some non-elites so as to enable them not merely to give representation to important interests which might otherwise go unrepresented, but also secure the co-operation of men of experience and eminence, as well as of experts with special knowledge, whose presence in the Council would be of great advantage. This measure of nomination, while it will add to the weight of the deliberations of the Council, will not ultimately make or defeat the will of the elected element."

Though we are of the opinion that there should be no nomination at all, now that the Constitution lays down the provision of nomination, we wish the Government exercise it in a way that is not antagonistic to public interest and public feeling. It would be necessary for Government to observe a wholesome principle in the matter of nominating members. In the first place the people that are to be nominated should not have contested any seats in the elections and defeated. Our Government have many a time flouted the electorate by nominating the people who were rejected by them. We do not know why Government should indulge in this practice except it be to favour those candidates in the teeth of public opinion. The electorate may protest, may grumble, but if Government does not heed what can it do? The discontent will be driven underground. The embitterment will increase. And the Government will become more and more unpopular. We hope this time at least the Government would refrain from nominating the candidates defeated in the elections.

Secondly, we find a few favourites of Government being nominated term after term as if the land is barren of people who can adorn those seats and do justice to them. We have nothing personal against those estimable hoary gentlemen, but it is time that they are given rest to pursue their meditations. In fact the people are tired of them and they do not want them in those bodies. If the Government look around beyond their nose, they will find honourable and capable men who will do justice to those seats. They may not say "Johukum" to all that Government say. But they are really experts in their own fields. And the Legislature and the country would gain by having such men.

Thirdly, the practice of nominating Retired Government officers should be done away with. It is no reflection on them to say that they cannot take independent views on crucial questions where popular interests are in conflict with Government. More-over it is an idle claim to say that they are better experts than the existing officers, for a number of whom provision is already made for nomination. The retired officers are naturally out of touch and out of joint with the current affairs. And their ideas are mostly old fashioned, incapable of adjustment to modern conditions of life. Those estimable men will have rendered meritorious service in their official career and why disturb them again from their well-earned rest?

Fourthly there are a number of people who can be classed under toadies, flunkies and sycophants. And Government would do well to keep away from them. Their tongue though dropping honey, in one's presence will spread poison behind back. What is wanted today in our State is frankness and sincerity of purpose. Much of the evil that Mysore has been suffering today is due to the ear that likes flattery and hates frank out-spoken counsel.

Since the times in which we have been living are momentous with great potentialities, we pray that Government do listen to good counsel and have in their Assemblies and Councils men and women animated with a real desire to serve public ends and not their own ends. It naturally follows that Government should exercise greater care in selecting people for nominations. May not our words fall on deaf ears!

A PUFF OF SMOKE

THE GREAT ACHARYAS—SHANKARA, MADHYA AND BHAKTISWARA—MAN-ESSENCE AND GOD-ESSENCE—HIGH THOUGHT AND SUBLIMITY

The birth anniversaries of Great Acharyas Shankara, Ramanuja, Madhya, and Basavswara are being celebrated with great devotion by our people. The Hindu religion is full of saints. To a Hindu, life is a dedication. According to the strict injunctions of Hinduism, one cannot live for himself since that is no existence at all. He should live for Purushartha. Amongst this Purushartha Dharma stands foremost. Each has his Dharma. It may not be the same as that of others. What is Dharma? Many definitions have been given. That by which the Universe is sustained is called Dharma. Some compare Universe to a machine. Some compare it to an organic being. Whatever it may be, it is a moving thing. It is a live thing. Each in its place the various parts of the machine have to function properly. Each wheel has its motion allotted to it. And the Prime mover, the engine driver is everywhere in the heart of things. It is His law, it is His nature that permeates right through. God works through nature and nature is not one but many. It has several faces and several facets. Through all this it is the God's law that works.

I have written this to show that the Hindu idea of man's life is a dedication to Gods law. God or Nature or Society or Shastras or Customs by whatever name you call it, every man has his function to discharge. What that function is sometimes heredity determines and sometimes environment. By both, a man would be able to know what his Dharma is and having once found it, it is for him to pursue it.

The great Shankara propounded Advaita Philosophy, according to history, in the 8th century A.D. The Buddhism had declined and people were groping in the dark on account of conflicting ideals and philosophy.

CENTRAL COUNCIL OF THE LAWYERS' CONFERENCE MEETS

Bangalore, May 1

A meeting of the Central Council of the Mysore Lawyers Conference was held at 9 a.m. on the 30th of April 1941 in the Chambers of Mr. H. Lakshmanaswamy, Advocate, Bangalore City, under the presidency of Mr. G. Devoji Rao, Pleader, Mandya. Messrs L. S. Raju, H. Lakshmanaswamy, Nittoor Srinivasa Rao, M. A. Gopalaswamy Iyengar, A. Sreekanthiah and K. R. Sreenivasan were present at the meeting.

The Council considered several resolutions passed at the open Conference held at Mysore and decided which of them should be sent to the Palace, the Government, the High Court, Law Association, the Mysore Law Journal and others.

The Council considered in detail the resolution regarding philosophies. Shankara codified existing religion and gave it a sharp point. He preached that man is not this body and mind. There is something beyond. There is something beyond the grasp of senses but it is grasped with reason and intellect. What permeates man and the universe. It is the same as death and no age. It is as time itself. That is what Shankara preached. He is a man who obliterated the difference between man essence and God essence. Then what is it, it is much in the dark and narrow to pain, misery and suffering. Shankara said it is ignorance. It is non-realisation. The man feels and thinks that he is not this passing body and mind, but something beyond that something imperishable which is only one and not many. He becomes free and merges himself into the eternal.

This is all high talk and big thought. All the same, it would be benefited by contemplating on such things. At the during the moments that the thoughts pass through his mind he feels elevated and sublimated.

The only difference between the teachings of Shankara and those of Ramanuja and Madhya pertains to individual soul. While Shankara says both are one, the remaining two Acharyas say the individual soul is different from the cosmic soul.

Regarding Basavswara, he popularised knowledge and culture among people. He made the great Upanishadic knowledge available to the common man by translating them into common language. Basavswara served to South India especially to Kannada land are unforgettable.

the necessity of the introduction of the Bar Council Act. Mysore and thanked Mr. P. Raju for having sent the Bill to the Legislative Council. The Council decided to move the Bill to the Council to be moved at the ensuing session and passed a resolution requesting him to take steps to get the Bill passed. The Council passed a resolution requesting all the members to send suggestions to the Secretary (Mr. H. Lakshmanaswamy) regarding the problems confronting the Legal Profession in the light of economic depression and the subject be considered at the next meeting.

The meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the President.

DEBT CONCILIATION IN MYSORE Government Order

Bangalore
The Government of Mysore passed orders on the report of Mr. B. K. Ramakrishnaiah Assistant Secretary to Government, who was placed on special leave to examine the working of the scheme of debt conciliation in the State, directing that suitable amendments be made to the Debt Conciliation Act in a view to facilitating better working of the system and securing adequate protection to debtors. The following is the full text of the Government Order—

The special officer has examined in detail the working of the Boards and has submitted an exhaustive report indicating the work achieved so far and the difficulties felt by the Debt Conciliation Boards and suggesting remedial measures which are in his opinion necessary for a debt conciliation more satisfactory working of the scheme. The report is published for public opinion and criticism. The opinions of the Deputy Commissioners, the Registrar of Co-operative Societies and the Revenue Commissioner have been obtained.
The Government have also availed themselves of the advice of Judges of the High Court in regard to the proposals.

Is Another Act Necessary?

The first and most important question considered by the special officer is whether the Debt Conciliation Act may be retained whether it should be replaced by another act providing for the compulsory scaling down of debts. While pointing out that the results achieved so far by the operation of the act have not been satisfactory, the special officer is of the opinion that the poor results are largely due to the one hand, to the ignorance of a large body of debtors regarding the beneficial provisions of the Act, and on the other, to the comparatively few difficulties felt in the initial stages of the scheme. Yet another reason which has contributed to the small progress is said to be the want of suitable provision of paying off the conciliated debts. The special officer feels that, with more propaganda the scheme is likely to be availed of in a larger measure, particularly as it saves the heavy cost of litigation in Civil Courts and avoids the uncertainties and worries of litigation.
He is, therefore, in favour of the Act being worked for some time more before coming to a definite conclusion whether it is really useful or not. He considers however that while a complete adoption of compulsion is neither immediately necessary nor advisable, some strengthening of the element of compulsion is called for to deal with recalcitrant debtors, this being affected in such a manner as not to come in conflict with the underlying principle of voluntary conciliation. He has accordingly suggested that, when agreement is arrived at between the debtors and the creditors to whom more than 50 percent of the debts are due, the Board may be given a power to pass an order that the other creditors also should accept an offer made by the debtors, if in the opinion of the Board the offer is a fair one.

Secured and unsecured Creditors

In this connection, the Special Officer has stated in para 36 of his report that representations have been made to him in all the places visited by him that unless the distinction now made between secured and unsecured creditors is removed, no real benefit will accrue to the debtors from the debt conciliation Act, and that the majority of the debts being secured, the Boards are feeling helpless when any secured creditor or a number of secured creditors to whom more than 50 per cent of the debts are owing, are not agreeable to reduce the debts as suggested by the Board. He has, however, observed that, while, under Section 19 of the Act the Board has the power to give a certificate even in respect of secured debts, which has the effect of disentitling the creditors to future costs of suit and to interest in excess of 6 per cent, this has not acted as a sufficient deterrent on the secured creditor. This reluctance on the part of the secured creditor to enter into agreement with the debtor is said to be due to the fact that, by so entering into an agreement, the creditor would be reduced to the position of an unsecured creditor and that his mortgage lien on the mortgaged property would be extinguished, while, if he refused to agree to the settlement, his right to proceed against the secured property would be protected by the proviso to Section 14. With a view to enlist the co-operation of the secured creditors also, the Special Officer considers that it is desirable to amend the Act so as to enable the creditor, even if he has entered into a settlement, to retain the security in respect of the amount due to him so long as the amount remains unpaid. He has, therefore, suggested that the Act may be amended by adding a provision corresponding to Section 12 A of the Central Provinces Debt Conciliation Act, and that as a consequence the second proviso to Section 14 may be suitably modified. These suggestions have found general acceptance and Government are pleased to approve of them, and to direct that the relevant sections of the Debt Conciliation Act be amended suitably.

Land Mortgage Banks

3. Government agree that some suitable arrangement for immediate payment of settled debts is highly desirable and consider as already stated in Government Order No. R. 2652-723/L.R. 208-34-4, dated 30th October 1935, that payment should be arranged for through Co-operative Societies or Land Mortgage Banks. As a rule, the scheme of Debt Conciliation will be introduced only in places where Land Mortgage Banks are already working, or are likely to be established, so that necessary agencies for paying off conciliated debts may be readily available. Government do not, however, consider it necessary to pass orders on the proposals in the report about reducing the minimum or raising the maximum of loans to be granted by Land Mortgage Banks or raising the percentage of the value of the security up to which loans may be granted by these Banks.

Expression 'Debts'

4. The expression "Debts" as defined in the Act, excludes the arrears of wages, land revenue, rent as defined in the Land Revenue Code or any money for the recovery of which a suit is barred by limitation. As it was urged before the Special Officer that this definition works as a hardship to persons who have a right to get maintenance under the decree of a Court or otherwise, and that such liability in respect of maintenance should also be excluded from the definition of the term "Debt" may be suitably amended has suggested that the definition of "Debt" may be suitably amended so as to exclude any liability in respect of maintenance whether under a decree of Court or otherwise.
He has also suggested the desirability of excluding any tax, cess or payment due to any Municipality or village panchayat or other local authority.
Government consider that the liability in respect of maintenance may be excluded from the definition "Debt" and that the dues to local bodies may be dealt with by the Conciliation Boards as in the case of other debts.

i That provision should be made in the Act that, if any debtor fails to comply with a note under section 8 (2) or to furnish particulars under section 8 (3) and the Board consequently dismisses the application, it may allow against the debtor such costs as it considers reasonable and such costs shall be recoverable as an arrear of land revenue on application made within 90 days by the creditor to whom the same are due.

ii That if once an application has been made by a debtor and disposed of, no Board shall entertain a second application within one year of the date of disposal of the first application.

iii That a clause shall be added to section 9 that, where a Board is satisfied that the debtor has, within 180 days before the date of the application made by him under Section 4, transferred any of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, it may dismiss the petition.

Government agree that the above amendments to the law are necessary to prevent debtors making frivolous applications and attempting to defraud creditors by alienating their properties before applying to the Boards for conciliation of the debts, and direct that the Debt Conciliation Act be amended in the manner above indicated.

6. It has been suggested that provision should be made in the Act for aggrieved parties taking up the orders of the Board under certain sections of the Act in revision to the District Judge's Court. The Judges of the High Court and a few of the Deputy Commissioners are strongly of the opinion that no provision should be made for a right of revision by civil courts. Government agree with this view.

Personnel Of Chairmen

7. Another important suggestion made by the Special Officer is as regards the personnel of the Chairmen of the Debt Conciliation Boards. At present Revenue Sub Division Officers are appointed as ex-officio Chairmen of these Boards on the ground that, with their local influence and knowledge of local conditions they should be better able to persuade the parties to come to an amicable settlement. The enquiry made by the Special Officer seems to have shown that the Sub Division Officers are finding this work rather taxing as they have to do conciliation work in addition to their own numerous duties and that often, as they are urgently called away on other duty, the Boards are unable to meet on the dates fixed for the meeting. The public seem to be of the opinion that it would conduce to speed working of the Boards if judicial officers were appointed Chairmen of the Boards and the Special Officer has suggested that in some places, at least, experienced judicial officers may be tried as Chairmen of the Boards. The majority of the Deputy Commissioners consider that the present practice of appointing Sub Division Officers as Chairmen is a sound one and does not require any change.
Government also feel that there is no need to make any departure from the existing practice and that the executive officers should be better able to bring about a conciliation between the parties than purely judicial officers. They direct, however, that with a view to expediting the disposal of cases, a whole-time revenue officer may be appointed as chairman of several Boards in a District, if the volume of work justifies such a measure.

8. Government approve of the suggestions made in paragraph 8 the the report about the recovery of the cost of issuing notices from the applicants in advance and about empowering the Boards to issue coercive processes to secure the presence of parties and witnesses.

9. The other proposals of the Special Officer which are of a minor character, are accepted by Government to the extent indicated in the statement appended to this order.

10. Necessary further action will be taken to amend the Act and the Rules thereunder to give effect to the foregoing orders.

SWAMI ATMANANDA

Bangalore, May, 1

Sjt. M. Doraiswami writes to us as follows:

The history of the Mahatma indeed, opens a marvellous chapter and is very important for the pious men of the Hindu Religion, in that it is at once interesting and instructive.

Having been born of a poor family, he was not able to prosecute his studies in English to his desired end. Up to Matriculation was his final course. However, he managed remarkably to master Tamil, Telugu, Kannada, Sanskrit, Mahratti and had a fair knowledge of Urdu, Hindi, and Gujarati. and a smattering knowledge of Burmese. He was talking in almost all the languages of India fluently. He had a firm belief in reading, and was declaring that reading maketh a full man. He was very considerate and his style was considered excellent. He was a poet and used to compose poems (grammatically), accurately and pleasingly. He was an intelligent and industrious writer. He had many brilliant and brimful ideas, (both religious and ethical) and they were of a very high order of intelligence, and his nature was that of a sensitive one which is the temperament of genius, eloquence passion and love. He had considerable musical talent which had produced a high proportion of intellectual eminence. While yet 30, he was cut off from ordinary life by means of religious intensified. He was one of those rare souls who were gifted with Divine Insight. He was also an ascetic, with unusual powers of concentration and meditation.
Early, he became conscious of his own powers. His spiritual development was rare and it concerned to express his personality of sterling character he possessed and the precise vision of life. He had a very wide outlook, and his attitude was largely conditioned by certain rare experiences. He was an efficient Ayurvedic Vidwan and his medicines were of high and pure quality, which effectively cured many chronic cases, which were considered by very eminent physicians as incurable and hopeless. By sheer dint of his tremendous sacrifices, sufferings and transparent sincerity, he had become the very idol of his disciples. The majority of his disciples were Mahrattas. He lived, dined and slept and passed away cheerfully in one of his Mahratta disciples' house. He was interred in a Mahratta burial ground with great honour and respect and a decent building at the perseverance of one of his devoted disciples was constructed and regular worship is being observed by his disciples and others daily.

Correspondence Between Mr. Jinnah & Sir Sapru

Released To The Press
(Associated Press of India)

Chikballapur (Mysore) May 1
Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President Muslim League, released to the press the correspondence that passed between him and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru on the League-Congress rapprochement vis-a-vis the present political situation. It will be remembered that Sir Sapru in the course of his latest statement had made reference to a correspondence he had with Mr. Jinnah. Prefacing the corresponding Mr. Jinnah in the course of a statement says he at once showed his willingness as suggested by Sir Sapru to meet Mahatma Gandhi or any other Hindu Leader to have heart to heart conversations.

In the letter to Mr. Jinnah from Allahabad on the 6th February 1941, Sir Sapru stated that the supreme necessity of the hour was the settlement between Hindus and Muslims, to put it in terms of party politics between Congress and Muslim League. Owing to a strong conviction he (Sir Sapru) found it impossible to join the Congress or Mahasabha and for obvious reasons he could not be a member of the League. Yet he felt so long as three big organised bodies of public opinion in India remained in their present state of relationship to each other the future of this country could not be by any means bright. He represented neither party. He could neither offer nor accept terms. He could only appeal to Mr. Jinnah in his individual capacity. He deliberately avoided all controversial issues that divided one from the other as it was not for him to settle but for Mr. Jinnah and leaders of other parties who could influence and speak for others.

As a realist he felt that not only he (Mr. Jinnah) and Gandhiji and other Leaders of Hindu Sabha particularly Mr. Savarkar were men on whom primarily responsibility for settlement of those issues lay. Stating that neither speeches nor statements nor interviews could really help the situation Sir Sapru suggested that heart-to-heart conversations, might possibly lead to some satisfactory results. Sir Sapru therefore suggested on admitting any other party to his views that Mr. Jinnah should agree first to meet Gandhiji and then the process of private talks could be extended to others and if Mr. Jinnah and other leaders

The Minister will be accompanied by the Director of Industries and Rural Reconstruction Officer in Sind.

Sir Sapru added if he (Mr. Jinnah) was willing to see Gandhiji and discuss things he hoped that Mr. Jinnah would permit him to take Gandhiji into confidence about what Mr. Jinnah writes to him. Assuring his personal co-operation in the matter Sir Sapru added: "If your reply to my suggestion is that you will be prepared to see Gandhiji and talk over matters with him I should write to him and press it on him that he must see you at Bombay or any other place that may suit your convenience I think you two should meet first, for if the country is dear to him it is no less dear to you. You may be at present identified with the Muslim League. I have no kind of prejudice against the League or any connected with it. As far as you are concerned, I still prefer to look upon you as I used to in days gone by."

Mr. Jinnah's Reply

Replying to Sir Sapru, Mr. Jinnah wrote from Bombay on 10th February and he says: "I have always been ready and willing to see Gandhiji or any other Hindu Leader on behalf of the Hindu Community and do all I can to help solution of the Hindu-Muslim problem." As regards the other points raised by Sir Sapru, Mr. Jinnah referred to his speech made in the course of the debate in the Central Assembly on Supplementary Finance Bill last November where he clarified the position and point of view of Muslim League.

SATURDAY—MAY 3, 1941

The resolution looks like a parrot cry. How can there be United India if Pakistan schemes come into force? What about non-Muslims in those areas? If the Pakistanists are suspicious of the bonafides of non-Muslims in a free and United Nations India can they hope the non-Muslims in Pakistan to trust Mohammedans? We are afraid the Muslims are being misled by the Pakistan movement. It is nothing but a mischievous move-

There are also several other resolutions which require our comment. For example take the following:—

"This Conference resolves that in consideration of the meritorious services rendered, at all trying moments, by His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad and Berar, the Imperial Government be pleased to confer the title of 'His Majesty' on him and to retrocede all those territories which were temporarily ceded by Him on different occasions."

We have absolutely no objection for H. E. H. the Nizam to be called His Majesty the Nizam. But we are definitely against any further territories being ceded to him. Unless H. E. H. the Nizam establishes full responsible Government in his territories with full civil liberties it is no use ceding him any further territories. It is very necessary that he should reduce himself to the position of a constitutional Ruler. If the question of redistributing territories comes up, we hope those who have the power to do so, will consider the claims of the Mysore Maharaja who is virtually a moral and cultural descendant of the Vijaya Nagar Rulers. And we claim that every bit of territory from Godavari down to the South should be ceded to Mysore. And the whole of Northern Karnataka and South Kanara including Salem and Coimbatore Districts should come back to Mysore. We have every hope that in Mysore there would not be any difficulty for establishing a responsible Government because our present Ruler is sufficiently progressive and democratic to move with the times.

We are writing of the future and we do not know what is in store for us in future. In the Reconstruction of New India the claims of Mysore and Karnataka cannot be ignored.

There are a few other resolutions to which we refer in another issue.

Disappointment in New Delhi

New Delhi, April 27.

It was in silence, as usual, that the Viceroy left New Delhi on Tuesday last—no public statement nor broadcast address to mark the end of the New Delhi season. Any hope, however, of a quiet ending to the New Delhi season, was rudely shattered by Mr. Amery's speech in the Commons. In the number of speeches which he has made in the very first year of his office, Mr. Amery holds a record which no previous Secretary of State has even distantly approached, but his fondness for speaking—or preaching—has neither helped him to understand the Indian situation better nor improve the relations between the two countries. In his former speeches he used to treat the country to soft words and vague promises—he even went so far as to the extent of coining slogans or his own deletion, if not for the benefit of this country. Did he not at one time pompously announce that he would employ every ounce of his energy "towards seeking an agreement with leaders of Indian opinion"? That was a promise which at that time received considerable public attention, but the very first test to which he was put by his own countrymen found him wanting. Repeatedly were the suggestions made to him that he should visit India, but for some reason he prefers to use his energy by making speeches in London—apparently forgetting that if he is really anxious to seek an agreement with leaders of Indian opinion the only obvious course is to visit India and meet these leaders. Even in the course of the Commons debate last week some speakers—all well-known personalities—whose opinions are entitled to some consideration—reiterated this appeal, but Mr. Amery had no reply to give. In his latest speech Mr. Amery has now promised to make—not even soft words to soothe our feelings.

What is the reason for this sudden change in the manner adopted by Mr. Amery? There has never been any change in actual 'substance' of the speeches for though attractive hopes were sometimes held out and vague hints of something coming were now and then interposed, everything revolved round the August offer—whatever it might mean. Still there used to be a touch of friendliness in the language used by Mr. Amery in the past which one is constrained to observe, was conspicuous by its absence in his last one. Otherwise Mahatma Gandhi, who has kept himself aloof from these controversies, would not have felt him self obliged to come out with a public statement and say, "Mr. Amery has rendered no service to Great Britain by his contemptuous disregard of the situation as it exists in India and the fact that stare one in the face." The fact appears to be that the very moderation and simplicity of the Sapru formula has been so disconcerting to Mr. Amery that he has been obliged to drop the old manner. When the Congress came forward with its Poona

Offer, the objection raised was that it was based on the principle of responsibility to the Legislature, it wanted something which was outside the scope of the present constitution. As a matter of fact it is open to the Viceroy even under the present constitution to interpret his powers and duties in such a way as to provide for this responsibility, for a good deal depends on the spirit in which the terms of the Constitution Act are interpreted and worked. Sir T. B. Sapru was, however, in no bad gaining mood and reduced his demands to the minimum so as to admit of no controversy. Several months ago he had asked in the course of a Press statement "If India is to be a full-fledged Dominion after the war will you hesitate to say so in words? I admit of no doubt and why also not do something now as an earnest of the things to come-over though it may not be perfect in every respect."

So moderately worded was the Sapru formula that it conceded every point previously raised by Mr. Amery. Instead of responsibility to the Legislature it was definitely provided that it would be responsible to the Crown. It gave the right to the Viceroy to appoint whomsoever be considered "representative Indians" in forming the new Cabinet. It was also left to the Viceroy to fix the time-limit for the grant of full Dominion constitution to India. All that it asked for was that the men called into the Government should all be Indians commanding confidence in the country, that they "should work as a team, that is, as a Cabinet, even though in the existing circumstances they may owe responsibility to the Crown" and that Indians should be trusted with portfolios which carry real power, such as Finance and Defence. The position taken up by Sir T. B. Sapru was, as he has often stated, that "the mere addition of a few members to the Executive Council will never do"—on the other hand the position taken up by Mr. Amery as now revealed by his speech is that he is not prepared to do anything at all unless Mr. Jinnah agrees and that, even if Mr. Jinnah agrees, the utmost length to which he is prepared to go is to add a few members to the Executive Council. It is evident from Mr. Amery's speech itself that he has not found it easy to answer Sir T. B. Sapru. All that he says is that it asks for "an entirely different type

Is there really any risk involved in having a complete Indian Cabinet at the moment and vesting it with real power? The arguments employed by Mr. Amery as an excuse for opposition on the existing arrangement at the Centre are very similar to those of Mr. Chamberlain in the early days of the war when he was resisting all proposals for effecting necessary changes in the character of the British Government to cope with the new situation created by the war, but experience has shown that England could only survive itself by forming a new National Government under more vigorous leadership. From this point of view of the public, the debate followed Mr. Amery's speech has greater importance than the liberties indulged in by the Secretary of State. Nor can be more timely than the declaration made by Sir George Schuster that it was "ridiculous to claim that no Indians will be found to be Finance Men. And it is also appropriate that Mr. Arthur Moore has told the British public that there is no difficulty in finding suitable Indians to be Defence Ministers—at any rate, as good as the average War Minister in England. If, far from there being any risk involved, the appointment of a fully Indian Cabinet will result in the same strength and energy as was shown by Churchill Cabinet after the failure of Mr. Chamberlain's, and if there are competent Indians who can safely be entrusted with the portfolios of Finance and Defence, if indeed there is no objection to the establishment of a Dominion Government with the least possible delay, why then does Mr. Amery object so strongly to the proposals of Sir T. B. Sapru? cannot agree to the transfer of power even into the hands of men like Sir T. B. Sapru who have been associated with the Government of India in the past. The debate in the House showed that even Conservative speakers felt deeply concerned at the inadequacy of Mr. Amery's policy. Such comments by British and the American Press as are reaching this country show also dissatisfaction with the policy in India. Writing in the 'New York Times' Mr. Frank Russell, the famous journalist, writes frankly: "Liberalism is the short-sighted illiberality of British policy in India."

Mr. P. R. Naik, a World Tour Parikrishi State has now arrived in Blore. He started his tour in 1937 from Orissa. So far, he has covered 27,000 miles. He is now touring on foot. Here he proceeds to Madras and then to Ceylon and then he proceeds to other places. He hopes to complete his Tour in the next six years.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROGRESS IN MYSORE

SUMMARY OF REPORT FOR YEAR 1939-40.

Some Notable Achievements

BANGALORE, May 2.

"Constitutional Reforms of a far reaching character were announced in a Proclamation of His Highness the Maharaja on the 6th November 1939. These provide for the grant of enlarged powers and privileges for the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council, widening of the electorate and the appointment of the elected representatives of the people to His Highness' Executive Council".

Thus state the Government of Mysore in their administration report for the year 1939-40.

The following is the summary of the report—

H.H.'s Gracious Presence

The Convocation of the University of Mysore, the opening of the Sri Krishnarajendra Temple across the Vedavati, the opening of the All India Jain Community Conference at Srirangapatna, the inauguration of the Silver Jubilee celebrations at Srirangapatna, the inauguration of the public ceremony which were honoured by His Highness' gracious presence, accompanied by Prince Jaya Wodeyar, His Highness attended the Mahamastu Sabhita to Sri Gomateswara at Srirangapatna. In the course of his visit to Tumkur, His Highness visited three temples in the neighbourhood, and was pleased to sanction funds for religious services in religious institutions of various denominations.

Demise of Yuvaraja

The Royal family and the people suffered a grievous loss by the demise of His Highness Sri Demise of His Highness Sri Wodeyar, G.C.I.E., Yuvaraja of Mysore, who passed away on May 11th March 1940, after a brief illness. His Highness had just returned from a tour in the West when he fell ill in Bombay. His breadth of vision, kindness of heart and the manner had endeared to all that had the privilege of knowing him.

His Highness began to take active part in the administration of the State in 1914 as Deputy Secretary to His Highness the Maharaja and then held several years the office of ordinary Member of Council, in which capacity he held the offices of the Police, Medical, Sanitation and Prisons Departments. His Highness was in charge of the Military Department when the War broke out in 1914. He was responsible for the opening of a separate Department to provide Mysore Troops and to relieve want and distress in their families. In 1918 he was made Grand Commander of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire and His Imperial Majesty King Emperor conferred on him the rare personal distinction of the title of "His Highness".

In later years His Highness was well known and many of his speeches revealed his wide ideas and activities of the progress of the country. His sad demise was a great loss to the State and a widely mourned and gracious personality.

Dewan

State business took the Dewan for about ten days. He was in Bangalore in October of fifteen Bills. With the exception of the District Board Act Amendment Bill and the Sugar Excise Act Amendment Bill, the general principles of all the Bills were accepted.

23 Legislative Measures

Twenty-three legislative measures were considered by the Legislative Council in its two Sessions. Twenty of them were finally passed and two were passed as amended by Select Committees. Statutory sanction to the orders passed by Government on the recommendation of the Constitutional Reforms Committee was conveyed in the Government of Mysore Act 1940. The Mysore Money Lenders Act provides for the compulsory registration of every money lender and the maintenance by him of accounts in a prescribed manner. The maximum rates of interest leviable are also limited. The Mysore Juveniles Act provides for the custody, trial and punishment of youthful offenders as also for the establishment and regulation of Borstal Schools in the State. An Act amending the Mysore Land Revenue Code enables the Government to introduce Survey and Settlement compulsorily into Inam villages. The period of continuous possession or payment of fixed rent, necessary to raise a presumption of permanent tenancy which was twenty years is reduced by this Act to twelve years. This Act secures to Kadim tenants in alienated villages, the benefit of remission in rent similar to that enjoyed in Government villages. The Mysore Public Security (Amendment) Act was an emergency legislation intended to supplement existing Criminal Law for the purpose of safeguarding public safety. The Mysore Duty on Gold Act provides for the imposition of duty on gold produced within the State. These are the chief additions to the Statute Book. Local legislation corresponding to the Indian Insurance Act and the Defence of India Act was also enacted.

Reforms

Constitutional Reforms of a far-reaching character were announced in a Proclamation of His Highness the Maharaja on the 6th November 1939. These provide for the grant of enlarged powers and privileges for the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council, the widening of the electorate and the appointment of the elected representatives of the people to His Highness' Executive Council.

The Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council which have been hitherto functioning under separate Acts will hereafter function under a consolidated law. The term of both the Houses will be increased from three to four years. The strength of the Representative Assembly will be raised from 275 to 310. The Assembly will, in future, be invariably consulted in regard to any legislative measure before it is introduced to the Legislative Council. It is further provided that the Assembly will have the right of considering the general principles underlying any Bill or any of its provisions and of proposing amendments thereto. The powers of the Assembly in respect of the budget have been enlarged by conferring on it the right of passing resolutions on budget, provided that such resolutions do not have reference to particular grants or appropriations. Certain heads of expenditure hitherto excluded from discussion continue to be so excluded, except in the case of the Military Forces of His Highness the Maharaja where discussion is permitted.

The strength of the Legislative Council will be raised from fifty to sixty-eight, forty-four places being filled by election. The Council will have a non-Official President who will be elected by the House after its first term and elected Deputy President from the commencement.

Certain provisions calculated to widen the electorate for the Assembly and the Legislative Council have also been made. For example the educational qualification for all voters for the Representative Assembly and the property qualification for the voters for the Representative Assembly in rural areas will be substantially reduced.

An important reform designed to enable the Legislature more largely to influence the nature of the advice and assistance which the Executive Council tenders to His Highness, is the inclusion of not less than two non-Officials selected from among the elected representatives, in His Highness' Executive Council. Such Ministers will be eligible to hold any portfolio of the Administration.

Criminal and Civil Justice

There was a decline in a number of grave crimes. In the new Constable's Training School at Mysore, some useful additions to the curriculum like instruction in swimming and in Kannada shorthand were made. A definite improvement in the discipline of the Police Force was discernible; no case of judicial punishment coming up during the year.

The work of the Criminal Courts increased appreciably and the continued improvement in disposal of cases by stipendiary Magistrates was maintained, the average duration falling from 40 days in the previous year to 37 days. In order to facilitate the quicker disposal of the Sessions cases and Criminal appeals in the districts, the work of the Public Prosecutors at Bangalore, Mysore and Shimoga was limited to the respective districts and six fresh appointments for the other districts were made.

On the Civil side, there was noticeable fall in institution, particularly in the case of small cause suits. The decrease is mainly due to the working of the Agriculturists' Relief Act and to a small degree to the working of the Debt Conciliation Boards. The number of old suits left pending at the close of the year was the lowest on record in modern times.

Local Bodies

Town and minor Municipalities received financial assistance to the extent of Rs. 2,05,000 from Government towards their schemes of improving water supply and provision of other civic amenities. An important water supply scheme sanctioned an estimated cost of Rs. 4,27,500, of which three lakhs of rupees will be met by Government. An intensive vaccination campaign was carried out in all districts, and anti-malaria measures in the Mairad areas were continued. Two more towns were electrified and radio sets for the entertainment of the public were installed in six towns. Municipal enterprise was further responsible for the opening of three new maternity homes.

Village Panchayats

There were nearly 12,000 village panchayats in the State engaged on the day today problems connected with rural sanitation and medical relief, water supply and maintenance and rural reconstruction. The task of providing every village in the State with a secure system of water supply is no light one but an important step forward was taken by the sanctioning of a mammoth scheme of rural water supply, according to which an allotment of Rs. 3,25,000 was made during the year. It is gratifying to note that no less than 13,000 inhabited villages in the State have so far been provided with the drinking water wells. The scheme for the improvement of grass lands in villages, formulated by Dr. W. Burns, Agricultural Expert to the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research, was tried in a few selected village panchayats and forest of the Bangalore and Kolar districts. In May 1940, Government sanctioned the starting of an Agricultural Colony for the settlement of the labourers in the Kolar Gold Field Mines.

There was a noticeable improvement in the work of the village panchayats. But much more could have been done, had the arrears been less heavy. The arrears at the end of the year amounted to as much as Rs. 47.48 lakhs, a position which does not reflect credit on the agencies responsible for the collection.

The nine District Boards continued to do useful work in the field of rural water supply, construction and maintenance of roads and buildings, education, prevention and control of epidemics and medical relief. On the expiry of the extended term of the year they were reconstituted in May 1940. As a measure of financial assistance, Government waived the annual contribution of Rs. 7,000 hitherto being paid by the Mysore District Board for the maintenance of the Vani Vilas Hospital. The Chitaldrug District Board completed and opened for traffic sixteen new roads, according to the five year programme chalked out in 1937. The Dewan was pleased to open ten of these in his tour of the district.

In the field of rural reconstruction, the rural welfare centres at Closepet and Doddaballapur continued to do valuable work. The latter centre was taken over to Government management.

Finance

The actual revenue receipts for the year amounted to Rs. 417.98 lakhs against Rs. 395.58 lakhs budgeted for, and Rs. 398.28 lakhs realised in the previous year (1938-39). A sum of Rs. 3.85 lakhs was realised during the year, on account of the special duty on Gold levied from 22nd March 1940.

The expenditure charged to Revenue was Rs. 414.97 lakhs, against Rs. 395.12 lakhs provided in the budget, and against Rs. 397.49 lakhs incurred during the previous year. A sum of Rs. 5.85 lakhs was credited to the Irrigation Development Fund, Rs. 8 lakhs to the Special Reserve for non-recurring expenditure.

The Revenue account of the year thus closed with a surplus of 3.01 lakhs, against Rs. 46,000 (See Page 4)

HINDU MAHA SABHA CONFERENCE

LOYALTY TO MAHARAJA AFFIRMED

Pakistan Scheme Condemned

(From our correspondent, Shimoga, May 1)

The first session of the All Mysore Hindu Mahasabha had its sitting on the 27th and 28th of April with Mr. Hardikar Manappa in the Chair. The session concluded after recording nearly thirty resolutions pertaining to several vital problems of the Hindu Community today.

Of the several resolutions passed one pledged loyal and devoted services of the entire Hindu Community of Mysore to the throne and person of His Highness the Maharaja and affirming His Highness that the Hindus of Mysore will stand by His Highness as through thick and thin since His Highness is the natural and only leader of the people in Mysore.

Mr Bhoopalam Speaks

In the course of the speech made by Mr. Bhoopalam, he urged that His Highness is the only leader of the community and we should be prepared to lay down our lives for him. Mr. Bhoopalam considered the speech of Nawab Yarzang Bahadur calling upon Mysore Muslims to stand by Pakistan and be prepared to die for Mr. Mohammedi Jinnah as highly seditious and wondered how the authorities tolerated such speeches at Bangalore and Channarayana. On the other hand Mr. Bhoopalam impressed the slogan of Mahasabha in Mysore should be, "Stand up Hindustani and be ever prepared to lay down our lives for the Mysore Maharaja".

The Conference passed several other resolutions concerning the immediate wants and needs of Hindus.

Responsible Government

A resolution requesting the grant of Responsible Government and abolition of separate electorates was also passed.

Another resolution was passed condemning strongly the agitation of Nawab Yarzang Bahadur for the conversion of Santhebanur Musahalkhana into a Mosque. It was revealed that this Musahalkhana formerly was part of a Temple built by the Palagars of Tankere. It was further resolved to request the authorities to nip in the bud the mischievous agitation for the conversion of the Musahalkhana into a Mosque.

Proper representation of the Hindus in the army, Police and public services was urged in another resolution. Military training to all adults in Schools and Colleges was also urged.

Industrial Policy

Appreciation of the Industrial policy of Mysore was recorded with special reference to our enlightened Ruler. Mr. Bhoopalam paid high home tributes to Sir M. Visvesvaraya and Sir Mirza M. Ismail for tremendous progress achieved in the industrial policy of the State.

By another resolution the conference constituted a Working Committee with Mr. Bhoopalam as President, Messrs. B. Chandrashekhara Shetty and S. B. Manjanath as Secretaries, while Mr. G. V. S. Manu-lal as Treasurer with thirteen others as members.

Demand for the ceded districts to be given back to Mysore and resolutions strongly opposing Pakistan and Dravidism were passed.

The Session concluded with the singing of the Mysore National Anthem.

originally anticipated and Rs. 5000 realised during 1938-39.

The total receipts and payments on account of service and left heads aggregated to Rs. 505.90 lakhs and Rs. 513.40 lakhs respectively and the cash balance at the close of the year stood at Rs. 149.05 lakhs. The payments included a sum of one lakh of rupees graciously donated by His Highness the Maharaja to the Mysore War Relief Fund.

The total face value of securities of different kinds held at the close of the year, including shares of private companies, was Rs. 400.49 lakhs (583.81 lakhs on 30th June 1939), the large decrease being due to realisation and sale of securities and their reinvestment in short term investments.

The outlay on capital works not charged to Revenue to end of June 1940 amounted to Rs. 1.85 lakhs (Rs. 1.510 lakhs) while the liabilities, an account of Public Debt and Unfunded Debt at the end of the same period stood at Rs. 1,446 lakhs (Rs. 1,421 lakhs).

It should be noted that this report covers the period up to the end of June 1940, and as such we do not find in this, mention of the late Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar's death and Pattabhishekam of Sri Jayachamarajawodeyar Bahadur.]

NO BRITISH INTERVENTION IN IBERIAN PENINSULA

Mr. R. A. Butler Replies In Commons

Rumours of intended British intervention in Spain and Portugal are devoid of foundation declared Mr. Butler, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Butler in the House of Commons.

They are put out by German propaganda agencies with the object of stirring up feeling against Great Britain among Spanish and Portuguese peoples and of lurching the German plans for penetration in the Iberian Peninsula. It is the earnest hope of the British Government that these German plans will be frustrated and Spanish and Portuguese will be spared the miseries of war.

THE SEARCH FOR NEW INDUSTRIES

MYSORE BOARD OF INDUSTRIES IN ACTION

Bangalore, May 1
 The Board of Industries and Commerce in Mysore is constantly at work to find out new avenues of industrial enterprise. For example, when the Board met on 30th April, many useful subjects were discussed to further Mysore's industrial effort.

The starting experiments on the manufacture of electric motors, starters, switch-boards, panels etc., was considered by the Board and was of the opinion that in the interests of the development of local industries this question was very important and the subject therefore was referred to a Sub-Committee for working out further details.

The desirability of floating a Joint-Stock Company for the manufacture of textile machinery in Mysore was examined by the Board. At present there is no factory in India for the manufacture of this type of machinery. Necessary facilities and scope for manufacturing the same exist in the Mysore State. Some private industrialists in the State were actively engaged in bringing the scheme into a working form. The Board resolved that if the promoters of the scheme approached the Government for any facilities, the same may be considered on the merits of the question.

The question of manufacturing vegetable dye-stuffs in the State (especially Khadi shades) appeared necessary as there is a heavy shortage at present on account of the war which has made it difficult, if not impossible, to import the same from foreign countries. It was resolved that further experiments may be conducted in the Forest Research Laboratory where this question was already being pursued.

The question of manufacture of glass bulbs, tubings, rods, etc., was next considered and it was resolved to refer the subject to the Mysore Glass and Enamel Works, Ltd., Bangalore, who were already engaged in this line of industry, for their immediate and active consideration.

The following subjects, namely, the manufacture of Radio sets and of Automobile and Aeroplane sparking plugs were referred by the Board to a Sub-Committee for working out further details.

The desirability of introducing legislation in the State on the lines of the Bombay Industrial Disputes Act of 1938 engaged the attention of the Board. Having regard to the large number of important industrial concerns that have sprung up in Mysore and to the strikes and lock-outs that have become somewhat frequent in recent

MYSORE'S PROGRESS
FOR THE YEAR 1939-40

We have in yesterday's issue published a brief summary of the Administrative Progress of Mysore for the year ending 30th June 1940.

Mysore has on all hands been hailed as a modern and progressive State serving as a model to other Indian States. The market value of Mysore stands high in All-India. We are all proud of our State. The industrial progress of Mysore during the past 25 years has been a matter of sincere appreciation by All-India. In the last 14 or 15 years several new industries have risen in Mysore and have been progressing remarkably.

There are a number of healthy features to be noted in the Administrative Progress of Mysore. In matters of Education, Agriculture, Medical and Sanitation the State has been doing all that is possible under the present circumstances. This is not to say that everything is satisfactory and that we have reached the saturation point of progress. Much remains yet to be done. And in the matter of rural uplift we are yet at the very bottom of the rung of the ladder. The ignorance and illiteracy that rules in villages has been responsible for a good deal of stagnation and rot. Much of the unlightened work that the State has been doing goes without realization by the masses on account of the ignorance and poverty in which they are steeped.

While appreciating all that is being done by the State, we have to tell the authorities that unless they create a sense of self-help and self-reliance in our masses, further progress is well nigh impossible. Our people should be made to feel that their progress and amelioration lies in their own hands and in their own initiative. They should come forward and shoulder responsibilities. Their minds and hearts should be filled with courage and self-confidence. They should be encouraged to go ahead without fear of committing mistakes. It is in the law of nature to commit mistakes and correct them later on. And that way life progresses.

It is with this view and with this objective that great and wise men of all lands and of all times have been advising administrators to transfer power and responsibilities to people. In other words, men have been advising powers that be to establish responsible Government in their regions. Establishment of responsible Government is another mile stone in a country's progress. A democratic system of Government makes for a general leveling up of the standard of intelligence and initiative of a people. A democratic system makes for self-help and self-reliance.

From every aspect we find that people in Mysore are cent per cent fit for full responsible Government. Nothing untoward would happen to the chariot of progress. The apple cart will not be upset. And Government have only to summon up courage and recommend transfer of full powers to people.

In the summary of the Administration report we are told as follows: "Constitutional reforms of a far reaching character were announced in a proclamation of His Highness the Maharaja on the 6th November 1939. These provide for the grant of enlarged powers and privileges for the Representative Assembly and Legislative Council, the widening of the electorate and the appointment of the elected representatives of the people to His Highness' Executive Council." It is not our purpose at present to criticise these reforms again. We have sufficiently criticised them. It is enough for us to say that they do not go as far as the needs and circumstances of Mysore require. Even as it is, if Government adopt a liberal policy and take people's representatives into confidence they can palliate the evils of the defects of the present constitution. Much of the success of the Reforms depends on the choice of Ministers. If the Ministers are gentlemen who command the confidence of people and enjoy their esteem for character, ability and honesty of purpose, something may be achieved. If, on the other hand, the Ministers chosen are communal-minded, selfish and insincere weathercocks more harm than good will result to the country. On no account should Ministries be rewards to people who have been flatterers of the authorities in time and out of time. The very object of the Reforms is to introduce a new element in the Executive Council responsive to popular forces. If those who have always merged themselves in Government and have no views of their own are appointed, it will be a superfluity and sinful waste of public funds. A certain amount of independence of character and judgment is necessary for the new popular Ministers.

We do not desire to judge before hand the new experiment. But we are anxious that as much good as possible should return to people.

It is a happy feature of the administrative progress of the State that its finances are satisfactory. The income has nearly reached the 5 crores point and the expenditure also is gradually rising. We hope that wisdom would guide the policies of Government in the matter of expenditure. In the chart showing the percentage of revenue under group heads to total revenue, land revenue is 29.85 percent and excise is 11.89 percent. We are anxious that the Government should be prepared

BRIGADIER GENERAL WOOD

(From our correspondent)

Mysore, May 2
Brigadier General Wood, Director General of Supplies accompanied by Mr. M. A. Srinivasan arrived here last evening from Ooty. They are staying as guests at the Government House. They visited some of the Industrial concerns to-day. It is learnt they leave for Bangalore to-morrow.

Nursery School

The Mysore Mahila Samaj opened a Nursery School yesterday. Srimati Nagamma sang the prayer and the usual puja was conducted.

Lokasevaparayane K. D. Rukminamma made a short speech explaining the ideals of Nursery School.

Co-operative Staff Association

The Sixth Annual General Meeting of the Co-operative Staff Association Ltd., Mysore took place under the Chairmanship of Mr. Y. Srinivasiah.

Mr. Syed Abdul Rahiman, Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies and Mr. A. N. Rama Rao, Inspector of Co-operative Societies were present.

The President read an interesting paper on the ideals of co-operation and the possibilities of the Staff members to improve their standard and efficiency in the working of the movement.

Some resolutions relating to the welfare of the members were passed.

The following were elected to the Executive Committee of the Association—Messrs K. Ramana Iyengar, S. Narayana Sastry, G. V. Datar, H. R. Channiga Rao, B. V. Krishnamurthy, M. V. Venkataramiah, B. S. Ramakrishnaiah, M. Krishnaappa and H. Chandrasekhara Sastry.

to wipe out the excise revenue in course of time. Regarding land revenue the Government should expect a much lesser percentage as years pass on. There is a good deal of scope for reduction in land tax.

Coming to the side of expenditure, civil administration takes away 11.83 percent. We are of the opinion that there is a good deal of scope for retrenchment under this head. The salaries of Officers should be reduced. The fear that efficiency suffers is groundless.

On the whole there is a good deal for the people of Mysore to be proud of in the progress achieved so far in the matter of administration. In compiling several statistics we would like the authorities to give comparative statistics with a view to knowing the rate of progress achieved. Sir M. Visvesvaraya during his Dewanship was harping on the backwardness of our progress. He used to place before our people the standard of Australia, Canada, Japan, America and other progressive countries. In the matter of Education, Standard of Living, and Earning Capacity how far behind other progressive countries we are, his speeches would show. We wish a similar compilation of statistics even at present to spur up our people to a higher standard of progress.

TUMKUR NOTES HINDU MAHA SABHA

Tumkur, May 2

Yesterday evening, Mr. Hardikar Manjappa, President of the Hindu Maha Sabha, Mysore, delivered an impressive lecture on the Message of Hindu Maha Sabha, under the auspices of the Mahasabha Branch, which was opened here yesterday.

He expounded the policies and principles of the Sabha and stressed the necessity for opening the branches in increasing numbers. By pointing out the duties and responsibilities of every Hindu, at present, he reminded the greatness of Hindus' past and impressed that strength lay in unity by organising bodies as against individual leadership.

Mr. Hardikar urged that the percentage of Hindus in the police and Military Services on population basis should be raised. He condemned the Pakistan movement as a mischievous one causing disturbances. He appealed to people to forget the distinction of caste, creed or community among Hindus and stand united against foreign domination. Finally he advised Hindus to give up panic and desired the youth to train themselves as first class physical-culturgists.

MADRAS MARKET REPORT

(From Our Correspondent)

Madras, May 1

The following is the weekly review of the Madras Market, published by Messrs. Kothari & Sons:

With the further increase in the Political Situation, the market was subject to restricted turnover during the period under review in sympathy with other major markets in India, the local market was also subject to certain amount of selling pressure due to which the price values of some of the prominent shares have been brought down in price, to meet with buyers.
Securities have been dull, as also Banks. Textiles have been erratic and towards the close the prices were mostly in favour of buyers. Plantings were barely steady. Heretofore, due to a certain amount of selling pressure the quotations towards the close have been well below the best.
Papers and Chemicals have been uninteresting. There was no significant change in Sugars. Engineering issues have eased to a great extent. Electrical shares

Mysore Co-operative Department

PROGRESS OF THE MOVEMENT REVIEWED

Bangalore, May 2

Mr. M. Abdul Hukh, Registrar of Co-operative Societies in Mysore, concludes his report of the Administration of his Department as follows:—

It will be noticed that, as usual, the Urban Co-operative Movement has fared better than the societies in the rural areas.
In fact, excepting the Land Mortgage Societies, which have again recorded an appreciable progress, there has not been much improvement in the other rural credit societies. More societies had to be placed in liquidation, while there are still a few more which have to be placed in liquidation sooner or later. There has not been much demand for loans from the Apex Bank from rural co-operative societies, though it was expected that the introduction of the Money Lenders' Act would pave the way for fostering and developing the rural credit agencies like the Co-operative Societies. The most important work that the societies were engaged in was the problem of recovery of the old dues by the adoption of coercive processes. Attempts made to liquidify the frozen debts and revitalise the indebted societies have been successful to some extent and the recoveries to the Apex Bank have improved considerably. Grant of a large number of instalments for repayment of the consolidated dues and enforcement of the punctual repayment of such instalments

in the same way as in the case of the Land Mortgage Societies, at least in the case of long term loans granted by the Apex Bank through the rural societies, requires consideration. The future lines of advance in respect of Agricultural Co-operation are to my mind the expansion of the Land Mortgage Scheme and the development of the marketing of agricultural produce. These are steadily kept in view and an accelerated programme of work has been undertaken. A society for the sale of areca at Shimoga and another for the sale of fruits at Belur, a third for the sale of honey at Saklespur and another for the sale of cocoanuts at Nuggihalli have been organised.
The Ganjam Figs Marketing Society has shown further development. A society for the sale of paddy in the centre of the paddy growing area in the Mysore District is under contemplation and investigations thereof are proceeding. The working of these institutions will have to be watched before fresh ground is attempted to be covered.

NEW APPROACH TO INDIAN PROBLEMS

TIMES' SUGGESTIONS IN A LEADING ARTICLE. Proposals Should Be Critically Examined

Time has come, says Times correspondent in India in a column article, when three sets of proposals now before India should be subjected to a critical examination so that a common denominator may be found.

Commenting upon this in a column article, Times says:—It must be admitted that continuance of India's constitutional deadlock is causing concern in this country and sense of frustration in India.
Recent parliamentary debate in spite of Mr. Amery's excellent speech left Commons in a state what dissatisfied mood as several speakers with abundant Indian experience—Sir George Schuster and Sir Stanley Lee among them—did not entirely agree with the Secretary of State that nothing could be done failing an agreement between the two chief Indian parties.

In India the feeling of appointment prevails among moderate who took part in Bany Conference. While no important constitutional changes be attempted, least of all, in present crisis of war, when Western Members of the are challenging our colonial Mediterranean approaches.
India and the attitude Japan is doubtful, our pendent in India seems that a critical examination proposals of British, Congress and Moderates might lead to discovery of a common basis agreement.

Sapru-Gandhiji Letters

TRAGIC STORY OF SIR SAPRU'S FAILURE

BRING ABOUT INTERVIEW BETWEEN MAHATMA GANDHI AND Mr. JINNAH

MUSLIM LEAGUE LEADER'S INSISTENCE ON GANDHI ASSUMING ROLE OF HINDU LEADER

Sir Sapru has released the correspondence that passed between him and Mahatma Gandhi in connection with his request to Gandhiji to see Mr. Jinnah. The letters disclose that Mr. Jinnah insisted on Gandhiji seeing him as Hindu Leader on behalf of Hindus which Gandhiji could not do.

Allahabad, May 4
Tej Bahadur Sapru released the correspondence between him and Mahatma Gandhi. The correspondence shows that Mr. Jinnah says he showed his heart to Gandhiji and that he had been more accurate in his heart conversation. He had drawn attention to the sentence in his own letter to me: "I have always been ready and willing to see Mahatma Gandhi or any other leader on behalf of the Hindu community and do all I can to help in the solution of the Hindu-Muslim problem." The letter on behalf of the Hindu community which he omitted in his statement but which is found in the letter would go to show that he wanted Mahatma Gandhi to see him in that professed capacity. Mahatma Gandhi as it appears from his letter was in a position to agree to this condition. There the matter ended and it was no use my carrying the matter further with Mr. Jinnah. There was no question of courtesy in my not writing to him and in any case after Mr. Jinnah's speech in Madras and his statement issued two days later I am not prepared to receive any lesson in courtesy from him.

Gandhiji's Letter

Gandhiji writing to Sir Sapru on the 25th January 1941 after reading Sir Sapru's article in the twentieth Century says: "I quite agree with you that we have to settle our domestic troubles ourselves and that without thinking of the British Rulers will accept our demand are not. Having no belief you should know that I actually went to Mr. Jinnah in Bombay and had several talks with him. When Sri Subhas Chandra went but we could make no progress. You perhaps know that I then again I invited my wife to my house in Delhi and when we went together but we could not overcome our differences to any extent. I would go again to Mr. Jinnah but I had no knowledge that my going would cause irritation to him. I cannot crack a joke without exposing myself to being misunderstood. My impression is that he does not want a settlement, till he has consolidated the League position that he can dictate his terms to all parties concerned including Rulers. I do not blame him for having taken up that position if he has. But with this impression it is useless for me to approach him. I often feel like writing to him but lose courage when it comes to the point of taking up my pen but if you have faith why don't you see him without being asked by anybody."

Sir Sapru's Reply

Sir Sapru writing to Gandhiji on 28th January 1941 said: "You are quite right in saying we have to settle our domestic troubles ourselves and that without thinking whether the British will accept our joint demands or not. That has always been my view. I very strongly feel the communal situation is the one question where to everyone of us (particularly you with your influence) have to address ourselves. For, so long as these differences last among ourselves I am afraid real self-government is difficult to achieve and still more difficult to maintain."

Proceeding Sir Tej recalled his meeting Nawab Mohamed Ismail and Nawab Liaquat Ali Khan and said from a discussion with them he was left with the impression though the task of settlement would present great difficulties it was by no means hopeless. I had no talk with Mr. Jinnah on the question of Pakistan. I believe the word Pakistan is a convenient phrase which has been adopted by the Muslim League to cover a multitude of political and constitutional ideas.

'Write to Him Again'

"It is means partition of India then I do not mind saying that I am very strongly opposed to it. If it means reconsideration of certain political ideas and readjustment of some constitutional provisions then I should not rule out their discussion. In any case however for the purpose of conversations intended to achieve communal settlement it would not be right for any party to impose on the other any kind of condition precedent. I can see no reason why Mr. Jinnah should decline to meet you. Not only would it be rude on his part to decline to meet you but it would also put him positively in the wrong if he were to adopt that sort of attitude. You say in your letter that 'he does not want settlement till he has consolidated the League position that he can dictate his terms to all parties concerned including Rulers' and that you often feel like writing to him but lose courage when it comes to the point of taking up my pen. You are however a man of infinite courage and you are big enough to raise superior to petty considerations of conventional character. I see no reason why you should not write to him a perfectly courteous letter—as you always do—telling him that in the interests of country you should like to have an opportunity of meeting him and discussing the whole situation so as to see whether an honourable settlement satisfactory to all parties concerned is possible. If he makes a satisfactory response I think you should take a step forward. That will heighten and strengthen your position and position of Congress and Hindus at large.

"If he makes no response to your request or adopts a truculent attitude that is bound to recoil on his head and on the party he represents. My own belief is the farther away the parties can be from each other the greater is the misunderstanding and more difficult the task of reconciliation. Continuing Sir Sapru says he felt real difficulty as he could not pretend to represent the Congress or Hindus but added that with Gandhiji's permission he could write to Mr. Jinnah suggesting that he should meet Mahatma Gandhi. Sir Sapru added "Speaking for myself I attach not much importance to the general criticism of the British policy that the Secretary of State and the Viceroy have given a veto to the minorities. Whether they have done or not it is up to us to set our house in order and once we have done that, I think we shall have gained strength which it would be impossible on political grounds for any one in Delhi or Simla or White Hall to pave the way for communal settlement where importance Sir Sapru concluded his letter stating that Gandhiji would result

Gandhiji's Reply

Gandhiji replying to Sir Sapru on the 1st February 41 says: "Mr. Jinnah says I can only talk

SOME FURTHER DISCLOSURES

REGARDING AUGUST OFFER AND MUSLIM LEAGUE ATTITUDE

(By Wire) Simla, May, 5
Interesting disclosures are understood to have been made at the recent Allahabad Meeting of the Sapru Committee regarding the part played by Mr. Jinnah in connection with the August offer. It would appear that the expansion scheme as then contemplated was, that there should be eleven members including the Viceroy himself. Three portfolios were to be in the hands of European Officials including the Commander-in-Chief, Defence, Finance and Home. The Muslim League is understood to have agreed to come in but put forward the following conditions. Firstly if Congress came in the Muslim League should get 50%, secondly if the Congress did not come in the Muslim League should get the majority seats. Thirdly, if the Muslim League accepted the offer of office and Congress did not, but later on, if the Congress changed its mind and desired to come in, Congress should not be allowed to come in without the permission of the Muslim League. Mr. Jinnah's contention in support of his last demand is said to have been that the Congress should not be treated on the same footing as the Muslim League which stood by Government in this critical hour.

In his Common's speech last November Mr. Amery had indicated that the Viceroy had felt himself unable to accept the League demands on these points but he did not disclose in exact terms the claim made by Mr. Jinnah.

Extension of Term of the Central Assembly

The announcement is shortly expected announcing further extension of the term both for the Assembly and the Council, which is due to expire in October next.

SITUATION IN TOBRUK

The enemy attack on Tobruk is definitely at a standstill. After four days, consecutive fighting the enemy lost 50 tanks to him as a Hindu for Hindus. I cannot do it. If I write to him that I want to meet him he won't decline to meet me but I know the result. He will immediately distort our meeting. He thinks I am the greatest stumbling block. I, therefore am bidding my time and as soon as I see my way I would certainly seek an interview with him and everybody else. You may have known how he has distorted the present evil disableness of anti Muslim but of course you should pursue the subject after your own style with whom ever you may think fit.

CONVENTION OF MYSORE CONGRESS
LEGISLATORS

It was a happy idea to convene an assembly of the members of Assembly and Legislative Council elected on Mysore Congress ticket, to concert the future plan of action. The meeting was held in Bangalore under the presidency of Congress President Mr. H. Siddaiah who made an eloquent appeal to the newly elected members to conduct themselves in a manner worthy of the institution and its high principles. The very object of the Congress members entering the Legislature is to further the goal of responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. The position of Mysore Congress is to be consolidated still further. It is gratifying to note that in spite of so many obstacles placed in the way of Congress in the last elections, the Congress achieved a notable victory. The time has not yet come to finally assess the strength of the Congress party in the Legislature.

As it stands today the Congress party is the biggest party both in the Assembly and the Council knit by a common bond of discipline and party control. Individual members of the party should remember that as individuals they do not at all count but only as members of the party. We have perused with great interest the draft rules published by Mr. M.A. Gopalaswamy Iyengar for the use of the Congress party both in the Assembly and in the Council. Those rules have been framed on the lines of the old Swaraj Party and the new Congress parties in British Indian Legislatures. The people of the State expect much from the Mysore Congress party both in the Assembly and in the Council. Much depends upon the forethought, tact and sagacity of the leaders of the parties. Some times it becomes necessary to court the favour of independents and non-descripts in the Assembly and the Council to defeat certain moves of Government or to get success for Congress measures.

This is the first time in the political history of Mysore that a well-known popular party would be functioning in the Assembly and the Council. What the attitude of Government would be to this party it is too early to say. Whether they would continue their friendly attitude or try to canvas the support of Congress it remains to be seen. There is the most important question of appointment of Ministers. If, by some means, Congress would accept office there is every indication to show that quite a number of independents and non-descripts would give support to Congress. It is too late in the day to doubt the popularity of Mysore Congress. It enjoys the love, esteem and confidence of the masses. It enjoys the sympathy of the intelligentsia. For some reasons many may not have joined Congress and might have entered the Assembly and the Council as independent candidates. We can expect reasonable support from such people to the Congress party. In case Congress does not accept office and is not enabled to accept office the Congress party would be a strong opposition party. And if the Ministers chosen are such that they do not inspire confidence in the independents and non-descripts it is certain that even these members would support the Congress opposition. And the Ministers may not get reasonable support from the house. These are all probabilities. Much depends upon the policy that the Government pursue hereafter. If with true wisdom and far-sighted statesmanship the Government befriend Congress and start negotiations all would be well for the State and the people. If on the other hand Government with the same obstinacy continue to ignore Congress relying on the support of nincompoops they would be doing injustice to themselves and the people.

We hope the Congress party with the strength it has, would try to use it as constructive a manner as possible. If any reactionary measures come up before the House they should put all their strength together and defeat them.

Mr. H. Siddaiah in his Presidential address yesterday suggested a few urgent legislative measures to be brought before the Legislature. Of these the Trade Union Legislation is the most urgent one. In addition to this there are other ameliorative measures. We hope the members of the Congress party would act in such a manner that it adds glory both to themselves and the institution.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS IN MYSOREConcessions To Depressed Classes
To Continue

Bangalore, May 3
In view of the backwardness of educational and social conditions of the Depressed Classes in Mysore State the pupils of these communities were, as a temporary measure, exempted by the Education Department from the payment of admission and tuition fees in schools. Since the condition of the members of Depressed Classes has not improved appreciably, the concessions granted to the pupils of these communities exempting them from the payment of fees have been continued for a further period of three years from 1941—42.

With the object of preventing malpractice during examinations detailed instructions have been issued to Heads of Schools to impress upon the boys the seriousness of examinations and the penalties imposed in cases of detected malpractice.

Kannada has been introduced as an optional subject under the Humanities group in the S.S.L.C. Scheme from the academical year 1941—42.

"CROOKED AND TORTUOUS"STANDING COMMITTEE
STATEMENT

Mr. Jinnah's Reply To Sir Sapru

(From our correspondent)

Nandi Hill, May 4
Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President of the All India Muslim League, in the course of a further statement issued today to the press states:—

I have ample information to repeat that it was engineered by the agents of the Congress and the Hindu Mahasabha leaders, although well-known and prominent Congress leaders remained in the background and that Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru consciously or unconsciously has allowed his name to be associated with this move. It was an obvious manoeuvre and contrivance designed by a small coterie of men who were anxious to stage it expressly before the India debate which was announced to take place in Parliament after the Easter recess.

The very nature and character of the proposals put forward by this Conference clearly indicate that they were designed to meet the demands of Mr. Gandhi, the Congress and the Hindu Mahasabha, in total disregard of the position of the Muslim League. In fact, it met the Congress—Poona Demand, for "National Government" in effect at the centre and its acceptance by the British Government would have automatically torpedoed the Muslim League demand of Pakistan. Therefore, the objective of this Conference was and its resolutions were intended to make the way smooth for the Congress and to enable Mr. Gandhi to give up Satyagraha and return to normal politics with credit, substantial gain and victory over all others.

All that was aimed at was how best to satisfy Mr. Gandhi and the Congress. The origin and the paternity of the Sapru proposal can easily be traced to the author of the Delhi cum Poona Congress demand for "National Government."

Recently at a public meeting at Trichinopoly, which as reported in the press was held on the 19th April, the leader of the non-Brahmins Justice party, Mr. E. V. Ramaswamy Naicker stated that Sir Tej Bahadur had no intention of ever convening a conference to end the deadlock, but that it was at the instance of Mr. K. Srinivasan, Managing Editor of The Hindu who in turn was pressed by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari to prevail on Sir Tej to convene a meeting and pass a resolution which was to all intents and purposes drafted by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari. I wish Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru had followed the sound advice of Sir Chimanlal Setalvad and not allowed his name and reputation to be exploited by those who were behind the move.

Evidently Sir Tej Bahadur is still living in the atmosphere of the Round Table Conference. He does not realise that since then much water has run down the Ganges and when he appeals to the British Government to take the initiative and impose a constitution upon India, he is at least a decade behind on the other hand, he himself says "during the R.T.C. discussions when Mr. Ramsay MacDonald consulted me about the communal award I told him pointblank that if I were the British Prime Minister, I should not take the responsibility and yet notwithstanding the fact that there was no agreement between the Hindus and the Muslims, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's Government which consisted also of conservatives went on with their scheme, gave first the communal award and then introduced the India Bill." What has happened to Sir Tej to deviate from the wise and statesmanlike advice which he gave to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the then Prime Minister? Does he now desire that the British Government should force or impose a constitution interim or final, although there may be no agreement between the Hindus and the Muslims? In fact Sir Tej should be the first to appreciate that the Muslim League has succeeded in persuading the British Government by means of their representation and correspondence that the whole constitutional field should be re-examined and that no change interim or the adoption of any final constitutional scheme should be decided upon by the British Government without the approval and consent of Muslim India. That was precisely the statesmanlike advice which Sir Tej Bahadur tendered to the then British Prime Minister when he unfortunately failed. What is the use of Sir Tej Bahadur asking the British Government to go back on their solemn pledge given by them in their declaration of policy dated August 8 which would be considered by Muslim India as a gross breach of faith with them? What is the use of appealing to the British Government to impose any interim or final constitution contrary not only to the wishes of Muslim India and other powerful minorities and the Indian States but in the teeth of their opposition? To say that the Indian problem as it exists today will defy any solution if solution depends on Indian efforts is to argue ourselves out of court with our claim for freedom and independence. If we cannot agree upon a scheme of constitution how on earth are we going to manage together or run any kind of sovereign or independent Government?

Decision by majority is not so much of the essence of democracy as a practical convenience which presupposes for its proper working an antecedent general consent to the constitution itself. It has indeed in most federal constitutions been limited in various ways in order to safeguard the separate interests of the federating elements. To describe the need for such agreement as a veto on constitutional progress is, I think, to do an injustice to the patriotism and sense of responsibility of those concerned. Agreement means not veto by any element but compromise and willingness to compromise.

Further, it is recognised that Muslim India are a separate constituent factor in any future Indian policy entitled to be treated as such in any discussion for the shaping of India's future constitution and it, as other elements, is not to be regarded as mere numerical minorities.

No constitutional scheme for India will be free from difficulties. The question is which scheme is fraught with the least amount of difficulties. I am afraid Mr. Amery's reference to the Balkan States and his reference to Indian history of the 18th Century are totally irrelevant. He had better study the history of Ireland which is nearer at

POULTRY BREEDING IN MYSORE Government Sanction Formation of New Association

Bangalore, May 4
The Government of Mysore have passed orders sanctioning the proposal of the Directorate of Agriculture for starting an organisation for the State called the "Mysore Poultry Association."

For sometime past it has been felt that an Association is necessary primarily to help to private people and the raiyats in the matter of obtaining first-class stock poultry for purposes of breeding and production of marketable eggs. One of the most important duties of the Association will be to find a better market for all eggs from improved strains of poultry belonging to private poultry breeders and to popularise poultry farming as a side industry by affording special facilities to run a commercial hatchery to the members who want number of chickens of similar age for the purpose of obtaining a fowling stock and to purchase feed like concentrates, etc., wholesale on a co-operative basis.

The income derived from membership of the Association will be applied solely for the promotion of the objects of the Association and bona fide expansion connected with the activities of the Association that no profit will be utilised directly or indirectly to the benefit of the individual member. Many poultry farmers and backyarders have agreed to become members of the Association and many others are expected to become members when the Association is started as poultry shows have become popular in India.

A subvention of Rs. 10,000 has been sanctioned by the Government for one year to the Association and necessary provision will be made for the purpose in the budget of the Civil Veterinary Department for 1941—42.

Now with regard to the statement issued by the Standing Committee composed of Mr. Amey, Sir Sapru, Mr. Shiva Rao (who is supposed to be the joint secretary) and last but not the least, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, the Secretary of the crooked and tortuous movement and in certain perversion of truth in attacks all round made by the Muslim League and the whole burden of the statement is directed against me as Charles

They complain that the British Government have gone wrong on their declared policy of having understood the declaration of August 8 and they indulged in complete misrepresentation of the Muslim League and say that it does not represent Muslim India which is true to their knowledge. The statement is a worthless attempt intended purely for the purpose of propaganda to mislead the ignorant and to mislead people in India who would not have taken notice of it if the name of Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru were not associated with it.

CONVENTION OF MYSORE CONGRESS LEGISLATORS

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS OF Mr. H. SIDDAIYA

ADDRESSES OF HOUSES ELECTED

Bangalore, May 5
Responsible for you to utilise opportunities in the Legislature to push the constructive programme through. Each of you has a special responsibility as a member of the great political organisation to which we all belong. We have just emerged from the Vinoba Nagar Session and we took an important decision. We have resolved to draw power from the bottom and not from the top by creating a contact with the people.
I have sworn that the constructive programme is the very life of our faith and existence and now to make up our minds to redeem these assurances. I would therefore expect each of you to be a habitual wearer of Khadi, to have faith in Swadeshi, and to be a regular spinner. Let us remember that a faithful pursuit of the Constructive Programme by individual raises his status, and make him equipped for service and power in the cause of the freedom of this country. Thus by persistent and patriotic conduct within the Legislature and in exemplary lives without it will be helping the Congress in its power and influence and essential for the realisation of our objective, viz. the achievement of full responsible government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. This address was made by Mr. H.
Siddaiya, President, Mysore Convention, in declaring open the first session of the Congress Legislators of the Mysore Representative Assembly and Legislature yesterday morning at Channarayana Choultry Bangalore.
Congressmen from different parts of the State who had been invited to the Legislature attend
the Convention.
Mr. K. T. Bhashyam, Ex-president and Chairman of the Reform Committee in a short address speech welcomed the members of the Legislature to the Convention.
In declaring open the Convention
Mr. Siddaiya said:-
"I consider this a privilege to address you to this Convention and it is a great pleasure to have here so many of you from different parts of the State.
I also congratulate you on your signal victory you have won for the Congress at these elections fighting heavy and arduous forces."

This Convention reminds me of a similar gathering that met at Mysore on the 19th and 20th of October, 1937 in pursuance of a resolution of the Indian National Congress passed at its Faizpur Session. I will recall to you a resolution which it bears witness that this Congress resolved that after the elections to the Provincial Legislatures a Convention shall be held consisting of Congress members of the various Provincial and Central Legislatures and such other persons that the Working Committee might decide upon inviting and that this Convention shall put the demand for the Constituent Assembly in the fore-front and will consider what steps should be taken in the Legislatures to give effect to the policy laid down in the Congress Election Manifesto, Congress resolutions and the decisions of the All India Congress Committee. It would be interesting to point out that the present situation is in a measure analogous to that obtaining in British India then. It would, therefore, be the primary object of this Convention to declare the objective of the Mysore Congress and to give an assurance that our future programme shall concern itself principally with implementing it, and generally to emphasize various decisions that we have taken on the question of Reforms, our immediate programme and kindred matters. You are also aware that there was a similar Convention of the Congress members of the District Boards at Nanjangud about this time last year when we formulated our common policy and programmes.

103 in R. A. and 16 in L. C.

It is now well-known that we have secured 103 seats in the Assembly and 16 in the Legislative Council. I need not recount to you the various obstacles that you had to contend against at every stage and at every turn before we secured this result. It is regrettable that the just demand of the Congress to have a free and fair election was not conceded.
In many places Government officers, high and low, abused their position, power and influence to coerce people to vote against our candidates.
Election propaganda was hampered by a series of Prohibitory Orders. Victimisation of Patels, Shanbhogues and others for alleged support to the Congress candidates during the last District Board elections was held out as a deterrent before the elector during these General Elections. Officials openly aligned themselves with the candidates that were opposing us and canvassed support for them. The notices of candidature of a large number of our candidates were rejected on flimsy grounds and there remained no prompt or easy remedy against the same. This seems to be unprecedented in the history of any country. That nevertheless we have been able to secure a pre-eminent position in the Assembly and in the Council is a matter upon which we may well express general satisfaction. You have braved official opposition and come out victorious. So have the voters of Mysore done. So indeed have the people throughout the State demonstrated courage and determination to stand by the Congress. I desire to express my admiration for them and my heart felt gratitude.

Services of Mr. Bhashyam

I would be failing in my duty if I did not refer to my distinguished predecessor Shri K. T.
Bhashyam whose untiring zeal and energy have done so much for the success of the Congress in the elections. To the Chairman and Members of the Parliamentary Sub Committee and of the District Adhoc Committee and others who have co-operated with them in this work I am specially indebted.

Result Of Elections

The result of the elections is important from many points of view. We have secured many seats in the Urban as well as Rural areas. We have captured some of the seats reserved for Special interests. We have succeeded in getting all our Women candidates returned to the Assembly and the Council. Most of them have been returned unopposed. Moreover it has been shown that our electorate are guided more by considerations of principles and policies than anything else. That the voters have voted irrespective of communal considerations is a matter that deserves special mention. Further the people have exhibited courage and a great measure of political awakening in these elections.

Notable Reverses

It is no doubt true that we have had some notable reverses.
These to a great extent at least may be attributed to official interference and pressure, the lack of a free and fair election and the general atmosphere brought about by hostile official attitude.
The introduction of the system of the cumulative vote had also placed us under a disadvantage.
It fanned communal passions in some places. The assurance of the Dewan on the floor of the Assembly to introduce the colour box system was not implemented.

Election Manifesto

A word about yourselves.
You have asked for the suffrage of the people on the basis of the Congress Election Manifesto and your success at the polls is a striking testimony of the response of the people to the policy and programme embodied therein.
The electorate in Mysore is a small per cent of our people.
But every body has to admit that deeper we go, the greater is the hold of the Congress. Let us therefore remember that we have placed this Election Manifesto not only before the electors but also before the general public. You would naturally desire to use your opportunities in the Legislatures to serve the people. To secure them bread is as important as to secure them power. We have thus a two-fold objective.

Disinterested Service

Let me recall to you the decision we took at Vinoba Nagar last month. We reiterated our vital objections to the Reforms and declared that if the Congress was represented on the Legislatures it was for the sake of getting what advantage was possible for the people and consolidating the Congress position Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. I remember, therefore, exhort you to remember his resolve and to conduct yourselves in the Legislatures in a manner and with a nearer the goal Congress expects you to concentrate every ounce of your energy in the disinterested service of the people. You have well-defined programmes before you and in the measure in which you achieve success lies the glory of our future.

Legislative Programme

There is first the legislative programme. You are aware that reactionary legislation has been enacted sometime ago in the teeth of general opposition. The Public Security Act, The Press
Act, The Contempt of Courts Act, The Election Offences and Enquiries Act and the like that were widely condemned have been placed on the Statute Book.
You will have to seek their abrogation or amendment as the case may be. These measures have jeopardised healthy and vigorous public life in the State.
Again there is a whole mass of legislation like the Land Revenue Code, the Income Tax Act,
the Money Lenders' Act, Irrigation Act and the like that affect the social, the moral and the material well-being of our people. You will have to show a special aptitude in securing revision of this mass of legislation as to make it more humane, equitable and helpful to the village community and to people in general. These responsibilities will naturally entail on you tact and determination as much as study and perseverance.
In addition you have the need for introducing fresh legislation that will bring Mysore into line with other progressive countries. The need for creating a nexus between Labour and Capital cannot be sufficiently emphasised.
Trade union legislation is long over-due in Mysore. Similarly legislation for granting relief to the poor and the unemployed, for introducing social improvement schemes, for reconstructing the village economy, for removing untouchability etc has to be undertaken. I have merely indicated herein the lines of advance that have to be explored.

Constructive Programme

Then you have the constructive programme. It is possible for you to utilise your opportunities in the Legislatures to push the constructive programme through. Each of you have a special responsibility as a member of the great political organisation to which we all belong.
We have just emerged from the Vinoba Nagar Session where we took an important decision. We have resolved to build power from the bottom and to achieve this by creating a living contact with the people. We have sworn that the constructive programme is the very article of our faith and existence. We have now to make up our minds to redeem these assurances. I would therefore expect every one of you to be a habitual wearer of Khadi, to have abiding faith in Swadeshi, and to be a regular spinner. Let us remember that a faithful pursuit of every constructive programme by individual raises his moral status, and makes him better equipped for service and sacrifice in the cause of the freedom of his country. Thus by your persistent and patriotic efforts within the Legislature and by your exemplary lives without it you will be helping the Congress to gain in its power and influence. These are essential for the realisation of our objective, viz. the establishment of full responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja.

Organise Parties

You have also met here to organise the parties in the two Houses of Legislature. I am sure you will exercise great cir-cumspection and tact in choosing your executives. I have every hope you will work as well knit and disciplined groups enjoying mutual trust and understanding and thus earn universal appreciation.

Uncertain Times

Friends, we are living in uncertain times. We are not sure what tomorrow has in store for us. And as the dominant political party of a premier State we have special responsibilities that call for our very best efforts and sacrifices. You are aware that the attitude of the Government continues to be as unfriendly as ever. I would ask you to remember that we are still soldiers on the march and not legislators at rest. Our journey is long and arduous.
May we reach our destination sooner than we yet fore-see.

VANDEMATHARAM.

Mr. T. Siddalingaiya moved the following resolution:

"This Convention of the Congress members of the R.A. and L.C. offers its grateful thanks to the voters and the general public for their magnificent support to the Congress candidates in the recent General Elections. That this support was given despite considerable official interference and even intimidation is a matter for high appreciation and profound satisfaction."

This Convention declares that the present numerical position of the Congress in the Legislature is not a correct index of the real strength of the Congress in the country as many more Congress candidates would have been returned but for the hostile attitude of the Government. Faulty preparation of Voters' list, prevention of several Congressmen from standing for elections by the imposition of disqualifications, extraordinary and unfair methods adopted by the Officers in several places at the time of setting up of candidates, rejection of nomination papers of a large number of Congressmen, open canvassing by Government agencies for independent as against Congress candidates, adoption of unjust and questionable devices at the polling booths by presiding and polling officers and in some cases even at the time of counting by the Returning Officers all these and several other factors militated against a free and fair election and contributed to the failure of the Congress Candidates in many cases. It may be noted that the above conduct and attitude of the Government was adversely criticised by the Press and public outside Mysore also.

This Convention offers its heart-felt sympathy to those colleagues who did not succeed under the above circumstances and congratulates them on unflinchingly standing by the Congress in spite of such tremendous odds."

Mr. V. Venkatappa seconded the resolution.

The resolution was carried without any discussion.

Mr. K. Changanarayana Reddy moved the following resolution:

"This Convention of the Congress members in the Legislature has taken note of the resolution passed by the Open Session of the Congress at Vinoba Nagar declaring the Congress attitude to the Reforms and defining the policy that the Congress members should pursue in the legislature."

The resolution, while declaring the vital objections of the Congress to the Reforms has stated that the Congress has catered the legislatures "for the sake of getting what advantage is possible for the people regarding the goal of Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja."

This Convention resolves that the Congress Parties in the legislatures should strive to utilise every opportunity in the legislature to press for the carrying out of the constructive programme as enunciated in the Election Manifesto and also otherwise promote measures which are beneficial to the people

The Convention desires to emphasise that the main objective of the Congress is the attainment of Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness and that it is the duty of the Congress Parties in the two Constitutional Bodies to keep that main objective before their minds eye and to act so as to consolidate the position of the Congress at every stage for the realisation of that objective.

This Convention desires further to state that the sphere of duties of the legislators should not be confined to the legislature only. The work in the legislature should be coordinated with work outside and constant endeavours will have to be made to educate and mobilise public opinion in favour of the realisation of the objective and the carrying out of the programme of the Congress as all effective work in the legislature should have the sanction of the people behind it.

Mr. K. T. Bhashyam seconded the resolution. Mr. A. G. Ramachandra Rao further supported the resolution. The resolution was passed without any discussion.

Then the convention adjourned for the afternoon.

Punjab Trade Strike

Release of Satyagraha Prisoners

IS IT CONTEMPLATED?

Interesting Report in Simla (From Our Own Correspondent)

Simla, May, 5
It is likely that the Viceroy will take an early opportunity to make a broadcast to the people. The fact that the Viceroy's opinion instead of taking Mr. Amery's speech as the last word is expressing itself strongly in its implications may be regarded as significant. 'Times' usually acts as an apologetic White Hall has come out in censure of Mr. Amery's policy and warns the Government that the present untidy state of affairs should be allowed to crystallise.

A mystery which remains is that while Sir Sapru has a distinct impression that his proposals had been officially received by His Excellency and expected to be taken up for a further talk, Mr. Amery chose to bang the drum against all further action in a manner which shocked even moderates. 'Times' has in suggesting a new policy with the aid of new men, not clear but it is believed to have a reference to proposals emanating from high quarters that the Viceroy should convene a Conference of Provincial Premiers and Congress Premiers in order to discuss with them all the points of proposals; August Congress proposal and scheme.

In connection an interest- ing report which has reached that certain Provincial Governments are considering the possibility of releasing all political prisoners and adopting a new policy to deal with the experience gained particularly in the Provinces like the Punjab. If this materialises there is no reason why an opportunity should not be availed of for the Government for trying to deal with the issue raised by the Punjab in a proper spirit and understanding with the people. As Gandhiji has made it clear that he has no intention of interfering with war production the problem is analogous to the conscientious objection problem and can easily be solved. It is also a problem which a Conference of Provincial Premiers could take up.

MUSLIM LEAGUE SECRETARY

Defends Mr. Jinnah

New Delhi, May 5
Nawabzada Liaqat Ali Khan, Secretary, All India Muslim League, in the course of a statement says: Hindu leaders and Hindu Press have been accusing Mr. Jinnah and Muslim League day in and day out of wanting settlement of communal problem thus being an obstacle in the way of India's political advancement. The correspondence which took place between Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jinnah on the one hand and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Gandhiji gives direct lie to those false accusations and unfounded allegations. The perusal of the correspondence should remove the false impression created in the minds of those others also who have through ignorance or malicious propaganda in Hindu press have been under the impression that the blame for not making the attempt at finding a solution of communal problem lies equally on the shoulders of both Mr. Jinnah and Gandhiji. No fair-minded person whose judgement is not warped can, after reading the correspondence justifiably charge the Muslim Leader with intractability.

INDIAN TROOPS IN ASMARA

BOLD ADVANCE

Simla May 5

Indian troops says a Press note have now advanced some 250 miles south of Asmara into the heart of mountainous, vastness and fastness of Northern Abyssinia. The advance continues along winding tracks up the sides of peaks some of which rise to over 10,000 feet and through deep gorges where the enemy uses every advantage given to him by terrain in a series of desperate delaying actions. Mountain Amba Alagi which is the present objective of the Imperial forces towers to 1,100 and over and is approachable only by one road. Bridgehead of this road was rapidly secured by a squadron of Indian mechanised cavalry. Laconic description of this action by one of those who took part therein says, "In the raid at the dawn we moved forward and reached Bridgehead with much opposition. Enemy opened the machinegun fire which we silenced with counterfire. Troops then went forward and secured a feature overlooking the area and was quickly reinforced. Colonial troops though few in number tried to counter-attack but broke this up with machinegun fire. Active clearing of road blocks and other obstacles by Indian sappers and miners continues and these devoted men constantly risking lives to maintain speed of our advance. Meanwhile, Indian units in Asmara fraternising with local population are buying souvenirs, visiting cafes and cinemas. After weeks spent in the field and many hard-fought actions they are finding at Asmara a centre of life and welcome change to heat wherein they had to live and fight in Sudan and Western desert. All these troops are in good heart and health.

Germans Disappointed

REACTIONS TO HERR HITLER'S SPEECH

Germans asked to make more Weapons Next Year

Herr Hitler's boast of having used only 4 divisions of his troops against Empire troops in Greece has been refuted by Military Spokesman in London. Military Spokesman also refuted Hitler's estimate of his losses in the Balkan campaign at 5000 casualties including over 1000 killed.

It is pointed out that German broadcast was more candid when the announcer described the triumphal march of German troops into Athens stating there were many missing and went on to speak of heavy sacrifices.

Listeners in United States noticed particularly that Hitler did not mention the possibility of German victory in 1941. On the contrary Hitler urged the German people to make a new effort to produce better weapons next year.

The Swiss radio observed the speech must have disappointed the Germans who were promised the end of the war this year.

The Moscow newspapers published only a summary of Hitler's speech and omitted references to Turkey and disparaging remarks about Mr. Churchill.

The News Chronicle's New York Correspondent writes: It is reported that the question of a unified command which would enable information on the whereabouts of submarines and raiders picked up by American warships to be handled by a central authority which could both warn merchant ships and advise the British forces with a minimum delay is now being discussed by the Canadians.

Lahore H. Court Ruling

"Mr. JINNAH IS ANGRY AND WORRIED"

"HE REALISES CHALLENGE TO HIS AUTHORITY"

SIRSAPRU'S EFFECTIVE REPLY TO Mr. JINNAH

Allahabad, May 6

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru in a lengthy reply to Mr. Jinnah reiterates "I can say the resolution as laid before the Conference was drafted by Sir Jagdish Prasad and revised by the Committee appointed by the Conference and finally approved by me. What other information was available to Mr. Jinnah whereon his suspicions are founded I don't know but it is the most unbecoming conduct on the part of a public man—more so in the case of a leader of an organisation to rely upon rumours and on the basis of those rumours to characterise the statement of the Standing Committee as "crooked and tortuous and in certain parts perversions of truth." He tried to cover up his weakness of his position by bitterness of his phraseology but it is not difficult to see his mind excited, his pride wounded and he is suffering from dearth of rational arguments."

Sir Tej adds: It is clear that Mr. Jinnah is angry and worried—he is angry because people crossed his path and challenged his supremacy. He is worried because the Bombay resolution attracted so much notice in the House of Commons. Even though Mr. Amery has not at present agreed to accept the suggestions of the Bombay Conference the fear cannot apparently be excluded by Mr. Jinnah's mind that something may yet be done on its lines because Sir George Schuster's later speech shows a change in the feeling in the English public towards India. Mr. Jinnah finds himself at bay and that must account for intemperance and at places vitriolic language which he used in denouncing the Bombay Conference.

Surely this is not the spirit which should be carried on. This is the spirit of an angry man who has long played the part of a Dictator but who realises challenge to his authority daily growing and chances of his favourite theories and schemes being accepted by others including the British being imperilled every day.

"Neither independence nor communal unity is possible without ample sacrifice and self-confidence which is but another name for faith" says Mahatma Gandhi in a statement on the recent communal riots. Referring to the Hindu-Muslim disturbances, Gandhiji says: "Congress influence seems to have been practically unfeeling during the dark days."

If Congress has no control over masses on such occasions there is not much value in the Congress non-violence as a positive force. The Congress cannot take charge of Government if the British suddenly withdraw. They are not likely to do without a desperate effort.

RUSSIAN DISCLOSURE OF NAZI OFFER

GERMANS CONSIDER IT A "NASTY PIN-PRICK"

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph's Hel sinki correspondent cables:-

Berlin messages report German anger at the disclosure by the official Soviet organ Pravda of the German offer to the Soviet to join the Tripartite Pact

While the disclosure is not expected to affect existing relations the Germans say that this "indiscretion" does not encourage the Axis to make further offers to the Kremlin

German diplomacy's fundamental principles, it is claimed, are based on inviolable secrecy. Consequently Pravda's "indiscretion" represents a breach of confidence which, while not dangerous, is a nasty pin-prick.

Berlin asserts that the world is puzzled by a diplomacy which permits Russia faithfully to fulfil her economic obligations towards the Reich and at the same time neutralise them by spiteful pin-pricks.

By Pravda's disclosure, it is said, Russia has definitely lost an opportunity to participate in the creation of the 'New Order'.

THE DISTRICT CONFERENCES

A feature of the times is the revival of District Conferences in the Mysore State. These were revived three years ago. We have been receiving reports of the proceedings of these Conferences. It is usual either for Members of Council or for Heads of Departments to preside over these Conferences. The Deputy Commissioner of the District gives a brief account of the work done during the year. A number of subjects are discussed. Along with these District Conferences are held Taluk Conferences too. Since it is not non-official gentlemen are asked to preside over the Taluk Conferences. A time may come when over the District Conferences also would preside non-official gentlemen.

The one fact that we have to bear in mind in connection with these Conferences is that they are held under official auspices. Any activity which smacks of opposition to officials has no place in it. A number of correspondents have written to us that these Conferences are engineered more to canvass support to Government and officials than to relieve the distress of the people. In a way these Conferences are held to rally the rural folk round the official banner.

In the very nature of these Conferences held under official auspices there is no scope for independent discussion of official policies and measures. It is well known that in the wake of the rise of the Congress movement in the State and as a result of the effective and impressive propaganda of the Congress, the masses were awakened and attracted to the Congress platform. Congressmen who were adepts in propaganda canvassed a good deal of support to the movement from the masses. The Government felt that they also should get down to do propaganda and attract masses to their schemes and measures. It is as a result of this idea that the District Conferences and the Taluk Conferences under the auspices of officials was conceived. In the Conferences held in the last two-three years, officials and their spokesmen indulged in a lot of vituperation and vitriolic propaganda against Congress and its activities. All sorts of undesirable and untold things were said of Congressmen. People were full of complaints against these conferences. It looked as if the main aim of these Conferences was to counteract and eliminate the progress of Congress. In judging from the results, the Congress movement could not be checked in that way. And it progressed from strength to strength and today in spite of official disapproval the Congress movement moves the love and esteem of the masses.

We have shown how these District and Taluk Conferences came into being and what work they have been doing. But this year we have received written addresses of some Deputy Commissioners in connection with these Conferences. We find that there is not so much of anti-Congress propaganda in it. We wish these Conferences all usefulness. If they are held under non-official auspices much more good would result to the people.

It is to be seen if these Conferences deserve to continue it all. We have Panchayats, District Boards, District Education Committees, Municipalities and so on. Above all, we have the Assembly and the Council. In the midst of so many bodies are these Conferences necessary at all? We are having District Conferences of political bodies like Mysore Congress and Rasthra Sabha. These will be able to pool the popular complaints together and send them on to Government for needful redress. And as such why this superfluity of District and Taluk Conferences under official auspices? The Government would be doing their duty if they encourage non-official initiative and enterprise. If they give greater freedom to people to talk and move and encourage deserving cases, the Government will be doing more than their duty. We offer this suggestion for the consideration of Government to see if these Conferences may not be discontinued from next year. The new Reforms will have come into being and Popular Ministers will be in charge of portfolios directly dealing with the rural population and, in the changed circumstances there is ample opportunity for Government to come in direct contact with individual ryots. After all that Government is the most popular which comes in individual contact with the people, and not in masses. Anyway we are of the opinion that whatever good these District Conferences may have done in the past, there is no useful purpose served in continuing them in future under official auspices.

EXTREME DEMANDS OF MR. JINNAH

IN RECONSTRUCTION OF THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

Viceroy's Refusal

New Delhi May 4

There are one or two favourable factors in the present distressing situation which must needs be borne in mind. The right of the Muslim League to raise the Pakistan issue at the time of the constitutional discussions after the war has apparently not been questioned, but the Secretary of State has spoken quite emphatically about the danger of breaking up Indian unity. So far as it goes this attitude is welcome but the Secretary of State has overlooked the fact that the greater the insistence which the British Government places on its claim that until the Muslim League agrees no reforms of any kind can be undertaken, the greater is the encouragement offered to Mr. Jinnah to pursue his irreconcilable theories. Another fact to be remembered is that neither of the two demands which Mr. Jinnah put forward last year in connection with the August offer found acceptance so far as the Viceroy was concerned. The first was that if the Congress refused to join the expanded Council of the Viceroy, the Muslim League should be given a majority of seats. As this meant that the minority would be converted into a majority, it was opposed by the Hindu Maha Sabha and other organisations. The second demand of Mr. Jinnah was that if after the Congress had refused and the Muslim League joined the Viceroy's Council, it happened that the Congress changed its mind and wanted to come, the Congress should not be allowed to do so without the consent of the Muslim League. This was not also accepted by the Viceroy. The inference drawn from these facts is that though the opposition of Mr. Jinnah is being used as a convenient excuse for not proceeding with the reconstruction of the Centre, the extreme demands of Mr. Jinnah have not certainly found favour with the authorities. This at the moment appears to be the only cause for satisfaction.

Future Course

Two questions are, it is understood exercising the minds of those connected with the Bombay Conference. The first is the surprising lack of accurate information about India in England. As even the Secretary of State has betrayed his ignorance in several particulars, the point to be considered is what should be done to keep the British public correctly informed of the position in India. This is no easy matter owing to the difficulties in the way of full and correct Indian news reaching England. The second question which is engaging the attention relates to the steps which should be taken to add to the representative character of the Bombay Conference and the authority attached to its demands. It has been suggested that the four Provincial Ministries now functioning in the Country should be prevailed upon to join in the demand for reconstruction of the Centre. In his statement at the Mahabud meeting Sir Tej Bahadur is understood to have referred to the helpful attitude of Sir Sikandar and Mr. Fazlul Haq. There is no reason why an effort should be made to win the support of these two important Premiers as also that of the Premiers of Sind and Assam. It may not be easy even for the Secretary of State to treat the considered demands of these four existing Provincial Ministries with that scant courtesy which he showed to Sir Tej Bahadur's offer. In fact it would have added to the importance of the Bombay Conference if the four Premiers had been associated with it. According to my information all of them will be invited to attend the coming Poona Conference which is expected to meet in July with a much larger attendance.

Punjab Deadline

One cause for concern is the sudden deterioration in the internal situation. In several places there have been communal disturbances undoubtedly a bad sign and a warning for the future. In the Punjab a serious situation as a result of the dispute between the Ministry and the trading community in connection with the Sales Tax Act. The trading community which is very well organised in the Punjab has announced its determination to resist this measure on the ground that the imposition of this tax is unwarranted and unjust. A continued hartal for a month has been declared which is to commence from tomorrow unless in the meantime a eleventh hour settlement is reached. The inconvenience which will be caused to the public by the closure of all shops in the province, both retail and wholesale, for so long a period as one month can well be imagined. The trading community seems to be fairly confident of its strength and unity. On the other hand the Punjab Government has also declared its readiness to take up the challenge of the traders and has definitely told them that it will not allow itself to be brow-beaten or coerced by these threats of boycott and hartal. It is not yet known what plan the Punjab Government has in view to counteract this totally unprecedented situation caused by the boycott. As Simla is in the Punjab area, the Government of India is also directly concerned. A boycott of the magnitude threatened in the Punjab will have so bad an effect on the economic life of the province that something has to be immediately done to settle the dispute.

LABOUR LEADERSHIP MUST RISE TO THE OCCASION

THE OBJECT-LESSON OF THE PRESENT STRIKE

PAVE THE WAY FOR A CLASS-LESS AND WARFARE-LESS MYSORE

(T. L. A. ACHARYA)

... have been misunderstood the other day, when I was about the strike and did not say anything about labour. I suggested that State control of industry in Mysore did mean control in the comprehensive sense of responsibility. I had registered a demand for immediate introduction of labour legislation. I had said that the State itself was answerable in Mysore its responsibility was all the greater as it was the object lessons in social justice for the benefit of the employers. While doing this, I had reserved labour legislation. Now that I have had my say with the Mysore, I go across to Mysore in what is made out to be the other camp.

... must talk to them with all the force at my command. I will put it this way: You have a statutory recognition of the Unionism, statutory machinery for adjudication of claims in the event of a strike, statutory enforcement of certain conditions of life and human conditions and work. Very much more. But what I am surprised at is the way you are about it, pursuing a path which has done nobody any

... the present Minerva-strike. If at the back of your mind, you are thinking of legislation and so on, you must get a leg to stand on. If you want labour legislation, why do you establish the convention of giving notice before you strike, the fifteen days notice law in British India? Is your Union is not really blessed? I know you have given notice and acted in an exemplary manner, socially responsible manner, would have made the force of your demand for legislative reference fool-proof and strongly irresistible. You say Changalagadhy said so, too that your Union is not "re-acted." Did the Bangalore Union call the strike? A notice of strike given by the Union? Was there, for instance, a secret ballot, at which the members of the Union voted for the strike?

... the right to strike carries with it the duty not to strike as a final and extreme remedy. The right to strike irrevocably carries with it social responsibility. The right to strike irrevocably carries with it the duty to negotiate, to persuade. In the case of the latest essay, the Government and the employer would have negotiated through the Union. It would have forced the hands of the Government and the Employer to "recognise" the Union. You want the Union to be a force you have to make it powerful by being reasonable. The right to strike is a Democratic not a Fascist weapon.

Talking of Strikes: When the Binny Mill Strike was in progress, a couple of months ago, I happened to attend a few of the meetings and heard a couple of the Strike leaders' perorations. One of them promised a Soviet type of dispensation only if the Strikers stuck to their guns and did not give in either to the pressure of hunger or of interested out-siders. There was quite a lot of such bald-dash mouthed by the speakers. I am a good student of Russia and even theoretical marxism and I know, I can tell my friends that in Russia's Workers' State today, if you strike you end up in Siberia; in Mysore, if you strike, and have the good sense to strike only if you must, you may get your grievances redressed.

I would like to know why no responsible Union Officer has come out with an authoritative public statement on the strike. Does it mean the Union has failed to keep its men and the strike has been called behind the back of the Union and without its express sanction?

I know Mysore will be in a terrible mess without labour legislation, what with her meteoric industrial rise. The first to suffer will be our labour force. The State in Mysore has two sides to it; it is a Government on one side and a Government employer on the other. Labour must force the Government's hands to prepare the legal structure for industrial peace and prosperity. But labour must behave and show the way. The Government is interested and active. The Government Employer may be hesitant. It behoves labour to set up helpful and desirable, conventions so that the transition from unregulated capital-labour relations to regulated capital-labour partnership will be one in which the sense of prestige or importance of either side is not hurt. You must teach the other fellow by your unimpeachable behaviour. You put the employer in the wrong and convince him of his being in the wrong not by being in the wrong yourself, you may put the other man in the wrong but cannot convince him and convict him unless you are yourself in the right, unless you are impeccably in the right.

Let us see what has happened recently. There was trouble at the K.G.F. The Government prevailed upon the management to face the searchlight of an enquiry. Then we had the Binny trouble. Here again, the management had to accept an enquiry. Further, only a few days ago the Dewan intervened and brought peace to the Minerva Mills group. I know in the third case, at the instance of the Dewan, the workers were paid their wages when they had to depose before the enquiring

BRITISH EXPORT TRADE

NOT AFFECTED BY THE WAR

Mr. Fraser to visit Britain

The Secretary of State for British Overseas Trade announced in the House of Commons that export trade of England in no way suffered on account of the war. He said, "while in 1938 Britain exported 417 Million pounds worth of goods our exports during the first year of war amounted to 413 millions. During the first four months of this year our foreign exports have not in any way lessened."

Mr. Atlee, Lord Privy Seal, announced in the House of Commons today that Mr. Fraser Prime Minister of New Zealand is expected to visit Britain shortly. The House cheered the announcement when Mr. Atlee said that war Cabinet would have the benefit of his advice during his stay in the Island.

authorities! The Dewan intervened, but now he has been put in the wrong, just because while the question was being gone into, a strike has come to be on what is an untenable excuse. A man has been sacked. Yes. But do the present strikers know that four men have been dismissed by the Binny Mill authorities, during the period after the strike? Yet there has been no strike at the Binny Mills, why should the Maharaja people go on strike? Has anybody taken care to know why Linga has been sent away? I am not holding a brief for the management. In the same way, as an honest member of society and a friend of labour, I cannot stomach an unlabour labour act.

I am putting it this way because we are living in perilous times. The war has wrecked many assumptions on which we hitherto fed our minds and on which we depended for support. Even as we are, we are both inwardly outwardly shaken. We have to have new supports. What we want in India is an effort to "organise abundance." Europe "organised scarcity" when abundance was possible and is now not only in an agonising mess herself but is dragging us all with it. In Mysore a new tradition could be set up and a new technique adopted. Mysore has resources and Mysore has committed herself to industrialisation. What we want is creative leadership of labour. I have said the Government must be forced to undertake labour legislation in many directions. The Government, it would appear, is in a helpful and responsive mood and inviting to be forced. Labour has to watch its step as it has no mean responsibility with regard to giving legislation the required state and the necessary soul. The primary responsibility for the creation of an atmosphere friendly to the growth of labour legislation and industrial peace rests on the shoulders of labour. Trade Unionism cannot be endowed by legislation. Labour that knows when not to strike is labour that could always have its way.

I want, as I said before, the first act of the new legislature to be a Trade Disputes Act or even a Trades Union Act. Towards that consummation, all the constructive forces in the State must contribute a goodly share. Employers must welcome and accept legislation, while labour must create the conditions in which such legislation will promote a classless, warfare-

SHIMOCA NOTES

SHIMOCA LAND MORTGAGE SOCIETY

Annual Meeting

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, May, 5

The annual general meeting of the Shimoga Land Mortgage Society has held yesterday Mr. Venkoba Rao presiding

In the course of the opening speech Mr. Venkoba Rao referred to the prompt payment of loan instalment by the debtor and said that the society will always be ready to give its helping hand to the needy and deserving and to will show all concessions to those who are regular in repayment. He emphasised the usefulness of relieving the poor agriculturists from their heavy indebtedness and the society will be ready to help them if needy persons approach for loans. Any lack on the part of the debtor in prompt repayment will deter the progress of the institution and it will have to face many odds. In conclusion he hoped that the institution would be popularized by rightful propaganda amongst ryots to serve the noble object of the scheme.

The annual report for 1939-40 was read and recorded along with the Asst. Registrar's remarks on the working of the Society.

Then the Executive Committee for 40-41 was constituted.

MUNITIONS TO BRITAIN

U.S.A. NAVY SHOULD GUARD

Mr. Stimson's Spirited Broadcast To Americans

Immediate use of the United States navy to make the seas secure for the delivery of munitions to Britain was urged by Mr. Stimson, Secretary for war in a broadcast speech to the nation "World is facing so great a crisis that all our efforts must be turned towards the defence of our nation's safety," he declared. "At the outset Mr. Stimson answered some critics who are to-day, calling him a war-monger and who are opposed to America's present efforts of national defence. The fact is that for many years after the great war both as a private citizen and as the Secretary of State I laboured with my full strength for the establishment of the reign of law among nations under which their controversies should be settled by judicial methods instead of by force. There was a time when such a movement seemed full of hope. Today that time has passed-temporarily we trust and our hopes of peace have been dashed by international aggressions."

Mr. EDEN'S TOUR IN MIDDLE EAST

Statement Before The Commons

Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, gave a resume of his tour in the Middle East and said during their conversations with Yugoslavs they were repeatedly told that the Yugoslav army was mobilising but really it was not until coup d'etat that the army began to be called up. But then it was too late. The British Government in accordance with the obligations were pledged to Yugoslav independence.

He then said with that Sir John Dill and General Wavell he went to Greece and after consultations with Greek generals it was thought there was reasonable chance of holding up German advance near the Helikamans. Turkish statesmen had shown loyal friendship and determination to stand up against all threats.

Turkey and Egypt have offered their good offices to settle the Iraq affair but one prerequisite condition for this is the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Habbaniyah aerodrome and round about.

IRAQ AND OIL

The following is taken from John Gunther's "Inside Asia":

Iraq lives on oil mostly, which is pumped mostly from the Mosul fields from the Mediterranean in a double pipeline, one of which is under British control at Haifa, the other in French Syria Revenue from oil royalties pays the bill; Iraq has no deficit, no public debt. The pipeline is an extraordinarily successful engineering feat, built against tremendous difficulties. The oil must be pumped—miles of the most onerous country imaginable. The oil each by Royal Dutch/Shell, Anglo-Iranian, a French group, and a consortium of American companies. The five percent remaining is in the hands of a remarkable American interpreter, G. S. Gulbeknian.

GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARDS RUSSIA

WHY ARE NAZI TROOPS IN FINLAND?

"A Fresh Means Of Applying Pressure"

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph's Diplomatic Correspondent writes: Recently there have been reports that German Forces have lately been transferred from northern Norway to Finland.

I noted this in the Daily Telegraph of April 29 in association with other evidence of German military measure seeming to revive the menace to Russia.

In Berlin neutral observers are quoted as regarding this as the opening shot in a new German nerve war against Russia. Whether the Nazi Forces have been sent up the country, as is further reported, to tamper with the main railway line to the Finno-Swedish frontier at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, is not known in London.

If Germany had decided that the time had come for Sweden to be brought formally into the "New Order" the presence of Nazi troops in Finland could be used as a powerful instrument of persuasion. On the other hand any considerable German concentration in Finland could be certainly interpreted by Moscow as an implied threat to Leningrad and consequently a fresh means of applying pressure.

It may have been no more than a coincidence that Moscow should have chosen this moment to announce a decree prohibiting the transit of war materials across Soviet territories.

MR. KEYNES MISSION TO AMERICA

Problems arising from Lease and Lend Act

(By cable) London
The Daily Telegraph's City Editor cables regarding J. M. Keynes' mission to America:

His mission, which has been undertaken at the request of Sir Kingsley Wood Chancellor of the Exchequer, is to confer with United States Treasury officials and the British Supply Council on problems arising out of the Lease and Lend Act and related matters.

In the City important results are expected from this mission. While in Washington Mr. Keynes will meet Sir Frederick Phillips, the British Treasury Representative, who is already working in close collaboration Nazi Divisions Moved to Finland?

"BACKING FOR NEW POLITICAL DEMAND"

The Position of Soviet Russia (By Cable) London

The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent comments: Following Mr. Churchill's reference in his speech on April 27th to Hitler's possible next move, the position of Russia becomes a matter of importance.

German divisions have been disposed along the new "East Wall" fortifications from the Baltic to the Black Sea for many weeks. The most recent estimate of their strength was 90 divisions.

To these, it has lately been reported, other divisions have been moved from Norway to Finland with the object of extending the pressure right up to the Arctic Ocean and constituting an implied threat to Leningrad.

In accordance with the Nazi principles, these forces have almost certainly been disposed as a backing for some new German political demand, though they would be available for an attack, if Moscow were to prove recalcitrant.

It may be taken as axiomatic that the Soviets will not voluntarily depart from their neutrality, but their spokesmen declare that if Russian territories are invaded—including those incorporated in the Soviet Union since the beginning of the war—the Red army and Air Force will resist with their maximum power.

Russia's main interest is to keep war away from her territories. To this end she has encouraged Turkey to offer resistance to further German penetration in the East.

with Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the United States Treasury.

Although his visit is not strictly connected with the liquidation of Britain's dollar assets, Mr. Keynes will also be in close touch with Sir Edward Peacock, Director of the Bank of England, who is engaged in Washington in negotiating the sale of Britain's direct investments in the United States.

For some months Mr. Keynes has worked at the Treasury in close touch with Lord Catto, Financial Adviser to the Treasury. His compulsory savings proposal for financing the war was adopted in principle in the recent budget.

Gandhi Replies 'Times'

Communal Riots in Bihar

Mahatma Gandhi's Heart-Rending Statement

Wishing Success to Rajen Babu's Efforts

Wardha, May 8
Mahatma Gandhi has issued the following statement to the press on the riots in Bihar: "The reports of riots make painful reading. Babu Rajendra Prasad has gone to Bihar and I know he will give a good account of himself. Peace will somehow be restored if not already by the time the military but this is only the super imposed peace. Rajendra Babu's as every citizen's business is to find out the cause of riots. Unless this is done there is no likelihood of peace."

Observe that the riots were started with resentment over observance of anti-pakistan day. Pakistan and Anti-pakistan observances and the like have come to stay. As national consciousness grows and ambitions rise high, such observances multiply. But why cannot we conduct ourselves decently despite of these? Why should we be so utterly intolerant and show intolerance as if we are magicians.

"I am convinced the chief reason for voluntary preservation of peace lies on the shoulders of the Congress the oldest and the best organised and the most popular organisation in India. But the Congress has to provide the assistance of all parties, Muslim League, Hindu Mahasabha and others. Each may have its political programme but if we are not intent upon imposing our respective programme on our opponents by force of arms expressed today through goondasism surely we may agree that we shall settle all our differences through negotiation and peaceful effort including arbitration. Congress may fail to produce joint action but it will be a noble failure. It must however continue to work even single-handed if its non-violence has any meaning in it."

At present Bihar is the province that can lead the world and set an example. Rajendra Babu has a gentle and unique way of handling things. He is the whole of India put trust in him. May he have too the privilege of being the Messenger of Peace in Bihar and through Bihar may be throughout India.

It is also understood that for the present there is no intention to appoint a petrol rationing officer for India.

MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY IN MYSORE

Interest in London

Secretary of State's Attention Drawn

Bangalore, May 8
Intimation has been received here from responsible quarters in London that the attention of the Secretary of State for India has been drawn to the India Government's hostile attitude towards the proposed Motor Industry and the unanimous cry of the Indian public and the press demanding to treat it as a war industry. It will be recalled that Sir George Schuster, Mr. Arthur Moore and a few other friends recently urged for facilities and State encouragement for speedy industrialisation of India and the settlement of the political question with a view to securing India's full co-operation in war efforts. It will also be recalled that Mr. Walchand Hirachand recently cabled to the Members of Parliament that India Government was still refusing even an indirect encouragement to starting an automobile manufacturing plant. American Defence-Chief's announcement of drastic cut in the production of motor cars has, it seems impressed the friends in London that it is a matter of great significance. It is stated that they take a serious view of the implications of the American restrictions.

As the war is prolonged and intensified and America is being increasingly drawn into it, the reduction in the production would it is believed increase it. It is reported that a considerable section in London takes the view that the Auto mobile industry should be immediately started and treated as a war measure in India. They see no reason why India should not have an automobile factory, when an aircraft industry is established as a war measure in India.

It is learnt that these members have got in touch with the Secretary of State for India. It is understood the Secretary of State will go into this question at an early date.

GANDHIJI REPLIES 'TIMES' COMMENTS

'I AM NOT INCONSISTENT'
(Associated Press of India)

Bombay, May 8
Mahatma Gandhi in a letter to the "Times" London in reply to the paper's argument that the discrepancies where with Gandhiji charges Mr. Amery is also evident in Gandhiji's statement and accusations that India has been emulated because of the alleged policy of keeping her wholly unarmed comes strangely from the arch-protagonist of nonviolence says:

"In 1908 when I first propounded life saving living truth ahimsa, I wrote disarmament is the blackest page in the British history in India. I repeated the same thing in 1918 when collecting recruits for the British army. My statement passed muster then but the Times has changed and I become inconsistent for stating an unchallengeable fact. I suggest nonviolence cannot be imposed on any one but must come from within. The British measure is undertaken to make British rule safe and not make the people nonviolent. It made them impotent even for mischief."

It is not a matter for pride or credit that one representative of the British power can hold in abject subjection thousands of souls. My nonviolence does admit of people who cannot or will not be nonviolent holding and making effective use of arms. Let me repeat for a thousandth time Nonviolence is of the strongest not of the weak. It is a force mightier than violence though radically different from it in quality and effect."

MIDDLE SCHOOL EXAMINATION RESULTS

The results of the Public Examination of the Middle Schools were announced day before yesterday. There was a scramble at the New Public Offices to ascertain the results. Young and tender boys eager to know their fate thronged to that locality. We must say that the authorities could have made better arrangements in the matter of announcing the results. Knowing what human nature is, particularly on such occasions, it is regrettable that our Educational authorities still show a medieval mind in the matter of satisfying the needs of the people. What was worse, it rained and young boys could find no shelter. Is it not possible, we ask of the authorities to make better arrangements in the matter of announcing the results? Why should they announce it at one particular place? We are quite sure that the Director's Office has ample staff and the necessary material to multiply the number of copies and paste them at many places simultaneously. They could have very well pasted the result sheets at the Fort High School, National High School-Basavangudi, Malleswaram High School and several such centres. We do not think it costs much to paste the results of the whole State at important centres of Bangalore. We are not writing this in a spirit of carping criticism. We know the difficulties of the Office but what we urge is that their methods should improve with times. They could have very well supplied the copies of the results to the local newspapers, simultaneously with the announcement at the Public Offices. The Director's office probably does not know the number of phone calls we had day before yesterday in connection with the Middle School Examination results. Some-how the people of Bangalore expect the local papers to supply them any information they ask for. It may be the test match results, it may be the war news, it may be the arrests of prominent Indian leaders, all these the people expect newspapers to supply information of. We were in a very unenviable position day before yesterday when to calls after calls of the phone we had to say, we had not the results with us. We would have gladly published the results in our papers if they were made available to us in time. A matter of fact for the last several years one has been publishing in our papers the numbers of the students who have passed in first class in the Middle School Examination. We hope that the Director of Public Instruction would see to it that next time at least in the matter of Middle School Examination results better arrangements are made for publishing the results.

Now that we are writing of the Middle School Examination results we may suggest to the University authorities and the Director of Public Instruction to make better arrangements in the matter of announcing the S.S.L.C. Examination results. If copies of the results are made available to us on Sunday morning at 9, we shall see that we multiply the copies and paste them on our news board. We wish to repeat that we have entered these suggestions in a friendly spirit from the point of view of public convenience.

Now to the Middle School Examination and its results. We are told that 45 per cent of the students that sat for the examination have been declared successful. We have not with us the required statistics for the present year to analyse and comment upon. We have with us the statistics for the year 1939 and 1940.

In the year 1940, 9422 candidates applied for the Middle School Examination and 3935 were declared successful. The percentage of success was 42.4. In the year 1939, 9212 candidates registered for the Middle School Examination and 4181 passed giving a percentage of 46.1. In the previous year (1938) 8,543 were registered and 3,580 passed giving a percentage of 41. We thus see the Examination results are somewhere near about 40%. This is a matter for consideration. The boys and girls that appear for the Middle School Examination are of a very tender age. They will be of ages between 10 and 12. What about the failed candidates, as many as 60%? It may be a bit less. Whatever it may be more than 4000 Middle School Examination candidates fail every year. After all this is a very tiny examination. And should there be such a large percentage of failures? What is the meaning of this failure? Is it that to the extent of 55 to 60 per cent our children are not fit for High School Education? Is the level of intelligence so low? Or is there any defect in the system of our Middle School Education and the planning of it? These are urgent matters requiring immediate consideration.

In this connection, it is worthwhile to note the popular feeling. Many a time on the floor of the Assembly and the Legislative Council popular members have urged the abolition of the Middle School Public Examination. The Government have for their own reasons, been continuing this Public Examination. In the neighbouring Presidency of Madras we have no Public Examination equivalent to this. Long ago they abolished the middle school examination. Why should we continue it in Mysore? This, in a way lowers the minimum of General

MIDDLE SCHOOLS

QUESTION OF ACCOMMODATION AND EQUIPMENT

The following appears in the report on Public Instruction in Mysore for the year ending with 30th June 1939.

On accommodation and equipment in Middle Schools, the Deputy Director of Public Instruction, Mysore, reports as follows:

"The policy of sanctioning additional hands to Middle Schools has gone a great way to help the bifurcation of classes, thus reducing the strength to manageable proportions. But the difficulty of providing accommodation and furniture for these expanding schools immediately the need arises is becoming a big problem, as in most cases, Government alone have to bear the burden."

Teaching Work—The Deputy Director of Public Instruction, Mysore, brings to notice the following factors:

"One important feature of Middle Schools which should engage our attention immediately is the low standard of the teaching of English. In this Division, there are about 25 first class vacancies which cannot be filled up because of paucity of graduates of the Backward Class communities. Though the Central Recruitment Board has recently given a ruling that Educational standard. In the absence of this Middle school Examination, parents would be induced to continue the education of their children until the completion of the high school standard, because that would be the minimum standard of Education. Students would be enabled to finish the high-school standard without the impediment of the middle school Public Examination. We are of the opinion that the time has come for the abolition of the Middle School Public Examination.

In this connection, we would like to invite the attention of our readers to some relevant portions of the latest report on the Public Instruction in Mysore where-in we find the Deputy Director of Public Instruction graphically describes the inadequacy of accommodation and equipment in middle schools. It is this inadequacy of equipment that is in a large measure responsible for such a large percentage of failures in the middle school examination. We ask, is it right and fair to cause disappointment in young tender souls for the fault of accommodation and equipment in Middle Schools. This is a matter worthy of consideration. We have already exceeded the usual length of the article. And we shall deal with this question again in a future issue. But we wish once again to request the authorities to reconsider the question of abolition of Middle School Public Examinations. We hope the New Assembly and the Council would tackle this question to the satisfaction of the young students and their parents.

Brahmin graduates may be appointed in these vacancies till Non-Brahmin graduates are available, the former are loath to go to muffasil places from where they may be displaced at any time. The result is that S. S. L. C.'s have often to be appointed in graduate vacancies temporarily, and the standard of English of the modern S.S.L.C.'s is so low that their teaching can only be very inefficient. Moreover, all additional temporary scales sanctioned for Middle Schools are on Rs. 20, and only S.S.L.C.'s can be employed in them.

It seems to me that unless better prospects are held out both in point of initial pay and later rise in the department and the qualifications of the entrants are raised, there is little chance of increasing efficiency."

"In the matter of use of the library, Middle Schools are not giving their students as many facilities as they ought. For want of a separate reading room, most schools do not have the convenience to place newspaper and journals before the pupils, who therefore lose the advantage of reading them. With regard to library, however, better arrangements are possible. During the summer holidays, books are not issued to the pupils. It seems to me that there should be no objection to issuing them to the pupils of the first three classes who remain as school students. Two books per pupil may be issued so that the students, who have ample leisure during the holidays, may read them and improve their language and enhance their general knowledge."

The strength of Middle Schools for boys has further increased by 2,150 during the year. Of this number, the increase in the Government Middle Schools was 1,520. This increase naturally resulted in the demand for additional teachers, and Government were pleased to sanction 50 additional hands during the year, besides continuing the 109 additional hands sanctioned during the previous years. Though this addition eased the situation to some extent, the question of accommodation and equipment remains a problem. There are still too many schools with insufficient accommodation and meagre equipment. Many have not even a sufficient number of benches for the pupils to sit upon and pupils still continue to squat on the floor.

As regards the staff, the Deputy Director, Mysore, has correctly summarised the situation. Owing to the rigidity of the recruitment rules, and the low scales of salary obtaining in these schools, the quality of teaching has suffered considerably. The recruitment of teachers with the S.S.L.C. qualification to the new posts sanctioned on Rs. 20 and of those with similar qualifications to posts carrying higher pay for lack of qualified candidates belonging to Backward communities has made matters worse. Out of a total number of 563 teachers in the Bangalore Division teaching

"Expanded U. S. Policy will ease British Problem"

SOVIET JOURNAL'S OPINION
Transit of War Materials from Russia Forbidden
(By Cable)

A. T. Cholerton cabled to Daily Telegraph from Moscow on April 29:

The Soviet Journal Red Star stresses the fact that the expansion of the American neutrality patrol announced by President Roosevelt will ease the problem of the Navy blockading the approach to the European and African shores, since the main task of these American forces is to cover enemy raiders.

An American air force based on Newfoundland and Labrador land could without difficulty cover all that area of the Atlantic which extends from the east shore of the American continent to Greenland.

At the same time the reconnaissance and bomber planes based on North Sea and the Orkneys, the Shetlands, Faroe Islands and the West Coast of Iceland should be able to provide a vigilant watch over all that area of the North Atlantic.

Thus, the Red Fleet includes, Mr. Roosevelt's plan will provide a vast fleet stretching unimpeded from Canada to Britain, defended from the air as well as by naval forces.

The Russian people reminded in a broadcast Moscow of Stalin's words "necessary to keep our nation State of constant mobilisation that no unexpected event take us by surprise."

"More and more countries being brought into the which is flaming in many elements," the radio statement said.

"The Soviet Government watching carefully all the national developments and guards vigilantly the interests of its peoples."

"Present-day international events afford us ample proof of the difficult position into which a country may fall if it is not thoroughly prepared militarily."

"Therefore the Soviet people are dedicating all their efforts to increasing the economic and military strength of the motherland."

Transit of any war material through Russia is forbidden by a decree issued in Moscow.

The list of war materials mentioned includes munitions, aircraft parts and accessories, machine tools for making munitions and explosives. Transactions of other goods is strictly regulated.

English in Middle Schools many as 216 are unfit to teach the subject. Of the remaining 347 teachers, 13 are S.S.L.C. holders who, by virtue of their experience, have been entrusted their work fairly satisfactorily. The teaching of this subject by men of this age by men of this age cannot be considered satisfactory. Out of the number of 561 English teachers in the Bangalore Division, 85 are graduates, and the teachers are untrained in the situation in the other Divisions not much better.

MAY 9, 1941
REACTIONS TO Mr. CHURCHILL'S SPEECH
QUESTION OF TAPPING AMERICAN RESERVES

Congress To Discuss Defence Production

London (By Cable) The Times Washington correspondent cabled on April 29. The speech of the Prime Minister had a quiet approving tone from the Secretary of State. Mr. Cordell Hull and it has been praised by the press generally for its courage and its urgency and the clarity with which it stated the case that the war will be won first in the west and not elsewhere. The character of Mr. Churchill's references to the United States has moved Mr. Sullivan to say that the American people apparently had today "somehow short of" positions taken by Mr. Hull. Colonel Knox on April 24 somewhere ahead of what President said on April 25. This would appear to be highly true. Other observers seem to detect a change in the atmosphere in Washington partly to reports of such observers as Dr. Conant, President of Harvard, who said frankly on return from Britain that this country had made up its mind before the end of the summer whether to put up or shut up." To this he added the firm belief of present writer that there are times of vigour and determination in the great mass of the American people which have not yet been tapped and which should be tapped.

Nobody in Washington reads anything but a smile the statement that the speech is the most "defeatist" which Prime Minister had delivered. It was certainly not the speech which a Nazi could or could make; for, as the New York Herald Tribune says, "no totalitarian people added in its propaganda could understand" anything of the sort. As for the reports of the growth of a criticising in Australia there are only the statements of leaders of that Dominion but there is a visit to the State Department of Mr. Richard Casey, Australian Minister, conveyed as he said to the press a contemptuous rejection of the German suggestions.

Mr. Churchill's omission of a direct reference to Turkey is noted in Washington, and its implications are understood in local circles. On the basis of local reports it is believed that the German occupation of the Aegean islands near the Straits has completed the time for pressure will arrive. It is understood that Von Papen may not return to Ankara until this summer, and then not to persuade but submit abrupt demands. A sudden influx of Nazi agents into Iran is also reported in Washington. Their attitude, it is believed, is if possible to penetrate to Iraq and to have an incident designed to involve Britain with the Arab

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE IN THE CABINET

HOUSE OF COMMONS PASSES THE MOTION

Mr. Lloyd George Questions about Turkish attitude

The House of Commons passed a vote of confidence in the Cabinet by 447 votes to 3. In the course of the discussion on the war situation Mr. Lloyd George paid a tribute to the fighting qualities of the Greeks and opined that the British Government were bound in honour to go to their assistance and therefore the sending of the expeditionary force was right.

Referring to Turkish attitude Mr. Lloyd George referred to the reports of German ships being allowed to pass the Bosphorus and Dardanelles. He therefore thought the Government should come out with the position frankly.

Mr. Winston Churchill replying to the debate said since Turkey was at peace with Germany they could not expect Turkey to act otherwise than what they were doing. Government sought the vote of confidence in view of the disappointments recently caused as they wanted to know where they stood. "This is essential", he said "considering the tremendous issues at stake. This knowledge is important for the sake of foreign nations. This is a free parliament in a free country."

Referring to the situation in Iraq, Prime Minister said they knew what was happening there but they had no army to send earlier.

Referring to North Africa Mr. Churchill said General Wavell had nearly half a million men under his command now.

The Commons finally passed the confidence motion.

S. S. L. C. RESULTS

Mysore, May 9
The Registrar Mysore University writes:

It is hereby notified that the S.S.L.C. results will be published at 9 a.m., on Sunday, the 11th May 1941. For the convenience of students and the public, the results will be published in the following places in Mysore:

- 1. University Office. 2. University Library. 3. University Union.

The landing of British troops in Basra, however, is believed to have been made in sufficient force to establish a reasonably favourable situation.

This week will find Congress engaged in a discussion of production for defence, no doubt with special reference to strikes. It is likely also that there will be excursions into the question of naval patrols and naval convoys. The labour situation is most delicate and most dangerous in the coalfields where an attempt to reach an agreement under the persuasion of mediation boards has failed. Owners and workers in the northern or anthracite region have agreed; but the owners and workers in the southern or bituminous region are still in dispute.

In addition there is a division between owners in the north and those in the south and as a result even where an agreement has been made the men are not going back to work and the menace to the industry is growing. That there is politics behind all this goes without saying and part of the trouble may be, as many believe that Mr. John Lewis, head of the united mine workers, hates and desires to embarrass the President. Whatever the facts, a squalling and hitherto unmanageable baby has been dropped in Mr. Roosevelt's lap.

PORTUGUESE PRIME MINISTER

Dr. SALAZAR'S 52nd BIRTHDAY

British Newspaper's Tribute

London (By Cable) Paying a tribute to Dr. Antonio Salazar, the Portuguese Prime Minister, on the 52nd birthday, The Times writes:

In the thirteen years of his strong-minded and strong-handed administration he has not only restored the value of currency and the solvency of the nation, but has regenerated the whole social life of the Portuguese Empire, under a paternal authority that is harmoniously shared between himself as Prime Minister and General Carmona as President. This authority rules over a corporative state which is in sharp contrast with the totalitarian regimes. There is no private army or privileged party entitled to domineer over their fellow countrymen by virtue of wearing an emblematic armband or a coloured shirt. Still less is there any arrogant claim of the Portuguese to be a chosen people with the right to impose themselves and their institutions on less favoured creeds.

Dr. Salazar himself is a responsible Minister though his responsibility is not to Parliament or the people; if questioned on the subject, he would, no doubt, reply that he holds himself responsible to the moral law. Given by a Hitler accustomed to exalt his selfish will as the supreme morality, such an answer would, of course, be mere hypocrisy, but the law by which Dr. Salazar professes himself bound is something larger than himself and is, incidentally, the basis of the historic tradition of Portugal. For he has deliberately set himself to undo the anti-religious work of the revolution of 1910. The serious subordination of Dr. Salazar's temporal policy to spiritual value lends additional weight to the pastoral letter of the Cardinal Patriarch of Lisbon, who has every right to speak for his country as well as for his Church. The Cardinal urges his flock to pray that the war may issue in an international organisation which will respect the Laws of God, assure justice, maintain peace, preserve the life and liberty of peoples and protect human personality.

The furtherance of all those ideals is part of our own war aims and any international organisation to which we may become a party must have room for a policy like that of modern Portugal which shares our allegiance to them however different from our own may be the constitutional theory on which it is based.

A FORETASTE OF PAKISTAN

Threatening Letter to Mr. Fossil

Madras May 3

Mr. S.M. Fossil writes:—
In the absence of a definite scheme, nobody knows what Pakistan will be like, but the behaviour of its protagonists can give one an inkling into Pakistan.

Yesterday I received by book-post a packet containing an old leather shoe and a letter in Urdu of which the following is an English rendering:—

"O, traitor to the Muslim Nation and Islam! This present (old leather shoe) to you for speaking against our beloved President and Quaid-e-Azam and also against the only organisation that safeguards the Muslim interests. If you do not apologise and desist, your life is in danger."

I have carefully preserved the present from my misguided co-religionists. Father forgive them, for they know not what they say or do. But I will not be cowed down by such silly threats

This action of the followers of Mr. Jinnah clearly shows what they will do in Pakistan, where I am afraid, there, will be no freedom of thought and speech and those who hold views at variance with those of the Quaid-e-Azam or any other Dictator will be kept in a concentration camp, executed or lynched as some Muslim Leaguers threaten to do in my case, but are prevented from executing their threat because this is not Pakistan. I think no one who stands for freedom of thought and speech will ever like to be in Pakistan where it would be denied to him.

SOVEREIGNTY OF HYDERABAD

Does not Vest in Muslims (Associated Press of India)

Hyderabad, (Deccan) May, 7
The Nizam's Government through the Gazette Extraordinary has repudiated the theory propounded by Majlis Itihadul Muslimeen (Muslim organisation) that sovereignty of the State is vested in the Muslims of the State and His Exalted Highness merely embodied "Muslim Sovereignty" and disclaimed charge of Majlis that the Government's attitude is responsible for the theory. The Gazette concludes: Government wishes to emphasise the contradiction in terms among the professions made in the statement in question that Sovereignty of His Exalted Highness is indivisible, inalienable, and absolute. His Exalted Highness and his Government had not found it possible to accept the theory of Responsible Government for the same reasons as those which impel them to react to any doctrine like that propounded by the Majlis, which implies division or diffusion of His Exalted Highness sovereignty among fifteen lakhs of subjects and those belonging to particular class.

view the market has exhibited an uneven trend. Securities were dull in the earlier part of the ing pressure. Textiles were a shade easier. Investment in low ebb with reductions in prices dustries were also in less prominence during the major part

NAZI ATTEMPT TO MAKE RUSSIA DIVERT TROOPS?

Reported Anxiety To Possess Ukraine
(By Cable) London

A "student of war" writes in the Daily Telegraph:
If the landing of German troops in Finland means anything it must be a threat to Russia and its role is to divert Soviet forces from that area where an attack is likely to be launched.
Socner or later it seems certain that Germany will either demand or invade the Ukraine and force her way across the Caucasus.

Ludendorff after the last war said that without the wheat of the Ukraine it would have been impossible for Germany to have held on so long. Germany still needs wheat and her greater need of oil suggests that what may seem a grandiose scheme may appear to be justified.

all but not at peace at any price.

the Pacific he said: We would able demand and most of all we will fight if attacked in these territories.

SITUATION IN IRAQ

TURKEY AND IRAN INFLUENCING
IRAQ

Iraqi Army Not Completely Behind
Mr. Rashid Ali

A report stated the attitude of Turkey and Iran had perceptible influence on the situation in Iraq. It is pointed out that Turkey as a friendly power is anxious to establish peace in Iraq. Iran another friendly power feels the same way about it, is shown in the Iranian broadcast. The announcer said there were 300 thousand Irani-ans in Iraq and Iran could not remain indifferent to the foreign agents in the country, and urged the Iraqis to settle the differences with Britain. The visit of Foreign Minister of the newly formed Iraq Government has caused considerable speculation in Ankara.

It is now clear a portion of Iraqi army is behind Mr. Rashid Ali and he has failed to get the support of others which he expected to receive. The latest reports say that British armoured units with Iraqi levies operating from Hablaniyah ejected Iraqis from their vantage points overlooking the Cantonment.

R. A. F. continually pounded Iraqi lines and gave continuous support to the land army. Over 300 prisoners were taken and according to Rome Radio the fort of Rutbah is occupied by British troops.

EVACUATING COMMONWEALTH FORCES FROM GREECE

Conditions Different From Dunkirk
(By Cable) London

The 'Times' Military correspondent comments:

It is still impossible to state what numbers of the Empire forces have already withdrawn from Greece but it is hoped that the whole story will be told directly it becomes safe to do so.
It is already generally known that remarkable measure of success has attended the earlier stages of embarkation but we must unfortunately be prepared for a casualty list.

The length of the casualty list will depend on several factors with luck the least of them.
Yet we must remember that the conditions in Dunkirk are not being repeated because there is no friendly shore a score of miles away, no large fleet of "little ships" and no fighter bases close at hand. On the other hand the length of the coast line and the number of harbours provide advantages absent at Dunkirk.

Mr. NAICKER'S STATEMENT

SAPRU SAYS IS FALSE AND BASELESS

(Associated Press of India)
Allahabad, May, 8
Tej Bahadur Sapru has now read the text of the statement which Mr. Ramaswami Naicker is reported to have made in Trinopoly. The statement there is that Mr. K. Srinivasan, Managing Editor of the Andhra, prevailed on me to convene a Conference and pass the resolution which was to all interests and purposes drafted by C. Rajagopalachariar is entirely untrue and baseless.
Srinivasan never wrote to me about my presiding over the Conference and never discussed the terms of any resolution. At the time until these statements were made I hear from any quarter that Mr. Rajagopalachariar has this resolution in jail.
The only person who asked me to preside over the Bombay Conference was Sir Jagadish Chandra Bose, who saw me in December last and later in February.
After on Sir N. N. Sarkar expressed his satisfaction that I intended to preside.

Mr. JINNAH IN HIS TRUE COLOURS

"Wants to Disrupt India"

Allahabad, May 8
Mr. Jinnah has come out in his true colours, no scheme of government will satisfy him even for the period of war unless it is in furtherance of disruption of India, says a statement issued on behalf of the Standing Committee of Bombay Conference replying Mr. Jinnah. The statement points out Mr. Jinnah says proposals of the Bombay Conference were accepted everyone would come in except Muslims and yet in his Madras speech Mr. Jinnah contended that the Bombay Conference was not representative. Mr.
Jinnah cannot have it both ways.
Either the proposals have a very large support in the country or they have not. The statement asks Mr. Jinnah to make a final choice before he makes the next statement. The Committee asks all right-minded men to consider whether in view of Mr. Jinnah's latest pronouncement any negotiations with him is possible except on the basis of destroying unity of India. The Committee emphasises that they are convinced the political future of India should not be allowed to depend upon the dictates of Mr. Jinnah.

It is understood that there are about four thousand Indians in Iraq. Enquiries in official circles show that as most of them are in Basra area which is occupied by British troops there is no cause for any anxiety regarding their safety.

Mysterious Disappearance Of Mr. Ramachandra's Son

It is understood that for domestic reasons Mr. Ramachandra
I. C. S. who was to have left last month for South Africa to take up High Commissioner-ship has expressed his inability to accept the appointment. As the present incumbent Sir Rama Rao has already left for India Government of India are now considering the question of selecting another successor in place of Mr. Ramchandra. It appears the only son of Mr. Ramchandra has mysteriously disappeared and all efforts to find him have so far failed.

received. Special officer has been appointed by Government of India to examine the amendments suggested by provincial Governments.

A telegram sent by tribes of Mohmand border to Rashid Ali Gillani, Iraq Premier says "We the representatives of Mohmand tribes heard with great sorrow that in these days when the whole Islamic world is in danger from Nazi and Fascist aggression you a member of renowned cause with enemies of Islam and attacked the troops of our desist and restore friendly re-

"I am sure no Muslim who has the best interests of Islam at heart would support Rashid Ali in his intrigues" observed Sir Mahomed Usman, Vice-Chancellor, Madras University in a statement on the situation in Iraq.
Sir Mahomed stated: It is quite clear to my mind that this outbreak in Iraq is the culmination of a long period of intrigue by Nazi paid quislings, renegades in pay of Nazi Germany. Great Britain has certain treaty rights in Iraq and there is no doubt the creation of Iraq State is due to the sympathy and protection of Great Britain. Had it not been for the protection there would have been no free Iraq today. I feel convinced that although the British Empire is passing through some trying times it will emerge victorious to the mutual benefit of itself and Islamic world.

NAWAB OF BHOPAL
Advices People Of Iraq

(Associated Press of India)
Bhopal, May 8

"I hope better counsels will prevail and the great people of Iraq will stand solid by the friend and Ally who are fighting for the cause of freedom which is dearest to all lovers of it and will abstain from doing anything which is likely to help the forces of aggression threatening to plunge the world into ruin and misery" said the Nawab of Bhopal in a statement on the developments in Iraq. His Highness declares: The deplorable action taken by revolutionaries in Iraq against Britain who secured Iraq's independence and helped her to occupy an honourable place in the comity of free nations must cause profound pain to the Muslim world. Iraq must carry out loyally the terms and conditions of the treaty and any other course dishonourable and against the tenets of Islam is bound to injure the interests of Iraq.

PEOPLE OF IRAQ Show no Inclination to Assist

(Associated Press of India)
Simla, May 8

A press communique states:
The fact that the people of Iraq have shown no inclination to assist the hostile actions inspired by certain Iraq military leaders against British forces now in that country in accordance with the treaty rights sheds significant light on the situation.

Efforts are still being made to mislead the Iraq army and people and to betray them and their British Muslim and Indian allies to the common enemy. There is however slight but marked improvement in the situation in the past few days particularly in Basrah area. Explicit orders have been issued to officers commanding Imperial units in Iraq that any action forced over them in the interests of securing fulfilment of treaty rights should avoid most particularly injury to civilians or civil property and should be kept well clear of Holy places.

Daily News

SATURDAY—MAY 10, 1941

WHY THIS DELAY?

The people have been asking why there has been so much delay in announcing the names of nominated members to the Assembly and the Council. They have been asking why has not the name of the President of the Legislative Council been announced as yet. In the meanwhile, Dame Rumour has been busy at work. We are of the opinion that it is not healthy to allow rumour to work in this manner. (One morning we hear that Mr. So and So has been appointed as President of the Legislative Council. Before that rumour lies on the lips of the people another rumour is started that Mr. So and So is appointed. This only shows the public are very eager to know who is appointed. It is a matter in which the people are vitally interested. People placed in high positions may call this idle curiosity. But that does not help matters.

Whatever may be the nature of the New Constitutional Reforms there is an amount of popular interest in it. It is up to the authorities to see that this interest is developed into active motive force. People have already been charging the authorities that they seem to have no enthusiasm at all in the Reforms. They charge them with intentional delay and hesitation. Why is this so? A sort of stalemate seems to have entered into our state of affairs. We seem to have been caught in a slough of lethargy and pessimism. We submit this is not a healthy state of affairs calculated to promote progress and enlightenment. What is wrong? Why has not the machinery been moving smoothly and speedily? Why is there so much of retardation? These are questions which have been agitating the public mind.

Hardly three weeks are left for the newly constituted Assembly to meet. On former occasions the names of nominated members were announced sufficiently early enabling them to prepare their subjects. But on this occasion we do not think there is sufficient time for nominated members to prepare their subjects and discharge their duties in a satisfactory manner.

Regarding the appointment of Ministers the public would like to know the intentions of the authorities. Are they going to appoint them prior to the session of the Assembly and the Council, or are they going to appoint them afterwards? The constitution does not throw any light on this procedure. And the public have been made a victim to daily growing rumours in the matter of the appointment of the new ministers. We think the authorities have a duty to the public in these matters. It is not right to keep the public mind in unnecessary suspense for such a long time. It is all very well to say do not spread rumours and do not believe in them. But they should know human nature. In these matters, the greater the delay the greater is the havoc committed by rumours. It profits none to keep people in suspense for such a long time. In such matters it would be advisable for the authorities to follow certain healthy principles. If they are not going to appoint Ministers until the session meets, let them make it known to the public. The authorities would gain and the public would gain by such frank declarations of policies. If they are not going to wait for the sessions let them not keep the people any more in suspense. Let them straightway announce the names of Ministers.

Since we know how public mind has been working in this matter we have given expression to the above views. We hope that the authorities would take into account the state of the public mind and announce their intentions in the above State matters in which the people are vitally interested.

THE STATE OF IRAQ

the old Mesopotamia, with 2,800,000 square miles, was divided by two things: King and the British.

son of old Hussein, was an ordinary personage. He was one of the very few men in the country—Henry Pu-yi of Manchuria is another—who was not a ruler of a different country in his lifetime, for Feisal reigned in Syria until the British ejected him; then he became an unforgettable part of the British Empire in Iraq.

Feisal in T.E. Lawrence's eyes was an unforgettable part of the British Empire in Iraq. He was a restless, neurotic, a player of cards, dangerous, a superlative wire puller, a gentleman, and people loved him; but even as King he showed the characteristics of a sheikh. He could let a watch apart, and he appointed a new one (Alfonso of Spain shared this attribute) and he began to undermine it. He bargained shrewdly with the British, and got independence for Iraq partly by his attitude towards the Palestine troubles, and when he withheld overt support of the Palestine Arabs, he won British favour. He wanted that he was above party politics, but he was not away from the first politician in the land. He was, in his own words, the Waif of Iraq, in the words of the independence movement. He would himself moderate the extremists, then he would go to the British and say he would be given something to do. But he never had the chance to build up a solid basis of government, a healthy civilisation, an administrative matrix. He died in 1933, on a trip to Europe, of a stroke suffered during emotional excitement. His death robbed Iraq of an important figure.

Friends who accompanied him on two important missions have described him to me. He went to Iran to see the Shah. Feisal was gay, handsome, with perfect manners. The Shah sat like a king. Once Feisal encountered the Shah on the deck of a British ship in the Persian Gulf, a meeting designed to terminate the rivalry between the two. Each set out from shore to arrive on the ship at the same instant, so that precedence would not suffer; but pause, wary; then each stepped at the other. A salute of two guns boomed forth; one could hear a ward. In the subsequent talks, he looked like a great big bear, looking at Feisal as if he were a bear.

Iraq, an under-populated and undeveloped country, poor except for the oil underneath its surface of sand, the most turbulent of the Arab States, became an independent nation and was admitted to the League of Nations in 1932. The British annulled their mandate after a decade of tutelage, but England remained bound by international relations. A detachment of the Royal Air Force was stationed in the country though it is not permitted in the capital, Baghdad, to guard imperial communications and to defend Iraq against freedom. Bygones are bygones. The present prime Minister, a revolutionist in 1922, once had a price on his head. One Kurdish chieftain, Sheikh Mahmud, known as the "King of Kurds", resisted the mandatory Government for seven years, until a British Officer negotiated his surrender after a bit of bombing. Now he amicably sits tea at the British Embassy, and his son is studying economics at Columbia University.

The decisive way to play politics in Iraq is to make a coup d'etat. The decisive way to make a revolution is to gain support from the restive Euphrates tribesmen, who can muster 50,000 rifles.

Iraq is the only Arab country which may be said to have had a Fascist interlude. In November 1936, an ambitious officer Baqr Sidki Pasha, who had served in the Turkish army and who was of Kurdish origin (the Kurds are very strong in the Iraqi army) made a COUP D'ETAT. The Iraqi Government appealed for British help, but the British Ambassador consulting with the cabinet and the opposition, considered that he had no right to intervene in an internal matter. Baqr Sidki's COUP was successful—it is a pity to have to foreshorten a highly dramatic story—and the loyalist minister of defence, Jafar Pasha, was murdered as he brought a message to Sidki from the young King, Ghazi. Sidki set himself up as a dictator. He bought aeroplanes from Italy, which the British considered naughty, and planned a visit to Berlin. But he had caused the murder of Jafar, he remembered, and a blood feud in an Arab country is a serious matter. Relatives of Jafar—even though after some months of office Sidki seemed to have gained the favour of the King—pursued Sidki, and in July 1937, succeeded in murdering him. The King—like Carol of Rumania, who avoided the funeral of his murdered prime minister Duca—did not attend his obsequies.

Iraq lives on oil mostly, which is pumped from the Mosul fields to the Mediterranean in a double pipeline, one of which is under British control at Haifa, the other in French Syria. Revenue from oil royalties pays the bills; Iraq has no deficit, no public debt. The pipeline is an extraordinary successful engineering feat, built against tremendous difficulties. The oil must be pumped—it does not flow—across 1,150 miles of the most onerous country imaginable. The oil concession is held 23 1/2 per cent each by Royal Dutch-Shell, Anglo-Iranian, a French group, and a consortium of American Companies. The five per cent remaining is in the hand of a remarkable Armenian entrepreneur, C. S. Gulbekian.

The most representative Iraqi politician of the present day is Nuri Pasha al Said. He was educated in Baghdad and the Military College in Constantinople; he fought with the Turks, then joined Feisal's Arab nationalists; he has been Prime Minister and Foreign Minister several times. His general policy, like Feisal's is to stay close to Britain. He was a double brother-in-law of Jafar Pasha—he married Jafar's sister and Jafar married his sister—and when Jafar was murdered he thought it prudent to leave the country. The British helped him out, as they have similarly helped so many political refugees in many lands who may some day be useful.

Dr. TAGORE'S BIRTHDAY Celebration In Bengal (Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, May 8

Dr. Rabindranath Tagore's 80th birthday is being celebrated today in Bengal.

Nuri is one of the fathers of the Round Table Conference idea to settle Jewish-Arab differences in Palestine. He is a pure Arab, with a talent for languages and negotiation, and remarkably liquid eyes.

King Ghazi

This somewhat ineffectual young man, who appears to have inherited some of the less amiable characteristics of the Hussein family, was born in 1913 in the Hejaz, and ascended the Iraqi throne in 1933. He was educated, in a manner of speaking, at Harrow, where he did not stay long, and then by an English tutor.

He was a grievous disappointment to Feisal, who, however, might have treated him with more consideration when he was a boy. Feisal, like Fuad in Egypt in relation to Farouk, seemed to be totally uninterested in his son, even though he knew he must pass the succession to him.

Young Ghazi married his first cousin, the daughter of Hussein's son Ali, in 1933, and has an heir. The women of the royal family, like most women in Iraq, are in strict purdah. Ghazi's sister, the Emirate Azza, fell in love with a Greek merchant from Rhodes, named Harolambos, and ran off with him. This was a stinging shock to the Moslem world—that a descendant of the Prophet should elope with a Christian infidel! Ghazi wanted to send emissaries to Rhodes for proper punishment of Azza and Harolambos, but was dissuaded. He wanted, in fact, to murder them, but was told that this would not be quite the thing to do.

Ghazi is not popular with all his subjects. He has a somewhat disconcerting sense of humour. For instance, young Nuri Pasha, son of the Nuri whom I have mentioned, became an aviator. He took Ghazi for a ride one day. Then Ghazi demanded that young Nuri take aloft one of his black slaves; he thought it would be good fun to terrify the slave, a favourite. The slave, overcome with fright, grasped the controls from Nuri's hands; the plane crashed, the young Nuri was paralysed as a result of the accident. The slave was killed.

Ghazi is blamed by some observers for the brutal suppression of the Assyrians in 1933. It is more likely, however, that Baqr Sidki, the short-lived dictator, was responsible.

[King Ghazi was tragically killed in a motor car accident in April 1940 and was succeeded by his infant son Feisal II.] (From John Gunther's) "Inside Asia"

GERMAN DEMAND ON VICHY

PASSAGE FOR GERMAN TROOPS THROUGH UNOCCUPIED FRANCE

Vichy Government Spokesman Explains

A Spokesman of the Vichy Government told a Press Conference on Thursday that Admiral Darlan's negotiations with Germans in Paris would result in the easing of armistice conditions which is attributed to the prolongation of the war. The German Government, he said, wanted to acknowledge the loyalty of the French Government to the observance of armistice conditions.

Though the present conversations in Paris are stated to be concerning the demarcation of occupied and unoccupied area there will shortly be the demand for the passage of German troops through the unoccupied zone.

FIFTH COLUMNISTS IN TURKEY

Signs Of Coming Diplomatic Offensive

(By Cable) London
Cedric Salter, the Daily Mail Istanbul correspondent, cabled on May 1:

There are unmistakable signs that Germany is preparing a powerful diplomatic drive against the Turks, exploiting fully the moral effects of the victory in Greece and the occupation of islands off the Anatolian Coast.

There is a steady flow into the country of German Fifth Columnists, many of whose faces I had no difficulty in recognising as from Warsaw, Bucharest and Sofia.

They are arriving in groups by almost every boat from Rumania. They will, however, have a hard task before them in Turkey.

Von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, who went to Berlin to receive Hitler's latest orders, is reported by the Nazi radio to be returning to Istanbul tomorrow.

General Inenu, the Turkish President, reached Istanbul today after a mysterious mission abroad. It is said that he still intends to inspect the Turkish defences in Thrace.

There is no indication of Turkey's determination never to allow the passage of German troops through her territory weakening. There are signs, however, that, following the Greek defeat, there is a body of opinion here which tends to move from "non-belligerency" in favour of Britain to an attitude of strict neutrality.

SEEING THAT U. S. SUPPLIES REACH BRITAIN

Mr. Willkie asks Government to give the Lead

(By Cable) London
The Times New York Correspondent cabled on April 30:

In a statement to the press at Pittsburgh Mr. Wendell Willkie said:

"There is no use our speeding up production over here if our supplies for over there are to rest at the bottom of the ocean. Supplies there will not do Great Britain or America any good. It is time for the administration to give us the fact and then the lead instead of following public opinion. It is necessary to protect those shipments.

"I am writing, as I know all American people are, to be told the degree of the destruction of supplied and the plan of protection. We should be told the facts no matter how distressing they may be."

When asked if he favoured conveying of shipments with American destroyers Mr. Willkie replied: "I am in favour of that method which our military and naval experts say is the most effective."

A SCHEME FOR AUDIT OF VILLAGE PANCHAYET ACCOUNTS

Bangalore, May 9

The Mysore Government have considered a Scheme for auditing the accounts of all the Village Panchayets in the State regularly once a year. Representations had also been made at the Sessions of the Representative Assembly in June and October 1940 in this connection and the Government had promised to consider this suggestion. The question has now been examined in detail in consultation with the Comptroller.

Government observe that there are 11,845 Village Panchayets in the State and it is obviously not necessary or possible to arrange for the audit of the accounts of all these Panchayets. They consider it sufficient for the present if the accounts of Panchayets with an annual income of Rs. 300 or more are audited. As a tentative measure, this audit work will be attended to for the present by Circle Audit Officers. The Scheme is tentative and the question whether such an audit should be continued and extended to other Panchayets or made a regular feature annual or biennial will be considered and decided in the light of the experience gained in its practical working. The Comptroller is requested to force further action to bring the Scheme into force with effect from 1st July 1941 and to submit to Government a report on its working at the end of the year 1941-42.

United States' Extended Neutrality Patrol

NOW CONSISTS OF OVER 200 VESSELS

American Navy To Act As "Eye" In Atlantic

(By Cable) London
The Daily Mail's New York Correspondent cabled on May 27:
American destroyers, mine-chasers, mine-sweepers and other naval craft were gathered in great numbers along the Atlantic coast yesterday following President Roosevelt's announcement that the neutrality patrol was being extended as far as defence of the western hemisphere need.

Informed circles said that neutrality patrol had been increased from 125 vessels months ago to at least 200 now. Long-range aeroplanes operating with the neutrality patrol and the navy has adopted the huge Floyd Bennett field, the New York base.

The United States is now full speed ahead to ensure the quickest possible transport supplies to Egypt. At all necessary points American patrols will be very much evidence.

A high authority in touch with Mr. Roosevelt said: "Mr. Roosevelt's plans increased concentration of units to protect the sea lanes to the United States to Greece and even up to Iceland and protect the route through Indian Ocean to the Red Sea. In Washington the view held that the American Navy will in future act as "eyes" Atlantic while British Warships and planes will be available in specified zone ready and concentrated in far greater numbers to pounce on raiders where they are found."

The Retiring Dewan

We learn reliably that Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, is retiring by the end of this month. This is an item of news on which it is difficult to comment at the spur of the moment. In spite of the rumours that were spread that Sir Mirza was retiring we believed that it was all false and baseless and that he would continue his office until at least the end of 1942. But Sir Mirza seems to have decided otherwise.

In bidding him good-bye as the Dewan of Mysore, we have great pleasure in recording his great and meritorious services to the State as the Dewan of Mysore during the years 1926—1941. It will be remembered that he assumed this high office on 1st May 1926 and it is a strange coincidence that he is laying down his office by the end of May 1941. The month of May seems to have played a strange part in the political history of Mysore. When Sir Mirza in 1926 assumed the office of Dewanship there was a great wave of enthusiasm in the country that a sincere and patriotic son of Mysore, beloved of the people and trusted of the Ruler came to occupy the office which had fallen into the hands of a non Mysorean. His Highness chose was acclaimed on all sides and even the British Indian Press paid a handsome tribute to Mysore. It is given to very few Dewans to hold the office for a period longer than four years. If we peruse the Modern History of Mysore we know it was Sir K. Seshadri Iyer that held the office for over a period of eighteen years. Then comes Sir M. Visvesvaraya who was the Dewan of the State for a period of six years. And now we find Sir Mirza holding the office for over a period of 15 years.

This is not the occasion nor the opportunity to dwell at length on the various events and incidents that took place during this long period. We are too near the times to assess the proper worth of the things. But this much is accepted on all hands that the period 1926—1941 is one of momentous events in the History of India, nay of the world. Things have not stood still. There has been a dynamic movement all around. Political structures, economic structures and social structures have changed beyond recognition. No man however far-sighted he may be can look ahead for fifteen years and plan without flaw. We must take the man as he is at the circumstances under which he is placed. We must also take into account the various conflicting forces that beset an administrator. For aught we know Dewan in Mysore is not a free agent. On the one side, there is the agent of the Paramount Power, down below there are various conflicting sections among the people under the banner of different communities. There was the post-war world which left a heritage that no one single State could solve. The problems were very baffling. The Economic forces were against the administrator. In the midst of so many conflicting forces it requires, indeed, more than average patience, diplomacy and sagacity to handle affairs.

We must say that Sir Mirza has acquitted himself well and steered the affairs of the State in a very creditable manner. The progress of administration is an open book and where it was three crores and odd the Budget has now reached the five crores mark. The rise of new Industries and the development of the old ones bear eloquent testimony to Sir Mirza's progressive-ness. The Bhadravati Iron Works were in a precarious condition. Now they are yielding mints of money. Several new industries such as sugar, paper, cement, and chemicals bear the stamp of his personality. In the development of cottage industries also Sir Mirza has shown great interest.

In the matter of agriculture, medical aid, sanitation, education, town planning and beautification Sir Mirza has been taking personal interest. He has an inimitable way of making rich and moneyed men open the strings of their purses for public purposes. At this rate we can go on multiplying the list of the various benevolent things that Sir Mirza has done during his regime.

There is one thing remarkable in him. His easy accessibility makes every one feel that the Dewan is his friend. In fact Sir Mirza is a friend of the poor and the needy. His heart melts before suffering. In the matter of helping the poor ryots, he would do every thing in his power to see that the poor agriculturists get some relief at least.

Sir Mirza's regime as the Dewan will be remembered for innumerable beneficent activities. More than all, as a man, Sir Mirza possesses golden qualities. He is kind and sympathetic. He is nationalistic to the core. He loves Mysore and he loves India. His sympathies as far as Indian matters are concerned are always with the Congress and Nationalists. As a delegate to the Round Table Conferences he established intimate contacts with prominent and distinguished men of the Empire and India. He established a name and fame for Mysore. Sir Mirza achieved fame as a great nationalist Indian. While we are thinking of his retirement in Mysore, we are sure the Indian press would have something to say of Sir Mirza's stewardship in Mysore.

We are sure that there will be great praise of Sir Mirza's administration and his nationalistic policy.

We in Mysore cherish the memory of his Dewanship dearly. Though we in this paper have differed from him on several occasions and expressed our opinions sometimes strongly we have always felt that Sir Mirza is a great Mysorean and Indian and he has done a lot of good to Mysore. It is true we have criticised him strongly as far as his relations with the Congress movement are concerned. We criticised him with a view to making him feel that what he was doing was not the right thing. But anyhow he differed from us.

On this occasion we have no desire to dwell at length on his relations with the Congress movement. But we would be untrue to ourselves and to him if we do not record here that had he treated the Congress movement and its leaders with greater understanding, sympathy and consideration, the country would have acclaimed him much more. It is a pity that some strange forces alienated him from the Congress movement. But we can assure him that there are many in the Congress movement who have nothing but praise for Sir Mirza's personal qualities. Even differing from him they have wished well of him.

On the whole, we feel that in the retirement of Sir Mirza we are losing the services of an able, patriotic and benevolent Dewan. We wish him a happy time during his retirement and pray for his long life and prosperity.

A VERY UNFORTUNATE DECISION

We are filled with a sense of deep disappointment and grief that the Automobile Industry is not going to be started at present in Mysore. So high were the expectations raised about this industry in Mysore and India that we are sure that this news will be learnt with grief all over India. We are not placed in possession of all the facts that induced those responsible to come to this decision. We are aware that a great responsibility rests with the Government of Mysore in coming to this decision. We had written strongly that this industry should be given all encouragement in Mysore and Government should render all financial and other assistance. We had even protested against the idea of transferring the site of the proposed factory from Mysore to the Madras territory. We are aware that the Madras industrialists were very eager to have this factory in their midst. A few days ago when we read the news that the Madras Government have no idea of starting an automobile factory in Madras we felt that Mysore had a very fine opportunity before it. We know how keen the public leaders and industrialists of Mysore were with regard to this industry. The very fact that the revered name of Sir M.

Visvesvaraya has been connected with it lent a charm to the proposal. As fate would have it we have to gulp the bitter pill of disappointment for the time being.

Who is responsible for this unfortunate decision? What prompted them to do so? Were there circumstances beyond the control of the Government of Mysore? These are considerations which we should have before us in judging this affair. We know that the Dewan Sir Mirza Ismail, was very eager and enthusiastic to have the factory here and it is a fact known to all that it is his active interest in the scheme that raised great hopes not only in Mysore but also abroad. There may have been circumstances, beyond his control that resulted in the present decision.

One who studies the present day events can fairly guess at the truth. Anyone who has read the statements that were being repeatedly made by Sir M. Visvesvaraya and Mr. Walchand Heerchand would have no difficulty in realising that it is the unhelpful and unsympathetic attitude of Government of India that has been responsible for the present decision. Sir M. Visvesvaraya wrestled hard with the bureaucrats at Delhi and Simla. But their attitude did not change. They have placed all sorts of difficulties in the way. Sir M. Visvesvaraya pleaded with them that this could be started at least as a war industry. But Government of India seems to be adamant.

It was expected that the decision of the American Motor Manufacturers to curtail production would be a direct invitation to Government of India to help the birth of this industry. But they seem to have urged the difficulties of finance and import. According to them the main difficulty relates to the release of dollars for importing plant and machinery and the provision of other facilities which the Government of India can alone give. The promoters of the Company argued with Government of India that owing to the army mechanisation scheme their demands for motors is bound to grow and the indigenous industry would be a great asset to them in that direction. But the Government of India do not seem to have lent any ear to this argument. A message from Simla says that Government of India have found it necessary to conserve exchange in respect of countries outside sterling area, particularly U.S.A. In a notification issued today the existing system of import control is extended to fifty other items. In view of this notification it is fairly certain that Government of India are chiefly responsible for the present negative decision in the matter of the automobile factory.

We once again express our very great regret at this decision whoever may be responsible for it. We are bound to say it is a very unfortunate decision.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY IN MYSORE

Not To Be Started At Present

Bangalore, May 10.—It is definitely learnt that the proposed Automobile Industry in Mysore will not be started at present.

THE SCHEME

[We give below the details of the scheme published in the issue of "Times of India" of today ago:—

Plans for starting automobile industry in Mysore State have made satisfactory progress. It is understood that the first touches to the scheme were given during the week by the promoters when they discussed details regarding collaboration by the State with Sir Mirza Ismail, at Ootacamund. A Conference of industrialists, financiers and businessmen was also held last week at Bangalore with a view to acquainting them with the details of the scheme and interesting them in the formation of the company.

"The Indian Automobile Co. Ltd., Mysore," which will be responsible for the scheme, will have an issued capital of Rs. 2,25,00,000. Out of this, Mysore State will subscribe Rs. 40,00,000 and other Indian States will contribute Rs. 50,00,000. The managing agents have agreed to buy shares worth Rs. 30,00,000. Shares of the value of Rs. 30,00,000 was expected to be purchased by most dealers, while the management has been successful in persuading brokers to underwrite the remaining shares of the value of Rs. 75,00,000.

On the board of directors will be leading businessmen and financiers including Sir M. Visvesvaraya, Mr. Walchand Heerchand, Mr. G. D. Birla, Mr. Kasturbhai Lalbhai, Sir S. A. Ahmed, Mr. K. Srinivasan, and the Hon. Mr. M. C. Chidambaram Chettiar. Besides the Mysore Government and the dealers will have the right to nominate two and one representative of their's as directors. The managing agents of the company will be Messrs. Walchand Tulsidas Khatu Ltd., consisting of Mr. Walchand Heerchand, Mr. Tulsidas Kilachand and Mr. D. M. Khatu. This firm is at present the managing agents of the Hindustan Aircraft Factory Ltd.

Annual Output

The company will be started with the object of manufacturing motor vehicles such as trucks, standard and low power cars, including such component parts as are generally manufactured by leading manufacturers in the West in their own factories. The factory will be equipped with plant with an annual output of 15,000 motor vehicles. Satisfactory arrangements have been completed for securing expert help and advice from Chrysler Corporation of America and for taking over an existing organisation of the Corporation in India for the storage and sale of vehicles.

Bharatpur Speeches

ALLIANCE BETWEEN MYSORE AND BHARATPUR ROYAL FAMILIES

TIKA CEREMONY AT BHARATPUR

His Highness The Maharaja Of Bharatpur's Speech

In connection with the Tika Ceremony that was held at Bharatpur on 7th inst. in respect of the marriage of Rajakumari Sri Jayachandammanniavaru, Mysore Maharaja's youngest sister with His Highness Brijendra Sawai Sri 108 Sri Brijendra Singhji Sahib Bahadur, Maharaja of Bharatpur a banquet was held at which the following speeches were made.

Political Agent's Speech

Your Highness and Gentlemen, We have witnessed today a very important ceremony—important not only to Your Highness but to all the 600,000 people of your State. It has been a solemn ceremony yet a very happy one, full of promise for the future.

Gentlemen! His Highness has decided to 'take the plunge' and all of us men who have been through this peculiar nervousness know just how he feels!

Well, I personally feel, and I know you will all agree, that His Highness is a very lucky man, for a choice that might have been dictated by the head alone will have, something tells me, the fullest support of the heart!

The step which His Highness is taken involves fresh, but pleasant responsibilities, and I can say from experience that the anxieties and worries of the married man are as naught when weighed against the joy and spiritual benefit of companionship and mutual understanding which is his privilege.

May I again offer to Your Highness my warmest congratulations? I am also to convey the most hearty congratulations of the Hon'ble Mr. Lothian and Mrs. Lothian and of my wife. May this bond between the two States of Bharatpur and Mysore be of lasting and mutual benefit!

Gentlemen; I ask you all to join me in wishing health and happiness to His Highness the Maharaja of Bharatpur and of his future bride.

Maharaja's Speech

I am most grateful to Major Russell for the cordial manner in which he has congratulated me.

No one is more conscious than I of the importance of the responsibility that has taken place this evening. My alliance with Mysore has been fully approved by all the members of my family, and I think I can confidently say by my people. I feel sure that when the time comes for the Princess of Mysore to come as the Maharani of Bharatpur to her home she will be loved and respected in the same manner as I am privileged to be.

I think it is necessary for me to explain the reasons of cutting down the marriage ceremonies to the minimum, that also involves the cutting down of the marriage party etc. I have been told that the Ruling House of Bharatpur is looked upon as the leader of the Jat Communities of India. I want my marriage to be an example of economy and simplicity which I sincerely hope others will follow.

In these days we have not the money to throw away on feasts, banquets and dances unnecessarily while our friends are fighting overseas.

The relation between the husband and the wife, in my opinion, is no more increased by having either wedding party of ten thousand or simple ones of fifty or hundred according to the status of the house concerned. I do not want to make this a lecture or an excuse for those whom I may have disappointed, but what I say I mean genuinely from the bottom of my heart.

I am most grateful for the congratulations of the Hon'ble Mr. and Mrs. Lothian and also Major and Mrs. Russell on whom I look upon as personal friends of mine. I value their congratulations much more in that status than in any other.

After the demise of my beloved father, Mr. Lothian put me on the Gadi and later invested me with Ruling powers and now he is still with us to be a witness at my marriage.

Mr. BARKATALI CPTICISES SIR SAPRU

A. P. Lahore, May, 11
The view that both Congress and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru's colleagues have manoeuvring for Hindu or Non-muslim domination at the Centre which was the very point of conflict between the Congress and League is expressed by Malik Barkatali M. L. A., Member, Working Committee, All India Muslim League, in a statement to the press. In Mr. Jinnah, he asks, far from truth when he characterised the Bombay Conference as another edition of Congress designed so as to be acceptable to the British Government? No wonder, says Barkatali, that its resolution was blessed or acquiesced in or at least was not criticised or castigated by Congress leaders. He continues, Sir Tej frankly voiced his opposition to what he calls fragmentation or splitting up of India into parts and has wound up with an appeal to the British Government not to be party to this dissection. But Muslims of India think otherwise and feel partition is the only solution of difficulties and quarrels and internecine warfare responsible for India's present degradation. He concludes, apparently Gandhiji wanted to meet Mr. Jinnah in his role of All India or better still non-communal leader. Can Gandhiji claim this character and does not he realise after having lost confidence and understanding of ninety millions of Muslims he cannot appropriate to himself this status?

BENGAL EUROPEANS DISSOCIATE FROM 'STATESMAN'S' POLICY

Calcutta May 11
The Committee of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce in a letter to the 'Statesman' declare that Mr. Arthur Moore's political views on Ind-British constitutional issue as expressed in the recent newspaper articles and interviews in Britain and India should not be regarded as being representative of the British business community in India. The committee add they were not in agreement with the editorial policy of the Statesman and they stand by the Viceroy's August declaration.

I shall be most grateful to you, Major Russell, if you will kindly convey my thanks to Mr. Lothian.

It is my fixed resolve that this marriage shall lead to the happiness of my future wife, welfare of my people and also unity between the Kshatriya classes of India and in carrying out this resolve may Girmaj give me strength and power to do so.

NAZI DIPLOMACY FAILING

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION IN FRANCO'S SPAIN

Border dispute in Balkans

News filtering from the German capital through neutral sources shows that new diplomatic successes confidently expected by Nazis have not materialised. According to the Berlin correspondent of a Swiss newspaper the collaboration with Vichy Government has not resulted along the lines desired by Germany.

The continued stay of Herr Von Papen, German Ambassador in Turkey, also lends colour to the view that German diplomatic offensive is not meeting with the success expected.

The recent cabinet changes made by General Franco is interpreted in inspired circles as exhibiting difference between the General and Senor Sener Spanish Foreign Minister, over foreign policy. German foreign office insists that General Franco's changes are purely internal.

In the meantime border dispute seems to have been arisen in Balkans. While Croatia the newly created province aspires the coastline in Dalmatia, Count Ciano would not part with Dalmatian coast at any cost.

GANDHIJI'S ARTICLES AND PUBLICATION IN NEWSPAPERS

Certain Difficulties Arisen Again

EDITORS' STANDING COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER THE MATTER

(From our own correspondent)
(By Wire) Simla, May, 13
The main question which will be up before the next meeting of the Standing Committee of Newspaper Editors on this 14th May is understood to be certain difficulties which have arisen in connection with Gandhiji's articles. From the official side complaint is that in the cases, before they had been passed by the Chief Press Adviser, certain papers had been published these articles. On the other hand certain members of the Standing Committee appeared that the terms of understanding on the subject require further clarification as in their view it had been agreed that Gandhiji's articles should ordinarily be allowed for publication, but matters which will come are Sainik case of Agra and a threatened action against National Herald.

SRI SAVARKAR CRITICISES DR. PRASAD

Bombay, May 12
Criticising the statement by Dr. Rajendra Prasad on the communal riots in Bihar, Sri V. S. Savarkar, President, Hindu Mahasabha says that Dr. Rajendra Prasad who had admonished Hindus in Bihar should also give word of advice to Muslims in Bengal. Mr. Savarkar proceeds to ask as to why Dr. Rajendra Prasad had not condemned the riot in Dacca. Every well-wisher of the country should realise that the sooner the peace and goodwill are restored the better for us all but if Moslems come to take aggressive action it may be that Hindus suffer in the beginning but the Moslems shall also have to pay the bill. Aggression is bound to cost them more in the long run as aggressive action is bound to recoil on its perpetrators however ever they regret its inevitability. Those who dislike to meet nemesis should do well to invite her at all.

HERR HESS IN BRITAIN

PLANE CRASH IN SCOTLAND

Has He Deserted Hitler?

It was officially announced from No. 10 Downing Street London that Rudolf Hess, leader of the Nazi Socialist party had landed in Scotland by a parachute with broken ankle and taken to a hospital in Glasgow.

On Saturday night, it was stated, a messerschmitt 110 is reported to have crashed and a German Officer baled out. Shortly after the German Officer was taken to the hospital. He has brought with him various photographs of himself taken at different ages apparently in order to establish his identity. Accordingly an Officer of the British Foreign Office who was closely associated with German Officers was sent for to the hospital where he identified him as Rudolf Hess, Hitler's Deputy.

Berlin radio broadcast a Nazi party statement that Rudolf Hess was missing and that he had been forbidden to fly on account of his mental condition. Hess is reported to be suffering from a disease which had been progressing for some years. Herr Hess was said to be a victim of hallucinations.

It is pointed out in London that a person who flies from Germany to Scotland cannot be said to be mentally deranged. Hess is 41 years of age and is 4th in the list of party leaders.

RESTRICTIONS ON NEWSPRINT IMPORT REPRESENTATIONS TO GOVT. OF INDIA

Editors' Conference Committee and Gandhiji's Articles
(From our own correspondent)

(By Wire) Simla, May 13
Representations made by newspaper interests regarding newsprint import restrictions are understood to be receiving the urgent consideration of Government of India. There appears to be sympathy for two claims made viz firstly licenses of the last year's purchases and not merely imports and secondly that the retail prices of newsprint should be controlled if the reported tendency to raise prices unjustifiably continues.

As regards the request that indent placed before April licenses it is understood that where letters of credit have been obtained is being considered by the Government.

COMMONS DEBATING CHAMBER RUINED

Ministers Visit the Spot

ANOTHER PLACE SECURED FOR PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMONS

The British Prime Minister Mr Winston Churchill accompanied by Lord Beaverbrook examined the ruins of the debating chamber of the House of Commons as a result of the severe night bombing by the enemy aircraft on Saturday night. Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Minister without portfolio who is responsible for rebuilding Britain after the war, also inspected the scene earlier. The Chamber is one vast ruin with twisted iron girders. The Speaker's mace is safe and many of the documents escaped destruction. The Libraries of both Houses escaped destruction. It is now announced the destruction of the debating chamber would not cause dislocation in the proceedings of the House of Commons as another place for the meeting of the House of Commons had already been secured and the meetings would proceed as usual.

LABOUR STRIKE IN BANGALORE

We are much pained to note that there is no change in the situation of the labour strike in Bangalore. It is more than a fortnight since the labourers of the Maharaja and Minerva Mills, numbering about 8,000 struck work. These labourers are now in the streets without any employment. Meetings are held and exhortations are made to remain together. We are not satisfied with this situation. We are of the opinion that the Government should come forward and arbitrate in the matter. Government should not merely maintain law and order. They are also custodians of public interests. When such a large number as 8,000 are involved Government are doing less than their duty, when they do not devise means to end this strike. A sort of helplessness seems to have taken possession of everyone. The public leaders are unable to help in this matter. The labourers have come out of their work. Unless the mill authorities and labourers are brought together and some understanding reached the situation would worsen. We hope that the labourers also would, on their part, listen to good and sensible advice. These are days of unrest. And there is no earthly purpose in adding to it. We appeal to the Mill authorities also to come down a bit and satisfy partly at least the demands of labourers. We wish anyway the unhappy strike to end. This is a matter which affects public welfare. The authorities and the people interested in peace and tranquillity cannot afford to neglect a development that has been assuming serious proportions. We also, on our part, are prepared to co-operate with all those who would make an earnest and serious attempt to arbitrate between the labourers and employers.

SIR MIRZA HAS PUT MYSORE ON THE MAP

MYSORE'S DEBT TO THE RETIRING DEWAN

(T. L. A. Acharya)

It Sir K. Seshadri Iyer dug the foundation of the New Mysore and Sir M. Visvesvaraya laid the foundation, Sir Mirza Asaf-ud-Daula put up the superstructure.

I think this will be the impartial verdict of history, when recent events in the life of Mysore lose their edge and bitterness are willingly forgotten and buried.

If I were to be asked to sum up Sir Mirza's achievements as Mysore's Chief Executive for a decade and a half I would say without hesitation "He put Mysore on the map." If you are up in the north of India people ask you a thousand times whether you are a South Indian naming a Muslim I have always replied with dignity "No, a Mysorean." Sir Mirza made that reply possible. With a remarkable social vision he has climbed up and opened out Mysore. An English friend of mine, who visited Mysore last year told me that Mysore gave him a new faith in electricity as a help-mate—a semi-medieval Mysore, has, within the last two decades, emerged as a live and modern unit. Sir Mirza has demonstrated a copy-book lesson to the rest of India that given the will to industrialise India need not continue to accept the imposed destiny of an economic backwater.

I do not think he has enemies. Politically, the lead his heart gave was not entirely acceptable to his mind. This made his approach appear one of contradictions and his liberalism illiberal. Seemingly anti-Congress he is a friend of Mahatma Gandhi. Whatever his political predilections, his infinite courtesy and humanity always held. Let us be grateful to him for that and for all that he has done for us.

Sir Mirza has chosen to lay down office. Let us thank him and record our appreciation, with one voice and in an All-Mysore voice. Whatever we are, Congressmen, politicians of no definable philosophy or visible label, industrialists, merchants, officers, students—all of us let us bid him a befitting farewell. Let us express our gratitude and assure him that we shall never forget him. He is so intensely Mysorean, of Mysore and for Mysore that whether in office or out of office he will be with us as long as he is alive. Let us pray that he should be the legitimate and complete span allotted to man. He has left us and his successor a heritage that demands honesty of purpose and constancy and unceasing application. We shall judge him understandingly and we shall honour him.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS AT HOLENARASIPUR

Bangalore May 13

The Publicity Officer, Mysore Congress, writes thus:—

The Elections to the Town Municipal Council at Holenarasipur are to come off on the 15th. The Mysore Congress has set up candidates for all the fifteen seats and independent candidates are contesting. The contest seems to be very keen. The town has been recently divided into six divisions and the way in which the divisions are constituted seems to be much against the wishes of the local inhabitants. Representations made to the Deputy Commissioner in this respect seem to have fallen on deaf ears.

Sri S. Rangaramaiah, member, Working Committee, Mysore Congress, inaugurated the Election Campaign on the 7th of this month. On subsequent days public meetings had been organised in which Shris K. Chengalaraya Reddy, T. Subramanyam, K. Veerappa appeared to the voters to support the Congress Candidates.

On the 10th Shri H. Siddhaya President, Mysore Congress, went there to address a meeting. On his arrival from Shimoga, the President was taken in a procession in the principal streets of the Town.

Before the meeting could commence an order under Sec 15 Mysore Police Act was promulgated by the Amildar Magistrate of the place prohibiting meetings, processions, exhibition of placards, crying of slogans etc. without a licence being obtained from the authorities. The public meeting had to be abandoned. However the President met some important people of the place and appealed for their co-operation and support.

On the 11th Shris K. Pattabhiraman, General Secretary and K. Sampangiramaiah arrived in pursuance of the programme already chalked out.

The Secretary of the Taluk Congress Committee tried to apply for a licence to hold the public meeting. The Amildar Magistrate who was in station till 4 p.m. that day was not found in the town when the Secretary of the Taluk Congress Committee wanted to approach him with a petition for the grant of licence. However the guests went round the Town and saw important people. People seem to be solidly behind the Congress and if other forms of official interference do not show themselves up, the Congress has a fair chance of securing all the fifteen seats.

The local authorities including the Sub-Division Officer and the Deputy Commissioner seem to be evincing keen interest in the elections which does not seem to be to the liking of a large majority of citizens.

MAY 14, 1941

Background to the Iraq Situation and Diary of Events

From September 1939 to May 1941.

Before the 1911-18 War, Mesopotamia was a State. It was a part of the Ottoman Empire, Persian, Arab or Turkish. It was always subjected to the Imperial sway of the British, which ruled the Middle East.

As a result of Great Britain's victory in 1918, aided in Mesopotamia largely by the efforts of British soldiers, Iraq for the first time in its history became an independent State after a short period as a mandated State under the League of Nations. Under Great Britain as the mandatory power and with King Faisal of the Hashimi family as the first sovereign.

His Majesty's Government went to immense pains to safeguard the frontiers of the new State, and obtained the League of Nations decision, which was eventually accepted by Turkey, including Mosul in it.

In 1930 His Majesty's Government determined to support the candidature of Iraq for admission to the League thus to terminate the mandatory responsibilities of the British Government.

In 1930 Treaty of Alliance was also signed between His Majesty's Government and His Majesty the King of Iraq declaring perpetual peace and friendship between the two countries and establishing a close alliance.

Article IV of the Treaty laid down that if either of the high contracting parties became engaged in war, the other high contracting party would always immediately come to his aid in the capacity of an ally and the Iraq Government would furnish Iraq territory all facilities and assistance in their power including the use of railways, rivers, ports, aerodromes and means of communication.

The Annexure to the Treaty and the King of Iraq to afford when requested to do so, all possible facilities for the movement of the British forces of all arms across Iraq and for the transport and storage of all supplies and equipment.

On the outbreak of the present war the Government of Iraq agreed in pursuance of the Treaty to close the German Legation in Baghdad and to intern all German subjects.

When, however, Italy entered the war the Iraqi Government on one pretext or another put off compliance with their obligations under the Treaty and the Italian Legation and Italian Legation are still in being in Iraq, and Italian subjects have not been interned.

At the beginning of April 1941, power was unconstitutionally seized by Rashid Ali, who had been Premier of an earlier Government, with the aid of four Commanders of the Iraqi Army. General Taha al Hashimi, the Premier of the time had been dismissed and threats were made to the person of the Regent, who occupies the throne during the minority of the present King Faisal II, a child of six years, who is still in Baghdad, and compelled him to leave the capital and take refuge in Jordan and thereafter in Transjordan.

The seizure of power by Rashid Ali was in complete disregard of the constitution and was only made possible by the support of the four Generals of the Iraqi Army. It is therefore a Military Coup d'etat. Nevertheless Rashid Ali after assuming power made a speech in which he stated that among other things he intended to observe the Anglo-Iraqi Alliance. Subsequent events have shown that this was a manoeuvre to gain time to enable his Axis friends to come to his aid.

In view of the development of the war in the Middle East and the Mediterranean it was decided that it was necessary to despatch troops to Iraq under the Treaty to open and hold the lines of communication through Basra and Baghdad, and Rashid Ali was notified that troops would shortly be arriving. Proof exists that he had been in communication with Germany and Italy and had at first intended to oppose the landing of troops. This he was unable to do, but he has subsequently asked for armed assistance from the Axis. On being informed that the auxiliary units to complete the first Contingent of British troops was about to arrive he replied that these units could not land until the troops already in Basra first had passed through Iraq and gave signs in other ways that he was acting at the bidding of the Axis Powers.

He was informed that the landing passage of troops was entirely consistent with the Treaty and that a base had to be established and that no undertaking of the sort demanded could be given. It was made clear that His Majesty's Government did not wish to exceed their treaty rights but would submit to no diminution of them.

At this stage Iraqi troops and artillery were despatched to surround the air base and also to oppose the troops that had established the base in Basra. It is these movements that have led to a clash in both places.

As stated, it is known that Rashid Ali's action has been taken following an understanding with the enemy. It need not be emphasised that the entry of enemy influence or power into Iraq will not only facilitate the encirclement of Turkey but threaten the independent Arab countries and India as well.

A threat to Iraq must become a threat to the Persian Gulf and to India. Not only does the line of air communications between India and the West lie through Iraq but the new railway connecting Turkey, Syria and Iraq in connection with the steamer service in the Persian Gulf, makes it one of the main corridors of political and commercial activity in the direction of India. India is vitally interested that Iraq should remain an independent country in alliance with Great Britain and the rest of the Empire and in no way subordinate to the enemy.

Apr. 7. Regent broadcasts appeal to Iraqi people to reject Rashid Ali. Rashid Ali declares that his Government will adhere to international obligations, particularly Anglo-Iraq Treaty. New cabinet comprises six high officers and two civilians.

Basra. Withdrawal of Iraqi troops from these areas within a certain time was demanded and a senior Iraqi officer had agreed. Despite extension of the time limit given they took no action and our forces then drove them out by bombing and artillery fire. Both landing grounds at Habaniyah are still in use.

In proclamation issued in Palestine Regent of Iraq says:

".....My duty is plain I am returning to restore the tarnished honour of my native land and lead it back to peaceful prosperity under a lawfully constituted Government. I call upon all true sons of Iraq to drive out this band of traitors and restore to our beloved country true liberty and independence....."

May 5. G.H.Q. Cairo communique says: "Iraqi artillery, posted in the vicinity of Habaniyah was rendered comparatively inactive yesterday by our aircraft. The garrison of Habaniyah is intact and has suffered very few casualties from the unprovoked Iraqi attack. The greater part of the Iraqi air force has already been destroyed by our air action either while attempting to attack British camps or as a result of attack by our air forces on Iraqi air bases. After attacking an armed construction party which was in the vicinity of Iraq on May 2 occupied Rutbah. In Basra our troops remain in occupation without interference."

Reported from London that on Sunday (May 4) 24,000 leaflets in Arabic language were dropped by R.A.F. planes over Baghdad. The planes were on the return journey after heavily attacking Moascar al Rashid a large Iraqi military station east of Baghdad. Many tons of bombs were dropped on bangers workshops and offices and aircraft dispersed on the ground, says British Air Ministry. At least one enemy aircraft was destroyed and many damaged by splinters and bullets. Two enemy fighters believed shot down, and one R.A.F. plane failed to return. Both Moascar al Rashid and Baghdad airport machinegunned by R.A.F. later in the day one plane set on fire and at least three hit at each aerodrome.

Turkish Press comments: Yon Sabha says: "The Iraqis should throw out their present leaders." Vatan says: "The men who to day boast of being the leaders of Iraq are responsible for the present events. They have betrayed the cause of Iraq."

Iraq Petroleum Company in London pointed out that as had the Iraqi Army were habitually quartered in barracks adjoining the Government offices it would more than probable that press reports that work in the oil fields has been stopped and the flow of oil interrupted are correct.

Reported from Cairo that special R. A. F. communique issued Sunday night (May 4) says at least 22 Iraqi aircraft have been put out of action. Several aircraft have been bombed and an armoured train destroyed in a later raid on Moascar Rashid and two fighters which attempted to intercept our bombers were shot down. This brings total destroyed to 25 machines. At outbreak of war Iraqi Air Force numbered 30 of which 36 were 1st line.

London News Chronicle and Daily Mail demand that if necessary Iraqi oil wells must be utterly destroyed rather than allow them to fall into German hands. Daily Herald takes similar line and says question is not whether suspension of Mosul supply would hamper British fleet and forces in Mediterranean but whether control of supply is to pass from Britain.

Relevant Treaty Provisions

Here are the relevant extracts from the text of the Anglo-Iraqi Treaty of Alliance of June 30, 1930, ratifications of which were exchanged at Baghdad on January 26, 1931.

Article Four: "Should either of the High Contracting Parties become engaged in war, the other High Contracting Party will immediately come to his aid in the capacity of an ally. In the event of the imminent menace of war the High Contracting Parties will immediately concert together the necessary measures of defence. The aid of His Majesty the King of Iraq in the event of war, or the imminent menace of war, will consist of furnishing to His Britannic Majesty in Iraq territory all the facilities and assistance in his power including the use of railways, rivers, ports, aerodromes and means of communication."

Article Five: "It is understood between the High Contracting Parties that responsibility for the maintenance of internal order in Iraq and the defence of Iraq from external aggression rests with the King of Iraq. Nevertheless the King of Iraq recognises that the permanent maintenance and protection in all circumstances of essential communications by His Britannic Majesty is in the common interest of the High Contracting Parties. For this purpose and in order to facilitate the discharge of obligations to His Britannic Majesty under article Four, the King of Iraq undertakes to grant His Britannic Majesty for the duration of the alliance sites for air bases to be selected by His Britannic Majesty at or in the vicinity of Basra and for an air base to be selected by His Britannic Majesty to the west of the Euphrates. The King of Iraq further authorises His Britannic Majesty to maintain forces upon Iraq territory in the above localities in accordance with the provisions of the Annexure to this Treaty on the understanding that the presence of these forces shall not constitute any manner of occupation and will in no way prejudice the sovereign rights of Iraq."

Annexure

Article 1: "The King of Iraq agrees to afford when requested to do so by His Majesty's Government all possible facilities for the movement of the forces of His Britannic Majesty of all arms in transit across Iraq and for the transport and storage of all supplies and equipment that may be required by these forces during the passage across Iraq. These facilities shall cover the use of roads, railways, waterways, ports and aerodromes in Iraq and His Britannic Majesty's ships shall have general permission to visit Shatt-Al-Arab on the understanding that His Majesty the King of Iraq is given prior notification of visits to Iraq ports."

This Treaty was to remain in force for a period of 25 years from the date of coming into force.

EVACUATION OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

FROM HABBANIAH TO BASRA AMIDST CRASH OF BOMBS AND CLATTER OF MACHINE-GUNS

(Associated Press of India)
Bombay, May 15
A vivid story of how British women and children were evacuated from Habbaniyah to Basra amidst the crash of bombs and clatter of machine-guns and intermittent burst of shells and safely brought to Bombay is told by members of the latest batch of nearly 100 women and children who arrived in Bombay. Some of the batch which was probably the last to leave Habbaniyah had miraculous escapes when they were subjected to "unsuccessful baptism fire" by Rashid Ali's men.

All Quiet At Basra
A High Official of British Colonial Office who had been in Iraq many years and who arrived in India with his wife said that all is quiet at Basra.

Mustari or Provincial Iraqi Governor is carrying on administration as usual there and neither tension nor excitement is perceptible probably indicating that the rising is limited to a minority fed and inspired by Axis propagandists.

It is stated that Rashid Ali's men at first assured the safe conduct for British women and children from Bagdad to Habbaniyah wherefrom they were to be flown in R. A. F. machines to Basra, but when the first plane with women and children took off from the airport the plane was fired at by Rashid Ali's men. Evacuation however was carried out without loss and uninterruptedly. Some evacuees stated they were in Habbaniyah for nearly a week before they left for Basra.

Two Days After

Two days after their arrival in Habbaniyah hostilities started with firing by Rashid's men on an evacuee plane. The airport itself was frequently bombed and runways were hit, but there was not a single casualty on our side and the damage was only superficial. All women were kept in camps surrounded by bund and barbed wire. Near the airport there was a raised platform wherefrom Rashid's men shelled and fired. R. A. F. planes bombed and destroyed enemy gun positions. Shells and bombs continued to burst round evacuee camps, but there were no casualties. They saw many Iraqi prisoners taken after a minor operation.

Workers have been taken back to service and re-instated in their previous posts with all former benefits.

FRIENDLY GERMAN LETTER TO TURKEY

NO DEMAND FOR PASSAGE OF NAZI TROOPS

Von Papen's Assurances To Sarajoglu

Herr von Papen delivered a personal message of friendship from Hitler to Turkish President Inonu on Wednesday afternoon according to an America radio commentator broadcasting from Ankara. Nothing, he stated, is known of the contents of the message except that official communication described it as friendly.

Informed quarters report at yesterday's meeting with M. Sarajoglu Von Papen again confirmed German friendship with Turkey and expressed the hope that Turkey would reciprocate this friendship without in any way prejudicing her alliance with other powers.

Papen also is reported to have given categorical assurances that Germany has no intention of making compromising demands on Turkey and especially that she would not ask or consider asking for the right to pass troops across the Turkish territory.

Broadcaster stated German spokesman in Ankara denied that German planes carrying war materials for Iraq have so far flown over Syrian territory. It is learned however that the first point in German-Iraq discussions may be delivery of German war materials ordered by Iraq Government before the outbreak of hostilities.

Von Papen made customary call at the Turkish Foreign Office after his return from Berlin. Turkish Cabinet thereafter held its weekly meeting and later in the day Turkish Foreign Minister addressed the People's party secret session for an hour. Turkish Prime Minister then gave an account of the developments in the International situation. Official communique issued afterwards stated the meeting ended with an outburst of applause.

It is learnt that the conversations between Papen and Sarajoglu related to closer economic collaboration between Turkey and Germany.

PARLIAMENTARY REPORTING

By Arthur H. Baker, Chief of The Times Parliamentary Staff

Life in the Parliamentary Press Gallery is indeed, a highly specialised form of journalism. There is nothing quiet like it anywhere. It combines the thrills of a first-class news centre with the delights of a unique professional comradeship. I have spent nearly 21 years in the Gallery. I first passed in February, 1919, through one of those two mysterious doors which bear the ominous word 'Silence' printed on them. I had just been demobilised and was looking for a job. I was determined not to return to provincial journalism at Plymouth, but to come to London. My first entry to the Gallery was as a visitor, and I gazed with awe from afar at the majestic figures who occupied the three boxes of The Times.

Started on Budget Day

Two months later I heard through my brother, James Baker (who was then on the Daily Telegraph) of a vacancy on The Times Parliamentary staff. I came up on trial on Budget Day, April 26, 1919. The late Sir (then Mr.) Austen Chamberlain was presenting the first post-war Budget, and the late Lord (then Sir Frederick) Banbury was my first "take." The late John Bune was chief of The Times Parliamentary staff.

After a month's trial, to my intense delight, on May 26, 1919 I got the job. And that was how I started political journalism. In another fifteen years—January 1, 1934—I was appointed chief, succeeding my friend, F. Peppiatt.

In 1919, in addition to The Times, such papers as The Daily Telegraph, The Morning Post, The Manchester Guardian, The Scotsman, The Glasgow Herald and others had their special Parliamentary corps. To-day The Times is the only paper which has its own special corps of Parliamentary reporters. The others have all gone. The papers rely on the very excellent agency reports, supplemented by the efforts of their own individual sketch-writers.

Specialization Essential

A very short time in London journalism was enough to convince me that, to succeed, it was essential to specialize, and it was natural that I should decide to make politics my subject. But I was also fortunate in being able to obtain a thorough ground-work in most of the other editorial departments of the office during my early years on the paper. Many Parliamentary recesses were spent in the sub-editorial rooms, while in others I travelled all over the country as special correspondent. In 1928 too, I became deputy to Alan Robbins in the Parliamentary Lobby, and thus gained further valuable experience and made many useful contacts.

My advice, for what it is worth to every young journalist is to specialise wherever possible, but first of all to gain as much knowledge as he can of every phase of newspaper life. I am a firm believer in the old and well-tried system of training first, a country weekly; next, a provincial daily; and, finally, Fleet Street. I myself was trained on my uncle's Devonshire weekly—The Tiverton Gazette—and I have never had to unlearn anything I learnt from him. Another important point is that no specialist should lack a good working knowledge of short hand and typing.

Objective Reporting

In the Press Gallery a keen interest in political personalities is quickly acquired—and this is a great aid to would be political specialists. On the other hand, to be a keen party politician oneself is not always helpful. The political journalist has to record the activities of every party, and the more objective he is in so doing the more will he be trusted.

In sub-editing The Times Parliamentary report, for instance, the aim is always to treat every speaker on his or her merits. Naturally, a Minister must occupy more space than a backbencher, but the ideal is always to give a fair show all round, and to bring out the positive rather than the negative. "Hope, not hate, in the head lines," is a sound motto, particularly in these days.

The editor of The Newspaper world has asked me to record any interesting experiences. A political journalist's life is full of interesting experiences, so one can select only a few. The most pathetic thing I ever saw in the House of Commons was the fare well speech of "Jimmy" Thomas after he had resigned from the Cabinet. As he walked down the floor of the Chamber, and, at the bar, turned and bowed to the Speaker for the last time, we all knew instinctively that we were witnessing a great human tragedy.

The finest debates I ever remember listening to were those on the Revised Prayer Book. Then members spoke from conviction and not from obedience to the party whips.

Unforgettable Experiences

The Prime Minister who impressed me most was Bonar Law, and I believe that this country has yet to realise what it lost by his premature death. Behind his quiet manner he had a tremendous grip on men and affairs, and had he lived there would have been little of the drift so characteristic of British post-war policy.

Other events which have led to unforgettable experiences in the Press Gallery and the Lobby in my time there include the rise and fall of the first Labour Government, the General Strike of 1926, the formation of the first National Government, the death of King George V, the Abdication of King Edward VIII, and the British defence and rearmament plans. The tension of those hectic days before Munich and reactions and disappointments of the four-days' debate which followed are still fresh in one's memory. But all these were surpassed for sheer

EGYPT'S CONCERN

(By Cable) Cairo
Al Mokattam suggests that the tide is beginning to turn against Rashid Ali who is reported to have left Baghdad where demonstrations against his movement are increasing. It is realised most clearly in Egypt that any Nazi infiltration into Iraq would constitute a dire threat not only to the Moslem strongholds of Turkey and Egypt but also to the whole of the Near East and the hope of a rapid restoration of order and security is expressed on all sides. The Nazis, it is appreciated, are employing Rashid Ali as another Henlein Quisling, both in order to facilitate eventual aggression against Iraq and in an attempt to give it the veneer of local support but as Al Mokattam points out it appears that Rashid Ali mistimed the coup. Al Ahram declares that the events in Iraq have caused the most painful impression in all Arab countries especially in Egypt where it is hoped, that Iraq will march firmly forward along the path of progress and lasting peace.

Sheikh El Maraghi, Rector of the El Azhar in the course of a broadcast talk recalled Al Azhars' prominent position in the Islamic world as servants of the Koran and preservers of Islamic sciences and Arab philology, and said 'It is recognised that we are a nation which fulfils its engagements and knows how to recognise with gratitude the sympathy wherein it is held. We must draw the attention of others to this. We must declare that this peaceful country has not done wrong to anyone and so attacks against this territory would constitute a crime against humanity in the eyes of the world and justice.'

PUNJAB GOVT'S ORDER REGARDING SATYAGRAHIS No Arrest For Merely Notifying Intentions

Lahore, May 14
Following the ruling given by Justice Bhude, Lahore High Court, the Punjab Government, it is understood has issued instructions to the police that in future no satyagrahi should be arrested for merely notifying his intention to offer satyagraha. Arrests may be made after offence has been committed. Instructions have also been issued that satyagrahis should be handcuffed only if there is ground for apprehension that the prisoner might escape.

suspense and dramatic incident by the events of last summer I believe that most political journalists actually felt a feeling of relief when the fateful decision had been taken.

What will be the next great thrill? No man can say. Personally, I am just living for the day when I can put up these headings: "ALLIED ARMISTICE. TERMS: PRIME MINISTER ON BUILDING. PEACE: PLANS FOR THE NEW WORLD."

1,000,000 TONS OF CELESTITE

DISCOVERY IN MADRAS PROVINCE

Mineral Used For Military Purposes (By Mail) Madras

One million tons of celestite—a mineral of which India imports several tons per annum for military use and for pyrotechnics and medicinal preparations—have been found to occur in the Trichinopoly District, Madras Province by officers of the Geological Survey of India after investigations in the season 1939-40.

Actually, the discovery of celestite in this area was made early in 1893 by Dr. H. Warth, who was then Superintendent of the Government Museum at Madras. In his report, which was printed in Government records and then apparently forgotten, he stated: "Celestite in fibrous plates from 1 to 3 inches' thickness occurs very profusely. There is certainly enough to be of commercial importance, provided this strontium sulphate could be utilized."

Strontium is a metal closely allied to calcium, which is an important constituent of ordinary limestone, and to barium whose sulphate, barytes, is extensively used in paints. Strontium is, however, rarer than its sister elements and occurs in commercially important deposits in the form of celestite (the sulphate) and strontianite (the carbonate).

Numerous Uses

Strontium compounds are used in cathode ray tubes and other devices for the emission of electrons, in medicinal preparations, in refining beet-sugar, in pyrotechnics, flares (for railways, especially in the United States), tracer bullets and signals for ships and aeroplanes in which the bright crimson imported by the element to a flame is utilised. Strontium sulphate (powdered celestite) acts as a brightening agent in coloured paints and as a filler it finds use in sealing compounds for electric batteries, asphaltic compositions, rubber, sealing wax, etc. The Imperial Institute, London estimates that 2,000 to 4,000 tons of celestite are used annually as paints and fillers in Great Britain. Powdered celestite is said to be suitable for making water-paint distemper.

Strontium carbonate is used in Germany to produce special high-grade alloy steels, and is also used to a limited extent in the manufacture of glass, ceramic glazes and enamel. Strontium chloride powder is employed in refrigerators working on the solid absorption principle.

World's Biggest Deposits

The world's biggest deposits of strontium occur in the West of England and these, together with German celestite, have furnished the world's requirements so far. The production of strontium in the United States is comparatively small since the domestic product finds it difficult to compete with the long-established British and German industries.

During the Bangalore Fortnight the Bangalore Amateur Dramatic Society, the Bangalore United Service Club, the Bowring Institute and the United Service Club, Bangalore, the Residency Central Charities will have a variety of entertainments.

In the Trichinopoly District, celestite occurs as sparsely distributed veins in the gypsum-bearing clays of Cretaceous age over an area of about 10 square miles and the quantity available within a depth of 100 feet from the surface is estimated at 1,000,000 tons, says a bulletin issued by the Geological Survey of India. The deposits are easily accessible. Some applications for mining leases have recently been received by the Madras Government.

The mineral also occurs in Upper Sind and in the Kohat District of the North West Frontier Province but (as in the cases of France and Italy) not in commercially important quantities.

GERMAN TORPEDO BOATS

TO MEDITERRANEAN VIA FRANCE

Disclosure In Commons—Britain Not Protesting To Vichy

A disclosure that Germany is sending small torpedo boats through France to the Mediterranean was made in the Commons by a member who asserted that boats were navigating in Rhone through France and through Marseilles to Mediterranean. He asked whether British Government protested to Vichy.

Mr. Eden in reply did not deny the accuracy of the assertion but said he did consider a protest to Vichy was the best course in the circumstances.

BRITAIN TO MAINTAIN

TREATY RIGHTS

Latest position in Iraq was defined by Mr. Eden in the House of Commons. Small forces of R.A.F. at Habbaniyah have successfully beaten off the attack by Iraqi forces and now they control the whole area round the Cantonment. Both R.A.F. and Imperial forces at Basrah are being rapidly reinforced and vigorous air action is being carried out by R. A. F. against military objectives throughout Iraq. British Government is convinced that the action of Mr. Rashid Ali and his supporters in launching an attack on the loyalty of their country is not upheld by Iraq people as a whole. British Government never had any intention to threaten the independence of Iraq. Their sole desire has been to safeguard their legitimate treaty rights.

NAZI PLANES IN SYRIA

NAZI BASES USED AS PASSAGE TO IRAQ

Responsibility Rests On French Authorities

FRANCE TO TAKE IMMEDIATE ACTION

An announcement that Britain taken action against German aircraft in Syria was made by Mr. Eden at question time in the Commons. The Foreign Secretary declared that detailed information at Government's disposal showed that French authorities in Syria are allowing German aircraft to use Syrian aerodromes as staging posts for flight to Iraq. British Government consequently have given authority for action to be taken against these German aircraft on Syrian aerodrome. Mr. Eden continued that French Government cannot escape the responsibility for this situation. Their action under German orders in permitting these flights is a clear breach of Armistice terms and inconsistent with the understandings given by the French Government.

German planes passing across Syria are authoritatively estimated at about thirty. They did not have German markings. It is believed there were French markings. It is understood that German planes were not troop carriers. They only transported technicians and civilian personnel.

It is officially announced following the urgent appeal by Mr. Rashid Ali a certain number of German aircraft arrived in Iraq, bringing propagandist agitators and other similar axis specialists.

Unconfirmed reports state that German air force installed in four Syrian bases including one at a port of Rayka. Reporting this an American radio commentator speaking from Ankara added that Germans were said to have landed twenty bombers four days ago and this number has been swelled by the arrival of new squadrons. It is added that German and Italian Military missions have been sent at Iraq capital and German technicians reported to be en route to across Syria to Iraq.

Mr. Roosevelt Condemns The Vichy Action

In passing reference to the Vichy Government

NO CIGARETTES TO WAR PRISONERS

BRITISH PARALLEL ACTION ON GERMAN PRISONERS

Information having been received that German Government discontinued the free issue of cigarettes to British prisoners of war, British war office consequently has taken a parallel action where German prisoners of war are concerned, it is authoritatively stated.

Herr Von Papen saw President Inonu. Mr. Sarajoglu was also present. German spokesman declared that general political situation was discussed.

The House of Commons will shortly hold a secret session to discuss the Ministry of Supply.

concerning the recent developments in Syria was referred to by President Roosevelt. He said the policy of the United States in its relations with France has so far been guided by the assurances of the Head of the French State that French policy would be solely within the terms of the Armistice Commission. Recent events however made voluntary acceptance by the Vichy Government of air bases to Germany.

People of the United States, President said, could hardly believe that the French Government would lend itself to a policy of political collaboration with Germany handing over the French Empire including African colonies, and Atlantic bases to enemies which implies menace to the peace of the Western Hemisphere.

Armed units of coast guards have been placed on Ten French ships by an order of the United States Navy Department. Among the vessels affected is the well-known Normandy which is now in New York Harbour.

Times Comments

The landing of German planes in Syria is the subject of leading articles in leading papers of Britain. Times says the whole episode calls for careful consideration of the condition on which our policy towards the Vichy Government has hitherto rested namely that the Government would not actively further the designs of the Axis against her former ally. The need for vigorous and prompt action on our part clear is, adds the paper. Public opinion, it says, will welcome Mr. Eden's assurances on this head.

EASTERN GROUP COUNCIL

MR. HYDARI ON A TOUR TO INDIAN INDUSTRIAL CENTRES

PROPOSAL TO MEET REPRESENTATIVES OF COMMERCIAL BODIES

(By Wire) Simla, May 16
It is understood that Mr. M. S. A. Hydari, Indian Member in the Eastern Group Council, is proceeding next month on a tour to the Industrial Centres throughout the country in order to meet the representatives of commercial bodies and industrialists. He will confer with them on the needs of the Supply Council and the steps that are necessary for producing in India those war requirements which are still not available in this country. It appears he recently met the representatives of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry and discussed with them the procedure for keeping himself in close contact with the Industrial and Commercial interests. Mr. Walchand Hirchand is expected in Simla today to meet Mr. Hydari and other officials.

EASTERN GROUP COUNCIL'S WORK

Mr. M. S. A. Hydari's Broadcast

(Associated Press of India)
Simla May 15
Mr. M. S. A. Hydari, India's representative on the Eastern Group Council, in a broadcasting talk on the Council's work from the Simla studio of the All-India Radio said when considering the Council and its activities it is well to bear in mind two important facts. The Council cannot create demand. It is not a monster sales organisation beating up custom. Its function is to arrange for a steady and speedy flow of what the Defence Services state they require and in the period of time required. It is clear, therefore, that it is not for the Council to busy itself with economic planning. The Eastern Group is also not a self-sufficient entity. There are articles of war supply which the Group cannot supply at all. There are many more whereof the Group can only supply a limited quantity. But the residue of the 50,000 or so items which are comprised in term 'requirements of forces' which the Group can supply and in sufficient quantity is very large.
Mr. Hydari reiterated that the Council is an organisation which has been set up to subserve the needs of war. Its objective is not economic advancement of its constituent countries though that must necessarily result from its operations. Its purpose is efficient procurement of war supplies using the Eastern Group as a vast unit of supply. The end of war should see the end of the Council as it is at present. But it may be that during the period of its existence the contacts which are being made, the spirit of mutual understanding which is being fostered, and the sense of being useful economic entity which may begin to be felt by countries of Eastern Group, will lead to a desire in those countries for peace time collaboration.

FRANCO-GERMAN COLLABORATION

WHAT IS THE TRUE CHARACTER OF THIS?

The World Still In The Dark

PETAINE'S PASSING REFERENCE TO THE AGREEMENT

The world is still in the dark concerning the true character of the agreement for closer Franco-German collaboration resulted from Darlan Hitler meeting at Berchtesgaden. The expected German statement on the subject has not so far been made.

Little more than a passing reference was made to this in a broadcast by Marshal Petain. The Marshal said that as a result of this understanding, negotiations would further continue which might result in clearing the road to the future. What Frenchmen had to do, said Petain, was to follow him along the path of honour and national interest. If the negotiations now in progress were successful France would be able to maintain her position as a European and colonial power.

The first proof of the so called collaboration between France and Germany are already evident in Syria.

Official figures of the number of armies sent to France and Norway were published in London. It was revealed in Parliament that 437 thousand British and Imperial troops went to France and 384 thousand returned. Of those who did not return 30 thousand were taken prisoners 24 thousand went to Norway and 2200 returned and 950 were taken as prisoners.

REFRESHMENT ROOMS AND CASTE
DISTINCTIONS

One of the achievements of Mr. E. V. Ramaswamy Naicker is the abolition of caste distinctions in Railway Refreshment rooms in South India. This decision of the railway authorities had mixed reception among people. We for one think that these distinctions do good to none. According to strict orthodox canons it is considered, objectionable to eat in hotels and refreshment rooms. Even today there are orthodox people who never enter the portals of a coffee club or a meals hotel. But such people are only very few. The large majority of people are nowadays accustomed to frequent these resorts. But one thing is very necessary. These refreshment rooms ought to be kept quite clean and neat. Supposing there are some people who want more comforts and who can pay for it there should be provision in these refreshment rooms to accommodate such people. In the name of abolition of caste distinctions if sufficient attention is not paid to neatness and cleanliness we are sure these refreshment rooms would deteriorate.

Here is an item of news in connection with the abolition of caste distinctions in refreshment rooms. The authorities of Villupuram Station refreshment room seem to have stated that there was some discontent among even Non-Brahmins as regards the removal of the distinction. Here is the news item.

"Mr. H. J. Crane, Chief Commercial Superintendent, S. I. Railway, today inspected the Indian refreshment room at Villupuram station and was shown round by Mr. S. Ramachandra Ayyar, Manager.

Asked by Mr. Crane as to the reaction of the public regarding the removal of communal signboards from the refreshment room, and whether this had in any way affected sale revenue, Mr. Ramachandra Ayyar stated there was some discontent among even Non-Brahmins as regards the removal of the boards. Sale revenue, however, had not fallen."

Abolition of such distinctions are no doubt good. Why not we proceed boldly in this reform? Is it not pertinent to ask on behalf of Mahomedans why there should be separate Hindu refreshment rooms and Mahomedan refreshment rooms? The Christians also may ask why not allow us to have our own refreshment rooms? In these matters racial color does no good. As a matter of fact even in the so-called Brahmin hotels and messes there have been

KRISHNARAJ SAGAR

CONTROL OF MALARIA

Against a final grant of Rs. 24,91,289 allotted for Krishnaraj Sagar and allied works for 1939-40, the aggregate expenditure was Rs. 22,97,144. The total capital cost to end of the year, exclusive of a sum of Rs. 1,30,00,000 being the portion of the capital cost of the reservoir for power water storage, debitable to the Electrical Department, was Rs. 3,55,58,951. The total gross receipts during the year amounted to Rs. 5,58,467. After deducting the working expenses of the dam and irrigation channels amounting to Rs. 3,70,120, the net revenue during the year, excluding interest charges on the capital invested, was Rs. 1,88,347.

Another important work that engaged the attention of the Department was the control of malaria. Several works, such as the breaching of the Mandya and Hosahalli tanks, providing deep level scouring sluices to enable tanks to be emptied during summer, the formation of new sites for the villages affected by malaria draining main valleys, canalizing channels, etc., were executed. The question how best the health of the villages could be improved is being examined in detail by a special committee of officers of the Public Works, Revenue and Public Health Departments.

ISOLATIONIST EFFORT DEFEATED

American Senate's Decision

The United States Senate defeated an isolationist effort to veto the transfer of shipping from one belligerent to another despite arguments that such transfers would be "needless provocative acts of war." It will be recalled the house had defeated a similar amendment on 7/5.

vanishing. What people require is neatness and cleanliness. Some people require only vegetarian food, and provision should be made for them. The food should be cooked tastefully. These are the requirements of a good hotel and refreshment room. Such being the case, we are not for forced reforms in the matter of food and drink.

FOREIGN EDITING

By Norman Cliff, Foreign Editor, The News Chronicle

"The foreign editor holds the key position in journalism today", an eminent member of our profession said to me recently, and I am not inclined to dispute his opinion.

Everyone has been forced in these days to lift his gaze from his own parish and try to take an intelligent interest in international happenings. These goings-on in foreign parts make the foreign editor's job one of the most enthralling in an exciting age. What happens on the particular patch of soil in the universe on which I chanced to be born does not seem to me to acquire added importance because of that event, and one of the chief joys I have in watching foreign affairs is relief from the necessity of assuming an interest in the local banalities that take the heart out of so many gifted journalists. The telephones on my desk afford me escape from the details of the latest "trunk discovery" and the witless remarks attributed to the royal personage when inspecting the tea-cosy stall.

Fascinations of the Job

Scanning the world as one's parish has always been an absorbing occupation, but, give him his due, since, That Man appeared on the horizon what a palpitating game it has been!

Cast your mind back to crisis after crisis, war leading to War, and you will agree that it is a long, long time since foreign editing could be regarded as a life of leisured ease.

My colleagues chaff me sometimes with the remark that it all started as soon as I became a foreign editor and it has gone on ever since; but I can recall scores of thrilling moments when I sat at the chief foreign sub-editor's desk. So I think I may be absolved from the major share of the blame.

The fascinations of the job include not only the constantly changing pattern of world-shaping events, but the correspondingly continuous variety of the problems one has to face and of the methods one must adopt.

Resourcefulness And Ingenuity
Strained

Not many months ago the trans-ocean telephone suddenly made cabling appear an intolerably slow method of communication. No sooner had disaster smitten a Middle West community than we listened on the telephone to the local sheriff describing the event with paeal breeziness. Telegraphed photographs came over the wire and one felt it would not be long before television would enable us to sit in Fleet Street and watch exciting occurrences abroad unfold themselves before our eyes. Just when we had dreams of perhaps even being projected into the future, war came and contemptuously threw us back to barbarism.

At once the foreign editor's task, as many another, was turned upside down. Communications were cut or were jammed by what threatened to be insuperable obstacles, such as severance of relations between the belligerents, censorship, closing of international telegraph and air services, restrictions on travel and so on.

Under pressure some of the panic measures have been modified, but obstructions remain to treble the difficulties of organizing a comprehensive news service across international frontiers. The resourcefulness and ingenuity of foreign editors to the utmost in forestalling events that develop behind a dense fog of secrecy, in overcoming travel and communication restrictions, and in defying dictatorial censorship.

The News Chronicle Team

In certain regimented States The News Chronicle, because of its Left policy, has never been popular with the tyrants in power, and the expulsion and even the imprisonment of correspondents have been among the problems we have had to solve in the past. In the same spirit the ticklish task of getting across barricaded frontiers and around war-obsessed censorship is being solved today.

Perhaps the most rewarding and important part of a foreign editor's work is the recruitment and maintenance of a first-class army of reliable and resourceful correspondents. The News Chronicle is and has been fortunate in being able to rely on the enthusiastic services of, in my opinion, the finest corps of correspondents on the roll of a newspaper. You and the rest of the world are familiar with many of their names and with the splendid results they produce. I am proud to be associated with them and one of my most pleasant duties, particularly these days when personal contacts are necessarily curtailed, is to keep the team working keenly and cooperating harmoniously.

As engrossing as news gathering from the ends of the earth, the diplomatic side of the foreign editor's day. As in most of the branches of journalism, the adeptness of his job a foreign editor must steal the time to maintain contacts with those who live outside the Street, not least importance with those who live in the suave atmosphere of diplomacy. If he has not the qualities of a diplomat in himself, he is likely to fail in complete success.

With his large and select staff of colleagues to direct, a foreign editor needs to be a manager of a business as well. Expenditure has been upwards in recent years, and the same time as the necessary economy has grown more acute.

The best work of a foreign editor and correspondent must count for nought unless they are able to depend on the skilled co-operation of their sub-editors. Here, as in every other branch of journalism, the

MYSORE STATE MUSLIM LEAGUE

RESIDENT INTERVIEWS Mr. JINNAH

ADVICE TO LOCAL MUSLIMS

"Pakistan Has Nothing to do with States"

Bangalore May 15
 Sahib Mohammad Shariff,
 President, All Mysore State
 Muslim League along with Mr.
 Salam (Joint Secretary)
 (Mr. M. A. Rahim Noor member) of the Muslim League interviewed Mr. Quadeer,
 All India Muslim League
 President, Nandi Hills yesterday at 11-30 a.m. It lasted an hour and a half. Important matters were discussed. A brief summary of it is given here-below. Quadeer-Azam thanked the Mysore State Muslim League for its anxiety about the present disposition and justified the manner in which the Mussalmans of the State, along with their brethren in other parts of India, were concerned about his health.
 Quadeer-Azam observed that the climate of Nandi Hills was very healthy and that the Mussalmans, he had considerably benefited from his health.

plene, courage and self-sacrifice.
 In this connection, Mr. Jinnah observed that Mussalmans in the neighbourhood of Nandi were coming to him to represent their grievances, and of these nothing concerned him so much as the report that the Government wanted to close down their Primary Schools, due to it may be to the paucity of School children. It was up to the workers of the League to popularise education among the masses and instil in the people a love for it, so that no village should remain without a school and no school without a big contingent of Muslim boys and girls.

Mysore Political Reforms

The Quadeer-Azam asked about the constitutional reforms recently granted by His Highness the Maharaja, allowing the people of the State a larger share than hitherto in the shaping of the Policies and measures of the Government and inquired if the reforms were satisfactory from the point of view of the Mussalmans of Mysore. He was told that the reforms, though satisfactory in some instances such as conceding to them separate electorates, yet they fell short in certain material details in fully safeguarding their interests. At this, he observed that, if the Community were to organise itself and make a bold and united demand, conscious of the justice of their cause and with every Mussalman to solidly back it up, he was sure that the Government would not be lacking in the foresight to recognise their grievances and grant that which, according to the Community, is vital to its interests. No Government, however powerful could fail to be impressed with the just demand of the people or a section of the people, provided the demand is backed up by co-operation, co ordination of effort, united action and uniformity of thought and action.

Tribute to Sir Mirza

In this connection, he paid a tribute of praise to Amin-ul Mulk Sir Mirza M. Ismail who, unfortunately for the State, had relinquished his stewardship.
 That a representative of a Minority Community of 5 lakhs of people should have so successfully conducted the administration of a big State for a period of 15 years, speaks of his ability, tact, thoroughness and foresight.
 It should be an object-lesson to every Mussalman of the State.
 These were some of the qualities that paved the way for the success of individuals and communities.

No Affiliation To All India League

Asked as to why the All-India Muslim League did not affiliate the States Leagues to itself, the Quadeer-Azam said that would raise many thorny questions, such as the constitutional status of the respective States, their relation with sovereign power, and many other details which,
 for the present, may well be left out. Though the parent body may not have any direct connection with the States Leagues, yet the latter may look up to the former for support and sympathy whenever the right of the Mus-salmans of the States were ignored and trampled upon.
 Rajkot, Jaipur and Hyderabad provide a few instances where the help of the All-India Body succeeded in setting matters right.

Pakistan Nothing to do with States

Asked as to what part the States have to play in the Scheme of Pakistan, the Leader said that that Scheme had nothing to do with the States. The establishment of Pakistan was the most just and legitimate demand of the Mussalmans, and it is sure to appeal to all reasonable people. We have set before us Pakistan as our goal, and we will not rest till we win it.

The Quadeer-Azam observed that the heart of the Muslim Community was sound. What was wanted was sound leadership; selfless, incorruptible and sincere leaders were wanted.— Such people as will under no circumstances let down the Community. The well-being of the Community should be the pre-eminent consideration for them, and no situation, however advantageous to themselves, should stand between them and the Community. He had a great hope in the intelligentsia among the Mussalmans. He wished that it was possible for him to make them realise their responsibility towards their community and persuade them to selflessly work for their hapless brethren.

Overwhelmed with Affection

He was overwhelmed with the affection and regard which the Mussalmans felt towards him.
 Although he was a sinner, he was not Moulvi and may not be observing what was strictly laid down by Islam, still their affection for him was unbounded. It may be due to the fact that they regarded him as their friend and helper. How he wished that he had deserved this indulgence.

In the end, he wanted the State League to divert its attention to popularising Education and work for the Economic advancement of the Mussalmans of the State.

Miss Fatima Jinnah, who at the time was with Mr. Jinnah, took part in the discussion and gave several suggestions.

Again to Bangalore in December

Mr. Jinnah was requested to receive an Address, but while thanking the organisation for the address, he said that, in the present circumstances of his health, he may not be compelled back to Bangalore in December and speak to them on that occasion. He said that he will return to Bangalore on the 18th instant, and has asked the League to with its workers and other leaders.

U. S. CONDITIONS FOR FEEDING FRANCE

Restriction On Help To Nazis

(By Cable) London
 The Daily Express New York
 Correspondent cabled on May 9:
 America will not help to feed
 Unoccupied France if the Vichy Government gives in an inch on Nazi demands for the use of the French fleet or of French bases in France or her colonies.

Under Secretary of State
 Sumner Welles told the Vichy
 Ambassador, Gaston Henri Haye, that America would gladly help to feed France if Marshal Petain's Government maintained a firm stand.

This statement is taken as a clear warning to Darlan not to attempt to overthrow Marshal Petain.

The announcement that the U. S. Government had provisionally agreed to let Unoccupied France buy two shiploads of wheat per month was made by Henri Haye.

APPOINTMENT OF SECOND MEMBER

Some Speculations

Bangalore, May 17
Now that the appointment of Officiating Dewan is announced,
Mr. K. V. Anantaraman naturally be First Member of Council. Speculation is rife as to who Second Member would be.
According to the New Constitution there shall be a Council of Ministers consisting of the Dewan and such numbers of Ministers not less than being as H. H. the Maharaja may determine to aid and advise him in the executive authority.

of the State. The Ministers shall be appointed by the Maharaja and shall be sworn in as Members of the Council of Ministers. These Ministers are all of equal status. Two at least of the Ministers shall be from among the elected members of

According to seniority of service
Messrs Rajaseva Prasakta
A. V. Ramanathan and B. T.
Rukn-ul-Mulk Abdul Wazid, Revenue Commissioner. But on former occasions Revenue Commissioners have been raised to the position of Member of Council. On this occasion if seniority is considered it is likely Rajasevaprakata A. V. Ramanathan would be appointed Second Member of Council. If this should happen His Highness would have to appoint a Muslim member of Assembly or Council as non official Minister.

It is very likely next week the appointment of Ministers would be announced.

Growing Seriousness Of International Situation

(From our correspondent)
(By Wire) Simla, May, 17

tant interview which Sir Sikan-dar Hyat Khan, the Premier of Punjab gave to the Indian correspondent of the Manchester

Sikandar favours the proposal for a conference of the premiers of all provinces to solve the present political deadlock. He would however include leaders of the several parties in the Central Legislature and a few outstanding personalities like Sir Sapru.

Sir Sikandar refers to his speech in Punjab Assembly in which he had supported the principle of Bombay Conference resolution.

In view of the growing seriousness of the international situation he deprecated the agitation both in favour of and against Pakistan and said that

POLITICAL DEADLOCK MUST BE RESOLVED

Mr. A. K. FAZLUL HUQ'S

"FUTURE CONSTITUTION MUST BE BUILT ON LOVE"

(Associated Press of India)

Determination to pursue the move suggested by him to bring about a solution of the present political deadlock in the country to its very end is reiterated by the Bengal Premier Mr. A. K.
Fazlul Huq, in a statement issued tonight.

shall make an appeal to all the warring communities to cease their strife and sit together and resolve to solve work out a scheme which will be worthy of India and its militate against the principles of any political organisation in Axis "Victory Parade" in Athens

Greeks Boo Italian Troops

(By Cable) London
The TIMES' Stockholm correspondent
cabled on May 8:

First reports sent by Swedish journalists directly from Greece and Yugoslavia and appearing describe the Axis "victory parade" in Athens which took place on May 3. The Greeks were not allowed in the streets in the centre of town, but groups collected on the outskirts watching the march and behaving passively while the Germans panned, but whistling and booing when Italian troops appeared.

Correspondents say Greeks bitterly resent the Italians' taking part in the parade since the Italians suffered only defeats for six months and the Greeks despise them.

The Germans have dismissed large numbers of Greek soldiers giving 'them permits to go home, but there is no organisation to help them and each man's journey as he can-wander past in their old uniforms with an overcoat strapped on the back to serve them as a pillow during the night, which is generally spent in open air.

One correspondent says he saw a group of prisoners partly from Great Britain and partly from Australia, and "they were marching with a spirit which impressed the Germans and foreign journalists. They had all been at Benghazi and were men in North-West Africa."

According to the Press Communique issued this morning His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore has been pleased to grant to Amin-ul-Mulk Sir Mirza Ismail one year's leave preparatory to retirement, to take effect from 1st June 1941, from which date Rajamantaprasanna Mr. N. Madhava Rao will officiate as Dewan of Mysore.

This news is not a surprise to us. We were sure that Mr. N. Madhava Rao would be appointed as successor to Sir Mirza. This announcement, we are confident, will be received with satisfaction by people of Mysore. For, some interested parties were spreading the rumour that some European would be brought as Dewan of Mysore. There were others who were saying that Sir Shanmugam Chetty, this man or that man, would be brought as Dewan. Without meaning any insult or disrespect to those personalities the very idea of bringing in an outsider, be he European or Indian, is repugnant to patriotic Mysoreans.

We congratulate Rajamantaprasanna Mr. N. Madhava Rao on his succession to this high office. He joined Mysore Civil Service in 1907 as Probationary Assistant Commissioner. He has served in several capacities and has won the approbation of his superiors. In a number of places he was Sub-Division Officer. During Sir M. Visvesvaraya's dewanship he was Under Secretary to Government. During Sir Banerjee's dewanship for a period he was his Private Secretary. Later on he served as General Manager, Bhadravati Iron Works and President, Mysore City Municipality. After Sir Mirza assumed dewanship, Mr. N. Madhava Rao served as Chief Secretary to Government for a number of years. In connection with Sandal Oil affair he went on deputation to England, Europe and America in 1928. Then again when Sir Mirza went to London as a delegate of the Round Table Conference, Mr. N. Madhava Rao on three occasions accompanied him as Special Officer. He gradually assumed the Office of Revenue Commissioner. Later on in October 1935 after retirement of Dewan Bahadur K. Matthen he was raised to Second Membership of Council. In that office he continued until January 1939. After retirement of Rajamantaprasanna S. P. Rajagopalachari he has been First Member of Council. Mr. N. Madhava Rao has earned a reputation as an able and conscientious officer. People who have moved closely with him say that he has no prejudices or predilections. He is kind to form judgment of men and things after dispassionate study of their antecedents and things connected with them. We are sure that Mr. N. Madhava Rao would continue the great work of uplift of Mysore with the same energy, enthusiasm and vigor as his great predecessor. To succeed Sir Mirza is not an ordinary thing. During the last 15 years he has raised Mysore to a pitch of excellence that the whole world is looking up to Mysore as a model today. We hope that in the period of his stewardship Mr. Madhava Rao would take Mysore many steps further in the direction of political, economic and educational progress.

More than all, we are living now in a new age of popular Government and popular liberties. The New Constitutional Reforms have already been operating. The New Assembly and the Council are about to meet within a month. Ministers are to be chosen from among the elected members of the Assembly and the Council. We have no desire to speculate in this matter. We hope the wisest choice would be made. Whatever it may be, it has to satisfy the popular aspirations. It has to be in accord with the new spirit that has dawned in the land. The success of the Reforms depends much upon the sincere and whole-hearted co-operation between the popular Ministers and official members of the Executive Council. In this sphere the difference between the official and the non-official has to vanish. All Ministers are of equal status. And any portfolio may be given to popular Ministers. Sympathetic understanding and wise adjustment is necessary when the things are taking a new shape. We have every confidence that Rajamantaprasanna Mr. N. Madhava Rao, Officiating Dewan, would rise to the occasion and earn the gratitude of the people. This is an occasion when much cannot be said. We are, so to say, in a stage of transition. Things are in a state of flux. Much depends upon human endeavour, sympathetic co-operation and concerted action. We hope that in the coming days, Mysore would take another step forward.

In the same connection, we offer our sincere congratulations to Rajamantaprasanna Mr. K. V. Anantaraman, who succeeds Mr. N. Madhava Rao as First Member of Council.

A.P. Lahore, May 16. The Committee adopted a resolution expressing full confidence in Sardar Santokh's leadership.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE ROTARY

PRINTING DEVELOPMENTS IN THE LAST 250 YEARS

"The progress of printing is an intensely human story. At times it flames with hope and daring. At times it lapses into sameness and ugliness; but these are followed by resurgence of the creative spirit."

So wrote Mr. Frank Colebrook in an article entitled "How Printing has changed in 250 years," in which, in the 250th anniversary issue of Berrow's Worcester Journal, he traced printing development during the lifetime of the country's oldest newspaper.

When the Worcester paper was started, Mr. Colebrook stated, it probably had only one wooden screw-operated hand press, but he imagined it embodied certain Bleau improvements, so-called for a brainy Dutchman, who originated them about 1620.

The types used in the Journal had probably been bought from Holland.

The Journal wasn't printed on an iron press till 1800. In that year another outsider invented the iron press. This was that many-sided friend of Fox and Burke and of "oxygen Priestley," the restless Lord Stanhope. The new iron press was called the Stanhope. It was toggleworked, and the release of the pressure producing platen was by a powerful spring.

In America, a little later, an iron Columbian press was produced, and a good many were brought to this country. The movement of the platen was controlled in the Columbian by weights.

Koenig's Development

After reference to the work of Ged of Edinburgh, John Baskerville, and William Nicholson, who anticipated the rotary by 60 years, Mr. Colebrook traced developments later in the 19th century.

About 1812 German compositor, Koenig, constructed a steam-driven cylinder printing machine. He claimed originality, perhaps quite truly, but he had access to Nicholson's patent. Bentsley, a notable printer of Bolt Court in London, financed Koenig.

Walter, of The Times, saw his machine and ordered one, and it was installed in 1814 in time to print the reports of the Battle of Waterloo on machines producing 1,200 copies per hour per machine.

Reports of the earlier defeat of Napoleon and his banishment to Elba had to be printed by The Times on a score of iron presses at about 250 per hour per press. The circulation at Elba date was about 3,000.

In 1818 Cowper and Applegarth, British engineers, improved on Koenig's press. Through one contrivance alone, they removed about forty wheels from the Koenig machine, they distributed the ink better and took sheets off better, and other improvements.

Nine years later, in 1827, Cowper and Applegarth, a North of England engineer, devised for The Times (which financed them) a four-cylinder "perfector," i.e., a machine which at one travel of the paper printed it on both sides. That yielded 5000 copies per hour per machine.

Cowper and Applegarth in 1848 constructed an eight-cylinder vertical machine which was one of the spectacular displays at the great Exhibition of 1851.

Robert Hoe, first of New York and soon of New York and London, soon brought out a machine which gave 20,000 an hour. In 1869 the manager and the engineer of The Times, in consultation with the gifted owner of the journal, John Walter, brought out the so-called Walter rotary press, printing from stereo forme at high speed.

Ten years later (adds Mr. Colebrook), I, a young reporter on The Western Morning News, of Plymouth, gazed in awe at the Victory rotary newspaper press which had a 10,000 per hour output.

Various northern engineering companies were soon producing efficient rotary machines; and to-day the Hoe firms, of London and the Crabtree firm, of Leeds, are one great rotary newspaper concern, producing machines of vast capacity.

Birmingham Printing Firm's Record

A note on the history of the well-known printing firm of J. G. Hammond and Co., Birmingham, was contributed to The Birmingham Mail last week by its 88-year-old founder, Mr. J. G. Hammond.

"Sixty years ago I started the business," he wrote. "Although I started with four men and one machine, the business developed with a branch in London till it was printing 120 publications and employed over 700 people."

"One publication has been printed continuously for 32 years, six have been printed for 30 years, and three for 28 years while 40 publications have been printed for an average of 22 years each."

"Half of the firm's old building was rebuilt 12 months ago, but unfortunately it was a victim of one of the recent raids, and old and new buildings, machinery and type worth together about half a million pounds were destroyed."

Security Prisoners in Deoli Camp

SOME ALLEGATIONS REFUTED

Press Note

A.P. Simla, May 16. A Press Note says allegations recently appeared in the press that security prisoners in Deoli detention camp were treated in Class C. class convicted prisoners and that their health was not properly looked after. The Press Note states that the Press Note is completely contrary to facts. Security prisoners are divided into two classes according to education, status and mode of living before arrest. There are at present 100 in Class I and 93 in Class II. There are 12 annas a day which comes favourably with Rs. 0-6-6 wages is the cost of rations supplied. A class convicted prisoners in Ajmer. Class II security prisoners get diet allowance of 12 annas which is double the cost of rations supplied to Class I convicted prisoners. Security prisoners are also allowed to supplement their diet at their own cost and buy toilet articles, cigarettes, etc., and from whence which they are permitted to receive from friends and relatives. In considering the matter of diet it is of interest to note that most security prisoners prefer not to work although suitable and remunerative forms of occupation are provided for those who wish to do so. It has been alleged Deoli is unhealthy place and almost all security prisoners suffer from malaria. The maximum number of malaria cases in any one month has been 20 out of 160 and percentage of cases in a month has been low as 3 percent. Medical reports show that majority of prisoners have gained in weight. Security prisoners of both classes are allowed the privilege of wearing their own clothing. Those who have not sufficient clothing of their own, adequate scale is provided at Government expense. Prisoners are allowed to play such games as football and volleyball on playing field for an hour and a half every day. In addition to books which prisoners are allowed to read, 100 library books are in circulation in the camp. A number of newspapers and periodicals in English and Indian languages are provided at Government expense and further list books approved of those which security prisoners may receive from relatives and friends. Delays and difficulties have occurred in passing letters to and from security prisoners. Arranging interviews with prisoners is a task which has been one time did not include those acquainted with some of the employed but this defect has now been remedied.

FREE AUROBINDO ASRAM

IMPRESSIONS OF A VISITOR

By Professor KHAGENDRANATH MITRA, M.A.

Pondicherry is known to the whole world as one of the five great possessions in India. As much as the year 1672, this was then a small village on the Coromandal coast, was seized by the French from King of Bijapur. Since then it has passed through vicissitudes and is now lying restfully among the small hamlets of British India. The situation on the seaboard is at a great natural advantage and the place has been the administrative headquarters of the French establishments in India. The Government House, a High Court, a school colleges are all located in Pondicherry. But under the terms of the treaty with the British, no garrison is maintained there. The whole town is lighted by electricity. It has a beautiful promenade, a long beach which reaches out into the sea and a lighthouse 89 feet high. But since the establishment of the Asram by Sri Aurobindo in 1910, the town has become well-known throughout the world as an important seat of Indian culture, so much so that the name Pondicherry has almost become a synonym for the Asram of Sri Aurobindo. The Asram proper is but a modest house in which the Asram has been living for the past years. But it extends to a wider area comprising some seventy or eighty brick houses scattered over the town. The devotees are accommodated in one important feature of this area which strikes the casual observer, is the scrupulous care with which it is kept bright, tidy and spotlessly clean. Originally the town was divided into Black and White Asram. The Asram belongs to the white Asram and is certainly the finest spot in the whole town. Entering this part of the town one feels that it is a piece of territory carved out of the coast more than a thousand miles away. The Asram, however, has a cosmopolitan character and is resorted to by people from all parts of India and the larger world, but the Bengali element seems to predominate and the cultural atmosphere is distinctly Bengali. Some important respects at

Sri Aurobindo gave up his social life in 1910 and removed to Pondicherry in the same year in pursuit of some abiding truth. Ever since he has been leading the life of a recluse. But he is not one of pure resignation and escapism—a flight from the manifold ills of worldly life. It is rather a life of contemplation on the ultimate reality of man and the progressive realisation of the inner self. His Asram, therefore, has not been established on any customary model and it has slowly grown as the result of some intensive intellectual and spiritual urge. The people who are attracted to Pondicherry feel the same urge perhaps which prompts them in many cases to cut off all earthly ties and adopt a life of self-surrender. Complete surrender is the passport to the spiritual life which the Asram of Sri Aurobindo offers. 'Transformation' of human nature is only possible through self-surrender. So long as the least bit of attachment remains self is swayed by a duality and conflict and surrender becomes a myth. Those, therefore, who have joined the Asram have surrendered their all and severed their earthly connections. They look upon Sri Aurobindo as their Guru but so far as I could gather there is no formal initiation. The relationship is based more or less on an intellectual and spiritual appreciation of the ideals of the order, and the communion of spirit takes place generally through the writings of Sri Aurobindo, which are by no means rare. Although he is rarely accessible, Sri Aurobindo takes the trouble of enlightening enquirers through correspondence, which usually takes place through the medium of English. Sri Aurobindo's powers of expression are great and they are often characterised by a sense of humour which is a rare gift among persons of philosophical temperament. In this respect he can be compared to our beloved poet Rabindranath.

In the organisation of this Asram, Sri Aurobindo is assisted by Mother, a lady of French origin. She joined Sri Aurobindo in 1914. Ever since she has been helping him in his Yogic Sadhana, success in which, he has himself admitted, would not have been possible in such a short space of time without her active participation and co-operation. Sri Aurobindo has further characterised her as a centre of great spiritual force. Sri Ma, as she is called, has taken charge of the spiritual and secular life of the Asramites, and has thus enabled Sri Aurobindo to devote himself exclusively to contemplation and spiritual research. Unlike Sri Aurobindo, the mother is visible daily, although she does not come out of the Asram now-a-days. She appears on the terrace of the Asram building every day in the morning and all the devotees flock to the courtyard for darsan. Then again in the evening, she joins the devotees in silent meditation at the prayer hall. Her presence is felt by the Asramites as a great spiritual inspiration. After the meditation or Dhyana Nam, those who desire to approach the mother are permitted to do so on the stair case with flowers and other offerings and receive her blessings. Her chief merit lies in the eyes of a casual observer in the excellent organisation of the Asram. Considering the extent to which the Asram has grown in recent years, it is little short of a miracle how she finds time and energy to attend to the minutest details of its administration and to the smallest needs of its two hundred inmates both men and women. Their needs are no doubt few, for they are trained in the art of plain living and thinking. The female devotees or Sadhikas, as they are called, live in separate houses allotted to them. Every Sadhika or Sadhika must spend a considerable portion of his or her time in solitude so essential to the realisation of a higher life. But this does not mean that they are condemned to a cold and lifeless existence devoid of sunshine and comfort. The sublime need not be divorced from beauty and joy. Many of the inmates find time after finishing their daily routine of duties to develop their own approved aptitudes for music, poetry, philosophy, art and the like. Many of the members of the Asram have made their mark as accomplished musicians, artists, and poets. I attended some of the musical soirees at the Asram, which were very largely attended by people of both sexes—not only by the members of the Asram, but also by a good many visitors of all sects and communities—Bengalis, Gujaratis, English, French, and Madrasis. I have also seen some of their art creations, and so far as I can judge, they are quite creditable performances.

The Asram and its environs daily require a vast amount of manual work, and a very considerable portion of this is done by the Asramites themselves. The mother is a great lover of flowers and quite a large quantity of this commodity is supplied daily from the Asram gardens and outside. It is a pleasure to see the devotees gathering these flowers early in the morning with a zealous care. These are then sorted and sent daily to the Mother in their hundreds and thousands for such use as she may be pleased to make of them. But this is no haphazard work. The people who are in charge of it have to attend to the minutest details and this they do from day to day with commendable assiduity and care.

Nor is this all. The Asram has several vocational departments in which also the devotees have to work for the benefit of the Asram, e.g., a bakery, a dairy, a carpentry and an Electric Supply Department. Those who have special aptitudes in these directions find ample scope for them. These departments are run under the supervision of the mother. There is a European gentleman known under the Asram name of Pavitra who, I was told, is a skilled engineer. His is the brain behind the technical departments. The kitchen is also a very important institution in the Asram. In the British Universities of Cambridge and Oxford every College has got a kitchen, which is an institution in itself. Here in Pondicherry also the kitchen is something worth seeing. But its organisation is based on different principles. The work is here done by members of the Asram with a zeal and earnestness and perfection unparalleled anywhere. For the kitchen has to feed no less than two hundred members twice daily—and the number is growing. The dining hall, which is located in a spacious hired building, is kept scrupulously clean, and the usual round of manual duties, such as dressing the edibles, cooking, serving out food, washing dishes and utensils, is gone through in silence and with an orderliness and discipline which are seldom found in a non-military mess. The food is simple but pure and wholesome. Eggs, meat or fish are not allowed in the Asram and sugar is rationed. The diner finds his daily requirement of sugar in a tin deposited in a shelf with his or her name label put on it. He takes it out himself at dinner. The rich and the poor partake of the same food, which consists of either rice or bread or a combination of both. Bread which is consumed in fairly large quantities, is wholly supplied by the Asram bakery. The stress which is laid on the simplicity of food seems to recall the principle of the Indian sages of old: i.e., the mental powers on the purity of which spiritual progress depends are ultimately dependent on the purity of the food one takes.

In the dining hall the men and the women sit separately. Generally the cooking is done by the male members, but I was told that the Sadhikas also take a turn in cooking, particularly on Fridays, when more than one course is served including a delicacy now and then.

The Asram maintains a library and a reading room, where the inmates may read books and daily papers, but there interest in current affairs of the world did not seem to be keen. I tried to ascertain if Sri Aurobindo had any definite views about the present chaotic condition of the world, but I could not elicit any information on this point beyond a general statement that he believed a better world-order would emerge out of the present confusion and ruin.

The optimism forms the keynote of the Sadhana inculcated in the Asram. Man's destiny cries out for a better and a fuller realisation, and the dark forces of nature which stand in its way have to be dispelled by the Sadhana of man assisted by divine grace. What form exactly this better state of existence will take it is too early to say. But a firm belief in the possibility of a fuller and richer consciousness for man, in the emancipation of spirit from the shackles of crude traditions and age-old prejudices and in the transcendence of the gross animal existence through freedom, is what is demanded as a sine qua non for the spiritual side of the life of the Asram.

The tenets of Sri Aurobindo's teaching have been embodied in three volumes of his Life Divine, which has been published from the Asram. Some of the members from the Asram have made it a part of their daily Sadhana to meet together for the purpose of reading and understanding the principles inculcated in those volumes. As Sri Aurobindo is rarely visible and as he does not hold any discourse on his philosophical creed, these study circles are very helpful to those whose souls hanker after truth. On my return from Pondicherry, I learnt that there was a similar study group in Calcutta and elsewhere which reads, discusses and tries to assimilate the principles of Sri Aurobindo's philosophy.

I had darsan of Sri Aurobindo on the 24th November last. He was seated on a divan in a room upstairs, and nearly five hundred people wended their steps in silence one by one. The route was short, but the passage was narrow and the same staircase was used for going up and coming down. This necessarily took a lot of time, but no one grumbled. People had come from long distances to have a darsan of the saint, and they were satisfied so long as they got a chance. They ascended the steps, one deep, in solemn silence and approached the doorstep of the room; in which Sri Aurobindo was seated along with Mother, bowed at the door, deposited their floral presents in a chest kept for the purpose and then turned away. The whole function took more than three hours to finish, but the arrangements were perfect.

It was almost dusk when my turn came and the shades of evening were gathering in the distant offing. The room, however, was well lighted with electric lamps and we could see distinctly the smiling face of the man who is practically dead to the outside world except for the few rare occasions when he gives darsan to his votaries and admirers. Here is the man who was at one time regarded as the brain of a dangerous subversive movement. The change is great indeed. The fire was still there but it was crowned with peace and contentment I have brought with me a portrait of Sri Aurobindo—likeness with which we are all familiar. But his present appearance seemed to be very different and there is no recent portrait available. He appeared much older, fairer and more like a sage who had fulfilled the great mission of life. His appearance in silk dhoti and punjabi suggested in a very welcome manner his fondness for the Bengali mode of life. He did not at all look grave or inferior or artificially about him.

Sri Aurobindo never goes out of the precincts of the Asram, nor is he visible to anyone except Mother and a few privileged workers of the Asram, like the doctor, manager, etc., during the days of the darsan, which there are now only four

LORD BEAVERBROOK

(BY W. J. BRITTAIN)

All Fleet Street—in fact since his spectacular success as Minister of Aircraft Production all the world—knows that Lord Beaverbrook is a man who never wastes a minute, but some surprise was caused even among members of his own staff when one day in the middle of a conference a barber arrived and proceeded to cut "the Beaver's" hair while the discussion continued.

William J. Brittain, who left an assistant editorship of The Sunday Express to become editor of The Sunday Dispatch, tells the story in an excellent expensively Hutchinson book "This man Beaverbrook."

"One day, in the middle of the conference, the door opened and to Beaverbrook was announced what A. J. Russell and others there took to be 'Your father.' They thought his father was dead, and certainly there was resemblance between the powerful man at the head of the conference and he who came in with a little boy. There was no hand-shake. The man took from his bag a white sheet and spread it on the floor. Beaverbrook lifted his chair and sat in the middle of the white sheet. Then another sheet was put round Beaverbrook out came a comb and a pair of scissors, snipping began, and the conference understood and went on self-consciously discussing and suggesting the contents of the next day's paper.

To his staff, and especially the younger members of it, Lord Beaverbrook is kindness personified. With Ralph McCarthy, Russel Standard and C. A. Lyon, Brittain went one night to Beaverbrook's Leatherhead house to dine for the first time with "the Beaver." They travelled in "high suppressed excitement."

"In my ignorance," he writes, "I expected a great man of action to act like my conception of one and was surprised on heading the little deputation into the big room to receive a warm hand-clasp and the kindest inquiry after my welfare. After dinner we went into the modern hidden-lighted library; Lord Beaverbrook encouraged us to talk and took careful notes on a pad kept handy at a small table at his side of any ideas which struck him as sensible."

Naturally Beaverbrook's experiences during his development of the Express newspapers are described at some length in this brightly written book and one of the best stories concerns "the Beaver's" decision to splash a story, which he could not confirm, that Gerald Lee Bevan had failed and fled by aeroplane.

"He went home in torment Lady Beaverbrook was out at a dinner party, he knew. He went to bed, but sat up in bed, sleepless. Eventually Lady Beaverbrook came home, tiptoeing past his room so as not to disturb his sleep after the heavy day and night at the Office. All night Beaverbrook stayed awake had Bevan crashed, had he really gone?"

"Next morning Lady Beaverbrook said 'You look tired-how did you sleep?'"

"Not at all-how was the dinner?"

"Interesting. They were all talking about Bevan flying off was there he had just seen Bevan off from Croydon."

"The story, the whole confirmation, had tiptoed past his room!"

"So he learned the joys and sorrows of journalism," observes the author, without, however, pointing out that what "the Beaver" really did was, typically to ignore one of the most sacred journalistic canons, and get away with it.

Brittain, as a Beaverbrook executive, has seen the "Little Man" go into action and achieve results, and has come to regard his drive with admiration and his personality with affection. He does not conceal either his admiration or affection and after all why should he? "The Beaver" is one of the great men of his age. (Newspaper world)

Lucknow May 17

A scuffle between C class political prisoners and jail staff occurred in Lucknow District Jail on Monday last. It is reported the prisoners failed to do their quota of work and were being taken off whereupon a large number of C class prisoners started shouting. The superintendent of jails immediately went to the spot and asked the prisoners to go to their barracks but the latter defied the order. They were then ordered to be put into the barracks by the jail staff when the scuffle occurred. Disciplinary action has been taken against those prisoners who were responsible for the disturbance.

The report of hungerstrike by some political prisoners in the District Jail is denied officially.

SREE AUROBINDO ASRAM

in the course of the year. It is difficult to imagine how one can spend his life year in and year out under these conditions of self-imposed imprisonment. He seldom speaks. At least none of the visitors at these darsans ever gets a chance of having any conversation with him. During the November darsan at which I was present with my wife there was among the visitors a ruling chief from Bombay—a very cultured gentleman who was eager to have speech with Sri Aurobindo, but he could not be obliged. The Maharaja based his claims to have preferential treatment not on any personal grounds, but he said that having been the first ruling nobleman to pay his homage to Sri Aurobindo, he was in a position to carry Sri Aurobindo's message to his brother chiefs. Besides, he represented a few hundred thousand of his subjects whose spokesman he was. But Sri Aurobindo, as His Highness himself told me, declined to depart from his usual practice and break his silence on any account.

The Asram people did not make it a grievance that Sri Aurobindo was not always visible to them nor that the privilege of speech with him was denied to them. The darsan, though so few and far between, was itself full of inspiration for them, as I noticed on that memorable day. One of the devotees actually seemed to walk in a trance when crossing the courtyard and ascending the stairs for the darsan.

To some Sri Aurobindo is a seer and to many a dreamer. From his youth upwards his life has been characterised by an idealism which is quite out of the ordinary. In the political sphere, it bordered dangerously on revolution. In the spiritual life, it is tending towards a conception of evolution which promises to be a revelation in philosophy.

AMERICAN REACTION TO VICHY

VICHY U. S. A. DIPLOMATIC RELATIONSHIP TO BREAK

Anxiety About The Fate Of French Colonies

For all practical purposes diplomatic relations between United States and France appear to have come to an end and it is expected in Washington that Admiral Leahy, United States Ambassador at Vichy will be recalled soon. Strong American effort to keep France out of Axis camp appears to have failed. The French demarche and statement by President Roosevelt that it is "inconceivable" that France should accept any "collaboration" which would imply alliance with Nazi regime have wiped Hess story from front pages.

Chief topics of conversation are what are likely to happen to French possessions on either side of the South Atlantic namely Martinique, French Guiana and Dakar in whose fate United States is naturally very much interested. French action has come as a distinct shock to the public as well as the administration of America and brought here new realisation how close and important the war is to the United States.

Vichy surprised at U. S. A. Attitude
Considerable surprise in Vichy Government circles has been caused by Roosevelt's reaction to Petain's broadcast. Rumoured occupation of French Guiana is also causing considerable comment.

It is understood that the result will be that the air line will be forced to cease operations in 20 days.

TREACHERY OF RASHID ALI Nizam's Press Communique

(Associated Press of India)

Hyderabad (Dn), May 18
His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad and Deccan has issued the following manifesto on Iraq situation.

Recent events in Iraq are such as may possibly cause misgivings in the minds of those Muslims of my Dominions and of India and Near East generally who are not fully conversant with the situation in that country and who may, therefore, possibly misunderstand the action military or other, that the British Government have been compelled to take in order to deal with that situation. In order, therefore to reassure Muslim peoples and to allay any doubts or misgivings they may entertain on the subject I considered it necessary to issue this brief message.

I am fully convinced and wish it be known and realised by all Muslims and others who may be interested in Iraq that the British Government have no other desire than to maintain the most friendly relations with that kingdom in the creation whereof they took such prominent part.
Their sole purpose in Iraq is to maintain the essential lines of communication with their allies in Egypt and Turkey. Maintenance of those lines of communications was expressly provided for in the treaty alliance with the independent kingdom of Iraq which was negotiated in 1930. Once this essential requirement was secured the British Government, will, I have no doubt, be ready to resume close and friendly relations which subsisted between them and Iraq ever since that country achieved its sovereign status.

COLOMBO PROFESSOR INTERROGATED BY POLICE

His House Searched

(Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, May 18
Dr. D. Suzzana, Professor of Colombo University, was among the seven persons who were taken to the Headquarters of the Special Branch of the Calcutta Police today following simultaneous searches of their residences here. Some communist literature is reported to have been seized by the police in the course of searches. Dr. Suz-zana and another person were subsequently let off after interrogation while the rest are kept under detention under the Defence of India Rules.

The immediate cause of the present trouble is treachery of Rashid Ali who became party to German designs. He began by seizing power and ousting the lawful regent who has been placed in office according to the Constitution and compelled him to flee from the country. Supported by a small but misguided minority, he next violated shamelessly the solemn treaty his country had made with our Empire by treacherously surrounding and attacking airbase at Jabalpur which was being maintained under explicit treaty provision. As was inevitable he was met with severe repulse from our gallant troops both British and Indian.

Action which the British forces have thus been compelled to take as in self-defence and for the purpose of keeping the lines of communication already mentioned which are so vital to the defence of India and to the is also in the best interests of Iraq itself. I strongly appeal to Muslims of India to join with me in expressing our unqualified disapproval of action of Rashid Ali and his clique who offended against one of the most solemn principles of Islam which is to maintain a peaceful world.

PURGE IN GERMANY

FRAU HESS AND OTHERS ARRESTED

HITLER'S BAN EVEN ON HIS CLOSEST ASSOCIATES
Hess's Statement In British Premier's Hand

Reports of extensive purge in Germany and many arrests of Hess's associates were mentioned by B.B.C. in a statement broadcast to Germany Saturday night when B. B. C. stated that full report of all statements made by Rudolf Hess had been sent to British Prime Minister for examination. B. B. C. added the examination of Herr Hess carried out in German and a translation is prepared. The Report is being kept as a secret. Everything is being carefully and minutely checked to test the reliability of Herr Hess's statement. B.B.C. added there were widespread reports of extensive purge in Germany and many arrests of Hess's associates especially occultists.

According to the Berlin correspondent of a Swedish newspaper, Frau Hess was arrested two days ago. In Berlin alone many arrests took place. The Correspondent adds that Gestapo are questioning Professor Messerschmitt as to how Hess managed to escape with the plane.

Herr Hitler has banned his associates from travelling even for private purposes with the result that Gen. Goering has had to abandon the hunting trip which he had planned. This is one of the consequences of Hess's flight says the Stockholm correspondent of Independent French Agency reporting the ban.

FAILED M.S. CANDIDATES

Complaints have again reached our ears about the unfortunate failed candidates in the Middle School Public Examination. Many parents have written to us that this time those who are responsible have been very harsh in respect of children. In former years it is stated students who failed in one subject were granted promotion to the IV Form Class. It is said that of late this is not being done. We do not know why this concession has been withdrawn. It is necessary we ask to be so stiff in regard to young boys, while there is an agitation for the abolition of the Middle School Examination itself. Is it not necessary on the part of Director of Public Instruction to relax the rules and permit young boys who have failed in only one subject to go to the next class? This is a matter which is well worth consideration of Director of Public Instruction and the Examination Board. The public should carry on agitation over this question. Unless a clamour is made in public such questions are not easily settled. We wish meetings are convened in every important centre and resolutions passed in this connection. More than individual grievances and representations, a public move in the matter, will be in our opinion, more fruitful. We have every sympathy, with young boys who have not been able to secure promotion to the next class.

REBATE OVER EXPORTATION OF COTTON MANUFACTURE

Simla, May 17

As a result of representations made to them by the Textile interests the Government of India for sometime had under review the possibility of granting rebate over exportation of cotton manufactures containing imported cotton whereupon duty has been paid. As a result of this examination the Government of India came to the conclusion that the grant of rebate is justifiable in principle. Existing customs drawback procedure however does not provide for the case of goods manufactured from imported materials. Moreover in view of the present war position as a consequence of which exports of cotton manufactures have greatly expanded, immediate grant of rebate is not held to be necessary and it is proposed to inaugurate the system at the end of the war. But should the situation alter in such a way as to materially affect India's competitive position the Government of India will be

SHIMOGA DISTRICT CONFERENCE

REVENUE COMMISSIONER'S ADDRESS

Shimoga, May 10
Rasul ul muk Mr. S. Abdul Wazid presiding, the Shimoga District Conference was held yesterday and day before in the Shimoga Town Hall. This Conference was attended by many pundits, ryots and leading representatives of the District population. The deliberations of the Conference began with the reading of the report by the Deputy Commissioner. There was an all round progress in the District administration as revealed in the report.

The Conference discussed nearly two hundred subjects relating to important measures of improvements in the District.

Mr. S. Abdul Wazid in the course of his address referred to the progress made by the District and complimented those who are really responsible to this remarkable achievement. He said that the scheme of holding the District and Taluk Conferences was revived in the year 1938. These Conferences are so many occasions for us to move about freely among the people, to understand them, to know their minds and discuss measures that will enable them to live a full life. The scheme has been in progress for the past four years and many changes have been inaugurated in its working in order to make it more useful and effective. To allow more time for the discussion of all the subjects brought up before the District Conference, Government have directed that two days should be allotted for the purpose and have accordingly raised the grants for the District Conference from Rs. 150 to Rs. 300 from this year. A Subjects Committee has been constituted for each District with the principal District Officers and non-official gentlemen which meets at least a fortnight before the date of the Conference to select subjects for consideration at the Conference.

Various Measures Adopted

Then he dilated upon the various measures the Government have adopted in ameliorating the conditions of the agricultural population. He specified the measures adopted by the Govt. in relieving the chronic indebtedness of the agriculturists by the introduction of Land Mortgage Scheme and the Debt Reconciliation Boards. From this Land Mortgage Scheme he said that in 51 places Primary Societies have been started with a central organisation at the Headquarters. So far, he said, a sum of Rs. 1621190 have been advanced in respect of 1461 cases. The utility of the Land preparation to introduce rebates at an earlier date. Government of India propose to proceed at once to devise in consultation with the trade interests concerned suitable administrative procedure for the purpose

Mortgage Bank for the liquidation of prior debts, especially by combining their operations with those of the Debt Reconciliation Boards has received special attention in our state. In this connection he referred to the Govt. order that the scheme of reconciliation of debts will be introduced only in places where Land Mortgage Banks are already working or likely to be established, so that necessary agency for paying of conciliated debts may be readily available. He hoped that this measure coupled with the Agriculturists' Relief Act and the Money Lenders' Act will go a long way in relieving the indebtedness of the ryot population.

Co-operation of People

In conclusion he emphasised the fact that no Government with the best of will could accomplish much unless it has the whole-hearted co-operation and good will of the governed. He hoped that, co-operation and help will be forthcoming in a large measure in the coming years. He appreciated the efforts, in securing a generous contribution to the war fund which, it is said, exceeds over Rs. 50,000. He said the district richly deserves the compliment of His Highness the Maharaja in this matter. We have to realise, he said, that our safety and well being lie in overcoming this Nazi threat to all that we hold dear and make life worth-living. We cannot achieve our object, he impressed, that unless we go on making our contribution till the war lasts.

In summing up the proceedings he recalled the happy days he spent in the District as a District Officer in the past and said that the District has always a warm corner in his heart.

After a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Patel Halappa of Channagiri Taluk the Conference came to a close with the singing of Mysore Anthem.

Mr. C. Suryanarayana Rao, Secretary, Mysore Central Co-operative Land Mortgage Bank, visited the local Land Mortgage Society, yesterday and discussed with the Directors with regard to popularising the scheme by advancing money to rightful applicants

The Consul for Norway paid a tribute to the gallant men of merchant navy and airmen who were carrying on the fight. The gathering decided to send a message of loyalty to King Haakon. A PUFF OF SMOKE

SOME REFLECTIONS ON DEWANSHIP—SOME OLD AND NEW A JOURNALIST'S REMINISCENCES—DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SESHADRI IYER AND M. CHENTSAI RAO—AUTOCRACY DEMOCRACY.

It is sometimes interesting to read reminiscences of people who have come in contact with big personalities. They throw a flood of light upon men and things and the general situation. They furnish a good background for our thoughts about the future. As far as Mysore is concerned very few books have been written portraying the life of Old Mysore. There are quite a number of officers and public men among us who can, profitably to themselves and the public, write their reminiscences. I myself personally requested some people to write. They are some how reluctant and shy. I hope they will come out with their anecdotes sometime or other.

My memory has been stored with a good number of stories about the ways of Old Mysore. Some of them are fit to be recorded and some not. I shall now take a few pages from the recorded anecdotes about Old Mysore by somebody who was in the early part of his life a journalist and subsequently an officer in Mysore service. The late Mr. K. Subba Rao, has produced a book named "Revived Memories." I had personally seen Mr. Subba Rao. He used to come to the late Mr. M. Venkatarishnayya very often. In the year 1925 or 1926, when there was a good deal of speculation about Sir Banerji's successor as Dewan of Mysore, he contributed an article to Mr. Venkatarishnayya's paper, which at once showed his wide and ripe experience as a journalist and officer. Even today, at this distant date I remember the important points of the article he wrote. That was about the peculiar position of Dewan of Mysore and what conflicting circumstances he was beset in. What he said then holds true even today. The situation in Mysore has not much changed. The Dewan has to satisfy many conflicting interests. He cannot be an unmitigated autocrat, benevolent or otherwise. There are persons above him who influence his destiny. On the one side there is the Palace, and on the other there is the British Resident. The Palace influences are varied. Unless a sort of unique agreement of temperament and ideas subsists between the Ruler and the Dewan, differences are bound to crop up which would make it difficult for the Dewan to continue. The influence of the Resident comes in various forms and shapes. It is absolutely essential for the Dewan to be on friendly terms with the Resident. The late Mr. Subba Rao in his book writes as follows:

"There are five or more distinct forces in almost every important State, which have to be reckoned with by any Dewan

There is first and foremost the Ruler of the State and whose orders are who is not bound to reasons to the State. Secondly there is the British representative of the Viceroys who protest or interfere called in diplomate advice tendered to the displeasure is a matter reckoned with. Then what is called the Palace rage consisting of the relatives of the members of the family at times and in regard the Dewan is bound to look after their welfare and to even their whims and. Fourthly there are the guests and favourite of every Dewan who bent upon their speech and who when they denied the same, they it their duty either to him or to deprecate his behind his back though presence they are always obedient. This sort of and passive resistance important measures is a lasting factor not to be neglected. There is a clamorous voice of public opinion, of the administration who are to the unpopular acts to raise their voice, so as to reach both the Dewan and the Residency, and even distant public opinion in Britain. Among this last we may also the large group of tenants—who failing a part of patronage for or for their livelihood anxious for a change in their ancestral or claims may receive a ble recognition."

Mr. Subba Rao about the influence of press. Being a journalist partial to the press what he says "Then there is the if at all it exists and there has been a local press which tried to espouse the public or any section which it is directly and which at times great courage and in exposing foibles."

It is thus seen that of Dewan is not a statement that he makes when he wonder that few get the same from the public time of their office." (See page 3)

OUR SIMLA LETTER

A WEEKLY REVIEW OF EVENTS

Some Thoughts on the Present Situation

(From our special correspondent)

Simla, May, 15

Simla is buzzing with sensational rumours regarding the future. What is Viceroy going to do? It is wellknown that in the statement which he made to his Standing Committee Sir T. B. Sapru gave an optimistic account of his interview with the Viceroy and told them that he expected a "move-on". In fact Sir T. B. Sapru revealed to the Committee that the Viceroy gave an assurance that he would be sympathetic in his despatch to the Secretary of State and further told him that he would send for him again for a further talk. In the meantime came the Secretary of the State's speech which has angered the whole of political India. There is reason to believe that the Viceroy was not consulted at all on the text of the Secretary of State's speech. At the moment the Viceroy is engaged in consulting a number of leaders—Sir Maharaj Singh who was a prominent member of the Bombay Conference, Mr. Fazlul Huq, Sir Sikandar Hayat Khan and others. Very soon others may be invited, but it is felt that the recent controversy which Mr. Jinnah has sprung on the country has while exposing the weakness of his own position and the objectionable character of his political methods, spoiled the atmosphere for those who have been anxious to promote a peace move. In Simla it is widely reported that the Viceroy has again communicated with the Secretary of State and also conveyed to him the reactions in this country to his Commons speech. In this connection the most heartening bit of news that has come from England is that a Parliamentary mission may soon come over to this country.

Favourable Factors

It is well to remember certain favourable factors in the situation despite the categorical nature of the Secretary of State's speech. The first is the outspoken comment of the London "Times" pointing out the danger involved in the present policy of inaction and suggesting that an attempt should be made to find the common denominator from the August offer, the Congress resolution and the Sapru scheme. The second is the fairly strong evidence that is available of the dissatisfaction in England at the British Government's lack of effort to end the deadlock in India. The third is the growing realisation even among Provincial Governments that it is not wise to let the present feeling of discontent grow in the country, for it is reported that one or two of the major Provincial Governments are thinking of new ways to deal with the Satyagraha Movement. In India the main stumbling block is Mr. Jinnah's opposition but his recent controversy with Sir T. B. Sapru has been an eye opener to many who till recently used to make much of his opposition. It is hardly possible that even Mr. Amery when he next speaks on India will give the same importance to Mr. Jinnah as he has been all along. There are powerful influences even in the Muslim League which are at work for securing a revision of the League's policy. It has at the same time to be remembered that the outbreak of hostilities in Iraq has brought the theatre of war nearer to India's frontiers. The need for further quickening of the war effort is therefore being increasingly felt. From this point of view the warning given by the leaders of the Bombay Conference, who as they have openly declared are supporters of the war effort cannot go unheeded.

Premier's Visit

The visit of the Bengal Premier, Mr. Fazlul Huq, though it was only for the brief period of a day has been eventful. It is believed that he urged the Viceroy to summon a Premiers' Conference. Though he has not identified himself with the Bombay Conference it is clear from his published statement that he has not associated himself with Mr. Jinnah's negative attitude but has pressed for measures to popularise both the Central and Provincial Governments. It is also the view of Sir Sikandar, the Punjab Premier, who hurried back to Simla yesterday with the object evidently of meeting Mr. Fazlul Huq. Friendly circles in England are reported to have pointed out that if the four Provincial Ministries now functioning join in pressing for radical reconstruction of the Centre including the transfer of Defence and Finance to Indian members, it would greatly strengthen their hands in influencing the British Government's policy in India. It is well-known that Mr. Arthur Moore who is now in England has been busy in trying to get support for a more active policy in India. Unfortunately neither in White Hall nor in Simla does there seem to be any great earnestness in promoting a progressive policy in India or any desire to look into the future and understand the great harm which the present policy of inaction is likely to result in

Trade Strike

Credit is probably due to the new Governor of the Punjab, Sir Bertrand Glancy, for the successful end of the negotiations between the Punjab Government and the leaders of the trading community on the subject of the sales tax. Thanks to the understanding reached that in framing the rules and in other matters connected with the application of the measure the representatives of the trading community will be fully consulted, the trade strike has been finally called off. There is still strong agitation going on urging the total repeal of the measure, but the more moderate elements would appear to be satisfied if the rigours of the measure were removed. So far as the tax itself is concerned the fact is that as it will be passed on to the consumer the trading community does not stand to suffer, but there are other provisions connected with the collection of the tax which may seriously hamper trade and commerce. One point of general interest which arises is the propriety of additional taxation by Provincial Governments at the present time. This matter was referred to by Sir Jeremy Raisman in the course of the debate on the Finance Bill in the Central Assembly, and he plainly indicated that at a time like this when the Central Government wanted full scope for additional taxation for meeting the rapidly growing cost of war measures it would be better if Provincial Governments avoided additional taxation. Another point of immediate concern to the Punjab is the Punjab Ministry's present economic and taxation policy which is complained as definitely unfair to the urban classes in the supposed interests of the rural classes. Even European businessmen in the province have urged on the Government to remember that anything which injures the stability and the strength of the urban classes will injure the rural classes also, and have also endorsed the suggestion that an independent committee be appointed to examine the incidence of taxation on urban and rural classes respectively and thereby end the present unhealthy agitation going on in the province. It is not yet known whether the Punjab Government is prepared to appoint a committee of this description.

Conference Week

This has been verily a week of Conferences in Simla. Industrialists, businessmen and economists have come from all parts of the country to attend the Conferences convened by the Commerce Department. The first meeting of the Industrial Research Utilisation Committee concluded today after examining the proposals received from industrial houses on the basis of the researches of the Scientific and Industrial Research Board. The latter is also to meet this week to review the work of the year and lay down further plans for the future. There is also the meeting of the Export Advisory Council which is now faced with more difficult problems owing to the extension of the war zone and the difficulties of shipping. My impression from talks here is that industrialists are far from pleased with the present position. Within the limited scope offered by these bodies all that is possible within this short period has been done, but what they are looking for is a bold and big industrial policy which will initiate the starting of big heavy industries; for it is only through them that will be built up substantially the economic strength of the country. For the starting of these key industries there is at the moment little encouragement from the Government of India. More than one industrialist suggested that there should be a small Economic Board consisting of industrialists to plan out a big industrial programme and advise the Government on the best and speediest way to give effect to it. The progress of industrialisation depends really on the facilities available for importing machinery.

Mr. Subba Rao fell into these reflections in connection with Sir K. Seshadri Iyer. Dealing with the same high personality, Mr. Subba Rao writes about autocracy and democracy. I am sure most of my readers know that Mr. Chentsal Rao, was a Member of Council, who worked as colleague of Sir K. Seshadri Iyer. Mr. Chentsal Rao, though an officer, was a great democrat. His way of doing things was different from that of Sir K. Seshadri Iyer. That is all the difference between autocracy and democracy. Mr. Chentsal Rao himself wrote about his differences with Sir K. Seshadri Iyer in the following manner.

"Seshadri and myself fully agree in all our aims. Our object is to help Mysore in its onward march as much as possible. Seshadri has noble instincts and his abilities are indeed very high. It is this that has sustained our friendship all along. But our methods are different. He would carry out his schemes against all oppositions, and if necessary would at times even throw sand in the eyes of his opponents, whereas my method is always to carry the public with me, to argue with them, to convince them and to progress inch by inch. It is this difference in our methods, though our aim is the same, that accounts for his unpopularity and my popularity."

I stop with this to day Mr. Chentsal Rao's remarks should serve both as a lesson and warning to all Mysoreans.

NAJI SHAWKAT'S STAY IN ANKARA

Iraqi Minister's Desire To Meet Von Papen

(By Cable) London
The Times Ankara correspondent cabled on May 13:

Naji Shawkat, Iraqi Minister of Defence, lingers on in Ankara. He explains that his mission to Ankara was to obtain the advice of the Turkish Government on the dispute with Great Britain, but Turkish circles say that it was not necessary for him to leave Baghdad for that.

It remains the opinion in Turkey that Shawkat came to Ankara mainly to make contact with foreign—particularly German Italian and Russian—diplomats. It was at Ankara that the Iraqis made their bid for Soviet recognition. On the 14th Shawkat will have an opportunity of seeking advice from Papen, which will possibly be more to his liking than that tendered by the Turks. The German Ambassador, jaunty and smiling, arrived at Ankara this afternoon by aeroplane from Germany. It is stated that on his way Papen had a conversation with Hitler at Salzburg. It is not known what Papen brings back with him—German circles speak of economic proposals, but the Turks generally have the impression that their turn to face a German ultimatum has not yet come.

of Council presided. A number of officials, non-officials, L. C. & R.A. Members from the District attended the Conference. After invocation the messages received were read. Dewan Sir Mirza M. Ismail, Rajamantrapravina Mr. N. Madhava Rao had sent messages wishing the Conference every success.

Mr. Abdul Azeez Khan, Bangalore District Deputy Commissioner was not present due to illness.

Then the President Distributed Public Service Certificates awarded by the Government to the four persons of the District, and Medals were also given to Supervisors and Enumerators who were engaged in this year's census work.

Political talks here show that efforts are being made for bringing about Gandhiji-Linlithgow meeting soon in view of the present international situation and the need for reviewing domestic issues. The suggestion made to Government is that they should make a timely gesture for securing a proper atmosphere for meeting of Gandhiji and the Viceroy. It is said that the recent instructions issued by Gandhiji limiting Satyagraha activities have been favourably received. The feeling prompting these efforts is reported to be that if Mahatma Gandhiji and Viceroy meet again and discuss the free speech issue in the light of the present situation they will be able to reach an understanding.

MYSORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Revenue Commissioner's Address

Mysore, May 20.
The nicely decorated Charlu Memorial Hall, Mysore District Conference commenced this noon under the presidency of Rukn-ul-mulk S. Wajid, Revenue Commissioner in Mysore. Many members of the Representative Assembly from the Mysore District, leading persons from all parts of the district and other local prominent persons were present. Mr. K. Subba Rao, Deputy Commissioner, warmly cordially received all the guests.

The proceedings began with a prayer. The President opened the Conference explaining the objects and ideals of the Conference.

Revenue Commissioner's Speech

It has indeed given me great pleasure to be present here to attend the District Conference of the District some of whom are my old friends. Although it is nearly a decade since I left Mysore, I have never ceased to think of the many happy years I spent here. I am all very sincerely for your cordial welcome you have extended to me and for your wishes.

Known from the earlier days as Mahishapur or Maisur, the site on which the present City stands is famous in the annals of the distant past of the Middle Ages. Mr. W. Rice recounts a tradition which connects the place with Mahishmati of the Mahabharata to which Sahadeva, Pandava, had to carry an oblation in the wake of the Panchadaha horse. Coming to later times, the Knights-errant who founded the dynasty of the Vijayanagara family about 1400 A. D. upheld their modest rule in this historic town which grew rapidly on in power and wealth. In 1610 A. D., their heroic descendant Raja Wodeyar obtained possession of Seringapatam, ousting the Vijayanagara army and made this town his capital. This state of affairs continued till 1799 A. D. when the fall of Tipu resulted in the incorporation of the original line which set up its throne once again in ancient Mahisur.

Change in Mysore

Mysore has changed out of all recognition from what it was some time 10 years ago. The great extension of the City and the immense improvements introduced on all sides have so completely transformed the place, that persons who knew Mysore as it was some years ago would hardly recognise the present charming and growing City with its magnificent wide roads, growing buildings, parks and lawns. The Palace, built entirely of stone quarries from the hills of exquisite beauty, fails to express in adequate terms the pomp and the pageantry of the Dargah and the Birth

Day processions. The lovely Chamundi Hills with the Temple at the top gives a panoramic view of Mysore, especially during nights when it is lit up with electric lights. The Brindavan Gardens at Krishnaraja Sagar illuminated by coloured Flood lighting, the tranquil charm and the island beauty of Seringapatam, the famous architecture of Somanathapur bathed in moon-light, the beauty of the Sivasmudram Falls—all these give the visitor an impression of celestial beauty.

Scheme Of Holding Conferences

The Scheme of holding District and Taluk Conferences has been in force for the past 4 years and during this period, many changes have been effected in its working to make it more useful. A Subjects Committee has been constituted for each District to select subjects for consideration at the Conference. With a view to follow up the resolutions passed at the Conference and also for taking stock of the progress made from time to time, we have a Standing Committee of the District Conference, consisting of representatives from all the Taluks. The duration of the Conference has been increased to 2 days to allow more time for the discussion of all the subjects and the grants have, accordingly been raised from Rs. 150 to Rs. 300 per District.

It would be superfluous to dwell at length on the various measures inaugurated by Government and the several concessions shown from time to time in order to afford relief to the agricultural population. I shall therefore, content myself by referring to some of the important measures sanctioned recently. The various concessions granted during the previous years in the matter of the payment of Land Revenue and other miscellaneous demands have been continued during this year also and definite rules have been framed regarding the suspension and remission of dry assessment. The Amildars and Deputy Amildars have been empowered to restore Khates of lands in all cases in which they have power to resume them without restriction as regards the time of resumption of the lands. The levy of Hulbanni fees has been abolished from the current year resulting in a loss of about Rs. 70,000/- every year. In all cases where the offices of the Minor Village servants are newly created, or the miras enjoyed by them is not commensurate with the work turned out by them, Government have ordered that the officers may be granted lands on ordinary tenure free of upset price, but, subject to the condition that these lands shall not be alienated. The levy of special assessment has been ordered to be waived in respect of agricultural lands used for the construction of residential buildings. The present procedure of booking the demand on account of Tank maintenance charges every month has been changed and it has been ordered that the demand be booked once for all after the receipt of the completion report from the Public Works Department.

The existing Rules in regard to grant of lands have been greatly liberalised, particularly with regard to the Depressed Class applicants. In cases where the upset price of the land goes far beyond Rs. 100/- by reason of the existence of valuable malki on it and the grantees cannot afford to pay the value of the malki standing on the land, Government have ordered that the malki may be disposed of separately in open sale and the land granted to the depressed class applicants under the concession rules applicable to them. The recovery of the present value of bonus on the Sandal trees has been done away with in all cases of grants. The question of providing adequate water supply facilities and the formation of Inter-Village communications have received special attention by our benign Government. You all know that Government have formulated the Rural Water Supply Scheme and have constituted a Fund called the Rural Water Supply Fund, in each District, which is being administered by a Special Committee. The scheme is in operation for the last 3 years and a good number of Villages have been provided with wells. Side by side with this activity, the development of Inter-Village communications is also receiving adequate attention. With a view to see that the work undertaken is accelerated, Government have provided a sum of Rs. 4 lakhs during the current year under "Contribution to Inter-Village Fund". A separate fund called the "Inter-Village Road Fund" has been constituted in each District to which the amount granted by Government as also the contributions of the District Boards and Village Panchayats are credited. A Special Committee has been formed in each District with the Deputy Commissioner as Chairman, which meets ordinarily once in six months to review the progress made and to make suitable suggestions or remarks likely to lead to better results. I hope that the efforts of Government in this respect will be utilised to the fullest extent, so that the whole State may be covered with a net work of roads in a couple of years.

Indebtedness Of Agriculturists

Another matter which has received the earnest consideration of Government, is the indebtedness of the agriculturists in the State. To ameliorate their condition, Government have put on the Statute Book the Debt Conciliation Act, the Agriculturists' Relief Act and the Money Lenders' Act. Government have since passed orders on the several recommendations of the Special Officer who was deputed for examining in detail the working of the Debt Conciliation Boards in the State. I have every confidence that the amendments now adopted will render the work of the Debt Conciliation Boards more advantageous to the people it is intended to help. One of the important recommendations of the Special Officer where there were Land Mortgage Banks, so that the work of the two may be co-ordinated. I am very glad to mention that Government have accepted this as a rule, the scheme of Debt Conciliation will be introduced only in places where Land Mortgage Banks are already working or likely to be established, so that necessary agency for paying of conciliated debts may be readily available. I have no doubt that all these measures will at all that these measures will considerably mitigate the hardship the ryots are subject to on account of their indebtedness.

Industrial Undertakings

While speaking on the problem of Rural indebtedness, I should like to refer to the encouragement given by Government to the industrial undertakings in the State. Mysore has always stood for industrial progress and during the last decade, new Industries have been started, old Industries revived and given fresh orientation, and home and cottage Industries have been encouraged, as a means of giving a welcome addition, however small, to the income of the agriculturist. The magnificent Sugar Factory at Mandya, the Chemical Fertilisers at Belagola, the Silk Filature at T. Narasipur have done a lot to improve the economic condition in the two Districts which formed only one sometime ago and relieve unemployment of the educated classes. I should refer also in this connection to the efforts of the Mysore Tobacco Company, in popularising the Virginia type of tobacco which gives a better return to the ryot than the indigenous variety for which the District is noted.

Agricultural Department

While addressing a Conference like this, which consists mainly of the agriculturists and their representatives, I shall be failing in my duty, if I do not refer to the new activities of the Agricultural Department of the State. The innovation they have introduced in demonstrating the advantages of their seed and method of cultivation in the ryot's field is a great step in the direction of making our ryots take kindly to better methods of agriculture and adopting better varieties of seed. I commend to you the scheme of subsidiary industries they are keen upon introducing, such as Poultry-farming, Bee-keeping and Sheep farming. Every one of these schemes is intended to help the agriculturist employ his spare hours usefully and add to his income. I urge on you all to fully profit by all these schemes.

In this era of competition and intense struggle for existence, we in Mysore with all the resources, which nature has bounteously blessed us with, should be able to work out a happy understanding of things under the administration of our benign Ruler, who is deeply interested in our welfare. I heartily congratulate such of you who have won the confidence of your people in being returned to the two Houses, and it is up to you to continue to deserve the confidence reposed in you. Work diligently, think concentratedly, execute things whole-heartedly and live harmoniously. Learn self-dependence and work in unity with character and confidence. Make self-reliance and self-sufficiency, combined with truth, your aim and to everything worthwhile and Reforms just promulgated offer to every one of us great opportunities to contribute our bit towards greater advancement of our State and I sincerely hope that these opportunities will be fully taken advantage of to make our people happy and prosperous.

The District Report shows that a good deal of improvement has been achieved in respect of all matters affecting the people, although there is a lot to be done yet. What has been achieved is due to the team spirit displayed by the local people, which I highly appreciate.

I may in passing add that representations are frequently being made about the difficulty experienced, in that some European medicines are not readily available for use. This is a serious matter. But, I doubt whether any remedy could be suggested as against this State of affairs, when normal communications have been affected owing to the war.

Indigenous Drugs

One thing suggests itself to me the larger use of Indigenous drugs. A large number of candidates graduate every year from our Ayurvedic and Unani College. They undergo a very strenuous training in the Ayurvedic and Unani systems of medicine and are, I think competent to tackle any kind of ailment except perhaps those requiring major operations. Would it not be advisable instead of asking for more and more Allopathic Institutions to establish Ayurvedic and Unani Dispensaries in these parts. The great advantage with these Institutions is that their maintenance cost is not high and we are independent of any foreign drugs. All we want could be had here alone. It is not possible for Government with the best of sympathies to provide allopathic medical relief to all that need it. The cost is so prohibitive.

The Ayurvedic and Unani Dispensary at Mysore has a daily attendance of 1000 and that too, when so well equipped an institution as the Krishnarajendra Hospital is just across the road facing the Ayurvedic and Unani Dispensary. This fact goes to show that, there is amongst us, a very large section of our population who fully believe in the efficacy of this System of relieving the sick and suffering and if facilities are provided, quite ready to resort to such a Hospital. I should like you to give your earnest consideration to this.

15. I thank you for the great interest you have shown in discussing the subject before us. I wish you all every prosperity.

A detailed report narrating the various activities in the district during the last year was presented.

Many subjects of interest were considered till the evening and the Conference will resume work tomorrow.

FEELING AMONG AMERICAN PEOPLE

War If That Is Only Way Of Defeating Axis

(By Cable) London
Analysing the present attitude of the United States public in an article published in the New York Times, Hadley Cantrill, Director of the Princeton Public Opinion Research Project, reaches these two significant conclusions.

(1) While only a small percentage of the people believe that the United States should declare war on Germany and Italy, the overwhelming majority holds that if there is no other way of defeating the Axis powers, then we should go to war.

(2) There is a growing sentiment for increasing the aid which there are indications that it is to be effective and requires the use of convoys that step should be taken.

STRIKERS EXPLAIN

LABOURERS OF MAHARAJA AND MINERVA MILLS

Ready to Accept Impartial Arbitration Of Labour Commissioner

ARRATION OF CIRCUMSTANCES LEADING TO THE STRIKE

Bangalore, May, 21
The Workers of the Maharaja and Minerva Mills have issued a statement giving reasons for the strike and demands of the Workers. The Workers of the Maharaja and Minerva Mills in Bangalore City have now been on strike for over three weeks and six weeks respectively. The workers are entitled to know the reasons for the strike and the demands of the workers.

Reasons for the Strike
It is a well-known fact that the workers of essential commodities are entitled to a fair wage and that the Railway Workers have been granted an increment of Rs. 3 per month. The Workers of the Maharaja and Minerva Mills had been asking for increment of wages and certain other facilities. The Management who were already giving a dearness allowance of Rs. 1-8-0 per mensem had refused further increment and had refused to meet the demand by promises. Eventually the relationship became embittered.

The Workers sought the help of the Labour Union which wrote to the management on the one hand and the Labour Commissioner on the other. The letters were not even acknowledged, and nothing came out of their efforts.

The Workers naturally felt that there was nothing to do for but to take some form of direct action. The Union, and particularly its President, were definitely against any strike. Their advice was to wait and continue to make representation. The workers put forward their demands repeatedly in vain and with a view to give point to their representations, they slackened work. This, although done with the knowledge and consent of the Union had some effect. The Mill authorities complained to the Labour Commissioner, and the latter promised to go into the question of the increment in wages by the next pay day. The workers resumed work whole-

Within a few days an increment of a fraction of a pie on stated work was announced which worked out at an increase of wages by about eight annas per mensem on the average. This was quite unexpected and disappointing. The workers spontaneously went on a day's strike.

Meanwhile attempts were being made to get Labour Leaders to be deported out of Bangalore. Orders were served on some of them and sought to be served on others. It caused further embitterment.

The workers interviewed the Dewan who assured them of his sympathy and promised to enquire into their demands, a list of which was given to him as desired by him and advised them to resume work which they did.

Within a short time thereafter the Dewan went to Ooty; and on this side the management began to victimise the workers. They started by complaining day after day to the Labour Commissioner against one Sri Lingiah a prominent worker and at last dismissed him from service.

The attitude of the Labour Commissioner who was approached for redress was unhelpful and it resulted in the strike of the Minerva Mill workers. Eventually the workers of the Maharaja Mills also went on strike. The management have declared a lock-out of the Mills from the dates of the strike. The workers refuse to return to work unless Sri Lingiah is reinstated and their demands regarding wages, leave rules etc., are satisfied.

The Union had in the meantime appealed to the Labour Commissioner to enquire into the grievances and to the workers to resume work. The Labour Commissioner would not promise even to enquire and the workers would not therefore resume work. The Union felt it could not usefully interfere in the matter and has kept itself aloof.

The workers have been meeting every evening, resolved to be disciplined and non-violent, and have been appealing to the authorities concerned to redress their grievances which are categorically stated hereunder.

Demands of the Workers

1. Reinstatement—Sri Lingiah who has been dismissed from the Minerva Mills as an act of victimisation must be reinstated.

2. Increment in Wages—A general increment of not less than two annas per head per day to all workers whether piece workers or wage earners whether male or female—whether permanent or temporary in every Department should be granted. This will mean a monthly increment of Rs 3 on the basis of 24 working days a month.

3. Privilege Leave—Fifteen days privilege leave per year on full pay should be granted to every employee who has put in at least two years service in the Mills.

4. Permanent Service—Every employee who has put in more than two years service should be classed as permanent.

5. Sick Leave—Those who have put in 2 years service should be entitled to sick leave on half pay for a period not exceeding three months in the year.

6. Penalties—Deductions from Gratuity Fund on account of absence should be avoided.

7. Gratuity Fund—Should be calculated at 10 per cent in both the Mills. It is now 10 per cent in Maharaja's and 5 per cent in Minerva Mills.

8. Strike wages and guarantee against victimisation—The workers have been goaded into the strike and therefore they must be compensated for loss of wages during the period of the strike. There should also be an assurance that none of the workers will be victimised.

The workers are and have always been willing to accept the impartial arbitration of the Labour Commissioner on all the points.

ENGLISH IN MIDDLE SCHOOLS AND HIGH SCHOOLS

In our yesterday's issue we published an extract from the report of the Director of Public Instruction in Mysore, in respect of the standard of English in High Schools and Middle Schools. The Director states that there have been in recent years an increasing number of complaints from Government departments and from other employers of labour that the standard of English in our schools was falling. He is also of the opinion that there is a good deal of truth in this charge. If one reads the D. P. I.'s remarks he is led to believe that deterioration in English standard is due partly to the teaching of non-language subjects in High Schools through the medium of Kannada. This is a matter which deserves to be considered, thoroughly leaving no room for doubt. In our opinion, and in the opinion of those who have some knowledge of the matter, the teaching of non-language subjects in High Schools through the medium of Kannada has done a lot of good. Those students who have passed their examination taking Kannada medium in non-language subjects have done well in English. We have seen certain cases where the students taking Kannada medium have obtained a higher percentage in English than those who have taken English medium. We should judge these things free of prejudices and predilections. It is a new experiment that we have undertaken of teaching non-language subjects through the medium of Kannada. This experiment deserves every encouragement. In this way lies the way to progress. The way to enrich our language is by making as free and liberal use of Kannada for imparting knowledge to students. There is nothing wrong in this. There is nothing out of the way in this. School boys in England are taught in English. School boys in France are taught in French. School boys in Japan are taught in Japanese. We do not know why it should be considered as out of the way to teach Karnataka school boys in Kannada. This reform is absolutely essential. We are of the opinion that English medium in High Schools may completely be abandoned. There may be difficulties in the early stages. But after a few years of practice Kannada medium would be more effective than English medium.

We would suggest to the Department to collect statistics from the results of the Public Examinations of the last two or three years as to the respective standards in English of students who have taken Kannada medium and who have taken English medium for non-language subjects. We would suggest some members of Kannada Sahitya Parishat to undertake this task of compiling and comparing statistics in this vital matter. We should not allow wrong ideas to spread. It is wrong to suggest the teaching of non-language subjects in High Schools through the medium of Kannada has anything to do with the fallen standard of English in our schools.

We agree with the remarks of the Director of Public Instruction when he says that better type of teachers who have a higher equipment of English should be appointed to teach English in Middle Schools and High Schools. There is no objection for appointment of graduates for teaching English in Middle Schools. In High Schools too, specialist teachers of English may be appointed to teach English to students.

Over and above these considerations there is one vital matter in which we are all interested. How much of English, of what quantity and quality is needed for a Government employee in offices? There are different standards. What should be the minimum standard? What is practical English and what is literary English? Is it necessary for an ordinary employee in a Government office or in a firm to master Shakespeare and Milton and be conversant in archaic English? In our opinion, too much importance, much more than what is necessary, is given to the Standard of English. Appreciating good English literature is different from writing high style. All cannot be masters of style. It is enough if our employee has a working knowledge of Modern English. Our teaching in Middle schools and High schools should be adapted to this end in view. There should be a thorough change and reform in the method of instruction and selection of text books. We hope that all those who are interested in the education of our boys and girls would consider this matter thoroughly. It is not only the people that are interested in the progress of Kannada that have to look into this question. Secretaries of various Government departments and managers of Commercial firms should inform the Education Department what English they require.

In these days of progressive democracy and popular Government while people have been clamouring for vernacularization of Government proceedings and judgments of courts, it is necessary to consider whether the same type of English that we are having now in schools suits the purpose. The reform is bound to come in Government Departments and Courts. The time is already near when lawyers would argue in Courts in Kannada and judges would deliver judgments in the same language. Kannada would certainly occupy a higher pedestal in the future scheme of things than at present. And English would certainly be shown its proper place. In view of the above considerations, we hope the people interested in education of our boys and girls would bestow greater attention on the subject.

A PUFF OF SMOKE

BANGALORE'S PLEASANT WEATHER—SPECULATIONS PRESIDENTSHIP OF LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL—PUBLICATION OFFICER'S APPOINTMENT—MYSORE DEWAN'S RETIREMENT AND 'BOMBAY CHRONICLE'S COMMENT

The weather in Bangalore is pleasant at present. One desires that there were more showers since the heat is very oppressive in afternoons. The maximum temperature of Bangalore was 93° on May 20 and the minimum was 69°. If you look at All India weather chart you find on the same date that Nagpur's maximum was 110°. While Bhubhanagar's 111°. Cawnpore 108°; Gwalior 108°, Cuddapa 109°, and Kurnool 108°. Trichy is 106 and Vellore 105°; Ooty's maximum is 75°. The number of visitors in Bangalore is already large. Bangalore from mid-May is an ideal place. With the cool and pleasant weather and smiling vegetation Bangalore presents a very pleasing appearance.

I understand that as many as 300 applications have reached the Mysore Government applying for the Publicity Officer's post. After the death of Mr. S. Ranga Iyer, it was thought that the place would be filled by a journalist. There was every fear that some outsider would be appointed. I know how much some Kannada newspapers have suffered at the hands of the late Publicity Officer who did not know Kannada and who on certain occasions deliberately mis-represented the writings of a certain Kannada paper. It is no use having such people as Publicity Officers. They must be local men, who know Kannada and who are interested in the progress of the local press. Outsiders who accept these jobs only for money are mercenaries and are a disgrace to the profession of journalism. I hope the present arrangement would continue. It is satisfactory as far as it goes. We have competent well-trained young men as Assistant Publicity Officers. They have been doing their work conscientiously and faithfully. Over them is the present Publicity Officer, who has been discharging his duties quite satisfactorily. In my opinion in the present state of affairs, to bring an outside journalist is very undesirable. I hope those who are responsible for the appointment of Publicity Officer would bear this in mind.

submitted to the crucial criticism. In these want a 'Publicity Officer' who has a desire only to please his superiors with a view to moving his own prospects in a positive danger not only to the papers but to the State itself.

Dewan Bahadur Rajasevaprakash Mr. K. S. Chamaraja Iyer's name is mentioned with some certainty in connection with the Presidentship of the Legislative Council. Twelve days ago some newspaper mentioned that his appointment had been made with Rs. 1,000 per month as best to get the news. Since the appointment had already been made I refrained from writing about it. Press. In a Madras paper the same page in different columns two versions of this item of news. One version says Mr. K. S. Chamaraja Iyer has been appointed. Another version says he has not yet been appointed but his appointment is probable. For I know no announcement yet been made in the matter. Another prominent name mentioned in this connection is Rajasabhabhusana Dewan hadur Mr. K. R. Srinivas Iyengar. A week ago one person, whose name I do not know, pressed my editor much to publish what he knew to be a fact that Mr. Srinivas Iyengar was appointed as President. Some have not published. In these circumstances until the appointment is made it is impossible to check speculations. And nobody can say that.

All sorts of comments have been made as to why Sir Mirza Ismail had to retire voluntarily from service. The latest and most curious is the one that emanates from the 'Bombay Chronicle'. The said paper in its issue of May 20 writing an editorial says as follows:

"Since the resignation of Sir Mirza Ismail to deduce that Sir Mirza Ismail is anxious to lend a helping hand in the improvement of the situation. We refer to the Mysore State Congress movement which is progressing from strength to strength and has to day developed into a great force. A large mass following in the State. A time has now come when it can no longer be ignored or treated with indifference. In the peculiar conditions which have arisen in Mysore as a part of this country and in the world, the desire to see the cause of strict nationalism possible that behind the nation and by it, Sir Mirza Ismail himself hopes to make the (See Page 2)

LABOUR AND INDUSTRIAL REPORTING

(By H. Gordon Schaffer, Industrial Correspondent, Reynolds News)

Not many years ago, the job of a Labour and Industrial correspondent was rather like that of a crime reporter. It meant long hours outside trade union offices while decisions were taken to begin or end strikes.

George Cormack, who, with the curtailments of Central News, has unhappily lost his job after following trade union activities for 30 years, and Eddie Chant, of the Press Association, who has been at the job for 21 years, have many stories to tell of the antagonism present in the early days by the representatives of the "capitalist class."

To-day, to quote a famous phrase of Mr. Ernest Bevin, the union movement has become an "integral part of the State." Moreover, the other two wings of the Labour movement—Political Labour and the Co-operatives—equally play a part in every activity of the nation. Although the Labour correspondent seldom has a strike story to write on his day, he finds that work often covers a wider area than that of any other journalist writer.

Saga To Overcome

Primarily, his job, like that of any other reporter, is based on knowing news contacts and, it is often more important, where they can be found when crises arise. There are, however, snags which can be overcome only by a close knowledge of the intricate machinery of the Labour and trade union movement.

He must, for example, avoid a common error that the Labour Union Congress General Council is responsible for policy of individual unions. In fact, the slightest interference with the autonomy of most insignificant union would arouse immediate protests.

He must always remember that although rebels like Sir Ford Cripps may make news, they gather formidable support in the country, the real power, at Trades Union Congress Labour Party Conference, in the block votes of the trade unions. He has to find himself with the intricate machinery of the various industries, or he is led into announcing an industrial crisis months before the actual stage is reached.

Vast News Field

Outside the trade unions there are vast news fields in the work of the Ministry of Labour. Unemployment, the wide range of activity in regard to housing, distressed areas, of living, and in recent years the National Service and the armed forces, all come within the industrial correspondent's sphere. Of the new Ministries, particularly Supply, Economic Warfare and Shipping, have also brought into his province.

Contact with all these news sources means that the industrial correspondent accumulates a vast store of specialized knowledge. For some of the enquiries on daily papers, means telephone calls in the afternoon from the news editor's table, but that, I think they agree, is one of the minor inconveniences of the job.

Some two and a half years ago, when the London bus strike was in progress, a group of us—Ian Mackay, of the News Chronicle; Hugh Chevins, The Daily Telegraph; Trevor Evans The Daily Express; and Haydn Davis, The Star—discussed the formation of a Labour and Industrial Correspondents' Group with a constitution similar to that of the Lobby. The idea appealed to others, and the Group, open to all accredited industrial correspondents, was formed, with Radcliffe, of The Times, as first chairman.

It has met with considerable success. At the Ministry of Labour, thanks to the active co-operation of Sam Challoner, Public Relations Officer, the Group has been able to make contact with experts in every branch of the department's work. Similar relations are being built up with other Ministries and industrial organizations. Like the Lobby, it has a self-disciplinary constitution which has enabled it to secure the confidence of those with whom it is in contact.

New Appointments

The formation of the Group and the number of front-page industrial news stories appears to have impressed news editors, for there have been several new appointments in recent months. In particular, The Daily Mail, which for years had no regular industrial correspondent, has appointed Percy Cater to the post.

Probably more than any other specialist, the industrial correspondent works in an atmosphere of pleasant camaraderie. With many of the trade union leaders he is on terms of personal friendship. During the summer months he is a welcome guest at various Trade Union Conferences. The Trade Union Congress and Labour Party Conference represent friendly social engagements as well as hard work.

Ironically enough, in spite of this happy background, the T.U.C. General Council and Labour Party Executive sometimes show an official attitude towards the Press which is less enterprising than that of Government departments and many employers' organizations. Herbert Tracey, T.U.C. Press Officer, and Will Henderson, who occupies a similar position with the Labour Party, always give every possible assistance, but both organizations seemingly fail to realize that frank "background" talks are of far more value than bald official statements. Bodies which have acquired national status must expect all their activities to be news, and it is one of the oldest rules of journalism that when news is not made available officially it is the duty of the journalist to discover it.

This is going to be particularly true in the next few months. I am not prepared to prophesy the course of events, but I am willing to guarantee that the industrial correspondents hit the front page more frequently than ever before the war is over.

Seeing Hess's Flight In Correct Perspective

NO PLACING OF UNWARRANTED CONSTRUCTIONS

Need To Continue Maximum War Effort

(By Cable) London
The Daily Herald comments: All evidence points to this: That the flight of Rudolf Hess is the sharpest shock Hitler has received since the war began.

No wonder that the Nazi propaganda department is in a fever.

Never since its early days has that brilliantly efficient organization shown such obvious signs of having lost its nerve.

Each new "explanation" is an attempt to achieve the impossible—an attempt to subdue the intense disquiet which this historic happening must have aroused among the German citizens.

Meanwhile we should beware of placing unwarranted constructions upon it.

We must not assume that the collapse of the Nazi regime is at hand or even within sight.

We must not believe that anything less than our own utmost effort will suffice to bring Hitler down.

But we are entitled to believe that Hess's breakaway has shattered the legend of inviolable solidarity among the Nazi leaders, that it has in fact, exposed the Nazi system as a structure of perilous flimsiness.

That exposure should be an incentive to us to redouble our energies.

FLIGHT OF HESS AND GERMAN MOVES IN IRAQ

Japanese Columnist's Note of Warning

(By Cable) LONDON
The Daily Telegraph reports: The Japanese newspaper "Kokumin Shimbun" linked the flight of Hess with German moves in Iraq.

It stated: "In the face of the present situation there has grown a suspicion that Germany has gone too far into the issue of Arabia and that, with Iraq brought into the whirlwind, a new critical state of affairs will be created between Germany, Britain and Russia." A note of warning about Japanese aid to Germany was sounded by the "Hochi Shimbun," whose columnist, Mr. Muto, said that this should not be given blindly even in the event of the entry of the United States into the war.

"It is not likely that Germany would silently permit the Japanese a free hand in the Dutch East Indies should we succeed in ousting the British and Americans from there," he added. "A special written understanding with Germany on Japanese rights should be obtained."

to write this article, he asked me to explain why I specialized in this branch of journalism. I suppose chance played a part, but when I first came to Fleet Street, 14 years ago, I soon reached the conclusion that some form of specialized knowledge is the best insurance against indiscriminate sacking.

In my case I had a pleasant executive job on the Press Association when Reynolds offered me a post coinciding with my particular interests (actually a couple, the work of political and industrial correspondent.)

I accepted, I think, because outside work, such as I have tried to describe, has a colour and interest which an inside post cannot provide. I am also in the happy position of agreeing generally with the policy of my paper.

Problems Facing Hitler After Hess's Flight

CHANGE IN BALANCE OF POWER AT HOME?

Gestapo Unpopular with People and Army

(By Cable) London
Mr. E. B. Wareing, former chief of the Daily Telegraph's Paris staff, comments:

Hess's adventure more than anything else that has occurred during the war will serve as a crystallisation point for the German satisfaction of the German people and will confront Hitler with the most difficult problems he has had to solve.

Roehm, whom Hitler had shot in 1934, was regarded by the German people as an evil man; Hess was regarded as a good one; and if any German should pluck up the moral courage to voice the unspoken sentiments of the masses, it might be dangerous at the moment to have him removed because the Gestapo is not only unpopular with the people, but there is evidence that its methods are arousing resentment in the army.

In a word, Hitler is faced with the possibility of a change in the balance of power through which he rules.

His next action will probably be to call the Reichstag together as he did after the massacre on June 30, 1934, and endeavour to explain away what has happened whilst calling for a show of confidence in himself.

It need hardly be said that the whole affair will shake the prestige of Germany throughout all the countries which have been occupied by the Nazis besides those which Hitler is still endeavouring to mesmerise.

TOKYO PRESS AND HESS EPISODE

Asahi Shimbun Disbelieves German Story

(By Cable) London
The Times Tokyo correspondent cabled on May 14:

The flight of Hess to Scotland which the press generally characterises as an 'escape' from Germany, has created a sensation in Japan. Further reports are awaited with some anxiety by the German Embassy which first put out a report that Hess had crashed with his aeroplane but later substituted the official statement about "mental derangement."

Following this cue the "Yomiuri Shimbun" says that the incident is merely a casual tragedy which is unlikely to have serious political consequences. But the "Asahi Shimbun" questions the possibility that a man in an unhinged mental condition could be inclined to connect the Hess case with the reports that Hitler and Stalin are likely to meet soon, which recalls the view held in many quarters that Hitler would turn Germany over to Bolshevism rather than yield. In any case the Hess incident is taken to indicate the first crack in German morale.

of rapprochement with the State Congress easier? Is it possible that having been responsible for a particular policy towards the Congress during his term of office, he felt it embarrassing to bring about a change in that policy? And could it be that as a far-sighted statesman and a good Mysorean, he has elected to retire to be of greater service to the State to which he belongs and the people he loves? If so, while admiring his self-effacement, we cannot help wishing that he could remain in office and also inaugurate a new policy in respect of reforms. However, it is good to learn that he has renewed his contacts with Sir M. Visveswaraya which is indicative of the way he intends to utilise his talents and undoubted abilities for the progress and prosperity of the State. Close collaboration between the two must, indeed, bear good fruit, of which the State could well be proud."

INTERESTING REVENUE FIGURES

NET EXCISE REVENUE SHOWS BIG INCREASE

(By wire) Simla May 22

Interesting features are disclosed by the Revenue figures of the first month of the new Financial Year. Compared with the last year, collections from import duty on wines and liquors have leaped up by nearly seventy percent during the month. There is a fifty per cent fall under the head raw cotton but the receipts from the artificial silk yarn have more than doubled themselves. The net customs revenue during the month was twenty lakhs below the last year's figure and eleven lakhs below the collections in 1939. The net excise revenue shows a big increase, as compared with the last year's total collection, being eighty-four lakhs last year. This increase is due to additional income of thirty lakhs in sugarcane collections. The first month's collections may be regarded as promising a start as they have yielded three and a half crores in Customs Revenue as against the budget total of thirty-five crores for the whole year and nearly one crore in excise Revenue as against the budget estimate of twelve crores for the year. The railway receipts have also been on the increase as the twenty days of April alone have shown a rise of over half a crore over the last year.

Exhibition of Wrecked Nazi Plane

Br. Resident Opens,

BANGALORE, May 23

"It is now up to us to make the greatest use possible of this machine, not only as a means of providing more aircraft for Britain but also to bring home to every body in this country, the magnitude and gravity of the struggle in which our Empire is engaged and the tremendous suffering which is being experienced in Britain by the ruthless and barbarous methods of bombing employed by the enemy."

With these words Hon. Lt. Col. J. H. Gordon, Resident in Mysore, declared the exhibition of a wrecked Nazi aeroplane open, last evening, at the South Parade maidan. The aeroplane is Messerschmitt 109, similar to that in which Rudolf Hess recently flew to Scotland and deposited himself into the British hands.

The aeroplane has been bought by the Bangalore Cantonment War Committee at the instance of Mr. Harder, an American citizen, who has substantially contributed towards its purchase.

A large and distinguished gathering was present.

Mr. Hendry, Secretary of the War Committee, explained the war-effort in the station and its initiative, with the encouragement of Mr. Harder, in securing the Nazi aeroplane from England.

The Officer Commanding, Madras district paid a tribute to the work of Station War Committee.

The Hon. Lt. Col. Gordon paid eloquent tributes to the generosity of Mr. Harder by whose example "our fighter 'Bangalore' is now taking the air over and around the coasts of Britain." The plane would be exhibited all over India and the proceeds would be used "for the provision of more planes for the R.A.F. in the defence of Britain."

After declaring the exhibition open the Hon. the Resident with other invitees saw the aeroplane.

FRIDAY—MAY 23, 1941

THE GOKHALE INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS

We offer our sincere and respectful congratulations to Mr. D.V. Gundappa on founding the Gokhale Institute of Public Affairs with a view to educating the public in political and other matters. The name of the late Gopala Krishna Gokhale is a sacred one. And Mr. D.V. Gundappa who has great reverence for Gokhale's memory has founded this Institute as a fitting memorial in Bangalore. Mr. D.V. Gundappa has all along his life been a servant of the people in the fullest sense of the word and has, so to say, dedicated his life to serve his motherland. It is no exaggeration to say if he were born in a different clime under different skies he would have risen to much greater fame and his contemporaries would have made much greater use of him than we have been doing to-day in Mysore. Mr. Gundappa is a conscientious and thorough student of public affairs. His studies are not scrappy and superficial. He goes deep into the subjects and masters all the intricacies. His study is of wide range and deep intensity.

The chief characteristic of Mr. D.V. Gundappa's studies is, he applies a modern scientific mind to the problems with a view to applying them to our everyday life. Be it politics, economics literature or philosophy, he is eager to apply his theories to life and if they, stand the test he would accept them otherwise he would reject them. There are men who know a lot but there are very few who can expound their knowledge in an interesting and instructive manner to popular audiences. Some are too abstruse fit only for research rooms and some are too shallow, fit only for Harikatha gatherings. But Mr. Gundappa has a capacity for explaining most profound things in simple and homely Kannada to audiences ranging from pedantic Pandits to young playful children. There is a method, there is a plan, in his discourses. He does not tire the patience of his audiences and bore them against their inclinations. He has a sense of time and proportion and there lies the secret of his success as a popular exponent of abstruse theories and doctrines.

Mr. D.V. Gundappa is so well known that it amounts to impertinence to speak anything more of him. The Institute that he has founded was badly needed to-day. We had felt the want of such an institute in our midst. In the wake of modern political movements in Mysore, when public awakening has been so great, and popular interest in public questions has been so much stimulated, it was necessary to found an institute of the kind which would encourage men to study public affairs in a truly scientific spirit bringing to bear a dispassionate and academic mind on the public questions of the day. We have every hope that this Institute would receive handsome encouragement which it richly deserves. The originator of this Institute has brought it into being with no pomp and ceremony and in such an unostentatious manner that it speaks volumes to the earnestness and seriousness and purposefulness of the man. The Institute according to him has to justify its existence by its worth and work.

We are very happy to note that it has started under very good auspices. Yesterday morning the first meeting of the Political Study Group organised by the Institute was held at the National High School at 8 a. m. The lecture hall was thronged with public men and students interested in the study of the subject. Mr. K.S. Krishna Iyer, in the course of his introductory remarks, explained the object of the Institute and paid a handsome and deserving tribute to Mr. Gundappa for having started it. Mr. Gundappa straightway started expounding the subject of the day. It was very good of Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, to have sent an encouraging message to the Institute wishing it all success. Congress leaders, Messrs K.T. Bhashyam, K. Chengalaraya Reddy, H. K. Veeranna Gowda, and others had graced the occasion. Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekharaiya, Hindu Maha Sabha leader, was also there. The first day's programme went off very nicely.

We hope that the public of Bangalore and political aspirants, young and old, would attend these lectures, participate in discussions and benefit themselves. The debates are to be conducted in a non-partisan, undogmatic, scientific manner in the spirit of a seeker of Truth. The Institute keeps out all propaganda either for or against any party or school of thought. The subjects selected for this session are Parliamentary Government, the State and its Functions, the Mysore Constitution and the Mysore State Budget. All these are important subjects and the time also is propitious for studying them. Even for those who seem to think that they have a profound knowledge of the subject it is worth while to participate in these debates because it would help them to apply their knowledge to the live problems of the day. For young men, we need not say these discourses are very helpful, for politics has been such an engrossing subject today, like sun and air, it leaves none untouched. Politics in the most comprehensive term of the word has been the very breath of our nostrils.

POLITICAL STUDY GROUP

DEWAN'S MESSAGE

Bangalore, May, 22

The Political Study Group, organised by the Gokhale Institute of Public Affairs, commenced its work this morning, at the National High School, when Mr. D. V. Gundappa spoke on "Parliamentary Government".

About 75 persons including Messrs K. T. Bhashyam, K. Chengalaraya Reddy, Rao Sahib Channayya, M. P. Sameshkhara Rao, P. R. Ramayya, T. T. Sharman, V. Sitaramayya, Nittoor Srinivasa Rao, K. Sampathgiri Rao, M. A. Gopalaswamy Ayyangar, P. Srinivasa Rao, M. Sitarama Sastry, Bhupalam Chandrasekharayya, K. Hanumanthayya, C. Aswathanarayana Rao, D. C. Subbarayappa, A. N. Subba Rao and Srimati Sunanda Devi were present.

Mr. K. S. Krishna Ayyar explained that the Study Group had been arranged for considering in detail some fundamental topics connected with the working of political institutions in Mysore.

Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, sent a message to Mr. D. V. Gundappa wishing the Institute every success, in the course of which he stated:

"I have read the details of the scheme with much interest and should like to commend your enthusiasm and initiative in attempting to bring into being an institution which could be of great use in stimulating independent and honest discussion and thought in regard to questions affecting the public weal in Mysore."

"At a time when representatives of the people will be called upon to shoulder increasing public responsibilities, the need for a non-party organisation, such as you are planning to establish, which feels free to examine public questions strictly on their merits, is indeed great. I am sure, therefore, that your idea will be generally welcomed and that the response to your appeal will be both large and hearty. I wish your efforts all possible success."

To-morrow morning, Mr. M. A. Gopalaswamy Iyyengar will speak on "The State and its Functions."

DR. GOEBBELS APPEALS TO A. R. P. WORKERS 'Deal With Fires As Quickly As They Are Caused'

In Berlin Dr. Goebbels made a vigorous appeal to A. R. P. workers to continue their work. He said workers of Kiel and Hamburg dock workers were as much in the front line as the soldiers in the battle field. He referred to the havoc wrought by R. A. F. almost constantly and appealed to the workers to deal with fires as quickly as they were caused.

Once again we wish all success to the Gokhale Institute and pray for its continued prosperity and usefulness.

FEATURES EDITING

By Harold Keeble, Features Editor, The Daily Mail

Just as the war itself has failed to follow the pattern laid down in the advance publicity, so most newspaper executives have had to revise their preconceived notions of what the impact of war would mean to their wares.

In the days when war was expected to start every week but somehow never did, it was always understood (more than that, it was made brutally clear by members of the news staff to members of the features staff) that once the "Open Fire" signal was given it would also serve as a death signal for newspaper features.

There are a number of reasons why this has not happened, and the chief one is that the prophets had mid-measured the immense revolution which had occurred in the nation's home-life during the 20 years between the end of one war and the start of another: the R.I.D.I.

The truth is not appetising, but let us face it. September 1, 1939, the day the B. B. C. introduced the Midnight News Bulletin and (much worse) one at 8 a. m. should be recorded in red ink in the diaries of all newspaper historians.

Not a leading article was written, no trumpets were sounded—but all the same it was the most tremendous day for the newspaper industry since the practical perfection of radio itself.

Radio First With News

Certainly it was the least spectacular revolution a big industry has ever undergone, but it meant just this: for the first time in British newspaper history the majority of readers consistently knew beforehand what they were going to read on the front page next morning.

Do not misunderstand me. My point is not that the power of the printed word had perished overnight, but that (in comparison with the last war) it had been robbed of its elements of surprise; that when the world's capitals vibrate with big events it is to the radio that the people first turn to keep pace with the quick-changing scene: that in the realm of important news the newspapers have stepped down from Public Informer No. 1 to Public Informer No. 2; and that the newspapers have not yet themselves fully absorbed the shattering fact of this revolution.

I remember in those early days of the war watching them put the front page of The Daily Mail away for the West-country editions. Rarely did that front page contain a single item of important news which had not been given in the B.B.C. 9 o'clock bulletin. By the time the midnight bulletin was broadcast the paper would be seven or eight hours away from its customers' hands, yet quite possibly already seriously out of date. By the time the B.B.C.'s first morning bulletin was read eight hours later, the paper might easily be quite absurdly out of date.

I remember saying to Charles Wilkie—editor of The Daily Mail—before 11 p.m. complete news-service with the paper radiating at midnight and just before the reader's paper delivered the next morning?"

Even Wilkie—and he has magic at times—could not answer that one.

"Pool" News

Nevertheless, I hear that the situation minimized and. But this, I am afraid, is mainly from newspaper writers themselves who hardly listen to it. Normally the working when radio is assembled, and when they have time for relaxation they tend to a most spectacular way of listening in. Quite right.

Side by side the radio and the vital development of radio service comes another cause of the decay of competitive news in newspapers.

Ever since the last war scoop has become an increasingly rare phenomenon. The of war and censorship made almost entirely obsolete. Our petrol pumps are filled with Pool Petrol; our news columns are filled with News.

Indeed, the position has reached when the printing exclusive news story on the front-page news itself. The Daily Express printed particularly sensational view with General Sir M. Ironside, given to a reporter an American news agency whose service in Britain exclusive to the Express.

Next morning (in column 1) The Daily Express claimed that this interview caused "a Fleet Street sensation" and went on to quote the Minister of War as saying the War Office policy was to give exclusive opportunities to one newspaper and the view was therefore the one a misunderstanding.

Features Give Distances As at home, so abroad fighting front. There reporters have far less action than a Cook's room it surprising the stories send home differ as much as Tweedle-dum does from Tweedle-dee?

I am emphasizing this not to try to prove that news is no longer the life of a newspaper—no one would try to prove an obvious nonsensical—but rather plain why feature articles (widest sense) are becoming more important in time.

Now that newspapers are becoming popular (manfully trying to B.B.C.) it is the radio and the way they are more than ever a newspaper individual distinction from the radio.

PLANTERS' ANNUAL MEETING

NEWAN-DESIGNATE CONGRATULATED

(From our Correspondent)
Chikmagalur, May 21. The forty-eighth annual meeting of the Indian Planters' Association held here yesterday, a resolution congratulating Raja-Pravina N. Madhava Rao for his appointment as the Dewan of Mysore was passed unanimously amidst loud cheers. Another resolution of the meeting recorded the valuable services rendered by Sir Mirza Asaf-ud-Daula, the retiring Dewan of Mysore, towards the general progress and prosperity of the State for the keen interest he was taking in matters connected with the planters during his tenure of office.

The meeting was very largely attended by planters of Hassan, Kolar, Kadur Districts and also Mr. M. P. Pai, Controller of Coffee, Mr. Charles Noronha, Deputy Commissioner, Kadur District, and Rau Bahadur S. Nadar, a prominent Coffee Rubber Planter of Virudachery who owns plantations in Mysore State also. The meeting commenced with refreshments, after which Mr. B. N. Hanumanthappa thanked Mr. H. Srinivasan, the Senior Assistant Director of Agriculture of the Chikmagalur Circle, for the help he rendered during his stay here to the planting community. Mr. K. H. Srinivasan replied suitably.

The Association after a long discussion voted in favour of the continuance of the existing Coffee Control Act with suitable amendments. It was more useful to the Coffee planters than at present. Mr. P. Pai during the debate pointed out certain points regarding the activities of the Indian Coffee Market Expansion Board. A sub-committee was appointed to draft proposals for amendments of the Act. The annual report of the Association was placed before the meeting by Mr. Sylvester Pais who showed all round progress of the Association during the last year.

A resolution requesting His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore to grant one seat for the elected representatives of Malnad in either of the Houses on the subject was moved by Mr. Sylvester Pais. Messrs. N. K. Gowda, T. Manjanthappa and B. K. Narasimhaiah supported the proposition. Messrs. C. V. Druva, H. H. Gowda, Bagamaneuve Gowda, B. P. Basappa, D. C. Rudrappa and L. J. Narasimhaiah opposed the motion and pointed out that there was no use in asking for small favours at a time when Responsible Government was being demanded, and they opined that the Ministers should be very carefully selected. His Highness to serve the interests of the State. The resolution was put to vote and the same was carried by a majority. The persons who op-

Mr. FAZLUL HUQ'S APPEAL TO INDIA

(Associated Press of India)

Darjeeling May 21. "I am in no way in disagreement with the League's policy or ideal and I am anxious to make known to the public not my disagreement but my agreement with the policy of our national organization" observed Bengal Premier, Mr. Fazlul Huq in a statement to the Associated Press on his recent move for ending the deadlock in the country. He adds that he does not believe his move in any way went counter to the stand taken up by Muslim League. In any Round Table Conference that will be held, the League will naturally represent the Muslim nation and no decision will be accepted by the Muslims unless the League ratified it. I adhere to my view that Hindus and Muslims can, if they will, agree to the working of the pact, put their shoulders together to defend their common motherland. All we have to do now is to realise how imminent is the danger to India. Are we so insensibly set against each other that we are impervious to the threat of the common foe?

Mr. S. Annappa Setty, who has been recently elected as Member of the Mysore Assembly on Congress ticket was elected as the Vice President and Messrs. Sylvester Pais and S. N. Ramanna were elected as Joint Secretaries. Eight members were elected to the Managing Committee of the Association.

Resolutions requesting the Implements Factory of Hassan to reduce rates of Estate Tools, and the Mysore Coffee Curing Works to reduce curing charges and selling commission were passed unanimously. The Government of Mysore was requested to follow the policy of the Coorg Government in affording better facilities to the planters, and not to cause unnecessary delay in granting licenses for the transport of owners' husk to their estates.

With a vote of thanks the meeting terminated.

NAWAB OF CHATTARI'S APPEAL

"REDOUBLE WAR EFFORTS"

(Associated Press of India)

New Delhi May 21. A condemnation of the treacherous act of Rashid Ali in betraying his King and country and an appeal to the Government of India to redouble war efforts to prepare India for the impending danger are the main points in a statement issued by the Nawab of Chattari. He says: Thanks to the treacherous disloyalty of Rashid Ali, German planes and war materials are pouring into Iraq through Syria. Rashid Ali by his treacherous act not only betrayed the interests of his own country and King but also dragged Arabian Peninsula and practically the whole Muslim world into the vortex of war. His action has created difficulties for Egypt, isolated Turkey which is now almost encircled by nazis. It has also brought war to our very doors. I therefore urge the British Government and the Government of India to redouble their war efforts and strain every nerve to prepare India and Indians against danger.

Turkey must prevent German Thrust

SHOULD NOT ALLOW GERMANS TO INSTAL IN SYRIA & IRAQ
Turkish Influential Deputy's Warning to Turkey

Turkey must prevent, at whatever cost, Germans installing in Syria and Iraq. This categorical view is expressed by an influential Turkey Deputy, Mr. Yalcin, writing in the newspaper "Yeni Sabah". "We must maintain the contact with our British Allies and keep open the road to the outside world. If Germany installs troops in Syria danger for Turkey would be mortal and we would be forced to intervene."

Scuttle or Immobile the Ships

It is revealed that the Captains of French merchant ships have been instructed by the French Minister of Marine to scuttle or immobilize their ships if such course is necessary to avoid capture by the British authorities.

PINDRIKALA PROJECT

(Associated Press of India)

Hyderabad (Dn.) May 19. The Pindrikala Irrigation project which was undertaken three years ago with the object of providing sufficient water to the ryots of the Devarakonda Taluqa in the Nalgonda District has recently been completed at a cost of Rs. 6.25 lakhs. The taluqa was frequently subjected to rainfalls.

The project consisted of a formation of a reservoir in the basin of the Krishna river across the Uppu Vagu Stream. The reservoir has a capacity of 541 million cubic feet at full water level with a water-spread of about 1½ square miles and the irrigation channel is seven miles long.

Already under the reservoir, 2,500 acres are being cultivated, and it is expected that cultivators are being given special concessions by way of assessment being calculated at dry rates, a maximum of 5,000 acres will be under cultivation.

Seventy million pounds have been so far collected in London for the War Weapons Week.

PLACE OF HESS IN THE THIRD REICH

"Noblest Nazi Of Them All"

NON-ARYAN ORIGIN OF HITLER'S FORMER DEPUTY

Effect of English Uprising

London (By Cable) The Yorkshire Post publishes the following from a special correspondent:

Rudolf Hess has been built up by the Nazi Party machine for a number of years as the "noblest Nazi of them all." If any young Party members have never entertained what the Japanese term "dangerous thoughts" as to the probity of any of their leaders—and sometimes even the stupidest of them must have wondered—they could always regard the tall handsome figure of the Deputy Fuhrer and retain their trust and confidence in the party.

I last saw Hess at Munich in 1938. As always, he was a step behind Hitler. He was walking in the annual procession commemorating the Beer Hall Putsch of 1923. He looked earnest, almost devout. Oddly enough, Hess, whose adherence to the entire Nazi credo had an almost religious intensity, was himself non-Aryan. He was born in Egypt, his father being German and his mother Egyptian.

He went to a British school in Alexandria, now run on public school lines by a British council. It was there that he learnt his English, which is good though rusty, and there in these early formative years of his life he must have assimilated something of British thought and feeling.

As he set out on this desperate flight of his, his mind may well have gone back to the time when he was a boy at school with English voices around him and the orderly security of an English environment probably seemed to him, as he flew through the night, a most desirable thing.

It was the sombre, rather colourless, zeal of a Puritan preacher which made Hess so useful to the Nazi Hierarchy. He was never involved in any of the fierce and often blood-stained intrigues which went on among the Party leaders. He was dull, virtuous and almost unbelievably boring in his public utterances; a speech by Hess was a thing to be avoided by the foreign press in Berlin.

As foreign newspapermen sat and listened to the tangle of clichés and claptrap the only feeling that was aroused in them was wistful wonder that any grown man could so obviously believe the tedious nonsense which the loudspeakers so delectably magnified.

Hitler completely trusted Rudolf Hess. He was always referred to by the Fuhrer in terms which any Englishman and even some Germans, would find embarrassing.

HESS PURSUED BY A BRITISH FIGHTER IN SCOTLAND

Duke Of Hamilton Could Not Recognise Hess In The Hospital

More news of Hess episode was supplied by Sir Archibald Sinclair in the House of Commons. He revealed when the Deputy Fuehrer was hovering over Scotland he was pursued by one of our new fighters. Duke of Hamilton visited Hess after he arrived in Scotland. Duke, though had seen Hess in 1936 in Berlin, could not recognise him. There was never any correspondence between Hess and Duke of Hamilton though one or two letters were written by Hess where to Duke did not reply.

Major Gwilym and Lloyd George suggested that it would give satisfaction to R.A.F. if Sir Sinclair stated what action was taken to intercept his plane. Sir Sinclair replying said when Hess baled out the defiant fighter was hot on his plane's trail.

TRICK PLAYED ON INDIAN TROOPS

Italians Hoist White Flag, Then Attack

(By Cable) London. Tom Dardo cabled to the Daily Mail from Naicho, near Amba Alagi, on May 16:

When the Indian troops in Abyssinia attacked enemy positions on the 12,000-foot Mount Alagi the trapped Italian Black Shirts hoisted the white flag then hurled hand grenades.

This is the third time I have heard of Italians sullying their honour in this campaign.

The first was at Gelib when the Natal battalion were the victims of Italian treachery, the second a week ago when the king's African Rifles were victims.

At Mount Alagi a company of Indians moving up the slopes of the mountain opened devastating machine gun fire on the enemy entrenchments until the white flag appeared.

The Indians ceased fire, then moved forward. They were with in 30 yards of the enemy when the Italians stood up and showered hand grenades, then leapt out of their trenches to counter attack. The Indians withdrew.

SOME CONSIDERATIONS

With this background we can appreciate the popular feeling in the matter of appointment of non-official Ministers. At the moment of writing this we have not before us the names of the two fortunate persons who have been favoured with the high office. There is a permutation and combination of four or five names taken in pairs in connection with the non-official Ministry. Everyday, everywhere and every minute people's hopes are waving up and down. Some interested people have been very busy in spreading from ear to ear, now one pair, and then another pair of names. We may broadly divide the parties into two categories. The one part

The question may be asked what are the special advantages in having Congress Ministers? The answer is patent. They are the strongest single political party both in the Assembly and in the Council, with a strong backing of the public. On this occasion it must also be said that if elections had gone on in a normal course without any interference the Congress Party would have been in clear majority in the Assembly. Now that not being the case it is open to consider how the Congress Party would fare if Ministry is given to them. We are sure there is a greater chance for the Congress Party than for any other Party to rally non-party and independent members to its side. To put it precisely even as it is today the Congress Party can secure support from the Assembly and also the Legislative Council for its policy and programme in Government. We are placing these considerations here because these are the thoughts that have been passing through the intelligent and enlightened public mind in the country which wants peaceful successes all around.

Some people have been arguing on communalistic lines that if Mr. So and So is appointed it would satisfy the largest Community in the State. Without going into names we repu-

"WE WANT A MINISTER OF OUR COMMUNITY"

(From our correspondent)

Shimoga, May, 20

Mr. Chennigaramaiah, in the course of his presidential address formulated the position of the Harijans in the State and expressed that adequate representation in the houses of Legislature should be given to them. As at present, only 26 seats have been given for all the scheduled depressed classes. Proceeding he said that in view of the joint electorate and with the interference of the Congress in the elections sufficient number of seats were not secured by the Adikarnatikas who are among the depressed class, and he urged for the earlier rectification of the same. He regretted very much for the interference of the Congress in the elections and said that instead of taking up the constructive work they have resorted to this thing perhaps just to gain the support of this innocent community. It would have been better if they had taken the cause of the Harijans and brought them to the common level.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaiah also addressed the gathering.

Several resolutions connected with the welfare of the community were passed, one resolution urging a Ministership for the Harijans was also passed.

The Conference came to a close with a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Ranga Rao of Gajanoor.

date that suggestion; for, if the Congressman is appointed, whose name is now on the lips of the people he would certainly satisfy this want, if that be, a want. We have been arguing at this great length with some data before us. The selection is no doubt not an easy task. Any one name or two names cannot satisfy all. There is bound to be satisfaction and corresponding dissatisfaction who ever is appointed. That certainly ought to weigh with those, who have the power of this high appointment. But in the midst of this conflicting medley of satisfaction and dissatisfaction, we hope the higher powers would without any hesitation do the wisest thing, guided by farsighted statesmanship and common sense.

If what we have been hearing has any basis, the appointments would be before the public before these lines reach them. If on the other hand what we have been hearing is baseless, what we have urged here would be a timely appeal.

LABOUR COMMISSIONER HAS STATUTORY COMMISSION

GOVERNMENT MUST DO MORE
"WATCH THE SITUATION"

(T. L. A. ACHARYA)

This is a distressing tale of two cities — Bangalore and the K. G. F. — and five labour strikes. This is a tale of unquestionable good intentions without the dynamic force of a social philosophy to give them strength, of recurring troubles which could have been easily avoided with a little exercise of imagination, of governmental dilatoriness, of pious words, of baseless prestige and of a fatal tendency to "watch the situation" when the situation clamoured for action.

As tales go, this is a tale which must lead us all somewhere - and lead us to an irresistible moral, social preparation and social action.

It is not without significance that during a period of ten months — July 1940 to May 1941 — we, in Mysore, have had to go through five major strikes. In less than a year, the K. G. F. has borne the brunt of two strikes and Bangalore three. There is truce in the K. G. F. for a second time. In Bangalore, there is the Minerva-Maharaja textile strike on. It is almost a month since it started.

Let us face some facts. There was a strike in the Binny Mills in January. An enquiry was held by the present Labour Commissioner in March. I believe his report was placed in the hands of the Government in April. The primary question involved in the strike was payment of bonus. And bonus will have to be paid again in July. That leaves a little over a month. Is it not time that the government wheels were set in motion?

The K. G. F. men have been twice on strike within the course of ten months. The Matthan enquiry is proceeding, snail-like for over seven months and no body knows when that enquiry will find its fulfilment. The responsibility for the second instalment of trouble is at the door of the secretariat. Trouble leads on delay and nerves get edgier and edgier. Mr. Wendell Willkie rushed through the air to Britain, went about that country, rushed back to America and asked his compatriots to leave and lend—all this in ten days!

And then, the Minerva Mill trouble, the first strike was in March. The Dewan intervened and brought peace. Labour's case was presented before the then Labour Commissioner early in April. What has happened to that enquiry? And another strike is on, for what ever reason.

Is it any wonder that trouble on trouble is visiting us, involving suffering, unadvertised and patiently borne, involving a ghastly waste of our time and wealth? One may justifiably ask, "Is this what you call promptitude?"

You order an enquiry and you take your own time about it, you get tied up into knots with red-tape of your own making. Are you not putting both the men and the management wrong? When you have prevailed upon the men and labour to face the light of a critical examination good for you and the firm us all—why not seize the opportunity by the forelock and pave the way for such a compulsion by prompt action. The mills and mines idle, the men are kept from earning, while you cogitate. You lose, the management loses, the men lose and we all lose. The country loses wealth, the management loses money, the men lose work and food and lose their temper.

Shall we have a Labour Commission, an institutional machine, achieving industrial peace these ten months, three men have held that very important office! The present does not know man before him though. Yes, the files are there are cold-blooded and there almost fading. If the Labour Commissioner has committed an unconscious error, the new Labour Commissioner finds his hands. The secretariat is Union of a sort and it is not done, you know, not do, mistakes. Then the Commissioner has no definable powers of instructions. He, for the does not know which move. He could only "situation" till somebody to take "cognisance" of. He must be approached. Unions have no official definition. They simply do Mr. K.T. Bhaskar, Bangalore Textile union to the Labour Commission twice during the first strike, what happened the Labour Commission not send even a courier to the union, he did not

PANDIT MANDALI CONFERENCE

Mr. ABDUL WAJID'S OPENING ADDRESS

(From our correspondent)

Mysore May 23
The Mysore State Pandit Mandali Conference commenced this morning at Chamarajanagar under the presidency of Mr. D. Kataragama retired Inspector of Schools.

Mr. Abdul-Mulk S. Abdul Wajid, Revenue Commissioner, declared the Conference open, said: "I thank you for the honour you have done me in asking me to open this year's Conference of the Pandita Mandala."

You belong to that noble band of scholars who have striven to advance the cause of knowledge for the sake of knowledge. Worldly gain does not enter into your calculation. Your ambition is to seek knowledge and give it to all who need it. I often wonder if an order were issued that graduates would be other servants of Government or other servants of the people, how many students we would find in our colleges. All due to you. To be in the midst of such a distinguished gathering for however a short time is a privilege, knowing as I do my own limitation to preside at such a function I have come with the humility of a student to learn at first hand of the Pandit Mandala and what its aspirations are.

Venue of Conference

Must congratulate you on your choice of this place as the venue of your Conference this year. Chamarajanagar is a noble City. It has hoary associations, historical and religious. Jain Basti dates back to 700 A.D. It is closely connected with the Royal Family of Mysore. It was here that Chamaraj Wodeyar the father of Chamaraj Wodeyar III, the founder of the present dynasty, was born and this spacious Chamaraj Wodeyar Temple was erected by him in 1774 A.D. He also built the principal temple of the State and named it Sri Chamaraj Wodeyar Temple. It is one of the richly endowed temples in the State. The pond which supplies drinking water to the town is a Daddarankavala. It was constructed by Kanteravara Narayana Wodeyar who held sway over Mysore in the 17th century and named it after his father-in-law Dodde Urs. I commend the idea of holding your annual Conferences in different parts of the State so that the Pandit Mandala may receive publicity.

More-Home of Vedic Learning

Our Motherland, Mysore, has always been the home of Vedic learning and culture. It gave to the world all the three famous schools of Vedantism, the tenet of which are to day followed and practised by millions of Hindus. It was here, that Sri Sankara, who wrote his Vedanta Sutra, established his Mutt at Sringeri for propagating Advaita. Here, again, it was that Kamanuja sought his asylum under the shade of the now famous Badari tree at Melkote, and to the world his Sri-Bhagavad Gita expounding the tenets of Vishishtadvaitism. The Dwaita school of Philosophy propounded by Sri Madhva has its three principal Muttas established on the sacred river banks of Mysore. It was here, again, that Veerasaivism and Jainism flourished at their highest and the valuable contributions made by the Veerasaivas to Kannada literature is well known to you all.

Wodeyar Family's Encouragement

The sovereigns of the Wodeyar Family of Mysore were not mere patrons of Sanskrit and Kannada learning and culture, but were themselves authors and poets. The tradition of royal patronage and encouragement given to the cultivation of Sanskrit, the arts and music, has continued down to our day.

His Highness Sri Nalvadi Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur of blessed memory, not only fostered learning and the arts in his Court in an abundant measure, but was himself a great devotee of Sanskrit learning and Hindu philosophy and a keen critic of the art and science of music. It is well known that Sanskrit scholarship, ancient learning and classical music are receiving every encouragement in Mysore. The Royal House has always extended its patronage to Pandits and musicians and in cases of exceptional merit titles are conferred on them at the annual Dasara Celebrations. The Sanskrit Colleges at Mysore and Bangalore have been placed on a sound basis and are rendering abiding service to the country by preserving its ancient learning and culture. It is with the object of placing higher Sanskrit education within the reach of all the communities that the Government have removed all restrictions in the matter of the admission to the Sri Chamarajendra Sanskrit College at Bangalore. I only wish that more pupils of the backward classes take advantage of the facilities thus created. Government with great forethought started so far back as the year 1894 a Normal School at Mysore with the express object of securing qualified men for educational service, wherein provision was made for the higher study of Sanskrit, Kannada, Arabic, Persian and Urdu. Practically all the Pandits employed in the State are products of that institution. I learn that there are 175 Pandits working in the Educational Institutions of all grades, apart from those employed in the 50 purely Sanskrit Schools, and the 40 Veda Pathashalas maintained by the Muzrai Department. The vernacular has now been accepted as the medium of instruction in the subjects of History, Geography, Mathematics and the Sciences in Secondary Educational Institutions.

Needs of the hour

An association like yours is a clear proof that Pandits are alive to the changed needs of the hour. Individual effort however strong cannot be successful as the joint labours of an organised body. You have done well therefore to form yourselves into an association, whose object is I learn, to conserve the traditional type of scholarship not ignoring at the same time the new forces which the time spirit has brought into existence, as also to safeguard the interests of the Pandit Class by bringing to the notice of the authorities their various needs.

Conferences of this nature provide both the old class of Pandits and those trained according to modern methods, a common platform, so that one class may co-operate with the other to make up each other's short comings. By a combination of the ancient and modern methods, a new class of pandits will come forward, I sincerely hope, to bring home to the people the great truths and the sublime ideals embedded in the vast regions of Sanskrit literature and also to enrich the vernaculars of the country. Pandits have a hold on the people and although conservative ideas not in keeping with modern ideals of progress may not be popular, still you can bring to bear on the younger generation those influences which in the past have been so helpful to society. Pandits have to play their age long role in the cultural life of the people by becoming up-to-date. We may have regard up to that is old and that should not mean that we must spurn the new. Sri Swami Vivekananda once said: "That brain which cannot think high and noble thoughts, which has lost all power of originality, which has lost all vigour, that brain which is always poisoning itself with all sorts of little superstitions passing under the name of religion, we must beware of. In our sight, here in India, there are several dangers. Of these, the two, Scylla and Charybdis, rank materialism and its opposite, rampant superstition must be avoided. There is the man to day who after drinking the cup of western wisdom, thinks that he knows everything. He laughs at the ancient sages. All Hindu thought to him is arrant trash, philosophy mere child's prattle, and religion the superstition of fools. On the other hand, there is the man educated, but a sort of monomaniac, who runs the other extreme, and wants to explain the omen of this and that. He has philosophical and metaphysical and Lord knows that other puerile explanations for every superstition that belongs to his peculiar race, or his peculiar Gods, or his peculiar village. Every little village superstition is to him a mandate of the Vedas and upon the carrying out of it, according to him, depends the national life."

Pandits Of All Languages

I am glad that Pandits and Vidvans of all languages have been taken into the fold of your association. You have done well in taking educated women also into your Mandala. Women have played a great role in the cultural history of India. Maitreyi, Gargi, and Sulabha of the vedic ages were reputed alike for their scholarship and debating skill. Coming down to later times we have heard of Khana, Leelavathi and Malayavathi for their erudition in astrology, mathematics and grammar. One point which I should like to refer to your consideration is that the scope of the activities of the Mandala may be widened by the inclusion of Moulvis also in its membership. By such cultural contact you will bring about a closer affinity between the Hindu and the Muslim communities a consummation devoutly to be desired. History tells us that Albaroni, Dorashiko and Abul Fazl were great Sanskrit scholars. It is said that Akbar built his famous Ibadat Khana or "Hall of Worship" to which he invited Hindus, Zoroastrians and Christians as well as Muslims to hold discussions. He took great delight in these debates suggesting topics and residing in person at them. Akbar's brother Feroz, the poet laureate, translated the Bhagavad Gita into Persian verse and I wrote many religious poems.

On this occasion I cannot do better than to recall to your memory the words of profound wisdom uttered by our late "He (A Pandit) must be a light bringer, a bearer of the message of wisdom, a living example of true Vidya and Satya-dharma, that of conquest of matter by of the spirit, that independence of the mind and character, and that fearlessness of conduct, which are the very essence of Brahmanya. He must always be conscious that he bears a sacred responsibility, for by him and him will the ancient Vidya be judged. And, if he thus fits himself for serving his fellowmen in the higher needs of the soul, he the higher needs of the soul, he may rest assured that Providence, which works ever in the dispensations of society, will not abandon him, for is it not written—"Yogakshemam Vahamyaham."

Poverty and Pandits

Poverty has been the lot of the Pandits all through the ages. It is said that Lakshmi and Sarawathi stand in the relationship of mother-in-law and daughter-in-law and proverbially there could not be any harmony between them. But I recognise that it is no consolation when we require money to satisfy our growing daily wants. I assure you that Government are solicitous of helping your cause and I have every confidence that your prayer that the posts that you now occupy should be reserved for you and that you should be treated on a par with the graduates of the University will receive sympathetic consideration.

Respect to Pandits

I yield to no one in my respect for the Pandits. Their high literary linguistic attainments, their piety and above all their plain living and high thinking are features which are an asset to the nation. The Mysore Pandits under royal patronage have won an all India reputation. I trust that you will maintain this reputation by the assiduous cultivation of your scholarship and contribution to contemporary indigenous literature. You have been fortunate in having secured as your President a great scholar. The development of education in the State has been a passion with him. His work as the Inspector of Education is well known. Though he has retired his enthusiasm for the cause is as great as ever. He was the Chairman of the District School Board in Bangalore and the Elementary Education Committee derived valuable help from his experience. He is a member of the Closest Welfare Centre and I may say it is an education to work with him. He has given us valuable guidance in the scheme for adult education in the Centre. I wish him all health and a long life of usefulness to your deliberations under his guidance will not only be fruitful in promoting your personal and professional interests, but will also help the community to move towards the much needed synthesis between the old and the new. I have now great pleasure in declaring this Conference open.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR
CHANNAPATNA URDU MIDDLE SCHOOL

Dear Sir,
It is with great regret that we, here, though disinclined with the unreasonable and unsympathetic withholding of the results of fifteen boys who have appeared for the M.S. Examination from Government Urdu Middle School, Channapatna, this year, waited till about ten days for the settlement of this important affair. We were forced, then, by public opinion to complain against this untoward action of the Education Department, and protested in our humble way. We wrote to the Director hoping that he would give this matter his immediate personal attention. But we are sorry to announce, for the information of our sympathisers, that this opinion does not coincide with ours, not even in the matter of considering this an important and urgent matter. We telegraphed to him on 20th instant but yet we are as far from the settlement as we were before we made our protest.

In a way this has a double effect. It affects the doubtful minds of the candidates. They, I hold, are punished without any cause. The punishment is not only unwarranted but also harmful. Who knows, some of the boys may do desperate things. They are too young to be conscious of what they may do. In another way, the boys are forced to face serious inconveniences in proceeding to the High School for admission to the first year class. It can be that they may not be able to get seats in their class. There are many poor men who must make special arrangements for their expenses in the ensuing year. It is not necessary to reiterate the urgency of the matter—the psychological effect on the young minds cannot be neglected.

I sincerely pray that the interested authorities may make immediate enquiries into the matter. There is no meaning in this sort of a killing procedure and I believe, it must be due to some unavoidable negligence on the part of the ministerial staff. I, however, do not believe that the authorities have much to do with this—a educationist would ever prove a stumbling stone in the way of the progress of young boys, or would exhibit carelessness in such urgent matters.

Channapatna, Yours faithfully,
D/ 22nd May, '41. SYED NAZRULLAH.

H. E. H. THE NIZAM'S DECLARATION

"I consider myself to be without Any Religion as a Ruler"

A.P. Hyderabad (Dn.) May 22
"I do not desire to injure with narrow-mindedness the susceptibilities of any community, or faith, or distort practice of my religion in such a manner as to earn the title of a bigot. It has been my principle and also the principle of my forefathers to look at all religions without difference or distinction and cause no weakening of our rule by interference in the practice of any religion" declares H.E.H. the Nizam in an unofficial communication to a local paper.

Refuting the interpretation given to a line in a poem composed by the Nizam some years ago by some Majlis spokesmen in support of the theory that the Nizam is the embodiment of sovereignty to his Muslim subjects he states that what he may write or say as a Muslim cannot be confused with what he may write or say as a Ruler for in the latter capacity he rules over and over different communities not only one particular sect and that as such he must rule equally over all. Religion and two different things which cannot be combined together as "I consider myself to be without any religion, not in the sense of being an Atheist, but in the sense of being without bias as ruler for any particular religion or community."

comfortably anomalous position. It is necessary for Governments at any time, to reassert, in a social way, their great privilege as the custodians of the welfare of the common people. The Mysore Government, on their part, must help to create the atmosphere for discussing and promoting bills for legislative enactment. That demands that they should be not so lethargic as they have been in their approach to the tribes these two months. All these emergency reports must be brought out. The Secretariat, payee, bank, prison and other findings, published and made available to the public. It is the duty of the Government to be committed to the public interest.

SIR B. RAMA RAU ON INDIAN PROBLEM IN SOUTH AFRICA

(Associated Press of India)

Bombay, May 22

"The present Government in South Africa is sympathetic towards the Indian problem and the presence of Holmeyer in the cabinet is a guarantee in itself that the Indian question would be dealt with not only with sympathy but also with liberality," said Sir B. Rama Rau, formerly Indian High Commissioner in South Africa, interviewed by the Associated Press. He added at the same time even in the ministerial party there is at present anti-Asiatic element. The opposition is of course strongly anticolonial. A prominent leader of the opposition recently explained details of "new order" which he proposed to establish when the opposition came into power. In this new order provision would be made for subverting all non-Europeans including Indians to compulsory disciplinary labour. Sir Rama Rau was inclined to believe that on the whole there was at present better understanding on the Indian question. People realised that at the end of the war this racial question would have to be considered from a different standpoint. It was however a difficult problem for him to say if this change would be of permanent character. He said that the South African Parliament that recently passed legislation on the lines suggested by Feetham Commission enabled Indians for the first time to have the right to possess, and purchase and acquire lands in certain areas.

FAQIR OF IPI

A.P. Simla, May 22.

The Faqir of Ipi who is still at Gorakhpur has been intensifying his propaganda against persons in Government service and there have been many rumours but no proof of his intentions. The situation in regard to Maddakhel tribe is still far from settled and Maddakhel maliks have been demanding payment of allowances withheld for various misdeeds and release of certain of their tribesmen under restraint and various other minor items as prerequisite to their full co-operation with the Government. A number of tribesmen have committed various crimes and are being punished.

Support To Premiers' Conference

SIR SULTAN'S APPEAL

A.P. Solon, May 22.

A strong support for the proposed Premiers' Conference was given by Sir Sultan Ahmed in the course of a statement. He adds the war has come now to the very gates of India and it is imperative we should sink all our differences and rise as one united India to meet the enemy. The position was dangerous enough but the treachery of Rashid Ali in Iraq backed by German funds created immense complications for India. There are definite indications today that Russia may actively support German aggression in Asia. India therefore is in grave danger from west, north and east. It is my firm conviction that with the help of America, Canada, West and South Africa, India, Australia, New Zealand and from East, Great Britain will save India.

Appealing to Indians to put their best united efforts to help winning war he says the prerequisite to any united effort of India is for Mahatma Gandhi to call off satyagraha. Those on his satyagraha lists whether in jail or outside in co-operation with Muslims and other communities might be most usefully employed for promoting and maintaining internal peace. I would strongly support the Premiers' Conferences suggested by Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan and Mr. Fazlul Huq.

There is a feeling in the country that the best that can be done is not being done by the centre and I have reasons to say that this feeling is shared by a large section of non-official Europeans. Let Indians therefore be given full responsibility and let them show that more can be done

The Daily Telegraph's Madrid correspondent cabled on May 16:

The Berlin correspondent of the Madrid journal Aleazar describes the flight of Hess as "a colossal event unprecedented in history."

He says that Hess, although "a living incarnation of fidelity to Hitler and the Nazi party," was "a man without a god and without a divine creed who must inevitably fall into a Mephistophelian trap."

Thus he resorted to astrologers and "the entire crowd of devilish beings who assail those who refuse to see consolation in religion."

Arriba, the Fulangist newspaper, speculates on the possibility of Hess being under an obsession that he could secure peace by holding direct conversations with Britain.

What he had done was "to give his Fuehrer an indescribable shock."

German authorities admitted that one of their famous 'U' boats is missing as also his submarine. This was announced in Britain three weeks ago. He was a winner of Iron Cross.

NO WAR ON BRITAIN BY FRANCE

ADMIRAL DARLAN'S SPEECH

Hitler did not ask him any Territory

In a Broadcast to the Frenchmen Admiral Darlan declared that French fleet will not be given over and that France will not declare war on Great Britain.

He said France will choose freely the path she wishes and alone will decide her present and future. Germans have not asked the French fleet. Herr Hitler did not ask for any territory and did not ask him to declare war on Britain.

Germany started war by herself and she considered capable enough to end it alone. France he said had suffered the greatest defeat in her history and he blamed the legislators and also former allies. He congratulated the Germans for agreeing to collaborate and for continuing negotiations.

MYSORE SITUATION

"The Statesman" writes in its issue of May 22 under "Occasional Notes":

Rumour was busy with non-Mysorean names for the office rendered vacant by Sir Mirza Ismail who is going on leave preparatory to retirement. The Maharaja of Mysore has how ever selected one who is both a Mysorean and a senior member of the State's Civil Service to officiate as Dewan. Mr. N. Madhava Rao is First Member of the Executive Council: his position has thus been next to Sir Mirza Ismail. As a civil servant he has had long and varied experience; he has seen at close quarters the large changes which have taken place in the State in the past few years. There is propriety in this appointment and Mysore public seems appreciative of it. On task of inaugurating the reformed legislature and generally of seeing the Reforms through Mysore's Reforms have taken shape in the midst of an acute controversy: and the new Dewan's task is by no means easy. The public in Mysore and elsewhere will judge him largely by his handling of the new elements in the legislature and the personalities who will now become important in the State's politics. Another test will be the extent to which he maintains Sir Mirza Ismail's general policy.

A NEW SITUATION AND AN UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY

The situation in Mysore is getting more and more mystifying. Regarding the appointment of the two non-official Ministers various rumours and various arguments have been started. It is worthwhile to consider a few forms of thought that are current among some people today. The Constitution definitely lays down that the two non-official Ministers should be selected by His Highness the Maharaja from among the elected members of the Representative Assembly or the Legislative Council. There is no doubt with regard to the operation of this clause. But then on what principle will the Ministers be chosen? Though the Constitution lays down that His Highness the Maharaja is the appointing authority, commonsense says that there are some people who recommend names to His Highness the Maharaja and inform him as to the ability and other qualities of the nominees. Who is it that recommends these names? We may safely presume that it is the Dewan, whoever the person may be for the time being, that would recommend these names, because the Dewan is in the capacity of the Prime Minister who is solely responsible for the policies and administrative acts. The Council of Ministers that the Mysore Constitution has conceived is one of joint responsibility. The Srinivasa Iyengar Committee has definitely laid down that the responsibility of the Ministers is not individual. Their words are "If the responsibility of the Ministers should be individual it will lead to its sentions of a very undesirable type. The defects of dyarchy will be multiplied as many times as the number of the Ministers. This can only be avoided by the principle of joint responsibility and action."

Thus the non-official Ministers have to work in unison and harmony with the Dewan and Official Ministers. They have to think as one body and act as one body. It is thus clear that the Dewan who is the Chief as well as the President of the Council of Ministers has to select his colleagues.

Such a course is perfectly constitutional. Even when there is full responsible Government, it is the Prime Minister alone that is named by the Crown to form his cabinet in the Mysore Constitution the Dewan who is other wise the Premier is solely responsible to His Highness the Maharaja. He enjoys much greater powers of initiative and administration than his other colleagues. So far in the Mysore Constitution the Dewan's voice has been supreme in the administration next only to that of His Highness the Maharaja. The Members of Council are his Councillors. In practice it has been that the Councillors, except in the matters concerning the routine affairs of their portfolios, have to obtain the consent of the Dewan in their other actions. The Dewan can exercise power even in the matter of the portfolios allotted to the Councillors. It is also a fact that the Councillors advise the Dewan only on matters in which their advice is sought. Thus it is very clear that the Councillors or the Ministers enjoy a sort of status and power definitely lower than that of the Dewan or the Prime Minister. According to the present Constitution if any Councillor or Minister finds that his differences with the Dewan are such that they necessitate his resignation he is free to do so. In that case it is only that particular Councillor that goes out and not the Cabinet as a whole.

In the modern history of Mysore as far as the Official Councillors are concerned no such situation seems to have arisen. But the same situation cannot be said to continue hereafter in the wake of the new Reforms when non-official persons would be appointed. As the Constitution stands at present, the non-official Minister cannot derive much advantage by being an elected member of the Assembly or Council. He has to play only a subservient part in the cabinet. If he possesses strong views and if he finds that he is not effective in the cabinet he has to come out with a resignation. His colleagues in the Assembly or the Council cannot be of much help to him. It is another matter of complication, if the particular issue on which the non-official Minister resigned, could be raised in the form of a debate in the Assembly or the Council. Even if the debate takes place and if the majority of the House is in sympathy with the resigned Minister, that vote or decision of the House does not affect the position of the cabinet. It would continue in the same invulnerable position as before. This is the position of the non-official Minister. He cannot seek any aid from the Assembly or the Council except when he is in agreement with the remaining members of the cabinet. This is the principle of the Cabinet system. The Cabinet works as a whole. And the Srinivasa Iyengar Committee stood firm on this ground of joint responsibility and action.

It is thus clear that it is the Dewan that has to recommend his colleagues' names to His Highness the Maharaja for appointment. This point being clear what should be the considerations that should weigh with the Dewan in the selection of his non-official colleagues. The Srinivasa Iyengar Committee argues as follows: "We agree, however, that the non-official Ministers selected should be persons who may be expected to enjoy the confidence of the Houses and that no room should be allowed for the suspicion that they are chosen because they are "safe" and not likely to give trouble. In the earlier stages it is imperative that general capacity for work and aptitude for administrative work, if not actual experience, ought to be the primary consideration in judging fitness."

The Srinivasa Iyengar Committee also are of the opinion that they should not be chosen because they are safe and not likely to give trouble. Submissive individuals with no independence of thought are fit to be good Government employees rather than Ministers. Ministers should know how to differ and also to compose their differences. In the present state of Mysore what is needed in the Ministry is harmony and integration of different view points. As the constitution stands at present in absence of full responsible government, no single party need predominate. But it is expected and it is the least that the people expect, that the Cabinet would be fully representative of every section of the public. The sections of the public may be viewed communally, socially and politically. A certain amount of communal justice may be necessary. And in the present state of Mysore, it is possible in the evolution of modern political ideas, to harmonise political interest with communal justice. We are not averse to any person or party but we are anxious the most important political party is not ignored in filling the Cabinet. We are not asking for a thing which is not fair and just.

As far as we understand the popular feeling in Mysore is that it would be perfectly in keeping with the spirit and the letter of the new Reforms to consult the Congress party which is undoubtedly the most important political party, in the matter of Ministry.

Some changes have happened in the State. We need not go over them at present. A new situation has arisen. A new Dewan is entrusted with the responsibility of conducting the administration. There is a great and unique opportunity before him. He is in every sense of the word the Chief Constitutional Adviser of His Highness the Maharaja. A Minister means an Adviser. We hope he will advise His Highness the Maharaja that in the present unique situation of the State it would be wisdom and statesmanship to permit him to consult the Congress Party in the formation of the New Ministry. This is a constructive suggestion that we make very respectfully to the new Dewan. Nothing would be lost by delaying the appointment of new Ministers for a few days.

When the next step is taken we wish every aspect of the question is duly considered and the most statesmanly course of action is adopted.

AGRICULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

By L. F. Esterbrook, The News Chronicle

"So you really spend your life writing about fat stock prices," a fellow journalist once remarked to me; and that sums up the conception by the uninitiated of the job of an agricultural correspondent.

I did my best to explain to him that it also meant other things, such as reporting the life, doings, hopes, fears and progress of the men and women engaged in an industry that occupies 85 per cent of the land surface of our country; that it means having a good deal to do with politics and fairly close contact with Cabinet Ministers; that it takes me all over England and Wales, keeping me in touch with the countryside in all its moods at all seasons of the year; and that I am able to find a queer satisfaction in my association with the oldest of all industries that is not only a calling for those who follow it but a complete way of living.

Drifted Into Agricultural Journalism

I rather drifted into agricultural journalism. After the last war I was trained to become the agent to an estate in Ireland and had been living on a Hampshire farm. But political events in Ireland at that time suddenly made the job of rent collection look just about as attractive as tiger hunting with an argun, and anyhow the estate was not in a very flourishing condition. Moreover, I had become exceedingly attached to Hampshire.

Dr. J. M. Bulloch, then editor of The Weekly Graphic, had seen, without my knowledge, one or two things I had written during the war for my own amusement. (Yes, I wrote for amusement in those days!) He, I heard, had remarked that it would be a pity if I did not do something about it.

I had been thinking rather a lot. Back from the indecency of war, the Hampshire lanes seemed like Heaven, and so quite naturally I thought a good bit about God in them. The more I thought the more convinced I became that God was true, and that it was also true that if one had faith in him one could do anything, because in a funny way that meant having faith in yourself.

Theories on Faith

The rest was easy. I had no money. But I borrowed £50 from a friend, sat down in two rooms in a carpenter's cottage and began to write, partly because of Dr. Bulloch's remark, partly because I wanted that kind of life, and partly because I wanted to test my theories on faith.

The theories had some nasty jolts. Every free-lance journalist is only too familiar with them. To this day I hate the sight of a postman.

But somehow something always turned up to see me through when things became really critical. Once it was an editor's false teeth. And it happened like this.

I didn't begin by specialising in agriculture—I even made 10s. 6d. a time by writing the words of songs twice a month, but naturally I wrote also of the things I knew.

One effort was a 4,000-word article about the farm labourer. I stuck a pin into "The Writer's and Artist's Year Book" and it went in at "The Century and After" MS. went. After a letter from the editor, Dewar, saying that it was, he wrote it away.

Full of thoughts about boys who became millionaires taking opportunity when they had, I clattered off on a motor bicycle to see if I found the unhappy man. He had to ask me to pull his teeth from the town before he could talk to me that made a life-time between us.

Introduction to Northampton

After that he used to sort out his mind on subjects that became for the Nineteenth century. They used to come to me as letters, almost impossible at first reading. But I got into the way of grasping the idea behind them, and the thing was that by the time they were published as articles, six weeks later, they usually a subject that had become topical.

George Dewar gave an introduction to Northampton though it was Marlow who actually saw. He gave me a job of going to the summer cultural shows that Lizard did not cover, and came a little more deeply merged in agriculture. By the time I was publishing stories in the old Red M. and many a time I would not write another about agriculture for six months.

Yet always I was back to it. Just as I had a final resolution to be alone for a space, Mr. George co-opted me to Land Campaign, and then my eyes a little while the tremendous and exciting there was to be done in the farming industry and creating a rural culture worthy of our country's times. The vision of what might make of rural England never faded.

I had jobs as agricultural correspondent to The Express, then The Daily Graphic. I left the "D.T." the deepest regret, and the misgivings, to go to the Chronicle largely because I was not happy about the atmosphere that might be called "progressives" to agriculture.

I knew there was a big job to be done in explaining the importance and needs of industry to them, but I was greatly if I would be as at the "D.T." and so I was being a fool in my trouble. Actually I was self even happier in my home, and although I was a Civil Servant, I was in the Civil Service. The new remains my alma mater. I cannot return to some.

One thing I had learned I would not do rather than spend all my days in London. This prejudice came from a job, for although it was for me to come to the couple of days a week times to keep it up.

IMPORTANCE IN TOTAL WAR

COMPONENTS OF MODERN BATTLE FLEET

Strategic Value of Bases

By Commander Stephen King-Hall

[This is the first of a series of talks on Sea Power by Commander King-Hall which are being broadcast by the B.B.C.]

It is a never-ending source of surprise to me considering that many people are now engaged in war, how many of them have a clear notion as to the true purpose of this unpleasant form of international relations. So many people seem to imagine that war is simply a matter of winning enemies. This is a very crude and elementary description of war.

It is true that there is a certain amount of body-lashing in war, but that is only part of the business. We attack the enemy's body in war in order to influence his brain, in order to do things so uncomfortable for him that his mind says, "I will better surrender and agree to the demands of my opponent than that I should continue to fight." This is why the strategy of naval war consists in amalgamating in an intelligent compound the strategy of military operations with political operations, propaganda, as it is sometimes called. Military operations, of course, include naval, land and air operations. I mention this not because just as military operations are only a part of naval war operations, so the use of sea power as only a part of the military operations.

Object of Sea Power

The sides of total war, the military and the political, are inextricably linked to each other. Sea Power may be used to send arms to us. If it does this, the use of sea power also has a depressing effect on German morale. The German nation subjected to a blockade, or economic war as it is now called, which is based on sea power, also has the uneasy feeling that a constant increase of force is being built up against them on the western shores of the Atlantic, and that sea power may possibly sea upon them." The phrase, "sea power," was given worldwide currency by an American naval officer. His name was A. T. Mahan and he made history, first as a naval history, when in December 1889, he published the first edition of his famous book called, "The Influence of Sea Power upon History." In this book, he examined the general history of Europe and America, with particular reference to the effect of sea power upon the course of that history. His writings had a profound effect on naval thought in all the advanced states of the world.

Deciding Factor

What is the purpose of sea power? This may seem a very simple question, but I can assure you that many volumes have been written on the subject by those who have followed in the footsteps and developed the ideas of the famous Admiral Mahan.

The object of sea power has been described as being the control of sea communications. From the earliest times, men have becomes much simpler and, indeed, only an administrative performance. Therefore, this is an important point to get hold of. One hopes to destroy the enemy battle fleet because to do so enables one then to use the sea routes without hindrance to other military operations, which are intended to put pressure on enemy bodies so as to make their owners change their minds.

The first duty of an Admiral is thus to seek out and destroy the enemy fleet, because if this can be done, the exercise of sea power in the shape of controlling sea communications becomes very easy.

The Battle Fleet

What is a fleet? What are the instruments of sea power? The unit of sea power is a battle fleet. In a general way, it may be compared perhaps to a division. Indeed, the comparison between a battle fleet and a German armoured division is peculiarly apt, because these mechanised divisions use guns which are very similar to those used by ships in sea battles. The heart and core of the battle fleet is the battleship. What is a battleship? Well, it is a vessel into which can be packed the most powerful combination of offensive and defensive weapons. Naturally, what this big battleship looks like depends upon technical conditions at various periods in world history. H.M.S. Victory which flew Nelson's flag at Trafalgar was a battleship. So was the Iron Duke that flew Jellicoe's flag at Jutland. So is the ship which now flies Cunningham's flag in the Mediterranean.

Around the battleship—which nowadays is an armoured vessel some six to seven hundred feet long, with a speed of 30 knots, armed with nine 14 inch guns, some a dozen or more six inch guns and anti-air-batteries, manned by upwards of a thousand men, and costing, perhaps, £8 millions—is built the battle fleet. This consists of aircraft carriers, cruisers, and destroyers, mine-layers, mine-sweepers, and a host of auxiliary craft such as hospital ships, store ships, fuel ships, ammunition ships, and so forth. This battle fleet is the grand orchestra of sea power, and, like an orchestra, it needs a home.

A battle fleet must have a base. A battle fleet without a base is like a woman without her handbag or any of the apparatus for making herself up. Modern fleets are far less able to keep to the seas than were the old wooden ones, which in the Napoleonic wars, blockaded the French fleet at Brest and stood between Napoleon and world domination. The modern battle fleet must have a base equipped with dockyard and repair facilities, defended against air and submarine attacks, and secure against other attacks, a base to which it can return and refuel.

Importance of Bases

It is for this reason that land operations are sometimes concerned chiefly with seizing a base for the use of a fleet; or, as in the case I will now describe, seizing a base that is used by a fleet. The case I have in mind is the fleet base of Alexandria in the Eastern Mediterranean. This is the main base of the British Mediterranean fleet, and if it were to pass out of our possession the Mediterranean fleet would have no place to go in the Eastern Mediterranean, for no place provides comparable facilities. The Germans, knowing this, have

PUBLICATION OF CASUALTY LIST

Procedure Adopted
(Associated Press of India)
Simp. May, 23

Whenever casualties are sustained in the field immediately steps are taken to announce them direct to the next of kin, says a Press Note. Explaining how this information is obtained and why delays are bound to occur occasionally the note says directly the unit in the field reports the casualty it is immediately notified by the General Headquarters in India and to Indian Record Officers. Notification of next of kin follows immediately. If the next of kin is resident in India he is notified in case of officers and gazetted civilians by the General headquarters; in the case of Warrant Officers, Viceroy's Commissioned Officers, Other Ranks, noncombatants and non-gazetted civilians, by the Indian Record Offices. For members of Indian States Forces the General Headquarters notifies the Resident of the State concerned who is responsible for passing the information. All cases where the next of kin resides outside India the notification is made by the India Office. Directly the Indian Record Officers report that the next of kin has been informed casualty lists are issued to the press. In all these cases the procedure is comparatively simple. Greater difficulty is however experienced where a man is reported missing. If reported "missing, believed killed" this report is allowed to stand for six months whereafter in the absence of contrary information steps are taken to presume his death.

SACRED SHRINES OF IRAQ

Lucknow May 23

A resolution reaffirming their loyalty to British Govt and their belief that according to its declaration the British Government will safeguard the sacred shrines of Iraq was unanimously passed at a crowded meeting of Shias held in Jumma Musjid in Imambara this afternoon after Friday prayers of capturing Alexandria and so eliminating our sea power from the Eastern and, perhaps, the whole Mediterranean.

Another example of the importance of bases is provided in the case of the ports in South West Eire. In the last War, the Allies had the use of Queenstown, and, indeed, it was from this port that United States destroyers operated. Today we have not got that port, and the result is that our naval forces on escort duty in the Atlantic must return as far back as Great Britain to refuel. This means that they are unable to go as far out at sea into the Atlantic as they were able to do in the last War.

Admiral Mahan pointed out in his book, which was written 50 years ago, that if the United States wanted to have the use of sea power in war to protect her interests, she must do something about bases for her navy. And therefore, when the immediate menace is reduced to the United States, the U. S. A. navy requires bases in the Atlantic Ocean. The result has been the arrangement whereby the British Government has leased to the American Government the use of bases in the West Indian colonies. This arrangement has greatly increased the strength of American sea power.

NEW MAHARAJA OF COCHIN

INSTALLATION CEREMONY

—:—
Ernakulam, May 23

A.P. Sree Kerala Varma, now Maharaja of Cochin, was installed on the gadi at a picturesque harbor town in the presence of high officials and non-officials of the State. Lt. Col. G.P. Murphy, Resident of Madras States, read a proclamation recognising Sree Kerala Varma as the lawful heir and successor to the Throne. This was followed by three volleys of musketry, the State band playing the Cochin State Anthem. The Resident conveyed a special message from the Crown Representative replying to which the Maharaja said he was called to the gadi at a moment when the world was passing through one of the greatest crisis in history. "In the epic fight against forces of evil victory is bound to come to those who fight for the establishment of justice and liberty." The Maharaja assured the Crown Representative that in the struggle the entire resources of the State were at the disposal of His Majesty the King. The Maharaja concluded with a prayer for speedy victory of Britain in her noble fight against powers of destruction.

Losing Earthy Flavour

I am convinced of that, and, fortunately, my editor is as well. The agricultural correspondent who spends all his time in London soon loses his earthy flavour and is inclined to develop the slick cuteness of his urban surroundings.

It becomes easy to see agriculture in the terms of Whitehall. That, at least, is my experience.

I have never been through the mill of a newspaper office—I might well be a letter reporter if I had; but also I have never graduated to London through a small provincial newspaper, and for that I am profoundly thankful, for I cannot help feeling that that is where you learn how not to write news stories.

So there is my job. It is not exciting in the way that dealing daily with battle, murder and sudden death may be; nor has it the fascination of the job of a diplomatic correspondent. But to me it is exciting because it deals with the lives of the men and women of every English village, with the possibilities of being one day able to write a happier chapter in their history, with the hopes of rebuilding something that, in my opinion, is part of the very essence of England.

My work takes me mostly into pleasant surroundings. I tour about England and see the thousand and one new things that are being done in her countryside; and also it brings me into close contact with those at the centre, in politics and elsewhere, who plan the things that will affect the humblest cottage in the smallest village.

NAWAB OF RAMPUR'S APPEAL

Stand by the British

(Associated Press of India)

Simla May 23
His Highness the Nawab of Rampur in the course of a statement says that Rashid Ali's treachery has come as a great shock to all devout Muslims. The independence of Iraq was gained with the help of the British not forgetting the contribution made by India and other people. The presence of the British in Iraq is based on mutual consent and treaties. England has no territorial ambitions and is fighting this war to save the world from the menace of slavery and abject bondage and not for aggrandisement or exploitation. No country which loves its freedom and cherishes its self-respect can choose Germany as its ally in these critical times. By admitting the Axis into the very heart of the Middle East, Rashid Ali has jeopardised the security of all the surrounding Muslim countries.

In conclusion he adds, "I raise my voice in protest against sacrilege and treachery whereof Rashid Ali has been guilty and call upon all those who live our sacred heritage to denounce, disclaim and condemn the usurper of Iraq."

DEWAN ON MEDICAL AID IN MYSORE

KOPPA DISPENSARY OPENED

(From our Correspondent)

Koppa (Maddur), May 26
Mr. Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore, declaring the new dispensary open, this morning, said that he was going to live in Mysore after his retirement and that he would continue to work with deep interest the progress which the State would make in the future.

He gave him great pleasure,
Dewan said, to participate in the foundation. He expressed gratitude to the members of Koppa Village Panchayat in particular, to Mr. Doddia Gowda for the very kind words they had said about him and their address of welcome.
He expressed a great satisfaction to him for having earned the good-will and appreciation of his fellow-citizens of which he would take great pleasure and address as renewed confidence. He also expressed a deep sense of obligation for the cordial welcome and their wishes.

Continuing, the Dewan said he was very glad that a new dispensary had been provided for Koppa. The
Mr. Doddia Biligowda, one of the great services to his people in the village by conserving the building which was the name of his father, Siddappa Gowda. The number of patients had been growing in the years in Mysore, and could hardly be a nobler service to a rich man to utilise his wealth than to lay out part of it for the advancement of benefi-cent public causes. And there is no more deserving cause than the extension of medical aid in rural areas in Mysore. Those who contributed to the extension of medical facilities were really contributing to the promotion of the health and, through that, to the evolution of a stronger and healthier race.

Since he assumed his duties the Dewan continued, a number of well-to-do people had come forward with generosity to take the responsibility of running hospitals and dispensaries in the State and had contributed many lakhs of rupees towards the same. Mr. Doddia Biligowda was among such liberal philanthropists who had contributed many lakhs of rupees
towards the same. Mr. Doddia Biligowda congratulated Mr.
Siddappa Biligowda warmly on his spirited benediction.

S. C. Malliah and Siddappa Biligowda had so kindly invited the Dewan, that he would reform the opening ceremony of the new dispensary. He accepted their invitation with pleasure because every

German ship, Columbus, and man Admiral Reader, Commander-in-Chief of German Navy.

Admiral Reader made this statement in an interview with the spondent.

Reader further declared: German Admiralty took "extremely grave view of American attitude."

United States, he said, had been doing everything possible to obliterate the difference between neutrality, aggression and provement of the lot of the rural population made an irresistible appeal to him. He was very glad indeed of the opportunity of paying a visit to an interior village like Koppa just prior to his retirement from an office which he had occupied for so long. He might claim, the Dewan added, that he had taken the deepest interest in the welfare of the rural population during all the years he had been the head of the Administration and done all that lay in his power to promote their welfare and advancement. In that task of advancing the progress and prosperity of Mysore he had received the unstinted co-operation, assistance and good-will of a large number of his fellow-citizens to whom he took that opportunity to express his sincere and heartfelt gratitude.

In conclusion, the Dewan said, he was going to live in Bangalore after his retirement

further progress which the State would make in the future.

Sir Vansittart's Coming to India

Is it on Political Mission?

Speculation in Simla
(From our Correspondent)

(By Wire) Simla, May 26

A London message that Sir Robert Vansittart is coming to India on special mission has special significance. It is well-known that Sir Vansittart who recently retired from British Foreign Office has a high reputation in British political circles.
His name was one of those mentioned a year ago in connection with India. Viceroy along with Lord Lathin and Lord Lloyd, but the objection raised appears to have been that it was better to choose a figure in public life than a permanent official however eminent. In any case it is presumed that Sir Vansittart may be coming to India to study the political situation independently and advise the Government.
As there has been an insistent demand in England, that the Secretary of State should visit India immediately it may have been decided to send Sir Vansittart instead owing to Mr. Amery's other preoccupations.
No official confirmation is, however, available regarding the proposed visit.

The Third Delhi Students' Conference ended in a fiasco to-the pandal and restored order.

The trouble arose over the President's ruling that only dele-assembled there, objected to this, challenging the validity of the election of delegates and wanted that the whole assembly of stu-

accept it holding it unconstitutional.
Thereupon some stu-

President's verdict rushed to the pandal and pandemonium prevailed for some time ending in lathi blows.

Ankara is buzzing with ru-several of his generals have begun counter revolution against Rashid Ali, but these reports, though widespread, are abso-

It is reliably understood that Rashid Ali has asked visa for passage to Turkey.

Finance Minister, Mr. Naji

COMMUNAL RIOTS AND SELF-DEFENCE

It is unfortunate that communal riots have broken out again in Bombay resulting in loss of life and property. The number of killed and injured is on the increase. In spite of the precautions taken by the authorities Goondashahi or the rule of the hooligans seems to have an upper hand at present. At Ahmedabad and Dacca the story is indeed doleful.

This has made people think hard as to the cause of these riots and devise ways and means to end them. We will not have done our duty if we merely propound some theories and discourse on them. These communal riots are a disgrace to our country. In the midst of civilised beings that a few hooligans should commit such terrible havoc and the country should silently suffer is indeed a position which does not speak well of our nation and organization.

Mahatma Gandhi has been repeatedly advising people to resist these communal riots, if need be, risking their own lives. His latest thoughts on these riots deserve to be pondered over by every sensible man and woman. He says, "that people should flee for their lives, for fear of the goonda, should be intolerable. They ought to possess the capacity of resisting goondashahi (reign of the goonda) violently or non-violently." Proceeding further, he says, "no one should be in a state of indecisiveness." "The fundamental thing to be borne in mind is that people should, under no circumstances, be cowardly or impotent."

In another place Mahatma Gandhi says, "Do not be deaf to what is going on in India where riots are taking place. It is unmanly to run away when attacked by goondas or hooligans in riots. There are only two ways of facing such situations. One is the traditional universal and time-worn way of meeting violence with violence. The other is the new one of facing such dangers by suffering and sacrificing and boldly standing against violence by non-violence. Even hearts when at bay offer resistance to their aggressors. Then why should we, human beings, run away from riotous scenes?"

Mahatma Gandhi is very clear. He is against cowardice. In the name of non-violence he does not want people to flee away in the face of goondas. According to him they should by no means, therefore, be non-violently resisting them. They are not asked to stab in return or strike in return, but stand firmly and face the

PUNJAB HARTAL

SATISFACTION OF PREMIER AT ABANDONMENT

(A.P.) Lahore, May 25.

Sir Sikanar Hyat Khan, Premier of the Punjab, on his way back to Simla broke journey at Lahore for a few hours. In an interview with the Associated Press he expressed pleasure that the traders abandoned hartal. This, he said, was as it should be in view of the fact that Government agreed to remove all legitimate grievances by amending the Agricultural Produce Markets Act and Rules. Sir Sikanar reiterated his enactment would prove beneficial to both honest dealers and Zamindars by purging the mandis of malpractices and bring the Zamindar and the dealer closer by creating mutual confidence and goodwill.

Referring to the Sales Tax Act, Sir Sikanar explained that it was a fiscal measure and it was meant to augment the meagre resources of the Province in order to enable them to meet the additional demand on Provincial Exchequer as a result of war without impairing the efficiency of administration or starving the nation-building departments.

MAHATMA GANDHI'S LEADERSHIP

Dr. Subbarayan's Faith

(A.P.) Madras, May 25.

Firm belief that Mahatma Gandhi would ultimately triumph and the people of India by strictly adhering to his doctrine of non-violence and following his leadership would achieve freedom for the country even in his own lifetime, was expressed by Dr. Subbarayan, former Congress Minister, addressing a largely attended public meeting at the Congress House this evening.

Mr. V. M. Obeidullah, President of the Tamil Nadu Congress Committee, presided.

Goondas in perfect calm and non-violence. Mahatma Gandhi urges all Congressmen to face the goondas in this manner. As to those who do not believe in non-violence he says they should adopt the traditional universal and time-worn way of meeting violence with violence. This does not mean that Congressmen should resort to violence or that others should not resort to non-violence. Mahatma Gandhi is intent upon seeing that rowdism is checked effectively. That can be checked only by courage, by non-violent courage preferably.

The country is thankful to Mahatma Gandhi for the advice he has given in the matter. It is really tragic that in Bombay which is one of the premier cities of India these riots have been occurring again and again.

A great responsibility rests on the authorities. Are not separatist doctrines preached by some leaders responsible for this cleavage? Great leaders of the country should lose no time in pondering over this tragic problem and devising an effective solution.

(Associated Press of India)

An attempt to set fire to a shop was foiled by the prompt arrival of the Police, but the miscreants escaped. Seven persons were arrested this afternoon in connection with a stabbing case.

It is reported a cyclist riding along a street jumped down from the bike and stabbed pedestrians six times and made off. The people in the locality chased him but he got into one of the many lanes and disappeared.

So far the Police have taken into custody over 500 persons in connection with the riots.

The Board also recommended schemes for the continuation of work on the manufacture of sodium cyanide, by Dr. J. C. Ghosh. The Board of Scientific and Industrial Research was created in April 1940 and it was not till the end of June 1940 that the scientific work of the board was started and the Director, Scientific and Industrial Research was given the use of laboratories of the Government Test House at Calcutta.

STORY OF A DRAMATIC ESCAPE

From Baghdad

A.P. Karachi, May 24
The story of a dramatic escape from Baghdad on the third day of the outbreak of trouble in Iraq by a prominent Syrian businessman connected with Rotary International was narrated by him to the Associated Press when he arrived in Karachi. He said there was absolutely no truth in the report that enemy or rebel planes had attacked Basrah or its neighbourhood. Not a single bomb had been dropped there, nor ever was any plane seen. He continued: "The Arabs are prominent in Palestine and even in Iraq. Majority of them are against the Rebels who have been paid by the Nazis to foment trouble."

Sir Mirza's Interest In Student Community

UNIVERSITY STUDENT'S LETTER TO SIR MIRZA ISMAIL

His Services to the State Enlarged

Bangalore, May 24.
Mr. Mir Mohiyuddin Hussain, President of the University Students' Central Committee, had sent a letter of appreciation to Sir Mirza M. Ismail on the eve of his retirement, on 16th instant for which Sir Mirza replied on 21st instant thanking Mr. Mohiyuddin and the students for the letter of appreciation.

The following is the letter from Mr. Mir Mohiyuddin to Sir Mirza:

"The startling news of your resignation is heard with the greatest sorrow by the University Students, for you happen to be an inspiration to them. The services you have rendered to the student community whom you call 'My young men' cannot be estimated in words.

"The present allround expansion of the University is greatly due to your strenuous work. The comforts you have bestowed upon us speak for themselves for generations to come. It is a matter of pride for us to have in a man rarely to be had who used to say to the students whenever he found an opportunity to be amongst them 'Every night 'boys' I have not slept without remembering you and what best I should do to push you up in your life.' These words always ring in our ears."

"We the members of the Mysore University Students Central Committee are very anxious to meet you at Bangalore to express our deep debt of gratitude to you for your strenuous task in making Mysore 'Model State'."

"I conclude this letter in the words of a student of our University:

"The rapid development of industries in the State has improved the 'National income and the standard of life of the Mysoreans.' The increase in industrial activity has given an impetus to the great production of raw materials. 'Mysore has been exceptionally fortunate in having as Dewans a succession of great and able administrators. But, never before, has there been such all round progress as during the term of Sir Mirza M. Ismail as Dewan. His administration has brought continuous prosperity and progress to the people, especially the rural population of Mysore. The enlightened and progressive policy of his administration have brought such prosperity to this people that they are truly grateful to him for his unstinted service."

The following is the reply from Sir Mirza to Mr. Mir Mohiyuddin.

"I thank you and your colleagues very warmly indeed for your very kind letter of the 16th.

"It is very good of you all to think of me and express such

OUR SIMLA LETTER

A Week of Interviews And Conferences

(From our Special Correspondent)

Simla, May 19

It has been a week of interviews and conferences. Visitors to the Viceregal Lodge included Premiers, Ministers and ex-Ministers. They were not merely for formal interviews, for it is an open secret that the Viceroy discussed at some length political questions and possible ways for ending the deadlock. A leading accounts have appeared in a certain section of the Press to the effect that the Viceroy communicated to them His Majesty's Government's final decision, viz. that in no case could they go beyond the August offer and that even in this case effect could only be given to it if the Congress and the Muslim League were prepared to co-operate. The fact is, as I have personally ascertained from more than one who interviewed the Viceroy, that His Excellency did not commit himself in any way on the subject of future policy. The impression which Mr. Fazlul Haq has carried with him is that the Viceroy received sympathetically his proposal for a Round Table Conference. At the moment the position is that Simla has been carefully studying the reactions in this country to Mr. Amery's last speech, the suggestions which have been made personally to the Viceroy and the political situation in general, and has been communicating them to the Secretary of State, who in his turn has to take his final instructions from the Cabinet. The situation has so changed since the date of Mr. Amery's speech, both the war situation in the Middle East and the political situation in India, that the policy has necessarily to be reviewed, according to one member of the Bombay conference who was here last week, the public may have to wait three or four weeks more for any further clarification of the position. The truth of the matter is that whatever the Viceroy may say or do, the order for a move on has to come from White Hall. And, unluckily for this country, there are so many diverse forces at work that White Hall is still trying to wait and see.

Sikandar's Lead

One of the most helpful signatories to the Scientific Committee and the Scientific Research Board. There seems to be a good deal of satisfaction the Punjab Premier, issued to the British public. Mr. Fazlul Hug, the Bengal Premier, has made no secret of what he told the Viceroy. Notwithstanding the recent declarations of Mr. Jinnah, he has made it clear that gladly he will co-operate in any peace attempt through a conference of leaders. Sir Sikandar has taken up much the same position; for, he is also in favour of a conference of Premiers and party leaders. In one respect, he has however gone further. His appeal to the parties is that negotiation both in favour of and against Pakistan should be suspended for the period of the war. And in words which are certainly in direct contrast to what his leader, Mr. Jinnah, has been saying, the Punjab Premier has reiterated that he accepts the principle of the Bombay conference resolution. It is clear that the two Premiers are not in sympathy with the negative policy pursued by Mr. Jinnah but are anxious that an earnest effort should be made to bring all parties together and arrive at least at an interim arrangement for the period of the war. There has so far been no statement by Mr. Jinnah on this proposal for a Round Table Conference, not even a reply to the trenchant rejoinders which Sir T. B. Sapru and his Committee have issued in reply to Mr. Jinnah's charges. There is clearly the danger of a rift in Muslim League politics if Mr. Jinnah does not adjust himself to the more liberal policy urged by the two Muslim Premiers. It is now being openly said by League members themselves that even if the Muslim League as such does not join in any peace move there will be several League members ready to lend their support. The important developments in the Muslim League have come in time to stress the fact that Mr. Jinnah cannot be taken by Mr. Amery as the sole spokesman of Muslim India or even of the Muslim League. It is felt that if the Premiers of Sind and Assam also support Mr. Fazlul Hug's demand for National Government and press the Viceroy to hold a Premiers' Conference, the British Government will have no excuse for ignoring it.

Industrial Research

A large number of scientists and industrialists were here last week for the meetings of the Industrial Research Utilisation Committee and the Scientific Research Board. There seems to be a good deal of satisfaction at the results of the first year's research work. Sanction has been given to a number of industrial firms to undertake new industries on the basis of the Board's research work. These include the manufacture of dry cells; laminated paper fibre boards, bhilwahan stowing enamel and allied products, resin impregnation of wood, substitutes for glass, etc. Criticism has generally proceeded on three lines. First, the sum allotted by the Government of India for industrial research is far too meagre. Nearly a crore is being spent on the scheme for expanding technical education. Compared to it the sum of about Rs. 7 lakhs a year which has been allowed for industrial research is indeed a pittance. The scope for industrial research is so large that if only sufficient funds are made available by the Government of India, research workers will come forward in large numbers to take up this important work. Secondly, there is the complaint that attention is more or less confined to what are called Defence industries. A larger outlook is necessary with a view to meeting both to present and postwar needs, for, however essential immediate Defence needs may be, there is no reason why other lines of research should not also be undertaken. Thirdly, we have the old complaint that these are after all minor industries. What is really needed for developing the economic strength of the country is a well considered plan for starting more heavy industries in this country. In Australia great progress has been made in locomotive construction, shipbuilding, and aircraft production. It is soon to have an automobile factory also. Why is it nothing is being done in this country on these lines though the facilities available in this country are even greater than those of Australia? This question is rightly being asked of the Government of India. The problem has to be considered not merely as a part of the war effort but as necessary preparation for postwar industrial reconstruction.

Newsprint Problem

Thanks to the efforts of the present Commerce Member, Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar, it is likely that the difficulties facing the newspaper press in this country as a result of the recent restrictions may to some extent be minimised. He has met a number of deputationists and discussed the problem at great length with individual press proprietors. Both as regards control of prices and grant of licenses for imports, it is now certain that the Government of India will accept the representations made to him, but the difficulty regarding shipping cannot be easily overcome owing to the war situation. It is due to the past policy of industrial neglect that India is still without a newsprint industry of its own. Formerly it used to be said that it was not an economic proposition for India to start a newsprint industry on a large scale as Europe was able to supply India with paper at a much cheaper rate. The foolishness of depending on a foreign country for so necessary a commodity as paper has now been amply demonstrated. The Government of Australia showed greater wisdom, for by means of a bounty system it has been able to establish a newsprint industry for itself. It is even now not too late for the Government of India to take up the question of newsprint production on a commercial scale, for if only facilities for importing machinery are provided, there are not industrialists wanting in this country to undertake production on a large scale. The researches carried out in Dehra Dun, Mysore and elsewhere have clearly shown that the resources available in this country are quite enough for the manufacture of newsprint paper of good quality.

Supply Orders

An idea of the great expansion which has taken place in the activities of the Supply Department is now available. In the year before the war the total value of the orders placed by the Stores Department and the Contracts Directorate, amounted to Rs. 9 1/2 crores. The value of the orders placed from the commencement of the war up to 15th January this year was Rs. 85 crores. In the Contracts Directorate, the number of contracts placed during this period has trebled itself. Steps are now being taken to extend the custom of paying 90 per cent of the price in advance on production of an inspection certificate and proof of despatch.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

(The Editor, Daily News
Sir,

It is widely rumoured that selection of two non-official Councillors, according to new Reforms, may be postponed to the next communal days. It seems the delay of announcing names of two Councillors though the sessions of Assembly and Council are approaching, is due to the abject fact. The leaders of the communities, it seems, are busy canvassing for the selection of Ministers from their ranks. Muslims of the Mysore State have resolved that one of the two non-official Ministers shall be a Muslim so also the Hampi. The major communities—Vokkaligas and Lingayets—are still hoping that their communities will be duly represented. The students of History know communalism has proved disastrous part in the political British India. The Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore are to be wise in the selection of the Ministers.

The Mysore State Congress is the only premier organisation which is above party politics, non-violence and discipline have won the guardianship of no other person than Mahatma Gandhi. It has a better majority before the two Houses of the State than any other organisation. It is advisable on the part of the Government to consult the State Congress before the final names of the Council are announced. Otherwise such things may take place in the future in the politics of Mysore.

ment of India, in a talk broadcast from the Simla principles were: abolition of interest-bearing system, discouragement of hoarding and capital, abolition national privilege or mum necessities of life for all, and establishment of system of trade by barter.

INDIA AND IRAQ

RAZA ALI'S WARNING

Moradabad, May 26.
Muslims are by ties of religion, culture, traditions and cases race and language, cannot be indifferent to the situation in Iraq and the titanic struggle wherein small and weak countries have been unwillingly themselves.
Raza Ali in a statement published in the Press on the situation in Iraq, said the position of India is as follows:

"But while development in Iraq caused grave concern to Indian Muslims the situation in India could not possibly be upon them unconcerned.
The growth of airarm has placed India's western front on the banks of the Euphrates and the Tigris. Rashid must be blind if he could not see this short-sighted action was not only beginning to Iraq but is also endangering the independence of other countries."

Summing up India's position Raza says: "It is obvious that the Nazis succeeded in their hold on Iraq it is impossible to prevent the situation from being shifted from Iraq to India. India's plain therefore, is to see that the dream remains unfulfilled."

DUKE OF AOSTA'S SURRENDER Middle East Reactions

(By Cable) Cairo, May, 21
The surrender of the Duke of Aosta is being received with joy throughout the Middle East.
Muslim opinion notes that troops from India which include many Muslims and Sudan have played a great part in the restoration of the independence of Abyssinia.
Muslims recall that though Abyssinia is a Christian Kingdom long ago in the early days of Islam it was the Christian Negus of Abyssinia who gave protection to the first followers of the Prophet whom he sent out of Arabia as a result of the persecution of the idolaters who then held Mecca. The Prophet wrote a personal letter of thanks to the Negus of Abyssinia, and Muslims recognise the debt of gratitude which Islam owes to Abyssinia for the protection which the Negus gave to the pioneers of Islam. It is remarkable that, while British and Indian arms are restoring independence to Abyssinia, at the very moment when the brutal Italian domination is being re-imposed upon Libya, when the reborn hopes of independence of Muslim Albania are dying and the Axis yoke is being rivetted upon the Muslim peoples of Montenegro and Croatia, Rashid Ali El Gailani, has thought fit to open the doors of an independent Muslim country to the Germans and Italians.

FIERCE BATTLE IN WEST OF CANEA

Attacks and Counter- Attacks in Crete

MORE GERMAN TROOPS LAND IN CRETE

German Light Tanks Brought by Air

More German troops landed in Crete by air, states the Middle East communique. There is no change in the situation at Her-aclion and Retimo.

Under cover of intensive air bombing, Germans, after the arrival of airborne reinforcements, delivered a strong attack in Melemi area, west of Canea, and at a cost of heavy casualties penetrated into our position.
New Zealanders counter-attacked and severe fighting continues.

Military Spokesman's Statement

Summing up the situation in Crete, the Military spokesman in Cairo said that the situation is much the same except that Germans have landed more troops by air in Melimi during the last 24 hours. It is difficult to say how the position differed from that of two days in view of the new landing of troops.
Enemy had undoubtedly heavy losses in men and aircraft. Although it is possible Germans might have landed light tanks by air, they were not visible in fighting in the Island.

"DEMOCRACY HAS HARMED FRANCE"

Laval Broadcast

M. Pierre Laval, leading pro-German in France, broadcast a talk to the United States on Sunday last from the German-controlled Paris radio. He said it was democracy that had harmed France so much. The first essential for France now was collaboration with Germany.
He said Hitler was trying to establish new order in Europe peacefully. If America tried to clip wings of France by annexing part of the Empire, he said, it would be woeful.

MOSUL AERODROME DAMAGED

In North Africa vigorous pattrolling and artillery activity are continuing round about Sollum.
There is nothing of importance to report in Tobruk where life has returned to normal.

In Iraq, the Royal Air Force bombers bombed Mosul aerodrome, and aircraft on ground were bombed and machinegunned and severely damaged. At Faluja and Basra all is quite.

AN APPEAL TO CONGRESS

COME TO SETTLEMENT WITH MUSLIM LEAGUE

Karachi, May 26
An appeal to the Congress to come to a settlement with the Muslim League in view of the gravity of international situation and for a declaration by the British Government at the same time that a constitution jointly adopted by the Congress and the Muslim League would be accepted by the British Government was made by Mr. Shikabul Majid, Ex-Minister of Sind, supporting a resolution on Pakistan at the Sukkur District Muslim League Conference. Mr. Majid felt that such a declaration would at once solve the Indian problem and an independent India with its unlimited resources in men and materials would certainly be in a position to bring peace to the disturbed world. He opined that the gravity of the international situation with the ever-increasing danger to peace and security of India imperatively demanded
Indo-British and Congress-League settlements.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER IN ENGLAND

Message From Ordinary People of New York

(By Cable) London
A Daily Express reporter wrote on May 20:

Mr. George Backer, publisher of the New York Post, the only
New York newspaper to back
Mr. Roosevelt for the third term gave me in London last night a message from the ordinary people of his city before he started out on a month's tour of this country, to find out "what is going on."

"Many things come into this war for United States citizens," he said.

"But take it from me the engineer and the shopkeeper, the business man and the taxi driver, are really saying.

"If only we had a treaty."

"They mean by that that they would welcome being dragged in instead of having to argue themselves in as they would now."

"There are no more people in proportion in the United States who wish to see Germany win this war than there are in England."

"You are accustomed to hearing that American help would give British courage to carry on the fight. I say that England's courage will give America time.
That is what my trip so far has taught me."

CONSCRIPTION IN ULSTER

MR. DE VALERA'S OBJECTIONS

Mr. De Valera spoke to crowded Dail on the question of conscription in Ulster. There can be no more grievous attack on any fundamental right than to force an individual to fight by force for a country to which he objects to belong, he said. He recalled that when the British Government proposed conscription for Northern Ireland he made representations to London against it.

Mr. De Valera said: "We have refrained from doing anything that might be regarded as hostile to Britain. Should the British Government go ahead with this conscription proposal it might bring the people of the two Islands back into the old unhappy relations."

Mr. De Valera continued that six northern counties are a part of Ireland and the inhabitants are Irishmen and nothing could alter that fact. No matter what political or economic changes may take place in the world, people living in these two Islands are destined to live as neighbours, he said.

THE NEW EUROPE

President Benes of Czechoslovakia is thinking of future of Europe after the present war is over. He is sure of the ultimate victory of Britain. In order to prepare the people's mind for the solution of the post-war problems, Dr. Benes is giving out some of his ideas as to how future of Europe is* to be constructed from the ashes of the present war. The one prominent idea that occurs to his mind is that neither France nor Britain can isolate themselves from Central Europe and deliver it up either to the German domination or to the tender mercies of the rivalries of the other great powers. Twenty years of post-war European politics was only a continuation of the political and spiritual revolution brought about by the war of 1914 and to Dr. Benes the war of 1939 is only a further stage of this great revolutionary European and world transformation. This war is going to transform the whole of modern Europe politically, economically and socially. The times through which we are passing are indeed very stormy. This war has brought about the destruction of the conception of truth, of science, of free teaching, of objectivity and tolerance. All the moral values of modern man, says the learned Doctor, have finally been swept away in Nazism.

It is comforting to note that President Benes is not thinking of a retaliatory peace and attempt to bring about the destruction of Germany. He is for the military defeat of Germany and re-establishing the freedom of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland Norway and other occupied countries. He is for creation of a new, democratic, free Germany. The freedom of Europe is indivisible and after this war it will really be necessary, concludes Dr. Benes, to create a New European system of security which would not allow any new Hitler or Mussolini to rise at all. His suggestions are as follows:

- (1) The liberation of the small occupied European countries,
- (2) New Federal Units in different parts of Europe
- (3) The creation of a new system of security that will correspond better with the Post War situation than did League of Nations in the last few years and to render possible at least a relative limitation of armaments
- (4) A new system of economic collaboration which would render impossible the economic conflict between the Democracies and would avoid the creation of the totalitarian States.

Dr. Benes is first and foremost an European. His thoughts

LABOUR LEADERS ADDRESS

STRENGTHEN LABOUR UNION

Bangalore, May 27

Under the auspices of the Bangalore Textile Labour Union a meeting of labourers was held last evening at the Municipal Gardens, under the presidency of Mr. T. Siddalingaiya, Ex-President of the Mysore Congress.

There was a large gathering of leaders and labourers present, including Mr. K. T. Bhasyam, Mr. N. C. Thimma Reddy and Mr. H. K. Veeranna Gowda.

The president, Mr. Siddalingaiya, introduced the speakers to the audience.

Miss Shanta Bhale Rao, Assistant Secretary, All India Trade Union, addressing the gathering appealed to them to enrol themselves as members of the Textile Labour Union and thereby try to get rid of their grievances.

Mr. Sharma, President, Trade Union, Madras, speaking at the close of the meeting appealed to Government of Mysore to establish industrial peace in the State.

With a vote of thanks, the meeting concluded.

Miss Shanta Bhale Rao left this morning for Bombay.

are centered only in Europe. It is strange that he has not extended his vision beyond Europe to the East. How can there be peace in Europe as long as the European countries hold sway and sovereignty over large regions of the world in the Eastern Continent? How is it that Dr. Benes ignores that the question of colonies was one of the several points of difference between Germany and England that was responsible for this war? Why should there be such a scramble in Iraq and Egypt? What is the meaning of the North African Campaign? To us it seems, if European nations want to be at peace with one another they should divest themselves of all colonies and dependencies. European nations should allow each Eastern Country to develop itself and carve out its own destiny. In essence it means they should relinquish their hold on Egypt, Iraq, India, Burma and other countries. If one dispassionately studies the history of Europe more than one war in Europe has been caused by the avarice and greed of European nations to possess colonies in the East. We are as certain as anything that the moment England relinquishes her hold on India that very moment ninety per cent. of the intensity of the European war would diminish. And so when we think of the reconstruction of Europe it is also necessary to think of the reconstruction of the world. Dr. Benes should know that as he thinks the freedom of Europe is indivisible, we also think the freedom of the world is indivisible. In the new world order the domination of one nation on the other ought to cease. Unless this is achieved it is idle to think of reconstruction of a peaceful Europe. These are our thoughts in connection with the ideas of Dr. Benes.

BOMBAY RIOTS

BAD CHARACTERS ROUNDED UP

A. P.

Bombay, May 26

Half an hour later at another place one man was stabbed and nine persons were arrested. This morning at 6-30 another case of stabbing occurred and the victim's condition is serious.

For the second day in succession there was not a large scale rioting between the Hindu and Muslim communities in the city. But continued communal tension found vent in acts of stabbing or assault and looting. Four cases of stabbing were reported today from the northern parts where mills are situated which hitherto were unaffected. There were today eight cases of stabbing, seven assaults, and five shops were looted. Two persons injured previously died today bringing the total casualties to 22 dead and 159 injured. THE "SATURDAY EVENING POST" Isolationism Given Up

The 'Times' New York Correspondent cabled on May 18:

The 'Saturday Evening Post', which has a circulation of several million copies a week, has abandoned its position of isolationism. In an interview at Seattle on May 16 Walter D. Fuller, President of National Association of Manufacturers and the Curtis Publishing Company which publishes the magazine, said:

"I have been consistently Isolationist. So has the 'Saturday Evening Post'—although that policy will change next week. But we are in the war now. We are like a man who has jumped off the spring board but hasn't yet touched the water. He isn't wet but hasn't a chance of getting back on the spring board again."

KEEPING AXIS INFLUENCE OUT OF AMERICA

Latin States an Important Factor (By Cable)

The Daily Telegraph London correspondent cabled on May 18

Even Isolationism agrees Axis influence should be kept out of the Western Hemisphere. Two leading Isolationists, Senators Clark, of Missouri, and McNair, of North Carolina, joined the Administration in supporting it in urging that American occupation of Guiana, Guadeloupe and French

The attitude of Latin America is an important factor in the situation. One of the great gaps to effective pan-American co-operation is the fear of the United States' neighbours that Washington would either be unable or unwilling to use its armed forces to carry out its pledge to rid the New World against Axis.

Hesitation in the face of Axis threat to vital strategic points across the Atlantic have an unfortunate repercussion and encourage groups in Latin America friendly to the Axis. It is a fact of which the Administration are fully aware and will be taken into calculation in dealing with the problem.

A call for immediate occupation of the French Atlantic port of Dakar by American forces is made by George Fielding Eliot in the article in the New York Times Tribune. "If we are going to win this war," he writes, "we must take Martinique, Guadeloupe, French Guiana," he writes, "ought to move on Dakar at once."

BRITISH WITHDRAWAL FROM GREECE

"THREE UNCHALLENGEABLE CONCLUSIONS"

WHERE GERMAN ARMY'S WEAKNESS LIES

HOW EMBARKATION WAS ACHIEVED

Events are showing that Germany has certain important failings for a world conqueror. The most obvious of those is her character as a bad finisher, and this tends to support the generalisation that she can win battles but no wars.

The withdrawal of the British forces from Greece is a case in point. This operation has not been completed as I write, but it is known that 80 per cent of the Commonwealth troops landed in Greece have been safely withdrawn. This may be taken as a crucial test.

The Germans have been trying for over a fortnight to crush the British forces. The force they concentrated against Yugoslavia, Greece and the British contingent has been at 25 divisions in Bulgaria alone. The total must have been much larger and has been estimated at about 50 divisions including, perhaps, 12 armoured divisions. This force was supported by a great concentration of planes, and as first the Yugoslav army and then the Greek army went out of the picture, the German force was able to concentrate more and more densely against the small British contingent and the remainder of the Greek army. Reliable correspondents have indeed said that the German difficulty towards the end was in bringing their full force to bear against the Allied line. It was a great feat for the effort fronted by the dwindling Allied army.

Conditions During Withdrawal

Thus the conditions under which the withdrawal was carried out were a dwindling force, a constantly deteriorating situation and constantly increasing pressure. Correspondents have spoken in particular of the growing number of the Luftwaffe and the diminishing number of R. A. F. planes. This is not entirely accurate. The number of German aeroplanes did not increase, but the number concentrated against the small Allied force grew steadily. The R. A. F., on the other hand, could not operate towards the end because the aerodromes were in German hands.

It is clear that the Germans planned above all things to crush the British forces. They have not on this occasion been so lavish with their boasts as they were at the outbreak, because then in spite of every effort they could not prevent a large proportion of troops from escaping. On this occasion they must have fought harder to destroy the force which had inflicted such heavy loss upon them than they failed.

HITLER'S MESSAGES TO GENERAL FRANCO

PROPOSALS FOR "COLLABORATION AGREEMENT"

Portuguese Attitude to Nazi Aspirations

(By Cable) London
Walter Farr, the Daily Mail's Washington correspondent cabled on May 4:

The flow of German troops in civilian dress into Spain and Portugal has increased rapidly during the last 48 hours, according to information received here from Madrid and Lisbon tonight. Meanwhile thousands of picked German troops are making their way openly to key points on the Iberian peninsula.

I am informed that a series of messages from Hitler have been transmitted to General Franco forming the basis of a "proposed agreement" between Germany and Spain for future "close collaboration."

Immediately following on the signature of an agreement with the Axis by Prince Paul and his Government in Yugoslavia last month, Hitler began urging Spain to follow suit.

He wished to ensure the passage of German war material through Spain to Gibraltar in sealed trains or some other inconspicuous way.

The Balkan war delayed the process in Spain for a few days but now Hitler's men in Madrid are hard at work again.

The German Gestapo's offices in Madrid and Lisbon are working openly, I am informed, to round up all the most active anti-Axis sections of the population. These arrests are being made by Spanish secret Police but at the instigation of the Nazis.

No so much speech please

Germans are packing into Madrid swimming pools and restaurants. The airport, say reports, is crowded with German planes more than ever, many of them arriving laden with straight-backed lean men who say they are financial representatives or re-visiting old Spanish friends.

A substantial section of audiences at many bull fights these days too consists of Germans some of them belonging to the German mechanised divisions stationed on the Franco-Spanish frontier.

They arrive in companies as "guests of the Spanish army" and have a good look round while they are there.

There is much "fraternisation" and playing of the German and Spanish National Anthems.

The German "social service" units which entered Spain some months ago to help to relieve poverty and sickness in certain parts of the country (frequently near the Atlantic coast) have been doubled.

They obtain a grip on the Spanish people by the liberal distribution of food and healing drugs commandeered in France.

It is impossible, say these reports, to give the precise number of Germans in Spain, but some estimates put it between 150,000 and 200,000.

More German newspapers and magazines are being dumped in towns and some of the hotels are filling up with German officers.

GERMAN TROOPS ON SOVIET BORDER

USUAL HITLER PRELUDE TO "TALKS"?

Plan to cut Turkey's Communications (By Cable) London

The Daily Express Ankara correspondent cabled on May 16 German pressure on Russia is indicated by the news reaching Ankara that the German forces in Rumania are being concentrated along the frontier of the Soviet Ukraine.

The belief that Russo-German negotiations may be expected soon is based partly on the fact that the massing of troops is a usual Hitler prelude to "talks".

He made a similar display of force before Molotov visited Berlin early this year.

Hitler, it is believed, will choose between two alternatives if his movement of troops impresses the Kremlin. He will demand either: (1) economic concessions from Russia or (2) full Soviet military co-operation in the Middle East in return for a promise to recognise the Persian Gulf as a Soviet sphere of influence.

The Germans also hope for economic concessions from Turkey.

They know that if they succeed in establishing themselves in Syria and Iraq, Turkey's communications would be cut off with all countries except the Soviet Union and German occupied Europe. That would make Turkey dependent on Germany for the foreign trade and supplies of armament.

Von Papen has accordingly some justification for hoping to arrange for a large expansion of German-Turkish trade in the near future.

Hitler did not touch on any concrete problem in his letter to President Inenun.

It is stated that the letter says that Germany is interested in the maintenance of Turkish independence and does not want Turkey to undertake anything contrary to its obligation to other Powers.

Presumably adroit Von Papen is explaining how these professions can be reconciled with the military encirclement of Turkey which the Reich is now pursuing.

TURKISH ATTITUDE TOWARDS SYRIAN ISSUE

(By Cable) LONDON The "Daily Telegraph" wrote on May 21:

"Turkey would be forced to intervene in Syria if the Germans occupied that territory by military force", it was stated, Sabah.

This is the first open talk of intervention in the Middle East campaign which has been heard in Turkey. There is so far no official reaction to this suggestion, but it is clear that the idea could not have been projected without some authoritative sanction.

The view in Madrid as summed up by reports reaching Washington is that Hitler is a few days.

The Ankara Radio, discussing German aspirations in Portugal, declared on May 4 that the Portuguese Government had sent 50,000 troops to guard the Spanish frontier.

"REHEARSAL INVASION OF BRITAIN"

(By Cable) London
The Daily Mail Aeronautical correspondent wrote on May 21: In his air-borne invasion of Crete Hitler is giving us a realistic display of what we may expect if he attempts to invade Britain.

He is making use of all 'props' we would come to know so well—gliders, troop-carrying planes, dive-bombers, fighters and troops wearing the same uniforms as the defenders.

It only needs gas and tanks dropped by parachute to make it a full dress rehearsal invasion of Britain.

HESS AND EGYPTIANS

(By Cable) Cairo, May 20.
Mustafa Amin, former Chief Editor of Al Rihassa, writing in Al Itnein of which he is now Chief Editor, recalls his experiences in Berlin in 1936 when he was on his way to America where his father was Egyptian Minister. He says: "Nashaat Pasha, Minister in Berlin, told me that Hess was the most influential person in the Reich and my friend in the Egyptian Legation had told me that Egyptian officials believed that Hess would be useful to them because he was born in Alexandria and his family was still living there and he knew Arabic well. But their hopes were disappointed. It seemed to them that he was displaying ill-will towards the whole of the Egyptian nation for fear that he would be suspected of weakness for his birth place. I was told moreover that when Nashaat asked for the return of the bust of Queen Nefertiti it was Hess who was most determined in his opposition to it."

DEVELOPMENTS IN SPAIN

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph Western Mediterranean correspondent cabled on May 18:
Two well-known Spanish Falangist officials, Tovar, Under Secretary for Press and Propaganda and Rodriguez, Director-General of Press and Propaganda have been relieved of their posts.
There are no evident signs for the present of an increase in German activity or troop concentration on the Pyrenees Front.
It is considered in well-informed foreign circles in Spain and the neighbouring countries, that from three to four weeks would action could take place, should Reich decide to attempt to come through Spain.

Bombay, May 28
Despite strict enforcement of curfew, communal disturbances continued during Tuesday night. A funeral procession became festive when a beer bottle fell amidst. A posse of police rushed to the spot and escorted the processionists. Cases of stone-throwing are reported from different places in the riot-affected area. One case of stabbing occurred late in the night and another early in the morning.

STONES THROWN AT FUNERAL
PROCESSION

Bombay, May 27
Two persons were killed and eleven others were stabbed to death in the communal riots. The situation appeared quiet until noon but towards dusk there was renewed rioting in many localities. Between 6-30 and 7 P.M. over half a dozen stabbing cases occurred and one victim died. One more victim of the previous day's assault died in the hospital today thus bringing the total number of deaths to 26 and those injured to 168.

An empty building was set on fire this evening and fire was brought under control. Stones were thrown at a funeral procession and the police party who were escorting the procession took into custody five people. Order was quickly restored. Two more shops were broken open today. Troops and armed police are patrolling the disturbed areas and additional police force from the districts have been drafted.

A Committee of twelve prominent citizens of both communities has been set up at a joint meeting of the Committee of Indian Merchants' Chamber and representatives of 37 commercial organisations in the city which met in a conference this evening to consider measures to deal with communal disturbances.

President Roosevelt announced he had proclaimed a state of "unlimited national emergency" when he made his eagerly awaited "fireside talk" over the radio to America and the world.

Mr. Roosevelt continued: "It is appropriate I do this. Now as never before unity among the American Republics is of supreme importance to each and everyone of us and to the cause of freedom throughout the world. Our future independence is bound up with the future independence of all our sister Republics. The pressing problems that confront us are military problems. It is unmistakably apparent to all of us that unless the advance of Hitlerism is forcibly checked now, the Western Hemisphere will be in the rince of the Nazi weapon of destruction."

President Roosevelt declared: "We shall actively resist Hitler's every attempt to gain the control of the seas. Our patrols are

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION
IN MYSORE

The name and fame of Modern Mysore is mostly due to the progressive policy of industrial expansion that is being pursued by the Government of His Highness the Maharaja during the last thirty years. It was Sir M. Visvesvaraya who inaugurated the era of expansion of wealth of the country by industrialisation. During the brief period of his Dewanship of six years there was so much of awakening and uplift in the country that Mysore virtually became the model for all Indian States. British Indian Princes, and even far behind Mysore in this matter. His successors, Sir M. Kantaraj Urs and Sir A. R. Bannu continued the same policy. Due to the financial difficulties caused by the postwar conditions much progress could not be achieved in this time. But after Sir Mirza assumed charge of the Dewanship a great impetus was given to industries in Mysore. The Irwin canal opened up a new vista of progress. The Bhairavalli Iron Works was expanded and today we find it yielding very good results. Sir Mirza encouraged all kinds of industries—big, medium and small. He encouraged khadi and cottage industries and recently a committee was appointed consisting of some well-meaning non-officials to promote the object.

We are indeed very sorry that it was not given to us to have automobile industry in Mysore. Though for the time being, we have not succeeded, we hope the time is not far off for us to renew our efforts in that direction and have automobile industry here.

In these circumstances we are very glad to learn that Rajamantrapravina Mr. N. Madhava Rau, our new Dewan, has also resolved to continue the policy of industrial expansion in Mysore. In a speech which he recently made at Chitaldrug he paid eloquent tributes to Sir Mirza Ismail, the retiring Dewan, and said during his regime Mysore had achieved an outstanding success in industrial expansion and Mr. Madhava Rau hoped that every citizen would do his best and co-operate with Government in continuing the policy of industrial expansion. We congratulate Mr. Madhava Rau on his assurance in this direction.

In the matter of big industries, we know how essential the co-operation of Government of India is. If the Sugar Factory has been a success it is partly due to the protection to Indian Sugar granted by Government of India. If Tata Steel Company has been a success today it is due to the protection that Indian Steel has been enjoying for a number of years. In the matter of automobile industry if Government of India had been sufficiently sympathetic it could have been started in no time. It is pitiable that they took a step-motherly attitude and were not willing to assist this development. If we had a National Government we would not have had this trouble at all. The Government of India were very unsympathetic and put all sorts of obstacles. If Congress Government had not resigned in Bombay the automobile factory would have been started in Bombay itself. They had provisionally agreed to guarantee 3 or 3 1/2 per cent on the share capital of the venture for a period of 10 years. Unfortunately the Congress Government went out of office and the succeeding Government had no sympathy for the scheme. The concessions that the promoters of the company asked for, were very simple, one of them was an undertaking not to reduce the present revenue duty on motor vehicles for ten years. It may be mentioned that present revenue duty on motor vehicles is 37 1/2 per cent against foreign imports and 30 per cent against British products. Sir M. Visvesvaraya in his note says "the duty in Germany and Italy 5 years ago was 100 and 80 per cent respectively." The second concession asked for, was the sanction to import special parts, free of duty, in accordance with the practice under similar circumstances in Canada. Both these were refused. The promoters of the Company wanted to start this factory as an aid to war effort. "A factory started at present will have unusual chances of success. The belligerent nations and other manufacturers will be busy for the next 3 or 4 years replenishing supplies depleted by the war. In that interval the prices in India will be high, and foreign competition negligible." It is unfortunate that having all these advantages we were not able to start this factory due to the unhelpful and unsympathetic attitude of the Government of India.

Apart from the sorrowful aspect of this venture, there are a number of other industries, big and small, which require to be fostered in Mysore. It is gratifying to find that large scale industries are happily making satisfactory progress, but as Sir M. Visvesvaraya urged a few days ago, there is need for the introduction of a sound organisation and business system, such as the one seen in Japan or Germany to spread a knowledge of minor and cottage industries, the use of machinery and machine tools of the modern type, and popularise modern business habits and practices among our rural and labouring population.

For this, the very basis of our education, elementary, middle, high school and university, should be changed. Old world ideas should be abandoned and modern ideas of scientific progress should be instilled in the minds of the pupils. The education should be made more objective and practical. Every boy and every girl should be made to realise that he or she is living in a world which is moving like an aeroplane at a terrific speed. The bullock cart mentality should be done away with. A healthy modern outlook should take the place of pessimism and fatalism. If we do not organise our country in accordance with the modern scientific ideas we are bound to be swept over by a better organised people.

There is a good deal that we have to achieve. An industrial outlook will itself elevate the people. A centre of modern industry is no less a centre of education and enlightenment. That is why Sir M. Visvesvaraya has always been dining into the ears of our people his progressive ideas of achieving the progress of the country by industrialisation. Industry and education go hand in hand. In a highly industrialised country the level of education is correspondingly high. When we think of industry we do not merely think of wealth in terms of rupees, annas and pies but we also think of intellectual development. We hope that the policy and programme of His Highness's Government in the years to come will be in tune with and a continuation of the grand policy of industrial expansion inaugurated by Sir M. Visvesvaraya and so ably promoted by Sir Mirza M. Ismail. We hope the Popular Ministers, whoever they may be, will do all in their power to carry on this progressive policy.

MANDYA DISTRICT SCOUTS CONFERENCEUNDER THE PRESIDENCY OF CHIEF SCOUT COMMISSIONERPLEASANT FUNCTION AT MANDYA

(From our Correspondent)

Mandya, May 27

The Mandya District Scout's Conference took place at Mandya on last Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday at 10-30 A. M. the Scoutmasters from all over the District on arrival at Mandya were received by the District Scout Commissioner, Dr. B. Setu Rao. The District Scout Commissioner declaring the Conference open wished the campers a happy time and with a heavy programme before them, he said that the campers would be in a better position to advance scouting and that this conference would be a model for others to follow.

At 3 P.M., under the presidency of Dr. B. Setu Rao, various subjects and difficulties of scouts were discussed and a number of resolutions were passed.

At 5 P.M., two model troop meetings were held by the Mandya High School troops under the guidance of scout, Mr. R. Krishna Moorthy and Mandya Middle School troop with scout Mr. S. V. Seetharamiah. They exhibited what a troop meeting ought to be like.

At 8-30 P.M., under the distinguished presidency of Mr. M. A. Razaak B.A., B.L., (Sub Division Officer, Mandya and President, Local Scout Association, Mandya) business meeting was held.

After due ceremonies, Mr. C. Narasinga Rao B.A., B.L., Head Master, Municipal High School, Mandya, delivered an interesting lecture on the "Aims and objects of Scout's Conference" with the help of statistics. Next Mr. M. S. Rama Swamy B.A., Asst. to the Dist. Educational Officer, spoke on "Scouting in schools and how best to improve it," saying that the principles of scouting were the same as those of Education.

Next, Mr. R. Krishna Moorthy n.s.c., Secretary, Local Scout Association, Mandya, spoke on "the difficulties" explaining the practical difficulties and how best to meet them.

After some discussions the president requested the Secretary, District Scout Council, kindly to note the suggestions and try to do the best to set them right and advised the scouts to do their best with "Service" as their motto.

On Sunday the 25th May 1941, after the arrival of the Head Masters of all schools a business meeting was held at 8-30 a.m. with Mr. M. A. Wahab, M.A., Bar-at-Law, as the president. (D. E. O., Mandya)

After introduction Mr. Setu Rao gave an interesting lecture on "Scouting in the present". He explained the best scouts can be even in war times like the present one. The scouts educate the villagers and the public in all their activities in moments like these. The misgivings and fears in the minds of the lay-public. More than all, he said that scouts had an opportunity to move "cowardice" and "moral lapsed" and bring about harmonious living of all communities—for, the aims of scouts are such: laying stress on the principles of scouting, present in our "Present Europe" in the war, this world war, consequent loss to men and property would not have occurred, and that the time is quite mature for scouts to pick up from their slumber and do their best for the removal of difficulties.

After some more discussion the President addressed the gathering and explained the best scouting could be done with a free will unimpaired by the domestic and other necessities and with his personal experiences in the scout movement in India and abroad some valuable advice to the campers.

At 10-45 A.M., the final session of the business meeting was held with Mr. H. R. A. Gaffor, B.A., Organising Secretary, Boy Scouts of Mysore, as the chair. Real problems and difficulties regarding scouting were discussed and a number of resolutions were framed.

After a sumptuous lunch arranged in honour of the campers by the Dist. Scout Council, the final session of the Conference began at 3-30 P.M. The elite of Mandya were present on the occasion.

The president-elect for the function, the Chief Scout Commissioner, on arrival at the premises was given a gala honour by the local Scout Association. The campers were introduced to the Chief by the Secretary, then adjourned to the Association. After prayer, letters from the scouts were read and certificates and medals were presented by the Chief to the scouts. A report was read by the Secretary after which the Chief rose amidst cheering to speak. In his interesting speech he paid a compliment to the infant District Scout Association which was growing rapidly and was a model to other districts and congratulated them on their work done. HENRI DUNANT

FOUNDER OF THE RED CROSS

What a grand sight it was, less than 100 years ago, to see an army going to battle, the bright uniforms of the Hussars, the drums and of all the Line regiments. The horses pranced, the moving according to the text books, just as on the battle of Solferino in 1859, when the French and the Austrians defeated the Austrians, with no exception. The drums beat, the bugles blared; and the men in his black frock coat, without meaning to, found himself a spectator, clapped his hands with pleasure and excitement. "Magnificent!" he exclaimed. "No wonder all the time speak of the glory of the battle."

But that Henri Dunant, the man in the black frock coat, had to see the battle. He was not a banker, looking after profits. He had followed the Emperor, Napoleon III, all the way from Paris, because he wanted to get a concession from some mills he owned in Geneva. Dunant failed to see the Emperor in Paris, so thought of braving the dangers of the sea to secure an interview with Napoleon and turn his one million francs into two million.

The battle began, the most murderous battle of the 19th century. The soldiers were sent to see this black-coated man dashing this way and that, amid the whizz of bullets and the clash of steel, in a vain attempt to get in touch with the Emperor. The coach Dunant came in was commandeered. Being daunted, he took a cart, was only stopped a few yards from the enemy's lines.

New Army

Dunant made his way back across a new army, not a glorious army in bright uniforms that had thrilled him in early morning, but the army of the wounded. Men were heaped one on top of another with no one to care for them—no lint to cover their wounds, and no one even to give them water. The hospitals on both sides had been bombarded; they had no distinctive markings. Doctors, too, when seen as prisoners, were kept as prisoners and not allowed to help the wounded.

Dunant was horrified to think of men, capable of relieving some of the suffering, were merely being kept prisoners in a prison.

He made off again once more determined to see the Emperor. He succeeded in reaching the Emperor's headquarters.

"What do you want," asked the Emperor, "you, a civilian, on the battlefield?"

"I entreat that captured enemy doctors be immediately set free so that they may attend to the wounded, regardless of nationality."

Dunant had forgotten all about his 1,000,000 francs for the Emperor's army.

A few minutes later the Emperor issued an order releasing all enemy doctors, so that they might care for the wounded.

Dunant had already gone back to Geneva when he could relieve the suffering.

BRITISH POLICY IN SYRIA

TURKS WANT DECISIVE MILITARY ACTION

(By Cable) LONDON Cedric Salter cabled to the 'Daily Mail' from Istanbul on May 19:

Sharp criticism is developing here on the British military policy towards the German occupation of bases in Syria. Turkish military and diplomatic circles say that speedy and decisive military action by British is of cardinal importance.

It is contended here that the Common wealth forces at present in Palestine are powerful enough to occupy Syria.

Prompt offensive action would not only most favourably impress the neighbouring Arab states, it is added, but would encourage France's troops in Syria to help us eject the Germans.

Air activity alone is not sufficient, it is urged here. A vigorous land attack could be carried out now before Axis forces have arrived in sufficient numbers to present serious difficulties.

The Turks consider that the shortage of oil and petrol in Syria will force the Germans to advance on Mosul after from occupying aerodromes with a minimum delay.

If no effective steps beyond periodic bombing are going to be taken to prevent Germany from reaching Mosul, say the Turks, an immense advantage will have been needlessly surrendered.

The sufferers. As he climbed up the steps of a church, which had been turned into a temporary hospital, two French soldiers were pushing a wounded Austrian out of the church, down the steps.

"Stop," cried Dunant, "we are all brothers!"

Amazed at first, soon even the roughest soldiers were attending to the enemy wounded as if they were their own.

Almost immediately after the battle, the supply of lint gave out. Dunant wrote to his home town of Geneva for more. He wrote, too, because the wounded craved for it and the tobacco smoke at least lessened the stench.

For days on end Dunant worked with a handful of doctors, and a few other helpers, two English tourists among them.

"If only arrangements were made beforehand, so much of this suffering could be avoided. Men have died," he kept on repeating, "because there was no one to care for them."

At last Dunant went back to Geneva to carry on his business. He wished to return to his normal life of a banker, making money. But he could not forget the cries of the wounded, and the gaping gashes from which blood poured. He decided to write down his experiences.

Towards the end of 1862 his book, "Recollections of Solferino," an account of the awful conditions of the wounded was published. It immediately made an immense stir.

"Something must in future be done for the wounded, but what?" the civilized world asked.

Dunant produced the then revolutionary idea that hospitals and everything to do with the wounded should be neutralized. There should be a common sign which all nations should bind themselves to respect.

In 1864 less than two years later the Geneva Convention was signed. Ambulances, hospitals and the medical personnel were to be protected from the dangers of war, so that they could give uninterrupted service to the wounded. And that they might be recognized by all they were to show a Red Cross on a white background.

EVIDENCE OF DR. ALBUQUERQUE

Bangalore May 27

The case against Syed Ahmed motor driver of Dr. (Miss) Albuquerque, for offences of murder, kidnapping one Balu and causing grievous injuries to Puttamma on the night of 8th March last at the residence of the above doctor came up today for further hearing before the City Magistrate, Bangalore.

Large Orders Placed in India

ENGINEERING STORES FOR EASTERN GROUP COUNTRIES

New Camouflage Paint Evolved

Many large orders for engineering stores of all descriptions have been received by the Supply Department for Eastern Group countries and India.

Among other orders received by the Supply Department during the past fortnight are those for textiles for Singapore, South Africa and India.

With a view to further expanding the output of military garments in India, one more new clothing factory has been opened, while the establishment of a further two clothing factories is under contemplation.

Amongst the Government clothing factories which are already under operation are those at Shahjahanpur, Madras, Secunderabad, Bombay and Calcutta, besides one in the Punjab.

Another development is the evolution of a new camouflage paint.

It will be remembered that the Chatfield Committee approved of a scheme put forward by the Defence Department for the expansion and modernization of ordnance factories at a cost of about Rs. 4 crores. This scheme aimed at an expansion of the factories by about 20 per cent and made provisions for their equipment with new plant and machinery which would enable them to manufacture the most modern types of armaments. The scheme is now being energetically pushed through, and planning staffs for new ordnance factories required to implement the proposals of the Ministry of Supply Mission to India and the Eastern Group Conference have been sanctioned.

WAR PRODUCTION

Already 18 technical institutions all over Bengal and three railway workshops have been brought under the Labour Department of the Government of India's scheme which is designed to provide for the intensive training of a large number of semi-skilled tradesmen required for the technical branches of the Defence Services and Ordnance and other factories engaged in work of national importance. Many of them have started their courses and about 600 boys have begun their training as fitters, moulders, mechanics, electricians, welders, draughtsmen and in various other trades. Mr. Amery, who visited, on May 19, the 50 Indian technicians at work in a Government training centre in England said that if India was to play her part worthily in this war, she must make weapons without which she could not overcome her enemies. Mr. Amery also expressed the hope that these Indian technicians in England should have an opportunity to study trade unions, for it was in Britain that industrial organization by the working men had reached the fullest development.

A QUERY

(To The Editor 'Daily News,')

Sir,
May I crave your indulgence for getting an answer to a query of mine. I hear that the sugar cane planted in July 1939 in Mandya is not yet milled? If so may I know who is responsible for this state of affairs. If it is not milled in the proper time what would be the conditions of the cane? Will it be allowed to dry itself in the sun? Certainly this is not profitable either to the Company or to the poor growers
I crave for an answer.

Yours etc.

"A grower".

ving, he said, that Mandya was really doing good work with such enthusiastic workers like
Mr. Ranajodh Singh, and Dr Setu Rao and others. He brought home how scouting was being worked and how the principles of scouting were absent in the "Axis powers".
From his vast experience he said, "A Scout is cheerful and comes very handy in all moments of depression."

The Dist. Scout Commissioner gave a farewell speech and hoped that the campers would carry with them the sweet memories of the Conference and wished them god-speed till they meant meet.

After a vote of thanks by Mr.
M. A. W. to all those who helped to make the function a success and with the Mysore Antenna, the Camp broke at 5 p.m.

open the Khadi centre reviewed the ancient conditions of cottage industries in our country and felt sorry for the present depression. He appealed to the gathering to improve the cottage industries. Speaking on the silk industries Mr. Siddaiya was glad that the Government was providing two lakhs of rupees every year for silk industries and requested the Government to increase the help. The speaker suggested to Government the idea of establishing khadi cultivation was flourishing in

MILITARY SITUATION IN CRETE

ENEMY LINER AND TANKER SUNK

The military situation in Crete has shown any definite improvement in the last 24 hours. It is stated in authoritative circles in London today. In Maleme and around Canea and Suda the situation is undoubtedly serious; there has been some movement at Rethymo, but at present the Germans have landed troops and have reinforced parachute troops, and the situation there is not very favourable. As stated by Mr. Churchill on Tuesday, British forces in Crete are being reinforced. For various reasons, it is not possible to state how, but one can say it has not been by parachute. The enemy have advanced tanks, artillery and British troops have retired in Sollum area in a "flow" operations, which have already taken place in Egypt. Sollum at present is believed to be in enemy hands and is not regarded as very serious.

Mr. Churchill announces that the enemy liner, about eighteen thousand tons, is believed to have been sunk with about three thousand enemy troops bound for Libya. The liner was heavily escorted but was torpedoed by British submarine in the Mediterranean. A French liner of five thousand tons, bound for Italy, was also torpedoed and sunk, as also a thousand ton supply ship. The communiqué, issued by the British, stresses that heavy losses are being taken of the enemy in the Mediterranean.

FURTHER WITHDRAWAL OF BRITISH TROOPS

Latest news from Crete is summed up in a communiqué issued on May 28th afternoon. The communiqué says that reinforcements of further airborne troops are being sent by more intensive air transport. The British are obliged to make a withdrawal to favourable positions in the rear. Severe fighting continues and the situation is seriously considered serious.

A NEW WHIPPING ACT

Enforced in Bombay

A.P. Bombay, May 28.
A new Whipping Act which just received assent of the Governor General is being enforced in Bombay City from tomorrow. It is pointed out it was found from experience the present Whipping Act is ineffective as it applied only to offences of rioting and rioting armed with deadly weapons. In such cases it was essential to prove that the accused was member of unlawful assembly of five or more persons. In ordinary cases of assault with knives and lathis which occur during riots the crime may often be committed by only one man or by two or three persons who would not constitute unlawful assembly. This deficiency in the existing Act was noticed in a recent case in connection with the present riots and now the Act has been enforced.

Today's casualties in Bombay communal riots are two persons killed and twenty injured. Stray assaults continue.

CONGRESS AND MINISTRY

Speculation regarding the appointment of non-official Ministers is not going to stop until the announcement is made. Meanwhile, it is interesting to observe the mental operations of people who argue one way or the other. Anybody who has gauged the public view takes no time to find what it wants. The popular view will welcome the appointment of Congressmen as non-official Ministers. There need be no doubt about it. The reasons are more than one. In the first place the Congress has the backing of the people at large. It is an organisation having its roots in villages drawing its sustenance from the support of the people. For the last four years the work that the Congress party has been doing is before the public. They have awakened the people. They have educated the masses. They have instilled in them self-consciousness, self-confidence and self-help. If the authorities had realised in time the potentialities of the Congress movement, the country need not have passed through the travail it was obliged to undergo. But it does not matter today. The country is richer for the experience that the Congress gained.

Another important point to be observed is that the Congress party has a defined objective and goal. Its resolutions are not mere pious resolutions. They are translated into action. It has a definite programme of activities. Its faith is in the constructive programme of Mahatma Gandhi, which in a way organises the country on a national basis. Congress stands for communal unity and co-operation. It stands for removal of untouchability. Congress has pledged itself to improvement of villages. More than all, it stands for Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja. None can deny the fact that the Mysore Congress has been carrying out the items of the programme to the best of its ability.

Is there any other party in Mysore today, we ask, which can stand before the public and say that its programme also is the same as that of Mysore Congress and its achievement also the same? No doubt we have parties which rise up with the definite intention of resisting the tide of Congress. But we know how they fared and had to sustain themselves with official support. It is not our object now to go over that chapter once again. It is enough to say that the one party which made some noise could not set up its candidates in all constituencies in the elections for District Boards, and recently, Representative Assembly and Legislative Council. We are stating the bare fact when we say that its glorious president who stood on the Party ticket was defeated in the District Board elections. He was also defeated in the Assembly and the Council elections. But in the second election under strange circumstances he was returned to Assembly. This one incident speaks volumes about the popularity and strength of that party.

Whatever may be the criticisms levelled against Mysore Congress by its opponents, the fact remains that it is the largest single Party in the Assembly and the Council. A member of that party taken as Minister would command much greater support and confidence in the Assembly and Council than any other member. We have once before analysed the position and pointed out that many non-descripts and independents in Assembly and Council would rally round Congress and support the party. According to the new constitution though the Minister's action in Government cannot be controlled by the votes of the legislature the fact remains that he would be influenced by the vote of the Assembly and the Council. It is therefore wisdom and statesmanship to select the leader of Congress Party as Minister because he would command the maximum support of the House under the existing circumstances. The same cannot be said of any other Party member. It is to be distinctly understood that though the Government is not run at present on party lines, the influence of well-knit and well organised parties cannot be minimised.

We are aware that under the present constitution much cannot be done but why should the opportunity be denied to those who have a definite policy and programme?

Fantastic arguments are being advanced against selection of Congressmen as Ministers. On the face of them they are interested arguments based on opposition to and prejudice against Congress. Arguments are advanced that they practised satyagraha, this and that. What of that? They are lawfully elected members of the Legislature. And no ban can be imposed upon any member of Legislature in the matter of having him as Minister simply because Congress practised satyagraha sometime ago. Those who argue in that manner are blind to history. In Madras and other provinces when Congress accepted office Ministers were those who had practised satyagraha. That was not a bar against them. In this connection we have very patiently to refer to the cases of some very worthy Congress leaders who were not able to stand as candidates on account of some disqualifications imposed on them due to some political convictions. HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT IN CANEA

Fierce hand-to-hand fighting is proceeding between the ever-growing German forces and the British, New Zealand and Greek forces defending Canea. Spokesman in Cairo described it as intensive. Germans airborne are still increasing and dive-bombing has been intensified. The long-range bombers of Royal Air Force have destroyed three German troop-carriers. Though Germans have not moved their heavy bombers, they have moved most of their fighters and dive bombers from the Balkans to Crete.

EXECUTED FOR LISTENING TO FOREIGN BROADCASTS

(By Cable) London

'The Times' correspondent on the German Frontier cabled on May 20th.

The first execution in Germany for listening to foreign broadcasts was carried out at Nuremberg on May 18th. The victim was Johann Wild, born in 1892, and the death sentence stated that the condemned man had passed on to others information which he had acquired.

The columns of our paper we had urged for the removal of those disqualifications. This was also the popular view. Such being the case, it is very queer that some interested people have been arguing against Congress Ministry on the plea that Congress practised satyagraha. The Congress party and its members are as much loyal to His Highness the Maharaja as members of any other party are. As their resolutions point out they are prepared to make the best use of the reforms for the good of the people. And they have able men among them who are on a par with popular ministers of other provinces. The interests of the country are safe in the hands of Congress. The arguments advanced by the opponents of Congress have thus no basis either in fact or reason.

Whatever anybody may say we hope the Congress would be invited by the higher powers before the question of appointment of ministry is decided. The Congress has left the door open. It has made its position clear and we are sure that when the offer is made to them they would decide the matter in the most patriotic manner. Any further speculation in this matter is needless.

EFFECT OF FRENCH SURRENDER IN SYRIA

One advantage secured by Britain

(By Cable) London

A Times editorial, "Vichy Joins the Axis," on May 22 enumerates the various actions which lead it to declare "In everything but name Vichy has joined the Axis." Dealing with the Middle East aspect, it says "The virtual surrender of the French in Syria to Germany obviously creates fresh strategic problems in the Middle East, or rather aggravates those created by the French defection last June. In another respect it strengthens the British position throughout the Arab world. Recent developments have thrown into relief British friendship with the Arab peoples as a vital factor in British policy. It is equally recognised by the Arab peoples as a pledge of their own future security. The revolt of the vena Rashid Ali and the intrigues of the embittered ex Mufti of Jerusalem have been condemned by responsible Arab leaders. The Moslem world as a whole has demonstrated by practical means its realization that its interests are bound up with those of Britain in the defeat of Hitler. But too little account has perhaps been taken of the persistence and cunning of Axis propaganda in Arab countries and of the feelings of suspicion and uncertainty which it has sometimes engendered.

The unequalled prestige and influence in the Middle East secured by Great Britain in the Great War as the liberator of the Arab world have been weakened in recent years by a variety of causes. One of these causes was the bargain struck between Britain and France for the partition of the Arab countries of the Middle East. During the past 20 years Arab resentment at French rule in Syria has recoiled on the head of Britain as well as of France and this resentment was regularly exploited by German propaganda, both before and after the French surrender. The appeal of Germany lay in the fact that unlike Italy, she had no Arab subjects and no Arab interests. Her incursion into Syria and Iraq and her complicity with the Vichy regime deprive her of this advantage, stultify her claim to be a disinterested champion of the Arab cause. Here, as elsewhere, Britain now stands as the sole barrier to Hitler's naked imperialism and as the ally of those who prize their independence.

TURKEY SLOWLY REALISING HER DANGER

How Encirclement is being completed (By Cable) London

The Daily Mail Istanbul correspondent cabled on May 21: Turkey is only very slowly waking up to the realisation that she is being methodically encircled by Germany.

She is most unwilling to admit the necessity for action except in defence against direct attack.

However the occupation of the Greek islands off her coasts, which dominate the entrance to the Dardanelles, combined with substantial Bulgarian and German forces on her western frontier, make the threat from the west too obvious to ignore.

Further, the intense combined naval and air manoeuvres carried out under German command from the Rumanian Black Sea port of Constanza seem also to suggest

AMICUS CURIAE APPLICATION

Disposed of by Allahabad High Court Judge

(From our own Correspondent)

Justice Alcock dismissed an amicus curiae application set aside the conviction of K. N. Katju who was sentenced under Defence Act for intimidating the State his intention to offer graha.

Justice Alcock said that did not usually interfere with exercise of its powers on application made three months from the conviction. Another judge adopted in this Court to interfere in this Court revision unless those conditions had been previously presented to the Sessions Judge.

Another point was the convicted was himself apparently quite content and did not exercise right of appeal.

If there was any principle it appeared to him to be whether the person terminated to go jail for political reason should be conveniently arrested at his house or be arrested with inconvenience to all concerned. On this question he decided that it came before the Court in such form when the Court was compelled to decide.

EXODUS OF FOREIGNERS FROM SYRIA

The Times Jerusalem correspondent cabled on May 28:

The exodus of foreigners from Syria is well under way. Arriving from Syria report Christian Lebanon is pro-British, while the rest of Syria, which is exposed to intensive Axis propaganda, is inclined to the Axis Powers.

GOVERNMENT MOVING DOWN TO DELHI

A Report Contradicted (By Cable) Simla, May 29

A.P. It is authoritatively learnt that there is no foundation for the report that the Government of India intended to move down to Delhi at an early date.

that an attack upon the northern coast is not impossible when Germany feels the element has arrived.

Syria and Iraq on her eastern and east are in danger of man occupation, threatening completion of the circle.

There is little that could have done until now out grave danger of being into war, except to press own defensive preparations. Grave disquiet is now becoming noticeable.

The day is approaching when Turkey will have to decide whether or not she will let the completion of the circle that Germany is forging her by acting in military with the British in Palestine.

DRAMATIC CRITICISM

S. R. Littlewood, Formerly Dramatic Critic, 'The Morning Post'

Dramatic criticism—from the newspaper's point of view—is a job at all? The aspect of the moment is largely negative.

Number of dramatic criticism papers just now do not fill out their time with music, radio, books, leaders, causeries, general or some wholly occupation could be confined to the fingers of one hand. I did not use up all of those instances dramatic criticism is thrown in, without exception as a relaxation for member of the staff whose work is of a particularly more or less depressing order.

Not So Exacting

On these terms, as it so means little else but a couple of free tickets telephoning a paragraph of the second interval, it is eagerly sought after than indeed, the difficulty of present-day dramatic criticism is not the doing of it but getting it to do.

Whatever it is now, dramatic criticism used to be a specialized and a very exacting one. It was so again, though not, in the same way or to the same extent. Just on the edge of its being resorted to some more or less important demanding special knowledge on the part of a competent critic, here are a few measures and some suggestions for future.

Fascinating Work

begin with the memories. As a young fellow of 22, I was a dramatic critic to 'The Morning Leader', 43 year ago. Dramatic criticism was a new and fascinating adventure. Not were there all sorts of fresh comments on the stage itself. Writing about it, there was a sense of time and space in writing about them. The news were not crowded out by pictures; and with smaller and more local nations they went to press later. For the Morning Leader one could write up to last one in the morning, and made a properly occasioned and considered notice. One could occasionally find a spot of supper before writing—though that was dangerous.

Instead of everything having been cut down to bare bones, state of affairs was all the way. The paper actually had a copy. The more one was the better pleased everyone was. The man in demand was the man who could write the longest readable notice in time available. Clementine who was then at his side and sat in a box while all the rest of us were scattered about the stalls, used to pride herself on being able to turn out a column-and-a-bit of close in an hour. I used to write a column on an ordinary play and a half on an important production.

Notice was a formidable task. It had to tell the story of the play, act by act, with an account and comparison of the playcraft but of the play itself. It had to present a picture, a middle and an end; and in the end it had to be passed out, or there was trouble.

It had, moreover, to be creative and attract by an interest of its own, even if the play had none. The space had to be pleasantly filled and the reader satisfied.

One had to write mostly for people within London's playing radius, anxious for a definite opinion to compare ultimately with their own. There was no getting away with evasions, omissions and mistakes on the supposition that nobody cared. As the theatre had no rivals and there were more papers and consequently more critics, a first night was a matter of far greater comparative concern and subject to far more expert judgment than it is now.

Breaking New Ground

Also the theatre was itself breaking new ground at every point. The impact of Ibsen was just making itself felt. Pinero, Jones, Grundy, Esmond, were churning out "problem plays." Alexandre Dumas fils had touched the social conscience, and each new thesis gave dramatic criticism a platform. Shaw, though not yet a "commercial dramatist," was in full challenge. Irving was surrounded with the splendour of a setting sun, but still a dominant theme. Tree was in lively ascendance. Wyndham, Hare, Alexander were good for yards of disputation—not personal gossip of the film-star order, but critical surveys.

There were the regular visits of Bernhard, Coquelin, Duse, Rejane. One had to know (or pretend to know) all about every thing in their repertory. This meant any amount of reading up. One felt—and in a way it was true enough—that at that time the critic was the doubly experienced prophet of a new art. The old conventions of melodrama and tragedies in verse were going. New ones had to be heralded or rejected as the case might be. Incidentally there were no Press agents. It was the critic himself who was responsible for putting over any new gospel that might present itself and of hailing arrival of genius, whether in actor or playwright.

In these circumstances, to a young man of 22, the call to be dramatic critic of a London daily paper, with A. B. Walkley (then "Spec" of The Star) as stable-companion, was too tempting to be refused. Ernest Park, in making me the offer on the strength of notice of Forbes-Robertson's Hamlet "from the third row standing," warned me against it.

"It's very foolish of you to be so keen about the theatre," said he. "Better go in for politics, finance, sport, anything rather than the stage. These actors are ungrateful people."

At twenty-two, youth will be served. I jumped to it; and now 43 years afterwards, I am wondering whether I was foolish or not. Certainly my old editor was wrong about the actors. They do not forget. Through recent disasters the loyal friendship of the theatrical professions has been to me an unfailing comfort and inspiration. Ingratitude has been far more in evidence on the Fleet Street side of Temple Bar but let that pass.

When Change Began

The change from the old-fashioned, full-length criticism to the lay paragraph began to announce itself during the South African war. Then for the first time a night-editor—it was the late F. C. Hillier—told me with a grim smile that, as there was "a war on," he could do with less about the play of the evening rather than more. I responded with pleasure. It meant catching the last train home for once.

But it also meant, though I did not know it at the time, that the age of snippets was at hand. This was to be hurried on by the extension of circulations and the coming of the photographer. Even before 1914 the time had come when Christian-name gossip was openly preferred to criticism because "everyone could understand it." The corollary naturally followed after awhile that, in the notices themselves, the more ignorant the critic the more likely he would be to please a still more ignorant public.

What of the Future?

What then of dramatic criticism as it is now, and as it is going to be? Life in Fleet Street, as elsewhere, is still full of little ironies. Among them is the fact that even in this present war-time, when the theatre is officially only a grudging "entertainment," there are more people thinking seriously about the stage as a repository of ideals—not only national but, in the best sense of the word, human—than there were immediately before the declaration.

This was revealed by a general discontent with the plays that trickled into production in the first few months through having been previously ready. They showed in the main a taste degenerated to the worst level of the American film. An idea had, indeed, long been fostered, for obvious business reasons, that the theatre was a thing of the past and that films—threatened, possibly, by television—were going to be all that mattered in the future. Actual experience of war-time has proved the exact contrary to this. To the amazement of the money-changers, good plays have made their appearance. They have—wonder of wonders!—succeeded in spite of every disability.

How will this pan out? Is dramatic criticism going to be worth while again? Speaking as one who has seen the old craft a war casualty thrice in a life-time I should say, with reservations, that it is.

This is taking for granted its practitioner is so genuinely devoted to the theatre that he is prepared—as I myself have been—to give up all sorts of more lucrative pursuits for its sake. I think that dramatic criticism will become once more a specialized job. I believe that, as time goes on, less homage will be paid to ignorance by a public who are acquiring an intelligent interest in the theatre and a desire to know something about it.

I do not think London daily papers will ever again print criticisms of a column or more in length about an average play the morning after the first performance. No London daily paper is new, or will be, sufficiently local to concentrate to this extent upon one theatre-except in a case where there is some outstanding news-value. But there are still provincial dailies capable of spreading themselves once a week on theatre and cinema, and Sunday papers, weekly reviews and magazines are open to persuasion.

It is true that dramatic criticism is no longer a full-time man's job—or woman's, for that

TURKISH CONFIDENCE IN BRITAIN

REPORT OF SOVIET GERMAN TALKS

(By Cable) London
The Times Ankara Correspondent cabled on May 21:

Although British announcements from Cairo report rather less action in Iraq than the Turks would like to see, opinion in Ankara remains fairly confident of British ability to prevent a German conquest of either Iraq or Syria. The official newspaper Ulus, however, adds the reservation "provided there is not an unexpected intervention by a third party." This refers to the Soviet Union and may have been occasioned by reports of Soviet-German negotiations concerning collaboration in the Middle East.

The possibility is mentioned that the Soviet Union will give German troops a passage via Batoum to Iraq and so on. That sounds an unlikely concession for the Russians to make, although they will give the Germans much to avoid war. It should be mentioned that reports of German-Soviet collaboration in the Middle East, for which the Soviet Union will be rewarded with the Persian Gulf, recur every time there are Soviet-German discussions. They are also a favourite instrument of German propaganda for bringing pressure upon the Turks. At present, however, the Germans are not demanding anything from Turkey except the largest possible extension of the exchange of goods.

Altogether 16 Axis merchant ships have passed through the Bosphorus westwards since the defeat of Greece. The cargoes are often suspect, but the Turks have no right of control.

INTERVIEWS WITH DEWAN

Bangalore, May 29
Sir Mirza M. Ismail, the Dewan of Mysore, will see visitors tomorrow morning at the Public Offices.

I am not sure it will ever be. The dramatic critic must henceforward do something else as well. Here is one reason why the all-round journalist, who can at a pinch turn his hand to anything, is at an advantage. The trouble is that if he is really fond of the theatre it is bound to come first, and the other self will suffer. I myself have tried almost every kind of sideline. None has been satisfactory.

In any case, dramatic criticism is bound to be a career of sacrifice. On the other hand, if it is a willing sacrifice it may also be a happy one. It is the devotion of whatever journalistic talents one may possess to the service not only of the most powerfully appealing of all arts but to something a good deal deeper.

I have had reason to note in my book, "Dramatic Criticism," that the theatre whether grave or gay, is still in many respects as it was entirely in pagan days, a place of worship. What is called "illusion" is an act of prayer. The critic who guides popular taste to a better appreciation of thought and emotion, to clean laughter, sympathy and the relish of true character, is doing something better than merely usurp a newspaper office guardian of a faith which every shout of applause expresses a faith in humanity.

BOMBING OF CIVILIANS IN OCCUPIED AREAS

GERMANS' REPORTED TRICK

Suggestion that R. A. F. is Responsible

(By Cable) London
The 'Times' aeronautical correspondent wrote on May 21:

There is strong evidence to support the suspicion which has existed in this country for some time that the Germans are deliberately bombing civilians in occupied territory so as to give the impression that the R. A. F. are the culprits. By this means they hope, no doubt, to create bad feeling against Britain so as to make the defeated countries, particularly France—more willing to co-operate with their German masters.

A resident of Brest on arrival from France told a Lisbon correspondent that it had often been noticed that air raids which began on the port were renewed after an interval of about half an hour on the residential areas of the town itself. Where the first raid damaged only the port and shipping, the second caused considerable damage to houses and heavy casualties among the civilian population. Splinter picked up in the town on mornings after the raids were found to be of German manufacture.

Everything in the Frenchman's statement points to the attacks on the town having been "staged" by the Germans.

Messages received from Belgium and Holland indicate that the Germans have adopted the same trick in those two countries since their occupation.

GENERAL AZIZ MASRY PASHA

(By cable) London
Bertha Gaster cabled to the News-Chronicle from Cairo on May 18:

General Aziz El Masry Pasha, former Chief of Staff of the Egyptian Army, is now 63 and formerly served in the Turkish army, where he was associated with the young Turk movement, but during the last war he worked for an Arab revolt with Feisal and Hussein.

His sympathy for German methods and principles is notorious, while he has bitter antipathy against the British. It would seem that he has not been chosen as the leader of any underground movement, but on the other hand he might be a suitable figurehead to be made use of by unscrupulous conspirators.

He separated from his American wife, who lives with his son in New York.

"GOVT. BY INDIA, FOR INDIA AND IN INDIA"

INDIA UNDER SECRETARY'S STATEMENT

"It is intended that Government of India should be carried on by India, for India, in India, and not from Whitehall" declared Duke of Devonshire, Parliamentary Under Secretary for India, speaking with full authority of Government, at the Leeds University, of which he is the Chancellor.

Efforts to achieve closer co-operation in India would not be discontinued. Despite political division, the great Empire of India was overwhelmingly behind Britain in its war effort. Indian troops had played a large part in Abyssinia and thanks to them, situation in Iraq was much less anxious.

Speaking about the war generally, the Duke said that it would be foolish to underestimate our opponent. The German was a beast, but a resolute fighting beast. Nevertheless he was convinced that many thousands of young airmen coming forward would, as free men, be better trained, better equipped and far better man for man than their opponents. The Empire Air Training Scheme was now on a scale greater than it was ever anticipated.

UPLIFT OF VILLAGES

Among the important achievements of Sir Mirza M. Ismail as Dewan of Mysore are his rural uplift schemes. Had his best to brighten up the villages. It is no exaggeration to say that among unsophisticated villagers movement was so popular as Sir Mirza. In spite of so much attention paid to villages much remains yet to be done. There are a large number of villages where difficulty is yet experienced in the matter of drinking water, medical aid and education. The roads leading up to a large number of villages have to be improved. It is a pity that in spite of so much of spade work there is not that life and vigour in villages which one sees in cities. Even those who had lived in villages for generations have been migrating to towns and cities on account of circumstances which they could not control. The life in villages deserves to be made more attractive.

But how is that to be done? All over India we find today people speaking of villages and village uplift. So many suggestions have been offered. And so many schemes have been drafted. Lord Linlithgow, has, in time and out of time, been speaking of the agricultural problems. Mahatma Gandhi and Indian National Congress have been doing so much to improve the lot of villagers. But yet we are far away from the desired end.

In Mysore for the last twenty-five years and more the Government of His Highness the Maharaja have been devising various schemes. Village Panchayats were started. District Boards were invested with power to undertake village improvement schemes. But sorry to say, the Village Panchayats have not been functioning properly. The very fact that they have not been able to collect the dues and the arrears shows beyond doubt that they have neither initiative nor power to do anything more than they have been doing at present.

The State of Mysore can do a lot in this direction. Unless the villagers are encouraged to lead many lives, unless fears are removed from their heart, which always hang upon them, and unless a friendly and sympathetic hand is given to them they cannot come up to the standard. At times past officials have crowded the villagers down. They are afraid of a khaki coat and lace tuck. They are made to feel they are being of an inferior order by that of officials and city

ADDITIONAL MEMBER OF THE COTTAGE INDUSTRIES COMMITTEE

Bangalore, May 30.

Mr. Rayara Kempanna of Hulibele village, Bowringpet taluk, is appointed an additional member of the Committee for the development of Cottage Industries in the State. dwellers. When any independence is shown by the villager he is snubbed and put down. This is a very deplorable state of affairs. Unless they are made to feel, that they are the country and they are the backbone of the Government and their progress is synonymous with the progress of the State and unless they are lifted up from their depths of ignorance by a friendly and helping hand there can be no salvation to them or the country. Those who go to villages with the idea of serving them should shed their superiority and mix with them freely and encourage them to work together.

We are emphatically of the opinion that the entire spirit ought to change whatever our schemes and statutes may be; unless the villagers are made to feel one with the Government no progress can be achieved. During Sir M. Visvesvaraya's regime as Dewan of Mysore he created a new spirit among them and it is said villagers vied with one another in coming forward with their money to start schools. We have to revive that spirit and keep it on. It is not only the rich villager who can offer rich donations for hospital buildings but also the poor and humble villager who could and willingly contribute his quarter anna to the general fund that would elevate the village. During Sir M. Visvesvaraya's time we are informed, so many pie funds were started in villages with a view to raising educational institutions. We want all these things to be renewed. We hope the new Government with the Popular Ministers would be able to put a new life and spirit into the dry bones of our villages. This is a very vital task and Government can expect the fullest co-operation from the public in this matter.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE

Westminster Hall—Ancient Relic of History

The Houses of Parliament, now reduced to smouldering ruins as a result of German bombing, were built on the Thames a hundred and one years ago. The Westminster Hall, however, was one of the oldest and most historical buildings in Britain having been built in 1097 by William Rufus.

A hundred years ago last year the foundation stone of the British Houses of Parliament was laid on the site of the ancient Palace of Westminster. Six years previously, a great fire had destroyed the former Houses of Parliament.

The magnificent Gothic-style buildings standing until last week on the northern bank of the London Thames above Westminster Bridge, one of the best-known sights in the world, rose gradually year by year, until they were completed in 1857 at a cost of £ 3,000,000.

They stood as a monument to the genius of the great British architect, Sir Charles Barry, who was responsible for several other of London's famous buildings. Aptly enough, Westminster was Sir Charles' birthplace.

A Curious Fire

The fire which destroyed the old Houses of Parliament—with the exception of Westminster Hall, which was not then actually within the Houses—has a curious origin. It was the custom prior to 1820, for Exchequer accounts to be kept up by means of "tally sticks". These are long narrow strips of ash wood on which notches were cut, representing amounts of money. They were notched in pairs so that both the Exchequer and the other party to the transaction might have a receipt and thus the pair "tallied".

Traditions die hard with the British Civil Service, and even after "tally sticks" had been suppressed by more modern methods of account-keeping the old sticks were kept stored away in the Government buildings.

In 1834, however, it was decided that the huge collection of sticks should be destroyed. The most obvious solution would have been to have made a bon-fire of them on some piece of waste ground. But the authorities decided that they must be burnt in private and a stove in the House of Lords was chosen.

Unfortunately, the stove was packed so full with sticks that it became red-hot. Then the panneling round about caught fire. The flames spread to the House of Commons—and in a few hours the meeting place of the British Parliament was a raging furnace.

The Hall Escapes

Only Westminster Hall escaped. Standing on the same site, but apart from the Houses of Parliament, it lived to present a host of historical associations to the Briton today. It is one of the oldest and most historical buildings in the Kingdom. Built by King William Rufus in 1097 as a banquet hall, its faded glory was revived by King Richard II exactly 300 years later.

It was Richard who added the remarkable roof, composed of 13 enormous oak beams, unsupported by pillar and the Hall remains one of the largest rooms in the world so constructed. But the ravages of time have dealt hard with the roof. That minute destroyer of the toughest woodwork—the Death Watch Beetle invaded the stout timber and in recent years it was necessary to give added support by using steel girders as well as to repair or renew the beams themselves.

The Hall was 270 feet long and 74 feet wide. Its ancient birth and its natural association with the principal affairs of the Realm of the British through 900 years could not but make it a store house of history.

Many Events

It had seen many brilliant and some tragic events during the reigns of some of Britain's earlier monarchs; it had seen the sombre preliminaries for the execution of a great King; it had been filled with the joyful cries of the populace; and it had held the bodies of two of the most respected Kings of Britain's present Ruling House, as the sad throngs passed by their biers in a last act of homage and affection.

Here, in 1649, Charles I came to trial and was condemned to death; here King Richard II held his Christmas feast for 10,000; here Cromwell was installed as Lord Protector of Britain and here his head was displayed, the restored monarchy's revenge on the "arch-rebel". Here King Edward VII lay in state, and here King George V lay on his last couch, his sons standing guard at his head and feet.

The Houses of Parliament themselves, to which Westminster Hall served as an entrance hall, have no long historical story to tell. Yet even in their comparatively short existence they had seen many changes in British national life which will provide dramatic material for the historian of to-morrow. (A. P. B.)

REPORTS OF CYCLONE AND FLOOD

Tale of Havoc in Malabar

(Associated Press of India)

Calicut, May 29

Further reports of cyclone and flood havoc on the west coast show that on Monday night the bridge near Melathur was destroyed. A large number of houses between Kadalundi and Pattambi belonging to agriculturists have been destroyed and great damage was caused to crops and fruit gardens. Palghat experienced severe cyclone on Monday. It is reported that Victoria College building and certain other private and school buildings were slightly damaged by heavy winds. Considerable improvement in weather conditions is noticeable in Calicut today. Rains have temporarily stopped but the sea continues to be very rough. As the result of rough sea a boat carrying goods worth approximately ten thousand rupees coming to Calicut from Mangalore capsized near Quilandi yesterday. Out of ten members of the crew seven were saved. There is no trace yet of the remaining three. Rough seas which brought with them high waves however helped the captain of the steamer which had recently run aground nearly three quarters of mile from Calicut to refloat the ship which has resumed voyage.

Telegraph and telephone communications between Calicut and Madras and Madras and Bombay have been restored.

Normal train service between Calicut and Calicut however has not yet been resumed owing to damage to permanent way. According to railway authorities restoration of railway communication will take three days. The Railway line between Calicut and Pattambi has been breached in a number of places and in some places the railway line is about five feet under water and therefore it is not possible to find out the extent of damage to the line.

THE EDUCATED UNEMPLOYED

One of the most important and pressing problems that has not been solved is that of the educated unemployed. It looks as if the people in power have not realised its importance. Its non-solution is responsible for a good deal of maladjustment in our country. On one side we cry for more and more of education. We cry for a greater number of schools and colleges. We demand greater educational facilities. But on the other side we find so many educated men of all grades allowed to waste their life with no employment.

It is indeed very strange that in this country arguments of various hues and colours are advanced sometimes against the type of education that we have been having. It is true that the educational system ought to change and change radically too. In absence of any other type of education we have been educating our children in the system that is prevalent at present. How much of money is spent by each parent on his children in respect of education prevailing at present, is not adequately imagined by the powers that be. Innumerable parents have invested money in the education of their children as if it were a business venture. Some have mortgaged their houses and lands and spent all their resources in educating their children. By begging and borrowing we have been educating our children. And with what vicissitudes? In many public examinations not more than 30% get through. And narrow is the gate of success in public examinations. Even if our children pass through all these narrow gates and become successful in all examinations stark despair stares them in the face. 'No vacancy' boards confront them everywhere. Their young lives fall a prey to gloom and despair. Young men who have spent thousands and thousands for their education and who have bloomed like fragrant flowers will have to wither in the face of stark unemployment.

It is a pity that our Governments in India consider it not their job to provide employment to young educated men. They think it none of their business to bestow any thought on countless youngmen who are unemployed. It is strange that our Governments are of this mentality. In progressive countries like Japan, Soviet Russia and America providing employment to those who seek it is one of the main jobs of Governments. They have regular statistics of various occupations and the people employed in them. They have also figures of the unemployed fitted for various occupations. Day in and day out Government takes stock of the occupations and the people fit to be employed. When are we going to have such a system in our country? When are we going to have a survey of the various occupations and the number of people employed in them and the number that could be employed? There seems to be no plan, no organisation among us. In spite of so many years of ordered Government amidst us things are allowed to drift in these most vital matters.

The strangest thing is that we say there are no men for this and that, but on the other side we find innumerable young men with educational equipment of various grades uncared for. How to remedy this? What is needed today is co-ordination and organisation. We should have a plan in these matters. Unless Herculean efforts are made to wipe out unemployment among the educated there can be no progress in the country.

The difficulty in our country is, there are no careers for our youngmen. Is that so in Japan? What do they do in Japan? As soon as a young man finishes his education of whatever grade and type it may be, he is at once taken up for some occupation for which he is fit. If he is not fit for anything he goes to the Navy, he goes to the Army, and if nothing else he goes as a salesman. The Government appointment is not the only job open for a young man there. There are innumerable occupations and there is no particular charm for a Government job, be it a civilian's post or a clerk's post. In this country too in the straitened circumstances in which we are placed, something should be done immediately in this direction. New careers ought to be opened up for our youngmen.

We are quite confident that the moment National Government is established in India with its own army, navy and air force, and with full fiscal independence, the problem of unemployment will be solved. With fiscal independence so many new industries will spring up opening up avenues of employment for our young men. When our army navy and air force become fully Indian there will not be a man left in India without a job. We are very hopeful of this. But until then, this problem of the educated unemployed cannot be allowed to remain unsolved.

In Mysore we hope the Government and the new legislature will take up this question in all earnestness and try to solve it to the best of their ability. The immediate thing that is to be done is a survey of occupations with the number of people employed in each occupation. We should also have up-to-date statistics of the educated unemployed with the information as to which occupations they are fit. We have many industries in Mysore. We have to start many more. There is so much of development work going on. In the matter of edu-

MYSORE NOTES

Interview With H. H. the Maharaja

(From our Correspondent)

Mysore, May, 30

It is learnt that His Highness the Maharaja was pleased to accord an interview yesterday afternoon to Mr. H. Lingappa of Shimoga.

Trust Board Meeting

An ordinary monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees for the Improvement of the City of Mysore was held this evening. Mr. B. S. Raghavendra Rao presided.

The Board considered some ordinary subjects and passed some estimates.

Literacy Campaign

The literacy campaign conducted during the summer holidays in Mysore City by the University Union has proved a great success. 50 literacy classes were opened in the various Mohallas of the City including 13 in the Krishnaraja Mohalla, 17 in the Chamaraja Mohalla, 5 in the Lashker Mohalla, 5 in the Devaraja Mohalla and 10 in the Mandi Mohalla.

Out of the 650 adult illiterates who at first joined the classes, 200 adults were of the Harijan community. Hence 18 classes including 12 in the Adikarnataka-pura 2 in the Padavarahalli Madigaragere, 3 in Jalapuri and 1 in the Mandi Mohalla Madigaragere were set apart for them.

In that campaign about 20 volunteer workers were primary school teachers and the other 30 volunteers were students of the University and High Schools.

The Municipal Councillors also helped much to make the campaign a success.

Dr. K. N. Kini, Mr. M. A. Narayana Iyengar, Prof. Eagleton and others visited the class and expressed satisfaction at the work.

Special Convocation

It is rumoured that a special convocation of the Mysore University to confer honorary degrees on some distinguished persons may be arranged in connection with the Silver Jubilee celebrations of the University which will take place at about the middle of ensuing July.

PEACE BRIGADE VOLUNTEERS

For Promoting Communal Unity
(Associated Press of India)

Patna, May 30

Peace brigade volunteers for promoting Congress programme of communal unity, it is understood, will be formed by the Bihar Provincial Congress Committee in all districts and subdivisions. A meeting of the working committee of the Provincial Congress Committee is being called here in the first week of June to consider this proposal in detail.

Education we require more schools and more teachers. For all these, we require young educated men. With understanding and sympathy if we proceed in the matter with a definite plan before us, we are sure to achieve commendable results. We hope the members of the new legislature and the general public would devote their special attention to this vital problem of the educated unemployed.

AMIN-UL-MULK SIR MIRZA

M. ISMAIL, K.C.I.E., O.B.E.

RETIRING DEWAN OF MYSORE
A SHORT BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Of an ancient and aristocratic Persian family, Amin-ul-Mulk Sir Mirza Muhammad Ismail, K.C.I.E., O.B.E., Dewan of Mysore, was born at Bangalore on the 23rd October, 1883. The history of his immediate forbears is one of close and intimate connection with Mysore and a fine record of devotion, loyalty and service to the Royal Family. His grand-father, the late Mr. Ali Asker, who was personally known to Sir Mark Cubbon, was a devoted friend of His Highness the Maharaja Sri Krishnarajendra Wadiyar III. His father, the late Mr. Aga Jan, had the distinction of serving the State in the capacity of an A.D.C. to His Highness the late Maharaja, Her Highness the late Maharani, C.I., during the memorable period of her Regency and His late Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV successively. A fitting culmination to a long and bright tradition of service and loyalty to the State and its Rulers, which his father and grand-father before him set up, is Sir Mirza Ismail who, by dint of sheer industry and devotion to all that concerns the well being of Mysore, worked his way up to the highest office in the State which he happily, filled for over fifteen years with ability and great personal distinction.

Sir Mirza Ismail received his early training in the Wesleyan Mission High School in Bangalore and he has not missed an opportunity of giving grateful expression to his appreciation of the service of Mission schools in the cause of Indian education. He next joined the Royal School and had the honor of becoming the classmate and companion of His late Highness Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV, under the able tutor, Mr. Stuart Fraser, I.C.S. (subsequently Sir Stuart Fraser, K.C.S.I.). Sir Mirza Ismail later joined the Central College which added a democratic outlook to a man of aristocratic traditions. He graduated from the Central College in the year 1905, and that great characteristic of his, namely refusal to subordinate great issues to lesser loyalties, which later in life marked him out as a front rank Round Tabler, must be ascribed to the excellent training that he received under sterling teachers, such as, Principals Cook and Tait.

He entered the Mysore Civil Service as Assistant Superintendent of Police in the very year of his graduation and three years later he joined the personal staff of His late Highness the Maharaja. His flair for administration soon made itself felt as he rapidly rose to be His late Highness's Huzur Secretary in February 1914 and His late Highness's Private Secretary in the year 1922. When four years later, on the 1st May, 1926 to be precise, he was called by His late Highness to fill the highest administrative office in the State, the Office of Dewan, he confessed that he looked upon it as a great and unique opportunity "less as an appointment than as a great mission of patriotic service" and subsequent events have amply borne him out. Honours, those tokens by which the discerning world marks out its great men, came as a rapid succession. He was knighted by His late Highness in the title of "Sir Mirza Ismail" in the Dargah in 1920. His Majesty the Emperor marked the services of Sir Mirza Ismail to the Empire by the award of a series of titles. In January 1923, the Maharaja of Mysore, the Maharaja of Travancore, Cochin and Kottar, at the First Round Conference and the Maharaja of Mysore, Jaipur and the Maharaja of Travancore, Cochin and Kottar, at the Second Round Conference with distinction. He was given the finishing touch that great scheme of the Third Round Conference and the Joint Parliamentary Committee on India derived substantial help from the presence of this representative of Mysore, of whom it is truly said that "reason and fairness, non-attachment and zeal for reform characterised all his work".

At the invitation of His Excellency the Governor, Sir Mirza Ismail delivered the vocation Address at the Malabar University on October 1935. In June 1936, he accompanied His Highness to Europe and returned after a three week holiday trip in England and the Continent. It was at once a tribute to Sir Mirza Ismail's qualities of leadership and his keen interest in problems relating to the health and welfare of the community that he was elected by the Government of Mysore to lead the Indian Delegation to the Inter-Governmental Conference of Far Eastern States on Rural Hygiene which was held at Bandoeng between the 3rd and 10th August 1937. Sir Mirza Ismail was acclaimed as a great leader of the Delegation and his ability to handle the business of the Conference and his social qualities were highly valued.

The high dignity of the "Viceroy of Mysore" was conferred upon him in November 1937 in appreciation of his services in the relief of suffering which is a part of the work of the Ambulance Association. (See Page 1)

SIR MIRZA ISMAIL'S SPEECH

FOUNDATION STONE OF JAMIA MOSQUE LAID

Address Presented to Sir Mirza

Bangalore May 31
Dewan, Sir Mirza M. Ismail laid the foundation stone of the Jamia Mosque last evening. The present function was held in the grounds opposite to Sir K. P. Chetty Town Hall. This was the last public function of the retiring Dewan.
A distinguished assemblage was present in the beautiful apartment erected for the function. Thousands of Muslims from the City and Cantonment were present. A large number of high officials, and non-officials, Municipal Councillors, merchants and others were present including Rajamantpravina N. Nadhava Rao, Rajamantpravina K. V. Ramantaram, Chief Justice, Sir Percy Reilly, Sir Shaw Nawaz, Bahadur of Bombay, Rajadhrmasakka K. Shankaranarayana Rao, Rajasevaprassakka A. V. Ramantaram, Rao Bahadur B.K. Wadachar, Khan Bahadur, Bahadur Abbas Khan, Dr. S. Babha Rao, Messrs. J. Mohamad Ram, M. Seshadri, M.G. Mehkri Narayana Rao, Ramanaryan Selaram, Abdul Hukh, Dr. P. P. Kalam, Mohamad Neeff, Mohamad Shariff, H.V. Narayana Rao, B. Abdur Rahman, O.S.N. Sheriff, M. Abdul Wahab, S. Venkatapathiah, and Mirza Azeezulla Beg.
Sir Mirza was accorded a grand reception.
After prayer, Rukn-ul-Mulk S. Abdul Wazid, President of the Trustees presented an address to the Dewan. Afterwards the Dewan Sir Mirza replied to the address and laid the foundation stone of the Jamia Mosque.
The address was read by Rukn-ul-Mulk S. Abdul Wazid, President of the Board of Trustees of the Jamia Masjid and Muslim Charitable Fund Trust.
Address
The following is the address: We, the President and Members of the Board of Trustees of the Jamia Masjid and Muslim Charitable Fund Trust, Bangalore, respectfully beg to offer you a most cordial welcome in our midst to-day. We are deeply grateful to you for your courtesy in accepting our humble invitation, amidst your other pressing engagements to lay the foundation-stone of the Jamia Masjid.
We venture to think that a short history of how the scheme of having a Jamia Masjid in this locality came into being may not come out of place on such an occasion. The Muslim Iron Merchants of the City owned a building and a site which they had earmarked for the construction of a mosque near to their place of business which was acquired for the formation of the Silver Jubilee Park by the City Municipality in 1920. In addition to the compensation paid the Municipality had kindly promised to grant a site, free of cost, for the construction of the mosque. In the year 1923 the Iron Merchants transferred the compensation amount and the right to obtain the site from the Municipality to the Majlis-e-Millia. They purchased a piece of land from the Municipality near the Government Weaving Institute for the purpose but some of the leading Muslim Citizens thought that the place was not a suitable one, that the idea of having a modest place of worship should be modified and that a building in keeping with the other grand buildings in the locality and the traditions of Islam in the State should be built. With this object in view a Trust was constituted known as the Board of Trustees of the Jamia Masjid and the Muslim Charitable Fund Trust in 1935 consisting of representatives of all the Muslim interests of Bangalore. The Majlis-e-Millia handed over to this Board all the rights they possessed as Trustees of the Muslim Iron Merchants for constructing the mosque in lieu of the one they intended constructing. The Board moved the Municipality for the promised site and the present site was granted to them. The Members of the Board desire to express their profound gratitude to the Government of His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore and the City Municipality for their placing this valuable site at their disposal for the construction of the Jamia Masjid.

To you, Sir, the Board is specially indebted. The idea of having a grand mosque which should represent the best traditions of Islamic Culture and Art in this place originated with you. We owe the success we have so far achieved to your initiative, interest and encouragement. The plan of the mosque has been drawn as per your instructions. That we take as a guarantee that the structure that will rise up in this spot will be a worthy addition to the architectural monuments of Bangalore. We fervently hope that you will continue to take a live interest as hitherto till this sacred edifice dedicated to the service of God and man is an accomplished fact.
The building itself is estimated to cost over a lakh of rupees. Some sixty thousand rupees more will be needed to construct shops and other buildings on the site originally purchased for the mosque, the rent of which could be utilized for expenses of the mosque and for other charitable purposes. We have so far collected Rupees Thirty-five thousand. We have every hope that the community will come forward with its liberal support and help us carry out this laudable object.

We beg to express our deep sense of gratitude to you for the pleasure you have given us by your presence here this evening.

We now request you, Sir, to be graciously pleased to lay the foundation-stone of the Jamia Masjid.

DEWAN'S SPEECH

Sir Mirza delivered the following speech:

I am particularly happy that this function, which is the last of my period of service as Dewan of Mysore, gives me the opportunity of expressing an ideal of my life which has been foremost in the past and will remain foremost in the future.

In some of the kind things that have been written about me in connection with my retirement mention has been made of what generous observers regard as my endeavours to bring people together in a spirit of harmony and recognition of their common humanity.

The occasion that now brings us all together may not appear on the surface to be such an endeavour. To those of other faiths than that of Islam into which I was born, I may appear today to be simply a Mussalman among Mussalmans performing a religious duty. But to you, fellow-Mussalmans, it is not so simple. You know that in the historical development of Islam I belong to a section of the organised expression of the Faith that for centuries has been in sharp opposition to the section to which you, who are going to build this mosque, belong. It would have been easy for me to find an excuse for recognising this traditional opposition and declining your invitation. I have not done so. On the contrary, as you are doubtless aware, it gives me, born into the Shia sect, profound satisfaction to be here today at the first step in the raising of a mosque for the worship of God in the manner of Islam by my friends of the Sunni sect, my so-called opponents. I have taken, as you so kindly recognise, the greatest possible interest in the project from its very inception. I am not here in any official or formal way. I believe deep down in my heart that the great reality of spiritual revelation given to humanity by the Prophet (blessed be his name) is an infinitely greater thing than any sectarian difference imposed upon it by subsequent human feeling and by lesser vision than his of the inner realities from which the external life of humanity has developed.

At the centre of Islam is the teaching and practice of brotherhood. You would have been false to the truth of life if, because I am a Shia by birth, you had not invited me to this function, and I would have been equally false to the brotherhood of Islam if, because you are Sunnis, I had not accepted your invitation. Our differences are transient, even trivial, in comparison with the spiritual reality which these differences tend to obscure and weaken. I say this although I am fully aware not only of the differences within Islam but also of the differences between Islam and other faiths. I shall not venture on the dangerous ground of theological disputation, but I will say this, that I am convinced that the dif-

RE-ORGANISATION OF THE LACQUERWARE INDUSTRY

CHANNARAJANA, May 31
The following joint statement by Messrs S.A. Bux and Syed Najjullah, is issued to the Press:

"The Government of Mysore have shown exceptional interest in the reorganisation of Cottage Industries in considering carefully Mr. Modislar's Ten Year Plan. But could it be only on paper? It all sounds very sweet, very hopeful to the artisan to very honest, very hopeful to the artisan to hear of economic plans and schemes, which are claimed to make his miserable life lighter. Little does the poor defenceless workman know that while the scheme is being 'worked up' and while it is being fitted to be financed by the calculating Government, he will have sunk too deep to be claimed back. From the point of view of a workman what of files and of all this, swelling of files and blackening of newspaper columns, is yet to be seen. We are not underrating the sincere efforts of the Government, but the circumstances have shown that government machinery moves far too slow for the call of time.

"Government exhibited a great deal of interest and zeal when we first placed before them a scheme for re-organisation of the Lacquerware Industry—a cottage industry of great economic importance to the Town and of artistic value to the State. No little is our disappointment to find that that zeal has cooled down and that interest is waning. Numerous reminders have been sent, deputations have been convened and the Director of Industries and the Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies have both discussed the scheme in person with us. All this has taken us no further. We are where we were. Inviting hope? We're afloat, and we, in turn, made forceful assurances to the anxiously waiting artisans. All those promises we had received from the authorities and those that we had, in turn, made to workmen, are yet to be fulfilled. It was viewed with increasing premonition, that the growing demand for Lacquerware, due to lack of foreign imports, has been attracting profiteers from outside. We have seen how foreign speculators have been responsible for the present economic crisis in the Industry.

"Will not Government realise that the time is opportune to organise this useful industry? Will Government deny the support we are entitled to demand of them? Should not public opinion clamour against this undue delay which has been borne so patiently and so long?"

ferences that are stressed today as reasons for the making of a drastic cleavage between the Muslim population of India and the much older and larger Hindu population are negligible beside the bonds that unite them as children of one Universal Creator and citizens by ancient ancestry of a common country.

As followers of Islam we are in religious duty bound to seek the peace which is the centre of our Faith. There can be no peace when there are separations between individuals and groups. Every attempt to divide the followers of Islam among themselves is contrary to the true spirit of the Faith and is contrary to the chief characteristic of the Faith, namely, the spirit of tolerance which raises no barrier between its own adherents and those who by birth tread other paths towards spiritual happiness here and hereafter.

It only remains for me to express the hope that it will not be long before this mosque is completed. I congratulate you upon so noble an enterprise. It should be our endeavour to make this one of the most beautiful mosques in South India, a symbol of unity and an ornament to this beautiful City of ours. May it be felt as an inspiration and a force for good in every sphere of social and religious life.

ALLAHABAD LETTER

HUQ-HYAT ATTEMPTS 1

(From our Correspondent)
Allahabad, May 26

That Mr. Fazlul Huq and Sir Sikandar Hyat have been in correspondence with themselves and important political leaders and some Governors of the Provinces over the question of solving the present political deadlock is revealed from information in League circles here.

It is also stated that some leaders of the Bombay Conference and other prominent men are in possession of letters exchanged between some Government officials and some Non-Congress leaders. It is stated in informed circles that if the Huq-Hyat efforts also fail to move Simla and nothing comes off of these attempts the correspondence referred to here will be placed before the public to give them an idea of British unbending attitude in this matter.

It is stated Mr. Jinnah is being kept informed by Mr. Huq and Sir Sikandar and it is stated that at certain stage of these talks the whole matter will be brought to the notice of Mahatma Gandhi and he will be given the details of Huq-Hyat scheme. In order that the scheme might receive fuller support certain Congress leaders in jail are being kept informed as to what is happening in this respect. But there seems no prospect of their accepting the above proposals at this stage.

League circles are hopeful of expansion of the Executive Council of the Viceroy because of break up which seems imminent in the League following Mr. Fazlul Huq's latest outburst and Sir Sikandar's new formula. Mr. Jinnah's duel with Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru has also made the League circles feel a bit out-matched in diplomacy and that Mr. Jinnah has overshot his point. This virtual defeat of Mr. Jinnah by the rejection of his Pakistan in toto by Mr. Amery and its strong opposition by independent men like Sir Tej Bahadur has made the League circles a bit nervous of their propaganda. It is, therefore, advisable for them to seek a formula which will show a way out of this impossible position and restore their position with the British and Non-Congress political opinion.

A.R.P. MEASURE IN BENGAL

Discussed in Simla

Simla, May 30
A conference between representatives of the Government of India and those of the Bengal Government was held today, the Home Secretary, Mr. Conran Smith presiding. It is believed matters relating to A. R. P. measures in Bengal and apportionment of their cost between the Centre and the Province were discussed.

Sir Mirza Ismail also delivered the Convocation Address of the Madras University on August 5, 1938 at the invitation of His Excellency the Chancellor.

Sir Mirza Ismail has in Zebinda Begum, daughter of the late Mr. Muhammad Mirza Shrazeef of Bombay, a devoted self closely and with great zeal and energy with all that concerns the well-being and prosperity of the women and children of Mysore. They have one son (Mr. Humayun Mirza Service, and two daughters.

Bangalore C. & M. Station War Sub-Committee

HON. SECRETARY'S BROADCAST TO INDIAN RECRUITS

Bangalore, May 31

Mr. C. A. J. Hendry, Honorary Secretary of the Bangalore Cantonment War Committee, broadcast the following to the Indian recruits:-

The war information committee welcome the opportunity to have their broadcasting unit utilised to give speech to the recruits. Still more does it welcome the opportunity to address those recruits

In so doing, may we remind now before us, that they have become part of an elect, who in this uncertain world, of uncertain tasks and destiny, have in the vocation they have chosen, discarded the doubts, that assail so many of us: in joining the army, their task is definite, their objective is certain. The history of the army you join must occasion pride, both personal and national. The present story of India's army is not alone a story of militarism, it is not a story of the glory of conquest, it is not a story of the triumph of brute force.

It is something, greater, grander and more illustrious, in the annals of the unknown future that lies before us all.

The precision of movement, the efficient manipulation of your arms, the athletic development of the body, and its coordination with the brain,—these are material things, which may, or may not, play their part in your fellow countrymen's appreciation of your prowess; but, if we know the people of this land of India, as we think we do know them, then greater things, seem of greater consequence.

The people of this land, vast in territory, and august in spirit can see, in the part the soldiers of this country play at their self-appointed task on varied fields of battle, those greater attributes of the soldier to which, you, as recruits, have to aspire.

Self sacrifice, in a just cause, mutual help in dire conflict, bravery in adversity, obedience for the common good, the skill begotten of zeal; the protective instinct of the strong for the weak, the unity of the individual with individuals, the absence of parochial and mercenary outlook, and labour to the glory of your God.

BOMBAY GOVERNOR'S TALK WITH LEADERS

WHIPPING ACT IN FORCE IN BOMBAY AND AHMEDABAD

(Associated Press of India)

Bombay, May 30

Sir Roger Lumley, Governor of Bombay, had a talk with leaders of Hindu and Muslim communities at a separate meeting yesterday and assured them that Government would do everything in their power to restore normal conditions in the City. The posting of additional troops numbering three hundred at strategic points in the affected area had a salutary effect on the communal riot situation in the City today, there being only six assaults up to nine a.m. hereafter not a single case had been reported up to the time of wiring, 5 p.m. The presence of additional British troops coupled with vigorous propaganda by the Mayor's Peace Committee appear to have convinced the hooligan elements at least for the time being that they have no quarter.

Friday Prayers passed off peacefully. At 3 p.m. additional British troops requisitioned were withdrawn. The Standing Committee of Mayor's Conciliation Committee passed a resolution urging Government to put a ban on cyclists who in many cases have been responsible for a number of stabbing assaults. The Standing Committee express the view that the Mayor ought to impress the Governor when he interviewed the Governor this afternoon the need for such ban. Later, in the afternoon the Mayor interviewed the Governor and discussed the riot situation with His Excellency when it is presumed he placed before the Governor the views of his Committee on the question of the ban on cyclists.

Two persons arrested on charge of throwing missiles during riots have been awarded flogging sentences.

The Government of Bombay brought into operation both in Ahmedabad and Bombay Cities the new Whipping Act.

Publication of Gandhiji's Statements in Press

Issue Discussed in Standing Committee of Editors' Conference

A. P.

Simla, May 30

The Standing Committee of Newspaper Editors' Conference met this morning and devoted the whole sitting to discussion of complaints of nonobservance of agreement arrived at in Delhi with regard to press advising Mahatma Gandhi's statements to press.

Mr. B. J. Kirchner, Chief Press Adviser, was present at the meeting and the Committee explained to him that the Delhi agreement did not intend to mean as Government interpreted it to mean that all statements issued by Mahatma Gandhi should, without exception, be submitted for press advice, but that only statements calculated to encourage anti-war activities or promote civil disobedience were to be so submitted. The Committee made it clear that the discretion in the matter of deciding whether a particular statement made by Gandhiji was or was not of this character should be left to Editors of newspapers. Mr. Kirchner explaining his reactions stressed the importance of Government's standpoint and uniformity with regard to publication of Gandhiji's statements and dealt with the difficulty which would arise if different newspapers took different views about the need for press advising one and the same statement. Further discussion was adjourned till tomorrow.

Question Of "Harijan"

MEANING OF RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENTNO DIMINUTION OF ROYAL
PREROGATIVEAppointment and Dismissal of Minister Rests with Ruler

A. P. (Mail)
Hyderabad, Deccan, May 31
"The term Responsible Government should not be misunderstood. Misconception has been and appears to be persistent, that the ideal implies a diminution of the Royal Prerogatives of H. E. H. the Nizam. The scheme of Responsible Government does not contemplate any encroachment on the royal Prerogatives and the ruler's inherent rights and powers to confirm or veto all legislative and administrative measures or to issue emergency ordinances," said Mr. Kashinath to Vaidya, presiding over the third session of the Maharashtra Conference held at Umritsara in the district.

Proceeding Mr. Vaidya said, "The appointment and dismissal of popular ministers will also rest with the Ruler. The executive which will always be primarily responsible to the sovereign will necessarily have also the backing and support of the Legislature to whom it will also be responsible for its administration. A cabinet enjoying the confidence of a popular Legislature will command the unstinted cooperation of the public and strengthen the hands of the Ruler. This intimate and co-operation of the people in the administration of the country will on the one hand secure better results for the welfare and advancement of the State, and will on the other hand give our policy the necessary strength to preserve the sovereignty of the State from outside encroachment."

No Muslim Sovereignty
Referring to the theory stated to be propagated by a Muslim organisation that H. E. H. the Nizam is an embodiment of Islamic sovereignty in the State, Mr. Vaidya said, "This new and historical theory was being so audaciously propagated that it is being root even among ignorant Hindu Muslims. It is considered that the sovereignty is vested in the Muslims of the State and that His Exalted Highness is merely a symbol of their sovereignty. On the one hand these people cannot tolerate the idea of Responsible Government because they think that the prerogatives of the Ruler will be taken thereby, and ostensibly to fight the idea of Responsible Government tooth and nail on this pretext. But at the same time they have come out now with this curious theory that the sovereignty is vested only in the Muslims of the State. If the Muslims say that the sovereignty is vested in the subjects of the State in general, it would not be objectionable to any one in view of the advanced ideas of the times. But an attempt to make invidious distinction between the two communities is suicidal in the interests of the State. To say that Hyderabad is a Muslim Kingdom, in this sense, is an attempt to alienate the sympathies of the Hindus from the State. We consider that this State is of both the Muslims and Hindus and to say that His Exalted Highness the Nizam is a ruler only of the Muslims is contradicting past history. I want my Muslim friends to understand that His Exalted Highness is the Ruler of a crore and half people and not only of fifteen lakhs of Muslims. By such allegations they are weakening the strength of the State, as well as that of the Ruler. They also forget that this claim of theirs contradicts the Gracious Firman of His Exalted Highness in which he has said that as a King he has no religion but that of looking to the welfare of the subjects, although as an individual he is a Muslim."

"H. E. H. the Nizam has recently," he said, "given an expression to his views on this subject on more than one occasion, and declared in unmistakable terms that all his subjects are equal and that no community has right to claim any superiority over another by reason of religion, or creed. He has also made it quite clear that matters of State and of religion are altogether separate and the personal religion of a ruler has not to be confused with his position as a ruler of subjects professing different faiths and religions."

EDITORS' CONFERENCE
STANDING COMMITTEE"Harijan" Question Discussed

A. P. Simla, June 1
The Standing Committee of Newspaper Editors' Conference met again today in the Press Room of Government of India.

A resolution opining that there never was any justification for U.P. Government's demand for a total security of Rs. 6,000 from "Sainik" of Agra, regretting that instead of cancelling the order altogether the U. P. Government had only reduced the amount of demand to Rs. 1,000 and opining that a vital question of principle was involved in this instance and that nothing short of complete cancellation of the original order would meet the requirements of the case, was passed.

By another resolution the Committee put on record and communicated to the Government its opinion that in Provinces where Provincial Press Advisory Committees were functioning the Governments should not promulgate any ordinance or order under the Defence of India Rules of a nature to restrict the rights and liberties of the Press without consultation with the Provincial Press Advisory Committees and that where such ordinances or orders had been passed without such consultation, the ordinances and orders should immediately be reviewed by the Government concerned in consultation with the Provincial Press Advisory Committee.

Mr. Mahadev Desai explained to the Committee the circumstances wherein it was first decided by Gandhiji in response to the resolution of the Standing Committee to revive the "Harijan" and which later led to the idea of being dropped indefinitely as a result of certain correspondence with the Government, the contents of which he was not in a position to place before the Committee.

After disposing of other business the Committee adjourned sine die.

SIR MIRZA ON HIS RETIREMENT

Delightful Function at the Inter-College
Bangalore, June 2

Sir Mirza M. Ismail the Ex-Dewan of Mysore was the guest of honour at a delightful party got up by the Managing Committee of the Intermediate College Association yesterday morning.

As soon as Sir Mirza got down from his car he was received by Rajakaryapavina N.S. Subbarao the Vice Chancellor of the Mysore University, Mr. M. Sesha Iyengar the Superintendent of the Inter College Dr. C. S. Pitchamuthu the Registrar and Mir Mohideen Hussain the Vice President of the Union.

After light refreshments Mr. Mohideen welcomed the Ex-Dewan and thanked him for the ready encouragement given to the union and wished him long and prosperous retired life.

Sir Mirza's Speech

Sir Mirza thanked the Union for the honour done to him and wished the students splendid success in their careers. "I do not know how many times I have visited this union. Every time I have visited this place I have been shown unbounded courtesy from my young friends. I wish them well in the careers they have chosen. I find that our students suffer from pessimism. That ought to go. They should face the world courageously and move forward. So long as you are honest and your motives are good you could move boldly without fear or favour. Many of the students who pass out from the Colleges wish to remain in the State itself. But Mysore cannot provide them with work. They should go out into the world and earn name and fame. The market value for Mysoreans is very high at present. I have heard from well known sources that Mysoreans who have established far beyond the State's confines have acquitted themselves very creditably. Those of you who go out must be very honest. Others should rely on you. That should be your earnest endeavour."

Sir Visveswaraya's ideal
Speaking about his retired life Sir Mirza with visible emotion security demanded from Sainik, Agra, has been reduced by the United Provinces Government from Rs. 6,000 to Rs. 1,000. The case of 'National Herald' further discussion has been adjourned till tomorrow.

WITHDRAWAL FROM CRETE15000 British Troops Back to EgyptGERMAN BOMBERS TRY TO PREVENT WITHDRAWALS

Heavy Losses on Both Sides in Crete
After twelve days of what is undoubtedly the fiercest fighting in this war it was decided to withdraw British forces from Crete, states an announcement from the War Office in London. The announcement adds—

Although our forces have inflicted heavy losses on enemy troops and aircraft, our military forces could not be expected to operate indefinitely in Crete. A more air support could not be provided from our bases in Africa. Fifteen thousand of our troops have been withdrawn to Egypt and it must be admitted our losses have been severe. It is not known how many British troops were in Crete but it is understood that 15 thousand includes only our troops and not Greeks.

General Frybeeg C-in-C of New Zealanders, is said to have left Crete already with this troops and his Cretan operation will rank as the greatest that he had guided. British forces, New Zealanders and Australians have shown fighting spirit unsurpassed in this war or any other. For twelve days they stood up to the most intensive bombing ever inflicted on our troops in field.

Whereas we had to operate from Egypt 300 miles away. Germans could operate air forces from Greek mainland 70 miles away. The strategic result of our successful resistance will be seen in future when the whole of the great battles of the Eastern Mediterranean come to be judged.

GERMAN OBSTRUCTION FOR BRITISH WITHDRAWAL

During the course of withdrawal of the British troops from Crete, German dive bombers tried their best to prevent it. Five dive bombers were shot down and two other aircraft were also destroyed.

said "During the long period of my Office as Dewan I have tried my best to industrialise the country. You all know how Sir M. Visveswaraya even in his retired life is working with zeal to promote the interests of the country.

I will follow his example and devote the rest of my life for the betterment of our country. We were just discussing about the starting of the commerce classes. You have a Vice-Chancellor who is a great educationist and noted inspiration. I am sure under his tutelage you will grow in stature. I wish you success.

N. Mohideen then introduced the chief guest. After shaking hands with those present Sir Mirza took leave of his host.

Daily News

TUESDAY—JUNE 3, 1941

THE NEW DEWAN

We once again offer our heartiest congratulations to Rajamantravina Mr. N. Madhava Rao on his elevation to the high office of Dewan of Mysore. It is a very proud and coveted office. Great men whose names are remembered with pride in Mysore and in India, adorned that office with distinction. It has been the good fortune of Mr. Madhava Rao to assume that high office at a time when things are taking a new shape in Mysore.

The war has been adding to our anxiety day by day. The future is uncertain. In the midst of this uncertainty, there is an undying hope in us that the British will achieve ultimate victory.

As far as the Indian situation is concerned it is unfortunate that the British Government have not been dealing with India in a statesmanlike manner. All the same, none can deny India her birth-right. At the end of the war India is bound to achieve her freedom.

In Indian States, a new life has been pulsating and people have been eager to share power with the Rulers. The movement for responsible government in Indian States has been growing strong. In Mysore too we have the Mysore Congress movement with a definite objective, policy and programme. We are sure the new Dewan will have watched the trend and growth of public opinion in Mysore. We have every confidence that Mr. Madhava Rao would rise to the occasion and tender such advice to His Highness the Maharaja that will contribute to lasting peace and prosperity of the country. In view of the fact that our Maharaja is still young in years the responsibility is much greater on the part of his chief adviser, we mean, the Dewan. The Pattabhisekham Message of His Highness the Maharaja has been still ringing in our ears. We reproduce that here:—

"My beloved people—I have been profoundly moved by the innumerable marks of respect and affection for my revered uncle, the late Maharaja Sri Krishnaraja Wodeyar Bahadur, which have poured in from the rich and the poor, from high and low, and from every quarter of the State. Such testimony to the loss, which they as well as I have sustained, has brought much consolation to me and to the members of my house and will be a source of strength to sustain me in the great task upon which I am

In succeeding to the throne of Mysore, I follow a great Ruler who loved you all and who won your love by his love of God, his wisdom, his graciousness, his humility, his faithfulness to duty and his kingly greatness. His Memory will be ever with us. It is a bitter memory now when we are feeling the full shock of his loss. The gap he leaves in all our lives will grow sweeter as years go on and as we learn to appreciate the more all that he meant to us and to mould our lives by his. It is now for us to dedicate ourselves to the fulfilment of his great task and we shall succeed in fulfilling it if we so consecrate ourselves in the spirit of one great family.

"The world is very full of troubles today and it is only by meeting these troubles in a spirit of unity and self-sacrifice that we can win through. In this spirit, I look upon this ceremony of ascending the throne of my ancestors as a dedication of myself, my life and all I have to the service of the people of Mysore, but I am fully conscious that no effort of mine can succeed alone. I need your help and your co-operation, your confidence and your love. May God grant me light and strength in the discharge of the sacred duty entrusted to me and may His blessings in abundance rest on and brighten every hearth and home in Mysore—Jaya Chamaraja Wadiyar."

It is the eloquent message of a noble and young patriotic Indian Ruler who has dedicated his life to the service of his people. This message has gone deep into the hearts of the people and has evoked noble responsive feelings.

His Highness addressing his beloved people said:

'No effort of mine can succeed alone. I need your help and co-operation, your confidence and your love.'

We hope Mr. Madhava Rao would do everything in his power in the spirit of this message to evoke people's co-operation, people's confidence and people's love. This is a great task, very responsible task. The problems before us are not simple. They are very intricate and complex. They call for highest statesmanship, and sympathetic understanding of people's needs and aspirations.

In this age of democracy people would like to be treated as brothers and equals. They do not like the domineering and superior patronising attitude on the part of officers however high they may be. The attitude of people towards the official world has changed considerably. They consider them as servants of the Maharaja and people. That is the true spirit of a civil servant. And the Dewan today is nothing but the first servant of the people. It is this changed spirit that is needed today and we have every confidence that our new Dewan has this spirit of service in abundance.

We wish Rajamantravina Mr. N. Madhava Rao, Dewan of Mysore, every success

NEWSPRINT SUPPLY

Representation to Government of India

(From our Correspondent)

Simla May 31
It is understood that a detailed representation has been made by Indian and Eastern Newspaper Society to Government of India regarding import restrictions on newsprint. The suggestions made by the Society for Government's consideration are firstly that for calculating the newspaper's normal requirements it should be given option of choosing anyone of the following three basic periods viz, August 1940 to January 1941 or the whole year 1940 or whole year 1939.

Secondly, licences should be granted to newspapers for the quantity of the total purchases during the basic period and not on the basis of direct import and alternatively means should be provided to enable newspapers to obtain supplies of the full quantity of their purchases without being subjected to delays or profiteering.

Thirdly, orders placed by bone fide newspapers and accepted by mills before 12th April but not yet shipped, should be exempted from license.

Fourthly, newsprint should be placed immediately on priority list of shipments from Canada, U. S. A. and Newfoundland.

Fifthly, all the three existing sources of supply, namely Canada, New Foundland, and U.S.A., should be grouped together for purposes of licence and shipping. Sixthly, steps should be immediately taken to remove the existing confusion and protect newspapers from loss through artificial rise in prices of the existing stocks due to misunderstanding of Government's intentions.

Consultations are going on between editors present at Simla and Commerce Member on the subject of restriction with a view to reducing possible hardship to newspapers to a minimum.

"Hitler will Not Win"

HITLER WILL NOT WIN THE WAR

HARRY HOPKINS' ARTICLE IN "AMERICAN"

"With American Help Democracies will Attain Superiority"

In an article in "American" Harry Hopkins, the Lease Lend officer says Hitler will not win this war. He has not got the real sea power and he is slowly losing his air superiority. He cannot call the resources of the British Empire and America. It is contrary to every American interest, economic and political to allow Hitler to consolidate his position. With our help another year the democracies will equal Germany and will thereafter inevitably attain superiority."

Mr. CORDELL HULL AND "BISMARCK" SINKING

Secretary Expresses Satisfaction

(Associated Press Service)

London

The Daily Telegraph's Washington Correspondent cabled on May 27:

Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, expressed satisfaction at his press conference today, that the British Navy had sunk the Bismarck. This was the first time the Secretary had officially welcomed any concrete achievement of the British Navy.

Hitherto he has always exhibited diplomatic reticence, at times in public, and confined himself to expressions of a general character against aggression. His statement today demonstrates that the Administration does not consider it worth while to preserve even outward forms of neutrality.

American delight at the British victory was expressed by the Washington Star, which said: "America has real cause to rejoice with Britain over her latest naval feat. The Royal Navy's vengeance has tremendous psychological potentialities."

The New York Sun said: "No British are needed to give the British and American public the impression of a speedy complete revenge. Who challenges the British Lion at sea must be prepared to take as much as give strong blows."

While not minimising the loss of the Hood, the general opinion is that the loss of the Bismarck was not serious for Germany, if only because Admiral Raeder cannot afford to trade loss for loss in battleships with the British.

BAN ON BENGAL PRESS RESCINDED

RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED DUE TO COMMUNAL RIOTS

Explanation by Government Press Note

(Associated Special Service)

Calcutta, June 2

An order issued this evening by the Political Department of the Government of Bengal states that in exercise of the power conferred by the Defence of India Rules the Governor of Bengal is pleased to rescind with effect from 1st June 1941 the order dated 22nd March 1941 passed on all printers and publishers and editors in Bengal requiring them to submit all matter relating to any communal disturbance in the Province, whether by way of news, comment, correspondence, advertisement, illustration, or otherwise for scrutiny in Calcutta to the Special Press Adviser and elsewhere to the District Press Adviser.

Explaining the order a Press Note states, this order was promulgated at a time when very serious communal disturbances had broken out in Dacca City. Representations were subsequently received for withdrawal of the order and these were accompanied by assurances more than once given to the Government that the press, as a whole, deprecated the publication of any matter which is calculated to make communal situation worse. In consideration of these assurances Government now decided to withdraw the order imposing censorship on publication of matter relating to communal disturbances with effect from 1st June 1941.

EXPANSION OF CIVIC GUARDS CONSIDERED

REPORTED GERMAN PLANS IN FRANCE

Annexation of Territory?

(By cable) London

The Times Diplomatic Correspondent writes on May 27:

During these few days there has come into the hands of the Free French headquarters in London a document signed by General Doyen, chief of the French armistice commission in Wiesbaden, wherein the General reports the intention of the Reich, if it wins the war, to annex the whole or part of nine departments of north and north-eastern France.

According to General Doyen's report, the terms of which have been broadcast to France by a Free French spokesman, Nord, Pas de Calais, part of Somme, part of Aisne, Ardennes, Meuse, Meurthe-et-Moselle, part of Haute-Saone and part of Doubs Departments would not only be annexed to Germany as Alsace and Lorraine have been already, but would be colonized by Germans. Presumably with this project in view, every inducement is now being offered to French workers in those departments to leave their homes and seek work in Germany.

CONDITIONS IN JAPAN

What a British Observer Thinks

(By cable) London

The Manchester Guardian's London correspondent writes on May 27th:

A warning against wishful thinking in regard to the Japan and China war has been given in London by a British observer lately returned from Japan. The drain of war is enormous: 1,500,000 soldiers have been held in China for three years, but the people at home in Japan are ready for suffering, and the new national spirit and mobilisation movement are helping to produce this preparedness. The drain of war has been reduced, and the new synthetic materials are so poor that a boy's suit lasts only three weeks. But no signs of revolution in Japan and thought the people would suffer a great deal before that happened.

Bombay, June 2

The appointment of an Enquiry Committee by a High Court Judge and including non-officials to find out the causes which were responsible for the communal riots in the city is suggested by the Committee of the Indian Merchants Chamber in a representation to H. E. the Governor. The Chamber expresses its opinion that there was "organised conspiracy behind these sporadic murderous assaults". It points out while some sort of religious or communal question was always the prime cause of the riots in the past, this time there had not appeared any such religious or communal cause, leading to the view that there was some organised conspiracy behind. The Chamber criticised the present police arrangements to meet the riots and urged for more reinforcements.

New Mysore Dewan

Like Sir Mirza Ismail, whom he succeeds as Dewan of Mysore, Mr. N. Madhava Rau has a long record of service with the State.

His administrative experience is wide and varied. Joining the State Service in 1907 as Probationary Assistant Commissioner, Mr. Madhava Rau was First Member of the Executive Council when Sir Mirza Ismail resigned. In Mysore's industries he has taken a keen interest, and twelve years ago he represented the State as Trade Commissioner in London. Earlier he was deputed abroad to organise sandal oil sales in Europe and America.

Mr. Madhava Rau accompanied Sir Mirza Ismail to the Round Table Conferences and also attended the meetings of the Joint Parliamentary Committee. Six years ago he was appointed to the Mysore Executive Council.

HOW NAZIS USE FRENCH PRISONERS

(By Cable) London.

The Times' Lisbon Correspondent cabled on May 26:

Marshal Petain's "crid coeur" with regard to his responsibilities for French prisoners of war gains point from stories told by several travellers from occupied France about the German habit of sending groups of emaciated prisoners back to their villages for a few days as object lessons of increasing hardships that would follow a French attempt to evade the "follies" of collaboration with Germany.

The prisoners are thus given greater value at the bargaining counters when it is hinted that they may even die of hunger if means are not found to secure their release.

THE BOMBAY RIOTS

The Bombay riots tell their own tale. It is perplexing why in spite of the best efforts of the authorities the riots have not been showing any signs of abatement. On the other hand, we find the disturbances are on the increase. The Governor of Bombay has determined to quell these disturbances. He has spoken to the merchants and businessmen. The Peace Committee has been formed. Those who have studied the situation have come to the view that there is an organised conspiracy behind these riots. It is not mere religious or communal misunderstanding that is responsible for this unhappy situation. We hope the police authorities will unearth this conspiracy and make it impossible for fresh troubles to crop up.

We, who have been living hundreds of miles off, cannot be comfortable while everyday people are being stabbed in Bombay. What happened in Bombay, happened in Ahmedabad and several other places. Every thinking man ought to exercise his mind over this curious coincidence. One who has bestowed some thought over this situation cannot but come to the irresistible conclusion that this is all due to the Pakistan cry. Gullible and unsophisticated people are made to pay a heavy sacrifice for the pet slogans of the upper ten. In this situation, bravery, courage and presence of mind are absolutely essential. By force people cannot be coerced into accepting an unjust position. By the slaughter of the innocents, it is futile to hope that Pakistan will gain the upper hand. It has already become a discredited proposition. Wise and patriotic leaders like Sir Sikander Hyat Khan have set their countenance against the Pakistan idea. India is one and indivisible. Any number of riots cannot divide India into Hindustan and Pakistan. We hope those leaders who have been egging on the innocent masses will desist from their unworthy attempts and try to restore peace and understanding in this land.

Whatever this may be, we should not lose patience. We have been passing through trying times. Unless we surmount up the best in us, the situation cannot improve. It is all a trial and ordeal which we should pass through with courage, keeping ourselves steady to our goal. These riots cannot and ought not to stand in the way of Indian freedom. Any attempts by foreigners to exploit these diffe

Egypt's Confidence in Final Result

BRITISH MORALE UNDER BOMBING

(By Cable) Cairo
Dr. Ali Ahmed Soliman who has returned to Egypt after studying for eight years at the Liverpool University describes in the Al Itnein the heroism of the British people who have balked by extra-ordinary courage and patriotism, all the attempts of Hitler to bring them to their knees and remarks, "the wonderful spirit displayed by the Britons during the terrible air raid is proof of the invincibility of the Commonwealth of Free Nations which is known as the British Empire. There are no defeatists among the English and they are fully confident of final victory of the Empire which for centuries has held the highest place among the powers of the world". After describing the courage of the civilians he says, "As for the women of England they are rendering untold services to their country by volunteering to take up work generally done by their husbands, brothers and sons. Their readiness to make every sacrifice for England entitles them to the esteem of the whole world."

Soliman returned in a British Navy escorted convoy without any incident.

Makram Pasha, Secretary-General of the Wafd speaking at a meeting of the Egyptian Oxford Society which was attended by the British Ambassador and a number of Anglo-Egyptian personalities declared, "We hope that Britain will win. We hope from bottom of our hearts that she will triumph against Germany. We wish her victory as friends and allies. We hope her victory will be a complete and final victory for democracy against dictatorships of every sort."

Makram's speech, says the Al Mokattam, was greeted with tremendous applause.

Ahmed Abdul Ghaffar, Minister for Agriculture, says "We wish for the final victory of Britain with all our hearts. We are certain that whatever blows, obstacles and difficulties she may meet with, the results are assured and England will come out of this war victorious not only for herself but for the sake and benefit of humanity and mankind everywhere."

Hassanein Pasha, Chief of the Royal Cabinet has paid a tribute to the British character of which the spirit of fairplay is one of the noblest traits.

BANGALORE C. & M. STATION WAR INFORMATION SUB COMMITTEE

Comments Made for the Broadcasting

Van
Bangalore, June 2
Mr. C.A.J. Henry, Honorary Secretary of the Bangalore Cantonment War Committee, broadcast the following to the Indian recruits:-

Gentlemen, as you listen to us, we often wonder if you realise what war means, one might feel that shots are fired, which one dodges or takes shelter from until the enemy passes on his way, to hit anybody but you.

In actual practice a shell has the effect of an earthquake, one is not so likely to be killed by an actual blow from the shell, as by the collapse it causes to a building or the mass of material it hurls about.

As a rule, you do not see where a shell comes from, it cannot only be fired from, 90 miles away, but where it strikes the earth or building, the effect, that is killing effect, can be felt over a radius of as much as a mile in the case of a 15" gun.

Bombs dropped from aeroplanes, can weigh up to about a ton, or you may know of quite little incendiary bombs, which will however burn through an ordinary roof.

Poison gas was used by the Germans in Poland, it causes torture to eyes, nose, sometimes melting the lungs. If it be a liquid gas you dare not touch it, if it be a vapour gas you cannot see it, but without a gas mask you can smell it.

Now why do we mention these things at all; we do so, because we think there is a tendency to feel here, that the war is something very remote, but gentlemen it does concern you, it does concern me, and the man next door.

Surely you would not have our soldiers, sailors, and airmen, die in vain. Is it too much to ask what they have done, is it too much to ask what we can do. When you think of the combat which rages, but three short days from us by air are we right to feel that these events are no concern of ours.

This is not a question as to whether democracy is right, if Congress is right, if Hindu or Mohammedan, should get equal or preferential treatment. It is not a question as to whether the British Government should be in India, or a question of Princes of Federation.

It is a question as to whether they should exist at all; it is not a question as to whether our present policy is good or evil if we can improve on it, those are things, that come in an appointed time, if in a peacetime channel.

But today we are not being asked, the enemy is knocking at the gate and we have to ask ourselves today, this hour, this moment do we want the gate to be thrown open, are we as badly off as we thought we were?

Gentlemen, we ask you, forget Great Britain for a moment, forget this country, think of Poland, think of those submerged

High appreciation by Sir Shaw Bhutto

Bangalore, June 2
Sir Shah Bhutto, Ex-Minister, Bombay and Ex-Prime Minister, Sind, now Member of the Public Service Commission, Government of Bombay, who was in Bangalore for a short stay paid a visit to the Fruit Research Station, Hessarghatta, on Saturday the 31st May, 1941, with Rao Bahadur H. countries of Europe. Did their inhabitants have no grievance against their Government, did not some have bitterness in their hearts against the established order of that day. Were there not parties, for and against, this and that.

But we ask you, how many of those peoples today, now tortured, now dying in torment, how many of those who have lost their all, how many of those who have seen their sons go to death, and their daughters to worse than death, how many of them are looking for the days of only a few months ago.

The world may have seemed a little grey then, but today the blackness of the shadow and death is over the pitiful remnant of their ruined lives.

In a little while you will leave here and go back to your homes and, be they rich or poor, they are yours, to do in them as you will, no one will insist on your doing this thing or that and it is this liberty of action we are fighting for, it may not be the most efficient form of life, but it is your life, and wish. To take away this liberty is to render your destiny but as the dust.

IRAQI REBELLION

Egyptian Press on Emir Abdel Illah's Return

(By Cable) Cairo
Al Mokattam commenting on the reported abatement of the Iraq rebellion observes, "Iraq has already suffered the consequences of her withdrawal from the sterling group which has caused great confusion among Iraqi markets and even in national finances. It is hoped that matters will resume the normal course after the return of Emir Abdel Illah and that this Arab country will not be exposed to any more horrors of war than what it has already suffered."

India the land where all roads meet and wend their way together however differently to a common goal.

The West has taken the place of the East in the very East itself and India has become distraught.

Let all who love India passionately, and who are not ashamed either by their minds or by their emotions or by their habits and customs or by their fear of public opinion into denying the very passion of their love, dedicate themselves ardently, fervently, to the India whose soul yearns for the homage of Her children, and without whose homage either from this generation or from a generation yet to come Her soul can in no wise warm into vibrant and glowing life.

Let India be worshipped once more—worshipped as a devotee worships God or Goddess, worshipped as the devout Muslim turns to Mecca, worshipped as the Christian gazes in ardour to the Christ and to His Lady Mother, worshipped as the little child adores his mother.

Then she shall arise in glorious freedom and ordered growth to mother the offspring of Her sacred soil, and to mother, too, that world which so sorely needs mothering, proud though that world be of her civilization and culture, as if these had brought her happiness and not war and hatred and desolation, and the denial of that Universal Brotherhood which has yet to be a reality in the world, has yet to be mothered into reverent recognition by India, the Mother of nations and their civilization and culture.

Iceland's Declaration of Independence

SAID TO BE CONSUMMATION OF ORIGINAL POLICY

(By Cable) London
'The Times' writes on May 28:

It is, of course unnecessary, indeed impossible, to contradict every falsehood of Nazi propaganda, but it seems worth-while to deny the statements being made on the German wireless that Iceland's declaration of independence was issued under pressure from Great Britain. The British Government carefully abstained from interfering either in the internal affairs of Iceland or in the relations between Iceland and Denmark. It has always been part of British policy to strengthen Scandinavian solidarity and urge that, if the changes agreed are desirable, they shall be effected by legal means.

The unilateral declaration of separation from Denmark by the Icelandic Althing may or may not have been strictly constitutional, but, in any case, the policy of asserting its independence had been followed by the Government of Reykjavik for some time and had been begun before the British troops arrived on the island. As soon as the Germans invaded Denmark, the Icelandic Government took over the King of Denmark's powers "for the time being." The Althing also decided that Iceland should assume control of her own foreign affairs, and voted that she should exercise the fishery inspection rights which belonged to the Danish Government. Only ten days afterwards did the British troops arrive as a precaution against the seizure of the island by Germany. How useful it might have been to her as a naval base has been very clearly shown by the sea battle of these last days.

Now Iceland has proclaimed her own total independence. It is her present intention to be attached to no other country—neither Denmark nor the British Empire either. Britain, of course, has no plan to include Iceland in her "New Order" as Germany has for Denmark.

WIDE POWERS TO U. S. WARSHIP COMMANDERS

Protecting Naval Forces in Territorial Waters

(By Cable)

London
The Daily Mail's Washington Correspondent cabled on May 26:

Grand Admiral Reader received a swift answer from the United States tonight to the threat he made yesterday that Germany would sink American convoys.

No formal reply was given, but Colonel Knox, Secretary of the Navy, introduced into Congress a Bill giving sweeping power to the commanders of United States warships protecting territorial waters.

The Bill will empower naval commanders to take "whatever steps they deem necessary within territorial waters for the protection of United States naval forces." Only the Secretaries of the Navy and the Chief of Naval Operations have such authority at present, and commanders have had to signal back to them before going fully into action against the enemy.

Anger reached fever pitch when the Berlin Foreign Office repeated and enlarged on Reader's threat.

POSSIBILITIES OF LARGE SCALE DEVELOPMENT

Mysore State, the Chief Production Centre

Simla, June 2

Minerals play an important role in modern methods of warfare. One of the most highly useful minerals from this point of view is chromite, of which India fortunately possesses a good supply. The development of stainless steel containing 20 per cent chromium has given a great impetus to the use of this metal; and the war has further increased its utility, so that the consumption of chromium is now many times greater than before.

Since the war began attention has been directed to the possibilities of the development in India of a chrome industry on a large scale. A bulletin on mineral chromite, issued by the Geological Survey of India, deals with this question systematically, and discusses the occurrences of this mineral in India, its various uses, the manufacture of chromium, ferro-chrome, chromates, chrome-bricks and various matters connected with grades, prices and the marketing of the ore.

Formerly, Turkey and New Caledonia were the chief sources of supply for chromite, but since 1937 Southern Rhodesia, Russia, South Africa and Cuba have come into prominence; Indian production is less than 5 per cent of the total world production, but the quality is high.

Mysore, the Chief Producing Centre

In India, Mysore State is the chief producing centre of chrome-ore, accounting for nearly half the total Indian production, while about one-third comes from the Hindubagh mines near Quetta. Practically the whole of the chrome-ore mined in India is exported, part of it returning in the form of dichromates of potash and soda.

Bright Prospect

The chief importance of the chromite industry in India has been due to the export trade. But now there appear prospects in other directions. With the development of cheap power, there appears to be a bright future for the smelting of chrome-ore in electrical furnaces to produce ferro-chrome. The production of dichromate is likely to be commenced in the near future by a prominent Indian firm, and it is hoped that this will meet the whole of the Indian demand for this chemical. Considering the progress which is being made in connection with schemes for the manufacture in India of aircraft, car engines and armourplate, there seems little doubt that more and more chrome will be consumed in the manufacture of ferro-chrome in this country.

MAHAKOSAL CONGRESS PRESIDENT ARRESTED

(Associated Press of India)

Nagpur, June, 2

Mr. Girija Shankar Agnihotri of Mandla, President, Mahakosal Provincial Congress, was arrested yesterday at Nainpur station under the Defence of India Rules and has been ordered to be detained until further orders by the Government.

More than 10,000 messages bearing on national emergency reached Mr. Roosevelt this morning.

THE GLORY THAT IS INDIA

Dr George S. Arundale

travels and unyieldingly the glory that is India, and seek to win for that Glory recognition from all throughout the world who are sons and daughters who recognize her glory must ever worship at the Shrinest—The Shrinest of Truth, Her Culture, Her Statecraft, Her Education, Her Industry. You must be your Mother and be proud of her indeed.

There are many of Her sons daughters who have forgotten their love and respect for Her. They copy the manner and his ways and thus per their souls for a mess of pottage.

Many of these are there India is weak and impotent, ruled among the nations of the world, enslaved in Her own helplessness.

There are a few who still Her as she really is, who love Her as she was, who love culture that was once so dying and now is almost dying; the death blows of foreign prostitution of all that is beautiful in Her arts and sciences and those heroes and names who gave Her greatness the days gone by, who love as she is with Her real sleep and only a distorted dream to show that there is a wondrous India waiting to be awakened by Her own people, by the men and women youth of Her own blood, who love Her as she is to be in the hour strikes for Her birth.

Let these few, and they are few, be valiant for India Mother, for India the soul of the world, for India the cradle of Universal Truth. Let them ceaselessly exalt India, let India give their lives for her, even if at times they experience in their enthusiasm too often has there been exaggeration of India's shadows, too rarely of her light.

Foreign Influences

Is not India lonely? Is not her heart riven? Where are those who love Her with an abandoned devotion even within her own land? Suffocated under a myriad foreign thoughts enshrouded in the minds of Her own children. Disfigured in the foreign dress and foreign ways affected by thousands upon thousands of these very children, compelled to conform to foreign etiquette, fearful of ostracism and indifference on the part of those to whom she has perforce to look for favours: thus lying helpless on the ground India is no longer the Self she was, no longer is India to be found in the places and the homes of Her people, but only a cheap imitation of all that is foreign, only a cringing worship of the foreign gods of fashion and convention seen by the Western-educated who influenced in substitution of the God given images of the Hindu—masks of the Divine, for the silent formlessness of the Indian conception of God, for the subtle and mystical conception of the Buddhist, for the idea of the Christian.

Members of every Faith have forgotten their respective roads to God and thus have forgotten

OUTPUT OF TANKS AND GUNS British Factories' Record

(By Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph's Military correspondent wrote on May 23:

In the first quarter of this year the output of both tanks and guns of British Factories exceeded by 50 per cent the figure for the final quarter of last year, which was the best period of 1940, and constituted a record.

Present indications are that the increase in production has been further accelerated since the end of March and that the current quarter will establish a new high record both for guns and tanks.

Reports from all over the country indicate that the effect of air raids on production has been substantially less than the enemy expected, while bombing has in no way diminished the morale of workers.

In some of our war factories machines are producing at 40, and in some cases 50, per cent above their rated capacity. Six months ago Government experts had declared that the rate of output now being achieved by these machines would be impossible.

IRAQ ARMISTICE TERMS

It provides for the return of the country to normal conditions, return of Iraqi troops to their former posts, release of British prisoners, internment of Axis prisoners, handing over of Iraqi rebels to the Regent who arrived in Baghdad and who was given enthusiastic reception. The new Government of Iraq, to be set up by the Regent, will permit the British troops to pass through the country in accordance with the Anglo-Iraqi treaty of alliance.

COMMUNAL RIOTS IN BOMBAY

41 DEAD AND OVER 1800 ARRESTED SO FAR

Assailants cause havoc in the City A.P. Bombay, June 2.

Eight incidents of communal disturbances occurred today in Bombay City. Two persons who were injured yesterday died in the hospital bringing the total number of the dead since the beginning of the riots to 41. Total number of arrests exceed 1,800.

The first incident of the day occurred early in the morning when a ready-made clothes shop was set on fire. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes. This was followed, a little later, by a disturbance in the vicinity of one textile mill where one was stabbed and another was assaulted. The mill workers were scared and dispersed. One mill had to remain idle as a consequence. Tension is reported to be continuing in that locality.

Another stabbing outrage occurred in a very busy part of the City. A lorry was stopped in front of a shop for delivery of articles when an assailant got upon the footboard and stabbed the person seated in the vehicle.

In the afternoon, the watchman of a popular resort was stabbed.

At 8 in the evening, a person attempting to enter a cemetery of an other community was chased and missiles were hurled at him. He received a number of injuries.

Cases of attempted looting are reported. A stove repair shop was broken into and some damage was done. 9 persons have been arrested in this connection. The looting of an oil shop was foiled by the arrival of

NON-OFFICIAL MINISTERS UNDER NEW REFORMS

TO BE ANNOUNCED BEFORE SESSION OF ASSEMBLY

Mysore Congress Out of Picture

Bangalore, June 4. It is reliably understood that the Mysore Congress Party is out of the picture as far as the non-official ministry is concerned.

The appointment of the two non-official ministers, it is learnt, will be announced a few days before the commencement of the session of the Assembly. It is very likely that the appointment will be announced within two or three days.

As far as the Mysore Congress Party is concerned, their policy and programme is said to stand against appointing them as ministers. In the first place, it is said, that Mysore Congress is more or less pursuing the policy of Indian National Congress which is against war effort. Mysore Congress is also said to be under the influence of outside advice.

Moreover, the attitude of Mysore Congress towards the new Reforms, it is said, is not one of co-operation. Their resolutions seem to indicate that they are bent upon defeating the purpose of the reforms.

It is also understood that another difficulty is in respect of the new constitution itself. There is no Diarchy here, and the Cabinet works with joint responsibility. And besides, the new Reforms are not based on party system of Government.

For some of the above reasons it is understood that there is no chance of any person from Mysore Congress Party being selected as Minister. Anyway, the appointment of non-official Ministers, is likely to be announced, in a day or two.

PRESIDENT OF L. C.

Bangalore, June 4. The appointment of Non-official President of the Legislative Council, it is understood, will be announced to-morrow.

FRANCO-BRITISH RELATIONS

VICHY CABINET DISCUSSES

The Vichy Cabinet met twice on June 3. General Weygand, Commander-in-Chief of the French territories in North Africa, was present at the first meeting. Admiral Darlan presided over the second meeting and it was stated officially that discussions were of certain importance. Messages from Vichy indicate that the Cabinet discussed Franco-British relations, as also the situation in Syria and Tunisia.

TURKS HIGHLY CONCERNED OVER SYRIA

The Turks continue to be highly concerned over Syria. Deputy Sadak writing in "Aksam" which is close to Foreign Office states that France has no claim to Adana nor Syria "which Turks only gave up on condition the country was guaranteed independence. It is lunacy for a defeated France to talk about claims to Adana. What connection has this with Franco-German rapprochement? From political and military viewpoints it is imperative that Britain should take over Syria, especially as military experts now hold that Germans will try to establish themselves in Syria prior to attacking Cyprus."

NAZI STRENGTH IN SYRIA SMALL

Broadcasting from Ankara late Tuesday night the National Broadcasting Corporation correspondent said:

"British are continuing to concentrate troops in Palestine, Iraq and on Syria's southern and eastern frontiers, while Nazis quietly and rapidly strengthen each day their grip on the political and military reins of the French mandated territory. Actual Nazi troop strength in Syria is still too small for an effective action, but it is hoped in this part of the world that the British will not make the fatal mistake of under-estimating the Nazi ability for speed and organisation as they had done so many times in the past in the Middle East."

DESTRUCTION OF HITLERISM

BRITISH FIRST WAR AIM

Lord Halifax Explains

Speaking on June 3 at the Columbia University, Lord Halifax, British Ambassador, repeated that the destruction of Hitlerism must remain Britain's first war aim. He said that the best minds of the United States and British Commonwealth should work closely together on political, economic and financial problems of the postwar period. There can hardly be future for the world unless your people and we can join hands to work it, he concluded.

INDIA'S AID TO BRITAIN

Six fighter squadrons in R.A.F. Six fighter squadrons of the R.A.F. have now been named after various parts of India following gifts for purchase of aircraft. Over one million pounds have been given by four Indian funds: Madras Presidency subscribing £ 675,000, Punjab £120,000, United Provinces £160,000 and Bombay £100,000. Three squadrons, hurricanes, spitfire and defiants have been selected to perpetuate fine contribution made by Madras to the Empire war effort. The Punjab and the United Provinces squadrons are equipped with hurricanes while the name of Bombay is to be carried by the newly formed squadron of Spitfires. There are already fighter squadrons and flights in R.A.F. bearing famous names—Hyderabad and East India, among them being recognition of earlier gifts from the Princes and peoples of India.

CONVICTED FOR CHEATING

Bangalore, June 3. The City Magistrate, Bangalore, convicted and sentenced one Munisami for an offence of cheating to undergo R. I for 3 months. It was alleged that the accused on 27-12-40 hired a cycle from Mariappa, a cycle shopkeeper in Varthur giving a false name and a false address and deceived and subsequently sold it to somebody and thereby cheated and caused wrongful loss to the complainant. The Agram Police had charge-sheeted the accused.

DARLAN WEYGAND MEETING

Admiral Darlan had a lengthy conversation on June 3 with General Weygand prior to the Vichy cabinet meeting.

TOTAL VICTORY FOR BRITAIN

Prelude to Peace

Labour Party Memorandum

The Annual Conference of the Labour Party began in London on June 3, to debate the memorandum of the National Executive on the subject of war policy. Declaring that it was impossible to have compromise or negotiated peace with the Axis, the memorandum added: We, of the British Labour Party, are astounded that any such idea should anywhere be entertained. We declare once more that we can have no part directly or indirectly in the policy of accommodation and that necessary prelude to just peace is total victory. It would be folly and betrayal of those for whom we speak to put any trust in peace to which Hitler and Mussolini were parties.

The memorandum was passed by an overwhelming majority of the Party.

Mr. Atlee, Lord Privy Seal, who spoke, said when the Party joined the Government some people outside this country thought that Britain was hopelessly beaten and it looked as if we were alone. The fact is we are not alone, added Mr. Atlee. We are going strong and we have the assurance of victory because large forces are coming up behind us which are stronger than those opposed to us.

He concluded: We cannot go back to the old world. We are not going to have Hitlerism. Everyone of us should have fair chance of life and a feeling of security.

VICHY CABINET DISCUSSES SITUATION

The Vichy Cabinet sat for two and a half-hours on June 3, General Weygand being also present. The position in French African territories appears to have been included in the discussions. Admiral Darlan's latest communication from Paris and his negotiations with Germans also appear to have been considered. One of the terms dictated by Hitler to Darlan appears to be the use of Dakar (W. Africa), Casa Blanca (Morocco) and Beirut (Syria) ports both by Germans and Italians. Germans are to keep Alsace and Lorraine and to continue to occupy north and west-coast of France. Italian claims against France will be waived and French war indemnity will be reduced by half or quarter.

NO CHANGE IN AFRICAN FRONTS

The communique from GHQ dated June 3, on the situation in various African fronts, is the latest for sometime. It reads: There is no change in the situation.

FOR THE LEADER OF THE CONGRESS PARTY

WHAT MYSORE CAN DO TO THE REST OF INDIAN INDIA

MYSORE MUST HAVE A SEPARATE MINISTRY OF EDUCATION

present moment of crisis of man is a mighty force to the intelligence of all of us. We, as apart from the cosmic crisis that the cosmic Europe has imposed on us, are about to take decisions and new steps again, a strain on our sense and our good-will.

An unflinching democrat would certainly condemn a man (of high rank) who writes Democracy in the name of a man. But still, the ailment is such a terrible one that, it measures for social good, for improvement, for social principles, isms, and obloges do not very matter and may be allowed in the comfort and security of the back not the distant but the back ground.

These are days of "instalment", unheralded, unannounced and unknown to most of us. Americanisation has become a part of our souls. The new style "Instalment", we have, in Mysore, a salient—or is it second?—effort at progressive education of the people with the State. I wonder if that is too flamboyant. For, in Mysore—there are chances of becoming unpopular very soon. Ministers cannot effect a change of heart in Mysore.

making a plea for pragmatism, realism in the face of a danger, realism in the face of things which yet remain to be tackled, in the name of improvement which come and cannot be postponed or delayed. If the Mysore are hailed as a great new Mysore, I know as to what is in it to render Mysore more than it is now.

free to ask, for instance, whether the new reforms are to assist Mysore in becoming completely literate by the next census? Is it to want to find out if new reforms are about to be in a new era in Mysore every citizen would have respect of a decent meal?

do not and must not lose heads over mere forms or political advance must opportunity for social improvement, opportunity for proper liquidation of hunger, and ignorance. That is the measure of rod.

am afraid, I am just mouth the obvious. But it is necessary to remind people of the obvious. The obvious gets lost when emotion gets the hand and reason is just pushed rather mildly and as a discharge. He has the unique opportunity for establishing a new political tradition among the States of Indian India. I say this because I am conscious of the destiny of Mysore and because I am myself A B—Y good Mysorean. All Indian States are in for popularisation of their administrations. Mysore has set an example. It is the example that is the thing, though of course, Mysore could have set a better and a more inspiring example. Politically in the larger sense, Mysore's example would certainly become an irresistible inspiration if the new Dewan were to rise to the occasion, mindful of the All-India range and depth of his gesture. It behooves him to advise His Highness the Maharaja to send for the leader of the popular majority party in the Legislature. There are two reasons why he should do so, two reasons of a constitutionally and far-reaching character. That is the only way by which responsibility will acquire meaning and substance and lease to be a mere semblance. If Mysore does it, the other States will have to keep step with Mysore and Mysore will emerge as a triumphant live model. Simla may think that such a step would be tantamount to an introduction of party Government and majority rule in the Indian States. But as political pragmatists, we, Mysoreans, shall interpret it as orientation of Government in terms of responsibility.

I have said that the present moment offers a challenge to our intelligence and good-will. There is no reason why the Mysore Congress, as it has come to be called, should be allowed to remain as a vocal and filibustering opponent of the Mysore Government. There is absolutely no reason why the Mysore Congress, a party of real Mysoreans, should not be allowed to be a part of the Mysore Government. My point is that no State in the world could afford to waste the people's good time in political recriminations or in barren political controversies. The world will collapse, socially and economically, after the war, and all far-sighted people have their path set for them: social and economic armament. In the face of the danger, political intra-traitability, born of a false sense of prestige, is, to say the least, folly.

There is a good deal of excitement and babble about the new ministers and so on. Names are being mentioned with the brazenness of the race-course. But, next to the creation of a friendly atmosphere in the State, I would strongly urge one important line of advance, the institution of a Ministry of Education. The Vice-Chancellor of our University is the man for it. I do not see why Mr. N. S. Subba Rao should not be taken as one of the official Ministers and placed

FOOD, THE CRUX OF THE SITUATION IN SYRIA

(By cable) London

The Daily Express Special Correspondent on the Syrian frontier cabled on May 26:

Many parts of Syria and Lebanon are completely out of hand. The French authorities cannot control them. A break is coming fast.

Unrest is flaming through the country among soldiers, tribesmen and the French population, and the desperately dithering Government of the Vichy-minded General Dentz is no longer master of the situation.

Every traveller crossing from Syria agrees that food is the crux of the situation there.

One high official told me: "Any force which entered Syria today with corn for the people could occupy the country."

In charge of the whole range of education. I do not see why there should be too many civilians in our future Cabinet. If it is liberalisation we are aiming at, if it is wisdom we are seeking, if it is a new approach that we lack, a person of Mr. Subba Rao's experience, distinction and academic integrity should certainly be placed in charge of education. If the future of man, according to Mr. H. G. Wells, is a race between education and disaster, if we believe in education and real education, it is something strange that we do not yet have one capable man functioning as the engineer of our educational progress, ministering to our educational needs. Is there no need for co-ordinating and correlating the different stages of education in the State? If education has to be the most important activity of the State, it is time we had a Ministry of Education with Mr. N. S. Subba Rao at the head of it. Educational planning demands that you must have a man of vision and imagination at the top. Our man is Mr. Subba Rao. If there are considerations which make it impossible for the Government to take Mr. Subba Rao into the Ministry, it should be possible to give him ministerial rank and place him in charge of education in the State. I would love to see this done. So would many others.

What I am at pains to suggest is that at this momentous crisis in the affairs of men, it is necessary for all of us to remember one thing: the people take precedence over the State and the State over the Government. The troubles appear to be due to a type of confused thinking which identifies the State with the Government and forgets the people. If this confusion disappears, the people will everywhere come into their own.

TRADE WITH U. S. A. AND CANADA

New York Commissioner's First Annual Report

INDIAN WOOL AND HANDICRAFTS PREFERRED

Exports Worth $ 75,000,000 In 1939

The first annual report of the Indian Government Trade Commissioner in New York dealing with the economic conditions of the trade with India and the U. S. A. and Canada for the year 1939-40 has been issued.

The general characteristics of India's export trade with the U. S. A. are:

(i) The trade is mostly in primary products or semi-manufactured articles;

(ii) The articles are for the most part non-competitive with American produce and are more over of considerable importance to American economy besides being obtainable in some cases mainly or solely from India;

(iii) The volume of India's exports to the U. S. A. usually follows the trend of business conditions in the U. S. A. especially in those commodities which find their main absorption in American industry.

Imports from India rose from about Sh. 62,000,000 in 1935 to about Sh. 94,000,000 in 1937, fell to about Sh. 58,000,000 in 1938, but rose again to more than Sh. 66,000,000 in 1939. Although the total value of U. S. A. imports from India was greater in 1939 than in 1935, India's share of the total U. S. A. imports was only 2.8 per cent in 1939 as compared with 3.2 per cent in 1935.

Looked at from the point of view of India's total export trade however, exports of Indian merchandise to the U. S. A. in 1935 were valued at approximately Rs. 15,50,00,000 or 9.8 per cent of her total exports, a percentage which increased to 11.6 per cent in 1939, when the U. S. A. actually displaced Japan from the position of India's second best customer, the first being the United Kingdom.

The position of some of the more important commodities has been thoroughly examined. The vast bulk of India's trade with the U. S. A. is in primary commodities and semi-manufactured goods. The view is expressed that India should have no difficulty in retaining her existing market in the U. S. A. provided it is always remembered that the U. S. A. is both a quality and price market. Constant efforts are, therefore, to be made not only to improve the quality by proper selection and grading, but a careful watch should also be maintained on the price.

Jute and jute products are by far the most important items of India's export trade with the U. S. A. Some of the products usually manufactured in the U. S. A. from jute fibre could be made from other materials. The fact that substitution has not taken place on any substantial scale so far is, in the opinion of the Trade Commissioner, largely due to two reasons: (i) the displacement which would result in the jute manufacturing industry in the U. S. A. and (ii) the higher prices at present of the finished products made from substitute materials.

Vegetable Fibres

The dependence of the U. S. A. on India as a source of supply of vegetable fibres is also witnessed in the case of short staple cotton which is mainly used in that country for the manufacture of cotton and cotton-wool mixed blankets. Until recently China and India were the two main sources of supply, but owing to the Japanese embargo on exports of Chinese cotton the position of Indian short staple cotton in the U. S. A. has improved considerably.

In lian carpet wool is another textile material which finds its way into the U. S. A. and Indian wool is preferred by carpet manufacturers because when compared with similar wools from China, Argentina, Asia Minor and Iran, it shrinks less and is fairly long in staple. Goat skins, myrobalans, lac and shellac, mica, tea and cashew-nuts are the other articles which form the bulk of Indian exports.

Amongst the other commodities imported from India and discussed in the report are raw rubber, manganese, titanium ores, chrome ores, pig iron, furs, leather and karaya gum, etc. India has also established a good reputation in the U. S. A. for her handicrafts such as metalware, woodwork and textiles and the caption "made in India" has come to enjoy a definite "sales value" in the market.

As in the case of the U. S. A. a survey of the economic conditions in Canada during the period under review precedes detailed information regarding imports from India. Canada's import trade with India has many of the characteristics of India's export trade with the U. S. A. although there are some marked differences largely due to difference in population and economy.

Canadian imports from India in 1939 were valued at only Sh. 9,807,576 as compared with Sh. 66,329,051 for Indian imports into the U. S. A. but Canada's imports per caput are considerably higher than in the case of the U. S. A.

The two main categories of Canadian imports from India are: (i) agricultural and vegetable products; and (ii) fibres and textiles. The first category which accounted for more than half of the Canadian imports from India in 1937, and 38 and 39, includes tea, rice and nuts. During 1939 imports of Indian tea into Canada amounted to more than 2,000,000 lbs valued at nearly Sh. 1,500,000 as compared with about 5,000,000 lbs during 1938. Sh. 7,006,000 (See page 4)

rics and textiles finding their way into Canada, burlap accounts for the bulk of imports in this group and Canadian imports of jute and jute products from India increased both in value and volume during 1939 as compared to 1938.

The report gives an account of India's participation in the annual Canadian National Exhibition which was held at Toronto from August 25 to September 9, 1939.

Market For "Novelties"

The questions of expanding the existing market and of finding a market for goods not hitherto imported from India present greater difficulty. There is no doubt, however, of the scope for such expansion. For instance, the U. S. A. is a vast market for a very large variety of articles used in the household known as "novelties", but that market can be captured only if the exporters in India bear two things in mind, firstly that the market is constantly changing and secondly that the goods to be sold must be prepared for the market in such a way as to present an attractive appearance.

The constantly changing needs of the market must be carefully observed and studied at this end while the production of the articles at the Indian end must be systematically organised. India has at present an extremely small share of this market which hitherto has been almost completely monopolized by Japan, China, and to some extent, Czechoslovakia, but if a substantial and responsible organization could be set up in India to develop this trade and organize production and at the same time arrange for a complementary marketing organisation in the U. S. A. which could not only promote the distribution and sale of the goods in this country but also keep the principals in India in very close touch with the constantly changing requirements of the market here, there is no reason why India should not in time build up a really important trade in the U. S. A. in the many beautiful hand made articles both in metals and wood and in textiles for which she has an excellent reputation.

A large number of enquiries were received by the Trade Commissioner from Indian, American and Canadian firms.

British War Efforts to be Explained

NEW APPOINTMENT IN AMERICA

An announcement dated June 3, from No. 10, Downing Street, London, states that Sir Gerald Campbell, at present British Minister in Washington, has been appointed to hold special office for furnishing fuller and more complete information concerning Britain's war efforts to the United States. He will consequently relinquish his post and establish office in New York.

DROPPING PETROL SUPPLIES FROM THE AIR

Container that Defies Impact

(By Mail) For dropping petrol and water supplies from aeroplanes, with or without the aid of parachutes, an unburstable container has been evolved by Sir S. S. Bhatnagar, Director of Scientific and Industrial Research. The container has been tested by dropping it from heights of 75 to 100 feet and has satisfactorily withstood the impact of the fall.

The container is made of canvas cum plastic compositions, and as large as two-gallon containers have been made which have satisfactorily withstood the impact when thrown from the roofs of the second storey of the Alipore Test House and of the Secretariat Buildings, New Delhi. The Army Headquarters are making further experiments with the container by dropping it from low-flying aeroplanes.

This unburstable bottle has the necessary property of resilience and is petrol and oil proof. It is stated that, apart from its enormous advantage in war time, it can be used as a container for oil paints, oils, etc., even after the war. It is lighter and less liable to damage by impact than a tin can. Large orders are, therefore, expected to be placed for these containers.

ENEMY BOMBS DROPPED ON ENGLISH COASTS

British fighters carried out daylight sweep, on June 3, on an enemy armed trawler in the Channel. Enemy troops in Northern France were also bombed and machine-gunned. All the planes returned safely.

A single enemy aircraft dropped bombs over a town in south coast on June 3. Several people were injured and some buildings were damaged. Bombs were also dropped in northeast coast and in eastern counties but there were no casualties and no damage.

RISE IN PRICE OF JUTE IN U. S. A.

Increased Use of Substitutes

STEPS TO PREVENT EXPORTS OF BAGS TO AXIS POWERS

New Bag Factory in Australia

The scarcity of supplies of jute and jute goods in the U. S. A. as a result of the lack of shipping facilities and the increase in freight is responsible for a spectacular rise in prices, states the May issue of the Indian Central Jute Committee's Bulletin. The price of 10½ oz 40 spot burlap rose steadily from 9.40 cents at the beginning of March to 11.15 cents on the last day of the month. The reaction to this rise has been a considerable substitution of cotton and paper for burlap. Paper especially profited by the difficulties of the burlap trade and it is feared that continuance of the present situation will result in the increased use of cotton and paper as a substitute for burlap.

To prevent the flow of jute and jute products from the U. S. A. to the Axis powers the National Burlap Bag Dealers' Association of the U. S. A. adopted resolutions urging the Government to impose the licensing system on exports of bags to Axis powers. Their efforts have resulted in a proclamation by President Roosevelt placing jute and jute goods under export licence effective from March 24, 1941.

Listed as Essential Commodity

Commodities vital to the national defence programme are being classified in the U. S. A. into three categories, namely, critical, strategic and essential and, at present jute (including jute products) is listed as an essential commodity. Considerable importance is given to this classification as it might affect the allocation of shipping space to these commodities in future.

Another favourable development to the jute and burlap trade was the defeat in the U. S. A. House of Representatives of the Fulmer Cotton Net Weight Bill, which would have required the marketing of raw cotton on a net bale weight basis, thereby discouraging the use of jute bagging.

The Philippine Government have volunteered to shut off exports of strategic materials consisting chiefly of Manila

FRIDAY—JUNE 6, 1941

THE LATE KAISER

In the death of the Ex-Kaiser William II of Germany, humanity loses a great historic figure whose name would live permanently in the annals of the world. It can truly be said of the late Kaiser that he made the time and the time made him. It is impossible to conceive of the Great War of 1914-18 without him. He was the maker of that war and it overpowered him. He was fifty-nine years of age when he was forced to abdicate his throne and flee to Holland. The last twenty-two years of his life were spent in melancholy, uneventful obscurity. Not much has come out to the world as to how he spent these twenty-two years. The newspapers used to inform us that he kept his body fit by hewing wood. Anyhow, it was not given to him to die in pomp and glory. We do not know if genuine tears are shed over his death. May be that his death would be widely noticed and leading articles written in honour of his memory. Undoubtedly he was the greatest man of his age, whose life influenced either for good or for evil the life of his contemporaries. But his death is not going to disturb the present state of things. The world is least disturbed by his death. It is a tragedy of human affairs that the man who was dreaded most and whose head the British politicians had pledged to cut off, should die today practically an undisturbed natural death. We have no means of knowing what Hitler thinks or thought of Kaiser and vice-versa. It is said that when the Nazis marched through Holland, they made a detour as they approached Doorn where he was leading a retired life. It is to be seen if Hitler is going to say anything about the late Kaiser.

It is an undisputed fact that the ex-Kaiser diverted the course of European history, nay, world's history. The life of such a man is indeed worth scientific study. How the man influenced his environments and how his environments profoundly influenced him, this play of action and reaction, is interesting study.

William II was born on January 27, 1859. He was the eldest son of Prince Frederick William of Prussia and Princess Victoria of England. It is said that even as a young prince he had to feel the conflict of opinions then swaying Germany. His mother always remained at heart a forceful woman, deeply convinced of the excellence of English institutions, she regarded Germany as a backward country and regarded Bismarck as a personal antagonist. There was a feeling of estrangement between Princess Victoria and her son, who was profoundly influenced by the ideas of liberalism. There was a sort of domestic conflict in the family of Prince William which had its own effect on his life.

The ex-Kaiser when he was young was surrounded by people who glorified him. He was made to believe that he was a man of destiny and had a mission to fulfil, and that was, building a world empire for Germany. On June 15, 1888, when he ascended the throne he was barely 29 and during the remaining 30 years he changed the face of Germany. The first act of his was to get rid of the great Bismarck who was dreaded in Europe. The great Chancellor had to retire quietly in the face of the imperious ambitions of William II who wanted to overturn Bismarck's policy and start afresh. His sole desire was to befriend England; but he found that England was not eager for this friendship. This had a set back on his mind. He therefore thought it necessary to strengthen the fleet of Germany. Even as early as 1898, there was a grave danger of an Anglo-German clash. As Britain grew closer to France and Russia, the Kaiser grew closer and closer to Austria.

It is beyond the scope of this article to detail all the events that led to the Great War of 1914-18. The readers are familiar with the various events connected with the War. By August 1918, the situation in Germany grew untenable and the Emperor vacillated. He lost his power of judgment. He was verily in the midst of conflicting counsels. The signs of discontent were visible among the population. At the beginning of November 1918, revolution broke out in Germany. Prince Max of Baden, Imperial Chancellor, took the affairs into his own hands and proclaimed that the Emperor would renounce the throne. The Ex-Kaiser hesitated and the Socialist Party marched on and proclaimed Germany a republic. We could imagine the mental condition of Emperor William, who preferred to abandon the army and steal quietly away from the territory of his former empire and escape to Holland on November 10. His action dealt a fatal blow to the monarchist cause in Germany. The minor Princes saw no issue but to capitulate and abdicate in the face of the revolution. Neutral Holland gave William shelter at the castle of Doorn. After this period there was not much of public importance to record about the Ex-Kaiser. It is said that the most important changes in William's circumstances during the last years was a second marriage, after the death of the Empress Augusta Victoria, with the widowed Princess Hermine of Schönilch-Carolath. He used occasionally to receive German visitors in Doorn but avoided any public appearance.

This in brief is the life-story of the Ex-Kaiser who passes out of scene of life at a time in the history of the world when it appears a new page is dawning and the old civilization is crumbling to pieces.

THE ALLEGED WILL FORGERY CASE

Mr. M. Gurumurthy's evidence

BANGALORE, June 4
In the alleged will forgery case which is against Mr. S. K. Venkatarama Iyengar, Advocate, two prosecution witnesses were examined today, Mr. Chikkanniah Reddy and Mr. Gurumurthy (son-in-law of late Muninanjappa) before the District and Sessions Judge, Bangalore.

Mr. M. Gurumurthy in his evidence in chief deposed that he knew nothing about the existence of any will by late Mr. Muninanjappa and that the signature in the will was not his. When cross-examined by Mr. V. V. Sreenivasengar, Mr. Gurumurthy said that he did not know that the defence had been saying that signature in the will was his. However, when the defence had been asking him about several signatures in the other Sessions Court he knew that the object of the defence was to prove that the signature in the will was his. He denied that the signature in the will was of the late Muninanjappa. In the other Sessions Court he had said that it looked like his signature. He did not remember having said on another occasion that it did not look like his signature. Now, he said, that it did look like his. The initial 'M' in the signature in the will was not distinct and the writing was not fluent.

Mr. Gurumurthy's evidence had not been over when the Court rose for the day.

Mr. Eden's Statement on Arab Unity

EGYPTIAN REACTION

(By Cable)
Mr. Eden's statement on Britain's sympathetic attitude towards Arab unity is prominently featured by the Arab press.

"Syria and Arab unity" are headlines in the Egyptian press. Both the papers emphasize Eden's assurance that there are no designs of any kind on Iraq's independence.

While as yet there is no press comment, Mr. Eden's assurance is warmly welcomed by the general public who appreciates that Arab unity could be fulfilled only by British victory. Mr. Eden's statement will, it is deemed, prove a crushing answer to the lying Arab promises designed to deceive the peoples of the East with a view eventually to destroying them.

Al Balagh publishes an editorial in which it states that the view with an Egyptian who has returned from Iraq, which he declares that Eden's resistance will soon appear and that normal relations will be restored.

Deputy Fikriabaz writes in Al Mussa calls for the political unity in Egypt as a feature of Britain's strength and says, "Britain resisted all attacks and held herself on all fronts. She sees her brave leaders fulfilling heavy tasks, good and bad news with calm and the same spirit with hope dominating. That is not all. What is a lesson to us is that unity is springing from hearts—hearts which have served the nation and men by strengthening their position and keeping wide the doors of hope in darkness. Hitler fears this unity, cohesion and harm to his cause for him that latent force is impossible for him to conquer."

Premier Hussein Sirry speaking at the Graduate School of the American University, concluded with a brief reference to the present conflict. He said, "Civilisation rose a thousand years ago on the banks of the Nile. It has grown, and progressed and threatened in the highlands of Egypt. From such a place only nations living in a sphere of freedom and co-operation can emerge victorious. If the co-operation is awakened to this, it is impossible to return to middle ages, civilization is saved and, by God's might of law will defeat the might of force."

K. G. F. LABOUR SITUATION

LEGISLATION NEEDED

Kuppam, June 3

K. C. Philips, General Secretary of the K.G.F. Labour Union, issued the following statement to the press:

The public will welcome with interest the news in the press that Mr. Matthan, Retired First Officer, who was appointed by the Mysore Government to enquire into the labour conditions at the Kolar Gold Fields after the termination of the protracted strike in July 1940, has at last submitted his report to the Government and that the contents are of great importance and merit. It is hoped that the Government will have made it, in good time, especially in regard to recognition of the Union and payment of bonus to the workers.

The strike which was a united and peaceful one, involving about 1000 workers and who called for the advice of Sri V. V. Giri, Minister of Labour Industries Madras, who has assured that there will be no victimisation of workers. The machinery will be instituted for enquiring into the grievances of the workers and removing the cause of discontent and unrest in the mines. It was expected that a committee of enquiry consisting of representatives of employers and employees with an independent member will be appointed and workers demanded in one of the mines. Mr. V. V. Giri must be associated with the committee on behalf. But strangely Mr. Matthan who is a former official of the Government and a leading employer of State was alone appointed to enquire into the grievances of the workers; and that without any clear terms of reference or questionnaire to guide him or called upon to produce evidence. The circumstances under the circumstances to arouse any enthusiasm among the workers and consequently made no progress whatever for several months.

In the meanwhile the peaceful and reasonable efforts of the workers to obtain their Union met with no result resulting in the arbitrary arrest of many innocent workers under Section 17 of the Regulation involving earning and destitution families. Even Mr. K. K. Sarma, Hon-President of the Union, was expelled from the Union area under that provision while he was in the area to take train and had not even this stay for a minute.

General Secretary of the K. K. Philips who was imprisoned during the strike though released after the strike had immediately been taken up from the Union. In view of the seriousness of the situation and the possibility of another strike under the circumstances, Mr. K. K. Sarma interviewed the Hon. Councillor in charge of Explosives, Sir Mirza Aslam Khan, Dewan of Mysore, and Mr. Matthan the Enquiry Officer and on his persuasion the instructions of the Government with its head-quarters at Kuppam, the workers of K.G.F. gave their full and complete co-operation to Mr.

Matthan whose enquiry proceeded then as vigorously as it was stagnant previously. Even the evidence of the exiled workers was taken at Bangalore by Mr. Matthan in view of the difficulties against their presence in the K.G.F. for the purpose Mr. Matthan kindly permitting Mr. Sarma to be present at the enquiry and his willingness to hear his views also, encouraged the workers to further co-operation.

When Mr. Matthan conducted his enquiries in the K.G.F. for about a week, hundreds of workers came forward to give evidence while thousands held demonstrations in front of his office, giving expression of their confidence and co-operation in spite of the absence of clear terms of reference, nor a questionnaire. The K.G.F. Labour Union submitted to the enquiry an elaborate and comprehensive memorandum of all the contending grievances of the workers as early as October 1940, copies of which had been broadcast among the workers in their vernacular. On account of the exile of leading workers and impossibility of the Union Officers going into K.G.F. and getting into touch with the workers and the interference of Mr. K. G. Philips, the chief executive Officer of the Union from the State, the Union could not give more useful help which would have been otherwise abundantly possible. After the completion of the Enquiry which was over early in February, ensued another long period of suspense and anxiety and even resulted in a strike in two of the four mines. It was settled amicably before spreading to other mines, thanks to the timely intervention of Sri A. V. Ramnathan and also the accommodating spirit of the Superintendents of the concerned mines not to speak of the sweet reasonableness of the workers and the practical sense and responsibility of the leaders of the Union. The understandable delaying of the report and the demands for its immediate publication and implementation was one of the main issues of the dispute. It is therefore with great relief that the submission of the report will be welcomed on all hands. Now that the report is before the Government and they are also perfectly aware of the delay in its submission, and the consequent anxiety of the workers, it is to be hoped that no more time will now at least be lost in its immediate publication, and full implementation. The Government will of course be busy with the sessions of the new legislature and other important work. But that should not be allowed to stand in the way of giving effect to the report without delay. The task would not be difficult as the office of the Labour Commissioner is now vested in Mr. A. V. Ramnathan, one of the most experienced and senior Officers in the State, who has himself acquainted personally with the K.G.F. situation.

One of the recommendations of Mr. Matthan which reference has been made in the present announcement is most timely in view of the large number of disputes in the State recently and the difficulty experienced in securing speedy settlement. Though Mysore State has been taking long and bold strides in the sphere of industrial planning and advancement, the failure to adopt suitable means for the prompt and effective settlement of Industrial disputes as they arise and preservation of the industrial peace without which industrial development and prosperity will be difficult and even impossible, has been significant. Planning for the development and advancement of Industry without at the same time building a suitable machinery for preservation of industrial peace is like building without foundation. We therefore learn with great relief and sincere happiness that the Mysore Govt. is seriously thinking of the matter and propose under taking legislation on the subject on the lines of the Bombay Industrial Disputes Act of 1938 by the most expeditious procedure available to them. The budget session of the New Reformed Legislature which meets on the 9th instant has also a splendid opportunity to interest itself in the subject and secure the enactment of suitable legislation which, besides being helpful to Mysore, might be a model to British India as well, by the utilization of working of such legislation elsewhere and the avoidance of all defects and drawbacks. When quick and significant changes are taking place the enlightened public cannot be apathetic to the problems but, will, on the other hand keenly interest itself in the proposal in a helpful manner to all concerned.

The Daily Telegraph's Helsinki correspondent cabled on May 28:

The rector of the Cathedral School at Bergen has been dismissed by the Quisling regime for forbidding Norwegian Nazis to attend the school and prohibiting political propaganda among the students.

The rector's farewell speech developed into a demonstration against the Nazis.

The authorities have confiscated a large delivery of small Norwegian flags with the King's initial "H" super-imposed. These flags were intended for sewing on cloths and denoting passive resistance against Quisling.

The Nazi press is furious and accuses the opposition in Norway of arranging the distribution of the emblems.

EXPECTED STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF BRITISH GOVERNMENT

WHEN WILL IT BE MADE?

Speculation in Simla (From our Correspondent,

Simla, June 4

(By wire)

It is understood that the expected statement on behalf of His Majesty's Government explaining the Indian policy with reference to the political developments may be made this month or early in July. Whether it will be made by the Viceroy as in the case of the August offer last year or by the Secretary of State in England no definite information is available but it is presumed that the initiative may be left to the Viceroy.

At one time reports current here envisaged the possibility of Mr. Jinnah and other leaders being invited to Simla for consultation in the last week of May or early in June but the present information shows the procedure has been changed. Mr. Jinnah had two important interviews with the Madras Governor last week. Mr. Aney saw the Governor of the Central Provinces on twenty-fifth May. According to a Poona message Mr. Aney denied the talk was with reference to reconstruction of the cabinet but said that he had met the Governor of the Central Provinces as the Viceroy desired to have his opinion on this urgent matter. Mr. Aney declined to say anything further as the subject matter of the Viceroy's letter was confidential.

Though the possibility of some move in near future is still being talked about in Simla, there is distinct note of pessimism. It is feared that though the offer of expansion of the Viceroy's Council may be repeated in the coming statement there is still no sign of accepting even the basic principles of moderate reconstruction scheme as suggested by Sir Sapru.

I understand the vacancy in the Federal Court caused by the death of Sir Suleiman will not be filled before September next. As the term of Sir B. L. Mitter, Advocate General, also expires early next year the decision regarding it will also be made then.

System of Flat Charges for Telephones

TO BE TRIED AT FIVE CENTRES

Before the end of the Year

(From our Correspondent)

(By Wire) Simla, June 4

Enquiries regarding Government of India's proposal to abolish the system of flat rate charges for telephones and to introduce a system of cheaper call rates with fixed lower rental charges show that an experimental measure the new system will be tried at five centres, viz. Dehra Dun, Poon, Amritsar, Cawnpore and Jullundur. The future policy will be determined in the light of the experience gained from the working of this scheme at these centres. The new system will be introduced in these five places before the end of the year.

From Oslo it is reported that all the city's theatres are closed following a strike by the actors against the reprisals taken when they refused to participate in the Quisling festivals.

NEW JOB FOR SIR R.K.

GOVERNMENT'S BAN ON KHAKSAR AGITATION

Association Declared Unlawful

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA'S COMMUNIQUE

(Associated Press of India)

Simla, June 5
Government of India communicates that steps have been taken to declare Khaksars an unlawful association where necessary and Provincial Governments will take all steps to dispel the menace which action of these misguided people has brought into existence.

The communique says:

At the end of August, 1940 an order was given to the Government on behalf of Khak-sars that they would abide by and in consequence the notifications declaring them to be an unlawful association in the Punjab and Delhi were withdrawn.
The serious disturbances of 1940 in the Punjab and the organised force of authority that the Khaksars carried on from the other of certain mosques in Delhi were not lightly disregarded or forgotten. Time was needed to test the sincerity of their subsequent professions.
The Provincial Government
however and the courts of the Punjab dealt consistently with those of those concerned in the disturbances; and out of total over 1,700 Khaksars arrested only about 50 of the major offenders now remain under sentence of imprisonment.

Meanwhile the leader of the movement, Allama Inayatullah Khan Mashriqi, was detained in custody under the Defence of India Rules. Some of the letters that he had attempted to smuggle out of jail are now in possession of Government.

These show that he has spread entirely false rumours about his health in order to excite sympathy with himself and create odium against the Government.
That with the same object he has disseminated equally false and fantastic figures of the number of Khaksars still in jail; that he has definitely instructed his followers to organise demonstrations to bring pressure to bear on the Government to order his release. At the last session of the Central Assembly, Government of India made it clear in answer to a question that his release could not be considered until they were satisfied that there was no danger of recurrence of events which had rendered his detention necessary.

The behaviour just mentioned does not inspire confidence in Allama's fitness to lead a law-abiding movement nor does it afford any ground for considering his release. Nevertheless the Government of India had already taken up with the Provincial Governments concerned the question of their relation with the Khaksar organization.
While they were engaged in consideration of this question, notices appeared in the Khaksar organ, 'Islah', directing all khaksars in uniforms and armed with belchahs to collect in mosques in Delhi, Lahore, Peshawar, Hyderabad (Sind) and Nagpur before Friday prayers on June 6th for the purpose of certain religious observance.
Shortly afterwards reliable information reached the Government of India that this ostensibly peaceful occupation of mosques was to be merely a screen for some form of organised defiance of law and that some sections of khaksars were in favour of direct action in defiance of law as a means of coercing Allama's release. At the beginning of June, a meeting of some forty khaksar leaders took place at Peshawar to consider their plan of action. Opportunity was immediately taken to convey clear warning to them through the Government of Northwest Frontier Province pointing out the folly of coming into conflict with the authorities, drastic action that would have to be taken if they persisted in doing so and the obvious fact was that if they wished to accelerate release of Allama such manoeuvres on their part could only have precisely opposite effect.

Concluding the communique says: The Government of India regret that such a drastic step should have become necessary, but they are determined not to risk repetition of disturbances to public peace and serious loss to human life that took place last year. They trust that the action they have taken will have the support of all right-thinking persons and that its effect will either lead the Khaksars to abandon the foolish plans, or if not, prevent them from carrying them into effect."

BAN ON KHAKSARS

IN AHMEDABAD

A.P. Ahmedabad, June 6
The Police arrested last night the leader of the local Khaksars under Rule 129 of the Defence of India Rules.

IN LAHORE

A.P. Lahore, June 6
A few more Khaksars were arrested this morning bringing the total to 93 including a batch of seven who arrived from Chinnot Jung District. Rounding up in the city continues and no Khaksar so far has appeared in uniform. The District Magistrate is meeting certain leading Muslim citizens this afternoon to explain the situation.

IN SIND

A.P. Karachi, June 6
The Sind Government banned Khaksar movement in the province. The Government order states that in the opinion of the Government Khaksars having for their object interference with administration of law and with the maintenance of law and order constitute danger to the public peace. Therefore, in exercise of the powers conferred under Sec. 237 of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Provincial Government declared Anjumani Khaksaram (local Khaksar organisation) as an unlawful association.

IN BOMBAY

(A.P.) BOMBAY, June 6
Following the declaration of the Khaksar movement as unlawful assembly by the Government of Bombay, the Police, last night, arrested Dr. Mohamad Sadik, Commanding officer,
Bombay Provincial Khaksars,
Mr. Sheikh Mohamad Azam,
Assistant Commanding Officer, and Mr. Mahomed Maskin, Manager, Bombay Branch. The Police also seized Khaksar literature from their residence.

BAN ON KHAKSARS' UNIFORM: A MADRAS ORDER

(Associated Press of India)

Madras, June 5
Under Rule 59 of the Defence of India Rules the Government of Madras have extended the prohibitive order on Khaksars throughout the Madras Presidency against their wearing uniforms consisting of Khaki shirts and Khaki trousers and belchahs or any part of that uniform in any part of this presidency, the Governor being satisfied that wearing such uniform or any part of it is likely to prejudice public safety and maintenance of public order.

It may be recalled an order banning Khaksar uniform was issued on 29th May by the Government, but that order did not explicitly cover the whole Province and did not mention prohibition of any part of Khaksar uniform.

Sir R.K. SHANMUKHAM CHETTY

To go to America

TO EXPLAIN INDIAN SITUATION
(From our Correspondent)

(By Wire) Simla, June 6
Reports current in Simla regarding the purpose of Sir R. K.
Shanmukham Chetty's visit to Simla to meet the Viceroy after relinquishing the Dewanship of Cochin show that Sir Shanmukham may shortly proceed to the United States of America on a lecturing tour to supplement the work of Sir Feroze Khan Noon. The latter, as official, has certain limitations but Sir Shanmukham is in a position to go in a non-official capacity and explain the Indian situation to American audiences particularly as he can speak as ex-President of the Central Assembly and ex-Dewan of an important State. Suggestion has also been made in certain quarters that owing to the importance of improving Indo-American relations, the Government of India should have one having the status of High Commissioner to represent them in America.

As there will be very soon three Indian Trade Commissioners in American countries, need for an agency to co-ordinate their activities has to be considered.

Provinces and Berar have declared the Khaksars organisation of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. This action has been are of the opinion that the

Daily News

SATURDAY—JUNE 7, 1941

THE NEW APPOINTMENTS

On Thursday we announced that Mr. D. H. Chandrasekaraiah, B.A., LL.B., has been appointed as President of the newly constituted Legislative Council. In our yesterday's issue we have announced the names of new Ministers. Rajasevaprakashta A. V. Ramanathan, Messrs. J. Mohamed Imam and H. B. Gundappa Gowda have been appointed as Ministers. The new Council of Ministers consists of R. Ramanathrao, N. Madhava Rao, Dewan, who is also the President of the Council of Ministers, Rajamantraprasanna K. V. Anantaraman, Rajasevaprakashta A. V. Ramanathan, Messrs. Mohamed Imam and H. B. Gundappa Gowda. The four ministers are of equal rank and status. They draw the same salary. It is indeed a high honour for the two non-official gentlemen to be called upon to assume the offices of Ministers, equal in rank and status to official ministers. We have also announced the portfolios allocated to each Minister. They will not be called as First Member, Second Member, Third Member and Fourth Member. They will be known as Minister for Finance and Revenue, Minister for Law, Minister for Education and Minister for Local Self Government and Public Health. We may also observe that very important portfolios have been allocated to non-official ministers. Mr. J. Mohamed Imam, is given Education, University, Archaeology, Railways, Co-operation, Joint Stock Companies, Stamps and Registration. Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda has been given Medical, Public Health, Municipalities, District Boards, Village Panchayats, Meteorology, Printing and Stationery, General Miscellaneous. The Non-Official Ministers are also Chairmen of important Standing Committees.

After a period of sixty years after Rendition, this is the first time in the history of Mysore that non-officials have been entrusted with the responsibility of administering the departments as Ministers. This is indeed a departure from the old order of things.

Anyone who has knowledge of the political conditions of Mysore can say that this Reform ought to have been introduced 25 years ago. Among non-officials, we have been having very competent men who would do honour and justice to the office of Minister. Even in the 1930 reforms inaugurated in 1924, there was a provision to appoint a non-official Executive Councillor. We are aware that several times this went round that a non-official would be appointed as Executive Councillor. Such an appointment might have been made in 1924. It might have been made in 1927. We are aware that the names of some prominent non-officials were then mentioned in that connection. We do not know why the proposal was dropped then. Then again, in 1937 or so, there was a talk that a non-official Executive Councillor would be appointed. Even then the proposal was not carried out. We do not know the reason why.

As such, there need not be much enthusiasm now for having appointed two non-official Ministers. This reform has come too late. The fact of selecting non-official Ministers from among the elected members of the Assembly and the Legislative Council confers no additional benefit on the people. What difference does it make if the two gentlemen are appointed from among the elected members of the Legislature or outside it? We sincerely ask does it make any difference at all? Is it a matter on which the Legislature can congratulate itself, as long as the ministers selected are not controlled by the opinion and the votes of the house? In the absence of this control these two non-official gentlemen are as foreign to the Legislature as people outside it. In what way do these two estimable gentlemen owe their allegiance to the Legislature? This is therefore a matter on which, constitutionally speaking, the present legislature cannot feel enthusiastic.

Let us look at it another way. Is it a matter on which the electorate in general can feel enthusiastic? Let us analyse the position. One gentleman represents a special community, a special electorate, he has not been returned by the general electorate. If at all it is a matter of congratulation it is only that particular electorate that can feel enthusiastic over it. The General Electorate has no hand in electing him as a member of the Legislature. This is a matter for us to consider. This does not mean that Mr. So and So is not an estimable gentleman and that he does not deserve the post. We have to view this from the point of view of the people as a whole. This is the disadvantage of having a special electorate, because the person returned does not represent the people as a whole.

Let us look at the other gentleman. He has been returned by a general electorate. But how? In the first election he stood as a candidate both for the Legislative Council and the Assembly and he was defeated in both of them. Then a friend of his, obliged him by resigning his seat for the Assembly. An attempt was made to see that the person defeated was straightway accepted as an elected candidate as sequel to that resignation. But some how it could not be managed. A bye-election was held. In an atmosphere of great restriction where free and open propaganda was not possible, the person was elected. We were not very happy over the way in which the things were managed. We could not be happy about that result. It looked as if circumstances were stage-set to return that person to the Assembly. Over the appointment of such a person as non-official Minister can there be jubilation in the country, we ask. It may be a matter of personal glory and satisfaction. But we have emphatically to record here that the people of the State do not at all feel enthusiastic over this appointment. We may say while writing this, we do not cast any aspersions personally against that particular gentleman who is indeed fortunate in being appointed as a non official Minister for the first time in the history of Mysore.

Let us look at this appointment still another way. As regards Mr. Imam, he represents a particular community and we are of the opinion that under the present circumstances he is the best person who would do honour and justice to that position. Though he has been returned by a special electorate we are aware of the fact that he is a man of liberal views and cosmopolitan outlook. He is a cultured gentleman, who we are sure would do his best to smoothen matters and serve the State faithfully and loyally. The portfolios that have been entrusted to him are such that require great tact and statesmanship. He has to handle the most intelligent section of the land and we are confident that he would acquit himself well.

Coming to Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda, he is no doubt singularly fortunate in having been called upon to serve the country in the capacity of Minister. As a personal matter he deserves to be heartily congratulated. We hope that he would do his best to serve the Maharaja and the people. Very important portfolios have been entrusted to him. We hope he would come out successful.

Now that these appointments have been made, all speculation is set at rest. We are glad that the appointments have at long last been made. There was a talk in the bazaar that the appointment of Non-official Ministers would be postponed. It is any how a matter of satisfaction that the announcement has been made without much delay.

We are of the opinion that the new Dewan has not pursued a wise and statesmanlike policy in the appointment of Ministers. In this affair, as the Chief Constitutional Adviser to His Highness the Maharaja his responsibility is very great. We do not know why the new Dewan knowing the public feeling in the country adopted this procedure. In the columns of this paper, we had been urging the necessity of the Dewan consulting the Mysore Congress in the matter of appointing new Ministers. We had sufficiently indicated that the Mysore Congress had left open the question of accepting office. They had clearly stated in their resolution that in spite of their disapproval of the new Reforms and their dissatisfaction with it they would nevertheless make the best use of them for the good of the people. It was with that idea they entered the Legislature. The new Dewan knows the esteem in which the Mysore Congress is held by the people. Had there been no rejection of nomination papers and had election been held in a freer atmosphere we are quite sure the Congress party would have been in an over-whelming majority in the Assembly, and in the Council they would have won more seats. Even as it is today, the Congress party is powerful in the Assembly. In a house of 275 or 300, 105 or 110 is a powerful number. We do not know why, the new Dewan did not consider this aspect of the question. The Mysore Congress party is a powerful single party with discipline and a plan of action. The party has sterling men of ability and character. Even in Legislative Council the Congress strength is considerable. It is a pity, it is a thousand pities, that the new Dewan has missed a golden opportunity of ushering in a new era of peace, progress and contentment in the land. There is a suspicion and a reasonable suspicion that though there has been a change in the personnel of Government there is absolutely no change in its reactionary policy. The policy of distrust of and hostility to Mysore Congress continues. This is revealed in the list of the nominations announced. This is revealed in the appointment of non-official Ministers and President of Legislative Council. Is it a sane and statesmanlike policy to appoint a gentleman as President of Legislative Council who forfeited his deposit in an election to a seat in the same body? What are the special qualifications that Mr. So and So has, to be appointed as President of the Legislative Council? The very object of the provision of appointing for the first time a non-official President has been frustrated by this appointment. Though it is a matter of personal glory and satisfaction to Mr. So and So neither the Legislative Council nor the country can congratulate itself on its first President, who, pitifully forfeited his deposit in an election contest in the most intellectual electorate of the country. This appointment is not only an insult to the University constituency but also to the Legislative Council. We are indeed very sorry that canons of commonsense and statesmanship were thrown to the winds as far as this appointment is concerned. We are voicing the intellectual public opinion when we say that this appointment has done neither justice nor honour to the position of the office of President of the Legislative Council.

With regard to the appointment of non-official ministers the way in which the Mysore Congress has been ignored and insulted does not bode good to the country. The path of wisdom would be a friendly hand to the body.

It is not so much the organization itself that is to think at present the procedure that is adopted. Is it not the electorate not to the Mysore Congress party? Why rely only on Mysore to their policy and interest? There were doubts, then, to have been sent for, and to. Why presume? This will lead us only to irresistible conclusions the eyes even of the government the Mysore is an anathema and kept as far as possible an attitude which is conducive to peace and contented of the country. We are very sorry and filled with appointment at the regime. We cannot congratulate the new Government start they have made possible for them to old wrongs and stretch a hand to Congress organization. They have not done so wrong continues. The country would be very unpleasant. We are sorry over the present appointments.

A Weekly Review of Events

Newsprint Question Discussed

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

Simla, June 1.

Various rumours are again in the air of an impending political move by the authorities. It seems that an important constitutional statement explaining further the policy and intentions of His Majesty's Government is in preparation, but it is not known whether it will be made by the Viceroy or the Secretary of State. The latter may be anxious to retrieve his reputation by saying something which may help to blot out the effect of his last speech, but it seems more likely that if there is to be another peace move at all, it would be left to the Viceroy to initiate it with a new statement. Already it is being whispered that the talks which Mr. Jinnah is having with the Governor of Madras, have deep political significance. There has been a message from London, though not so far officially confirmed, that Sir Robert Vansittart, who is retiring from the Foreign Office, may visit India on a special mission. It is not unlikely that if Sir Robert's services are available for work in India, he may be entrusted with the delicate task of getting in touch with political leaders in India and finding an agreed plan for a move forward. As the Secretary of State, Mr. Amery is still unwilling to come over to India though appeals continue to be made to him that he should proceed to India and make a personal study of the Indian situation, the next best course would be to choose a prominent diplomat like Sir Robert Vansittart to go to India. It may be recalled that last year the name of Sir Robert was being prominently mentioned in connection with the Indian Viceroyalty as successor to Lord Linlithgow.

Only a laconic report has been sent by Reuters of the speech of the Duke of Devonshire, Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for India, but it is clear that it is no casual utterance. As a matter of fact the Duke of Devonshire took care to add that what he had said on the subject of India had the full authority and support of His Majesty's Government. It is intended, said the Under Secretary of State, that the Government of India should be carried on by India, for India, in India. It cannot be the intention of the Duke to play with words or give assurances which have no relevance to present conditions. If this statement of the Duke has any meaning at all it should not be difficult for the British Government to instal a Cabinet composed of Indian non-official members at the Centre with such full powers that is freed from dictation from White Hall. In these words, however, are intended to refer to some date in the distant future which it is now not possible to visualise as a practical purpose is served by making a statement of this kind at this time. Any way, the feeling is strong in Simla that these words of the Under Secretary of State, whose name also, it may be mentioned by the way, is reported to be under consideration for the Indian Viceroyalty, to the difficulties caused by the Government's notification on April 12 and the abnormal rise in retail prices has been fully explained to the Commerce Member in a number of written representations made to him. On the very eve of the conference with the Commerce Member was issued a Control Order providing, among others, that returns of consumption should be made by all newspapers and returns of stocks by dealers. With these returns it is proposed to fix quotas and issue licences to newspapers. It is proposed that in granting licences to dealers a condition will be included that they shall not on pain of refusal of all further licences sell newsprint so imported or allow it to be sold at a price covering more than the import price plus a prescribed margin for profit and incidental expenses. An assurance has been also given that representations will be made to proper quarters for getting as high priority as possible for newsprint in obtaining shipping space. The order issued by the Government of India goes to some extent to relieve the difficulties of newspapers in getting their required supplies of newsprint at reasonable prices but there are still a number of points to be settled, such as the need for granting exemption to those orders placed before April 12 though on account of shipping difficulties it may not have been possible for shipping the goods before that date. It is hoped that as a result of the conference held today the Government of India would modify the present scheme suitably in making their permanent arrangements for the control of newsprint imports. It is understood that the Commerce Member has given the assurance that all possible assistance will be given to newspapers to get their actual minimum requirements.

A number of announcements are shortly expected to be made by the Government of India. The first is with reference to the term of the Central Legislature which expires in October. A year's further extension appears inevitable, for it is the intention of the Government of India to have the autumn session of the Central Legislature in November in New Delhi. The same procedure is likely to be adopted in the case of the Provincial Legislatures also though in their case a small amendment of the Government of India Act will be necessary. The war situation has taken so serious a turn in the Middle East that the Government of India do not, it is understood, consider it advisable to distract the attention of the country by holding a general election, which may bring many controversial political issues and create new difficulties. It is also expected that the Commander-in-Chief would soon make an announcement about the constitution of the promised Defence Committee, already delayed by several weeks. If any purpose at all is to be served by this Committee it should be constituted at once and given a chance to consider defence problems and make suitable recommendations for the consideration of the Commander in Chief. The delay has already been the subject of criticism in the Press owing to the importance which the public attaches to it.

WRITER OF THE WILL EXAMINED

Bangalore, June 5.

The case in which Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyengar, Advocate, stands charged with an alleged offence of forgery is well reported to have been examined by Mr. K. Munianappa of London. Bangalore Cantonment, came up today for his hearing before Mr. G. Paramanah, District and Sessions Judge Bangalore.

Mr. M. G. Gurumurthy, Advocate, of late Mr. K. Munianappa was further examined today by Mr. V.V. Srinivas Iyengar. Mr. Gurumurthy is the fourth prosecution witness in the case.

During further cross examination Mr. Gurumurthy deposed that the signature in the will looked like his but was not his. He could not recognise that the thumb impression in the will was Lakshmana's not could he say it was his. He could not also identify other signatures in the will nor he could identify his father's signature there nor has he seen his father's signature. He did not know whether his father was literate person or an illiterate man.

Then the next witness (PW 5) examined in the case was Mr. Ramachandra Rao. He is the writer of the will.

Mr. Ramachandra Rao in his evidence-in-chief said that he did write the will on the morning of 5.1.35 in the room opposite to which Munianappa was lying. The interlunations in the fair copy of the will were written by him as dictated by Mr. S.K. Venkataranga Iyengar. He could not say now whether it contained in the draft, Munianappa's thumb impression was taken on the will at about 7 in the night by somebody in the house and 6 or 7 people attested the will. When thumb impression was being taken it appeared to him that Munianappa had no consciousness.

When cross-examined by Mr. V.V. Srinivas Iyengar, Mr. Ramachandra Rao (writer of the will) said that on the morning of 5.1.35 he was taken by Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyengar to the room in which Munianappa was lying. There were 7 or 8 other people there, including Narayana Reddy, Lakshmana, and M. Gurumurthy. Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyengar asked Munianappa whether the will could be got written. They were all talking about the will but he did not know what exactly it was as he had by then gone out to the adjacent verandah. Mr. S. K. Venkataranga Iyengar dictated the draft of the will to him (witness) in a room opposite to the room where Mr. Munianappa was lying and during this period Mr. S.K. Venkataranga Iyengar frequently went to Munianappa's room. When Mr. S.K. Venkataranga Iyengar asked Munianappa whether the will could be got written, nobody raised any objection to this question.

The evidence of this witness had not been over when the Court rose for the day.

Further cross-examination of this witness will be taken on the 7th of June as the case will not come up for further hearing to-morrow.

VICHY GOVERNMENT

AMERICAN ATTITUDE BEING

Mr. Cordell Hall Explains

American attitude in latest developments in Rumania is set forth officially in a statement by Mr. Cordell Hall, Secretary of State. He has said that the Franco-German collaboration is inimical to the rights of United States and other nations. Mr. Cordell Hall would seem hardly surprised that the French Government Vichy had adopted a policy of collaboration with other powers for the purpose of securing the terms of the Armistice but he makes her an instrument of aggression against many peoples and nations.

After reviewing the policy of United States with reference to the Armistice, Mr. Hall says:

American policy has been based on assurances of the French Government that its policy would be guided by the terms of the Armistice Agreement.

At a press conference, Cordell Hall explained:

We have received some primary reports from Mr. Leahy and frankly we are much concerned with the situation which seems to be developing. United States has not understood the difficulties the French Government has determined to give ever since they can in solving its problems. We have made it clear to the French Government that the policy of this Government to aid Britain in her fight against the same forces of aggression which have invaded and subjugated France.

The statement is regarded by political observers in Washington as a document of importance. It is pointed out that if the Vichy Government continue to follow the policy of collaboration, the United States will be with great reluctance move against France. Germany against the United States will sever her ties with Vichy and France will be treated as part and parcel of Germany.

Thought For The Day

Sorrow concealed, like an evening

SUNDAY—JUNE 8, 1941

HIS HIGHNESS'S OPPOSITION

"Absolute power tends to corrupt the individual who wields it."

"It must not be forgotten that Democracy, by its very nature, being a form of Government by discussion and argument instead of by a swift and single decision, is necessarily slow and in the short run inefficient."

"In Spain, a country where previous generations had no training in Democracy, the Leader of the Opposition was taken from his house and shot by Government agents in the open street merely because he was the Leader of the Opposition. Where such intolerance exists, Parliamentary Democracy is impossible."
"In Great Britain, on the otherhand, the Government of the day has caused the Leader of the Opposition to be presented with a Parliamentary salary of £ 2,000 a year so that he can oppose the Government with greater independence. A land where such toleration exists is fitted for that high humane and dignified form of Government which we call Democracy."

"Democracy is the method of peace, of freedom, and of reason and thereby political method capable of satisfying the requirements of morality."
—Bryant.

These are some of the thoughts which we would like to develop today in connection with the present political situation in Mysore. In our yesterday's issue we have given expression to the feeling of discontentment and dissatisfaction with regard to the appointment of non-official Ministers. Outside papers which have watched the public opinion in Mysore have also given expression to the same view. In, essence, we have to repeat the new Government has missed a golden opportunity of opening a new chapter of peaceful and contented progress in Mysore. We are not disheartened and do not give room for despair. We hope the Government will take the earliest opportunity of repairing the wrong they have done to the Mysore Congress.

In the meanwhile, we hope, the Mysore Congress Party will act with restraint and wisdom. As the most powerful opposition Party in the Assembly and Council a great responsibility rests on them. If they will, they can convert the whole Assembly to their view. That is not an impossible task. Their objective is clear. Their plan of action is laid out. Their paths are clean.

They have no other aim but that of serving His Highness the Maharaja and his people faithfully and loyally. Their ambition, and it is a reasonable ambition too, is to secure the position of Constitutional Advisers of His Highness the Maharaja by all peaceful and legitimate means. They want to occupy the position that is now occupied by the Dewan and his Council of Ministers. They want to attain this end in the shortest time possible. This is a noble ambition which has the sympathy and support of all right minded people in the State. It is not a personal ambition. It is the ambition of the people themselves.

As the situation stands today, Mysore Congress is the voice of the people. We hope in the shortest time possible the present Ministry will be replaced by the Congress Ministry.

How to achieve this end
That is the question before us.
This is the time for the Congress to consolidate itself properly and place itself in the proud position of His Highness's Opposition in the Assembly and the Council.

None need look askast at us when we request the Congress to play the part of His Highness's Opposition. His Highness's Opposition is as honourable an expression as His Highness's Government. In England the party in power is called is Majesty's Government, and the party in opposition is called His Majesty's Opposition.
Today's leader of the Opposition may become tomorrow Premier. One who has read the constitutional history of England knows the play of politics in that country. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was once the leader of the Opposition. Subsequently he became Premier. Even in Mysore why should we not hope that Mr. K.
Changalraya Reddy, Leader of the Opposition in the Assembly will become, in the immediate future, Premier, or the Dewan of Mysore.

We desire the Mysore Congress to play its noble part as His Highness's Opposition both in the Assembly and the Legislative Council. As the sentences we have quoted on the top of this article show the Opposition is as important as Government. In Great Britain, the Leader of the Opposition is presented with a Parliamentary salary of £ 2000 a year so that he can oppose the Government with greater independence.

The democratic ideal is the greatest ideal that has been available for man. Democracy is not merely a system of Government, nor is it merely a form but it is the spirit. Democracy cannot triumph wholly until the spirit of Democracy dwells in all the people. In the ideal Democracy there would be an authority by the consent of the citizens. In Mysore also we have the same ideal. And Mysore Congress has been working for that ideal and we hope that the Government of the day would extend all courtesy and toleration to the Mysore Congress Party in its expression

These are all legitimate methods

In other words the Govern-

THREE MEN PRODUCE NEWSPAPER
DURING BLITZ

Crete News "Makes History"

(By Cable) London
The Daily Mail's Cairo Correspondent cabled on May 31:
This is one of the world's great newspaper stories. The paper was a one page news sheet called Crete News. It only had four numbers. But its final edition made history.

The New Zealanders started it two days before the invasion came.

In a little back room in Canea five Anzac soldier journalists wrestled with a primitive press and a collection of type which lacked 'w's.

If 'w's were desperately needed, they turned the 'm's upside down. And they could not use 'h's in the headlines because they had none.

The first two numbers came out with a circulation of about 3,000. Then the Nazi blitz started.

But the paper produced its third number, though with its circulation reduced to 2,000.

As the fourth number was being set up, German planes started to wipe out Canea.

With bombs rocking the building, work went on. All through the afternoon the blitz continued.

The officer who was responsible for the paper tried to reach the office, but found a blazing house spilled across the end of the street, and he could not get through.

It seemed that the Crete
News had gone out of circulation. But at one o'clock next morning three blackened sticktaked men staggered to headquarters and threw down 600 copies of the paper on the table.

Their two companions had been detached for urgent duties.
And the three men had paused only twice in their work to rescue civilians from beneath the wrecked buildings.

"We couldn't print any more," they said, "the plant has been burned down."

OUR VILLAGE PANCHAYETS

(By "Villager")

The present system of village government in Mysore ranks among, and in some respects, is the best of its kind in India. As a village panchayat, a village is unique in constitution, scope and utility. It can exercise virtually all the powers of a local Government in its jurisdiction. Education, agriculture, sanitation and relief, industry, vigilance and every other conceivable service of public life are covered by this system. Given the necessary breadth of outlook and clear understanding of the situation and its application to the needs on the part of its members, each panchayat can do good to its village. It is estimated that there are 12,000 panchayats in Mysore, representing 30 per cent of the number of villages in the district. This number explains the importance of government to carry out the benefits of local government to the smallest villages. There are, indeed, several villages having their own panchayats.

Unfortunately, however, the vast majority of panchayats look like the village in the palm, ugly, and are the common regret of all officers. These villages are lagging behind in many particulars. Most of them do not know their own regulations. Several are partisan cliques, capable of doing more harm than good to the cause they represent, irregular and often disorderly in their meetings, and utterly indifferent even to matters of daily routine. They do not know how to prepare the budget. They frequently fail to pay salaries to public servants, and thereby impede their own progress. Many are ignorant of the ordinary laws of the land, and their villages are invariably unclean; they allow a large amount of filth to accumulate in the neighbourhood of the village, and thus impair the public health. In spite of provision in the Regulation for medical relief, they are too indolent to take of it, where there is no dispensary, and let disease grow virulent. There is no initiative on the part of many to spread literacy particularly among the women. Local industries receive no attention, there is practically no effort to improve economic conditions in general. There are concrete instances of indifference, and consequently, resourcelessness to balance the budget. To crown all, having no deal with an elusive class of taxpayers who take advantage of their remissness, they have let their revenues mount up, the figures for 1939-40 being Rs. 47.48 lakhs! Rural progress cannot be judged, therefore, by the number of panchayats that there are, nor by the opening of a school here, a dispensary there, and the digging of half a dozen wells somewhere, serve as the criterion of progress. There are, in a good number of villages, many young men who have had a high school education, and several who have had college education. Some of them are managing the elders in the family, and some are masters themselves, while there are others running business in a distant way. All these young men are keenly after doing some service to their native villages. They have returned and settled

SHIMOGA NOTES

(From our Correspondent)

Shimoga, June 6. At a meeting of the Municipal Council, Mr. K. P. Ramana-thaiah, Ex-Officio President, presiding, it was resolved to continue the malaria control work during the year 1941-42 and further resolved to address the Deputy Commissioner to obtain a grant of Rs. 2000 instead of Rs. 1500 for the purpose in view of the increased prices.

It was resolved to pay a sum of Rs. 100 to afford relief to those who have suffered in the fire accident near sandy maidan which took place some days back. And it was resolved to credit a sum of Rs. 2000 to the Sanitary Engineer for the drainage work.

Mr. H. Siddiah, President Mysore Congress, inaugurated the Municipal election propaganda at Bhadravati. He also addressed a gathering and urged for the co-operation of the people with the Congress.

in the villages for want of opportunity to get on and they are, in several particulars, in advance of the times, and they can be confidently trusted to administer the panchayats in their respective villages efficiently. Should their elders make room for them, they can turn out far better work as members of panchayats than has hitherto been possible to do. It is essential that, in order that they may not go out of their way, they should be immediately mobilized for formal service. Government will do well to institute, in each district centre, a refresher course for these young men in public administration, industry, public health, social work and the like. Far from being academic, the course in each of these departments, must cover up the details of the work done in the corresponding departments of Government with, of course, a lecture or two in each case, on the special features of any and every scheme of rural reconstruction already at work, are awaiting introduction. The control over these panchayats by district authorities must become less arbitrary than it has till now been, the future members being thus enabled to exercise greater discretion in furthering the aims and objects of the system. Indeed, the fiat of the Revenue authorities should under no circumstances be allowed to interfere with the progress of work from day to day. Revenue Officers have, in the immediate past, been somewhat squeamish in their attitude towards the members and office-bearers of the panchayats under their supervision, and have often had to eat their own canker for it. Unless members of panchayats are treated as they should be, the system will only deteriorate, and eventually fail of its purpose. With the inauguration of the New Reforms begins a New Era of prosperity, and in the scheme of things of the future, our panchayats have a definite place. Their progress is the progress of Mysore, and all our public men should endeavour to enhance the utility of these institutions to the rural public, and to the State at large.

JAPANESE-DUTCH INDIES TRADE TALKS

MOVE TO END DEADLOCK

Tokyo's "Warning" to Britain and Netherlands

(By Cable) London. The Times Tokyo Correspondent cabled on May 29:-

The Japanese Government have made formal representations to the Netherlands and British Governments in order to break the deadlock in the trade negotiations with the Netherlands East Indies. The press has announced that the Dutch Government, through their minister, Mr. Pabst, have been served with a demand to "reconsider their attitude" which is declared to be "insincere." The British, in the words of the Asahi have been requested through Sir Robert Craigie, the British Ambassador to "refrain from putting obstacles in the way of the negotiations."

As represented in the Japanese press, the Netherlands Government are refusing to redeem their previous pledges to deliver certain materials to Japan, ostensibly because of Mr. Matsuo's speech in the Diet in which he included the Netherlands East Indies in the "Greater East Asia Coprosperity Sphere." Against this the Netherlands Government protested at the time. The Japanese Domei Agency says that the reason given by the Dutch is merely an excuse. The Asahi denounces the Netherlands for "daring openly to repudiate the idea of an East Asia Coprosperity Sphere."

Reports from Batavia insist that the issue turns on Japanese guarantees not to reship materials to Germany. According to a Japanese spokesman the oil agreement with the East Indies is working satisfactorily and the main materials involved are therefore rubber and tin.

Inauguration of Newly Constituted Representative Assembly and Legislative Council

Torch of Constitutional Progress

From our Special Correspondent

(Phone) Mysore, June, 9. I am a convinced believer in virtues of democracy and in qualities of the people of Mysore," declared His Highness Maharaja of Mysore addressing the joint Session of the Mysore Legislature this morning at the Jagan Mohan Palace. The solemn function of inauguration of the new Houses of Legislature was held in the Jagan Mohan Palace in all pomp and glory.

A historic scene was witnessed this morning at Jaganmohan Palace when H. H. the Maharaja inaugurated the new reformed Legislature. With body guards H. H. the Maharaja accompanied Messrs Siddick-ul-Mulk, Beg, Z. Shah and Lt. Col. Raja Rao, drove in State car actually at 10-30 and at the entrance was received by the members, all the Ministers, and the President, Legislative Council. Flowers and garlands were bandied. Amidst Palace band playing the choicest tune, H. H. the Maharaja took his seat on the dais and the entire gathering stood in respect. H. H. the Maharaja in a clear and distinct voice addressed the gathering through the mike. The speech lasted about fifteen minutes.

H. H.'s Speech

"Let our watchword be economy and production in every possible direction and most of all in those that will help India pay her full part in the war" declared His Highness. His Highness referred in this connection to the enormous sacrifices which were being made in all parts of the world to save civilization. He said forces of production had been let loose and looked as though those who released them lost control over the consequences of their aggressiveness. All human effort and resources had been jeopardised to a degree unknown in history. His Highness said, no lover of freedom, no patriot seeking safety and happiness could afford at this hour of imperil to exaggerate the importance of local questions or fail to do all that lay in his power to achieve victory by collective and individual effort. It therefore behoved every true lover of the country added H. H. the Maharaja to bend his whole energies to strengthening India's defences to equip all our soldiers fighting India's battles on foreign soil and this applied just as much as to those who were living peacefully at home as to those were making munitions or preparing for battle.

Survey of the Present Reforms

His Highness the Maharaja gave a lengthy survey of the present Reforms inaugurated in the State and said that the Government of Mysore Act of 1940 might well be regarded as the culmination of the policy initiated by "my revered grand father" and developed in the light of his own political insight and rare experiences of the Late Highness, in order to ensure increased association of the representatives of the people in the Government of the State.

Torch of Constitutional Progress

"I feel" said His Highness, "in addressing you today I am bearing to a further stage the torch of constitutional progress which has been handed down to me as family heritage. It is my ambition as I am sure it is yours to ensure this light does not grow dim but burn ever brighter with the passage of time. I am a convinced believer in the virtues of democracy and in the qualities of the people of Mysore. I do not for a moment disguise from myself that the successful conduct of democratic institutions especially at a time like the present is very difficult and it will require the best that is in us and especially tolerance and consideration for others, which are the living qualities of a truly civilised man. I believe that my people and especially these elected representatives whom I am addressing today will be found to possess those qualities. I am inaugurating these reforms in the confident hope that you and all concerned will develop them to the full."

Salient Features

Mentioning the salient features of the new Reforms inaugurated in the State, His Highness referred to wider franchise in the case of both houses, substantial increase in their strength, larger representation for special interests and minorities and for women, representation of minority communities by direct election, extension of life of both houses from 3 to 4 years, provision of statutory elected majority in Legislative Council or nearly two-thirds, power to elect non-official President, and Deputy President by the same body, increased power of the Representative Assembly in the matter of legislation and control of State expenditure and freedom of speech and immunity from arrest under certain conditions for members of both houses. These said, His Highness the Maharaja were calculated to secure to the people and more particularly to those sections which had been relatively neglected in the past, collective voice in the constitutional assemblies of the State.

H. H. the Maharaja stressed the point that in a State like ours the interests of people and of Government are fundamentally identical. The differences in ideology are superficial and transient.

State Must Come First

His Highness drew the attention of the House to the fact that sober policies had their good results and demands reasonably made were accepted. In the midst of various separate interests, the State must come first, said H. H. Maharaja. Laying stress on the necessity of equal opportunities for all, H. H. the Maharaja appealed "let us work together for the true happiness of all."

His Highness wished the new legislators godspeed.

ALLIED ADVANCE IN SYRIA

FREE FRENCH AND BRITISH TROOPS ACTING

Three sided attack on Syria. Ankara Radio Broadcast stated that Free French and British troops are marching in Syria in three directions from British controlled territories of Palestine, Transjordan and Iraq. It quotes reports that the British Mediterranean fleet is cruising within gun shot range of Syrian ports. Main British offensive is towards Beirut, Aleppo and Damascus.

Free French forces with the support of Imperial forces entered Syria and Lebanon, it is officially announced.

General Catroux issued a declaration on behalf of General De Gaulle guaranteeing liberty and independence to Syria and Lebanon and undertaking to negotiate treaty with these objects. British Government associate themselves with the promise.

British troops are also advancing into Syria from Iraq along the river Euphrates according to a Vichy report.

A message from Jerusalem states that British and Free French forces advancing into Syria met with no major opposition and whose advance is fully supported by Royal Air Force. British fighters patrolling the sky over the advancing troops have met with no opposition.

According to a message from Ankara all communications between Turkey and Syria may cut off.

The Beirut Radio announced the advance of British troops, but made no mention of Free French troops.

News of the British action in Syria has been well received in neutral countries. In the United States the Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee described British action as only a step to forestall Axis. There is also considerable satisfaction in Turkey where it is held that British action has forestalled German preparations for a large-scale attack from Libya and Syria on Egypt. South African Press gives unqualified support to British move.

However, he criticised them for the Praja Parishad of outsiders to the President and observed that it was more dignifying for the Parishad to have a President who is a Jamkhandian. He said a tribute to Shri Mahabab of Jamkhandi, but the policy of his attitude particularly the attitude of allowance towards the States' Governments was not good history and more times. The President said: "There is crushing poverty, appalling ignorance, ill health, diseases, and people are suffering under a heartless autocracy. These days of stress and strain type unprecedented in the history of the only form of Government that can withstand the time and survive is the one in which is "wide awake" the calls of poverty and the exigencies of the need of the hour. Mr. JINNAH'S TRIBUTE TO MYSORE MAHARAJA

"A VERY SYMPATHETIC RULER" ADVICE TO MYSORE MUSLIMS

BANGALORE, June 9.

"You have a very sympathetic Ruler. He has just ascended the throne. He is young in years but my impression is he is old in head. He is really going to be just, fair and sympathetic"—in these affectionate words Mr. Mahamad Ali Jinnah paid a handsome tribute to the young and progressive Maharaja of Mysore in a mass public meeting of Muslims held in Bangalore City last evening. He also congratulated Mr. Imam, the new Muslim Minister and hoped he would be fair and just to Muslims.

In a tastefully decorated pandal, in the Jamia Mosque Maidan President and members of All Mysore State Muslim League accorded an enthusiastic welcome to Quade-Azam M. A. Jinnah, President, All-India Muslim League. The function was held last evening. A large number of Muslims of the City gathered to honour the Leader and hear his message. Though it rained now and then people were rooted to their seats.

Mr. M.A. Jinnah was brought in procession through the Avenue Road, Dodpet and Narasimha Road to the place of the meeting. At every step the Leader was garlanded. There was a great enthusiasm visible among the Muslim classes.

Mr. Jinnah as soon as he got up the platform, smilingly acknowledged the greetings of the audience. He looked much improved in health. And he looked very pleasant on the occasion. Since loud speaker arrangements had been made the audience listened in silence and reverence to Mr. Jinnah's message.

Address

Mr. Mahamad Sheriff, President, All Mysore State Muslim League read the welcome address in English.

We the members of the All Mysore State Muslim League deem it a great privilege to extend to you a most cordial welcome to this City, which is the Headquarters of our organization, and desire to express to you our heart-felt gratitude for so kindly responding to our invitation. We need hardly say how greatly we appreciate this opportunity of welcoming our "Quade-Azam" who has striven and will succeed in unifying the various political elements of the community and by imparting a fresh and powerful impulse to the All India Muslim League and by reorientating its policy and placing before it a definite goal has made it a truly great representative and powerful political organisation of the Muslims of the country. Although not affiliated to the All India Muslim League, the State League has continually drawn inspiration from your personality and your messages to Muslims of India and having the fullest confidence in your leadership of the community, (cheers) we wish to place before you a brief account of our activities, so that we may have the benefit of your valuable advice.

In response to the rapidly changing conditions and circumstances in the political life of this country in general and of the State of Mysore in particular, the All Mysore State Muslim League was formed in the year 1938 to take stock of the political, civic, social, educational and economic position of the community, to awaken mass consciousness in all these fields and to safeguard and promote the general interest of the community. It was more particularly a time when constitutional reforms in the State were under contemplation and there was a need for an organization to deliberate over and give corporate and articulate expression to the political and other needs of the community. The time was ripe for an All State Organization and soon after the founding of the State League a network of District and Taluk Leagues came into existence, and the community found a common platform and an organization through which it could speak with one and emphatic voice. When the constitutional Reforms Committee was appointed by His Highness the Maharaja for the purpose of examining the working of the constitutional bodies in the State and making recommendation as to further changes which may be desirable, the State Muslim League formulated its demand and submitted before the Committee a memorandum on behalf of the Muslims of this State and its representative personally presented to the Committee its point of view in regard to the various matters that were under consideration. It is gratifying to state that one of the principle demands of the community, namely, its representation in the legislature on the principle of separate electorates has been conceded and a certain degree of weightage also given to the community. While there are certain other legitimate demands of the community still to be met, we hope that by persistent effort and by the sympathy of the Government, we shall be able to secure this satisfaction before long.

It will interest you, Sir, to know that when the reforms came into effect and the new elections were held, the State Muslim League was able to return a large majority of members both to the Representative Assembly and to the Legislative Council on its ticket, thereby demonstrating its fully representative character. Although no statutory provision was made for a Muslim Minister, it is gratifying to note that the Muslim appointed by His Highness to the recently constituted Cabinet of Ministers was one who had been returned to the legislature on the League Ticket.

We must add, at the same time that we are by no means fully satisfied with the new constitutional reforms inaugurated by His Highness so far as our community is concerned. The extension of the principle of separate electorates to local bodies on which for obvious reasons, the community is very keen, provision in the constitution for safeguarding our religion, culture, social and economic life in such a manner that if an appreciable majority of the elected members of the community in the two popular houses were opposed to any measure affecting the interests of the community such a measure should not be passed, and a statutory provision for the permanent representation of the community in the Government and an adequate representation in the services are some of our fundamental demands which are yet to be considered by the Government. While we shall continue to agitate for that we are fully prepared, in a spirit of friendly co-operation with other communities and with loyalty to His Highness the Maharaja, to work the reforms and contribute our share to the general well-being and progress of this State.

The Mussalmans of the Mysore State in general, and the members of the All Mysore State Muslim League in particular, having looked forward so keenly to your visit, pray you, Sir, to deliver to us a message that will stimulate us in our efforts and will sustain us in our endeavour to ameliorate the general position of our community, so as to make it worthy of its great traditions.

Mr. Jinnah's Reply

Mr. M.A. Jinnah rose and delivered a short and sweet address in English. He was in very good form. At the outset he thanked the President and members of the Muslim League and Mussalmans in general of the city, for their affectionate welcome to him. He said that the Mussalmans of Mysore lived under a different Government and Mussalmans of British India lived under a different Government. Their Governments were different. But he said wherever they may be Mussalmans had natural regards for Muslims in other parts of the world. (cheers). Children of Islam know no boundaries. Where-ever they may be they are the followers of that sacred Book. They share one another's joy.

Mr. Jinnah congratulated the Muslim League of the State for organising their community in such a short time and achieving such good results. Addressing the Muslims he said, "you are seeing the benefits of organisation. Your opinions will be heard with respect."

Tribute to Mysore Ruler

Referring to His Highness the Maharaja, he said "you have a very sympathetic Ruler. He has just ascended the Gadi. He is young in years but my impression of him is, he is old in head. He is really going to be a just, fair and sympathetic Ruler. I carry with me this fine impression of him." (cheers)

Mysore Reforms

Referring to the new Constitutional Reforms in Mysore, Mr. Jinnah said "You are on the threshold of a new constitutional experiment. You have expressed some satisfaction but there are a good many items over which you are not satisfied. I assure you if Muslims stand together and work together though you are in a minority, you will get all you demand."

Mr Imam Congratulated

"I am glad that Mr. Imam is appointed as Minister under the new Reforms scheme. He was returned by the Muslim League. This shows that our selection was well considered. I hope Mr. Imam will do his duty fearlessly and independently being just to Mussalmans."

In this connection Mr. Jinnah referred to some people who kick the very ladder by which they rise. He advised Muslims to beware of such people. He said "You are the final masters. You can make and destroy your leaders. You can bring down selfish and self aggrandising leaders. There are some people who have one foot here and another foot there. They talk and do things according to circumstances. Such people you should bring down."

Minority Community

Referring to the attitude of Muslims in respect of Reforms Mr. Jinnah said "although you are not satisfied you have struck the right note that you will work the Reforms and co-operate in a friendly spirit with other communities of the State. I am glad you struck that note. We are misrepresented. The object of our movement is misrepresented to be one of non co-operation with other communities. On the other hand the object of our League is to work in co-operation with other communities. Each community will have to look after its own interest and promote it socially, politically, and economically. The idea is, that the two great communities should work in a friendly spirit. Your reforms will succeed if only the communities co-operate with one another provided that the majority communities create a feeling of security in the minority community that they would be treated fairly and justly. "It is this reciprocal obligation that is necessary for the healthy working of any constitution. The obligation of the majority to the minority community is great."

In concluding, Mr. Jinnah said "a great deal more remains yet to be achieved. Please concentrate your activities in the direction of uplift of Muslim masses, specially the people living in villages and the poor" (cheers).

Mr. JINNAH'S ADVICE TO C. & M. STATION MUSLIMS

IMPORTANCE OF CONSTRUCTIVE WORK

Bangalore, June 9

"Let me emphasise one thing, that many leaders here exploited you in the past, under the name of Muslim Leadership and mind you the chapter is not yet closed. There are people who have one foot in one camp and the other in another camp. Sometimes they speak one way and some times the other way. You have got to be very careful in choosing your leader"—thus observed Mr. M. A. Jinnah, President of the All-India Muslim League, addressing the Mussalmans of the Bangalore Cantonment, in a reception accorded to him by the Islamia Club on Sunday morning.

Mr. Jinnah, who arrived in Bangalore on Saturday evening from Ooty, was taken in procession through the principal streets of Cantonment, before he was accorded reception.

Mr. Jinnah, continued his speech and said one of the problems facing the Muslim community was a problem of political issue which was going to decide the future destiny of ninety million Mussalmans. Their issues therefore were of gravest character and were a matter of life and death to the Ninety Million Mussalmans. That was a problem awaiting them. They were struggling and fighting not with a view to harm others but with a view to live with honour, integrity and as freemen; and not under any Raj, be it a Hindu or any other.

Touching upon the constructive programme of the Muslim League, Mr. Jinnah said, the League had given the Muslims of India a flag, a platform and a national goal, Pakistan. "I have set it as a goal for every Muslim who should every morning and evening say to himself, it is a goal worth living for and dying for." Whatever the misleading criticism and ingenious arguments and special pleading and all sorts of entreaties, Mr. Jinnah said that they would not in anyway deter them from working for their goal. He advised them to go back to the great principles laid down in their sacred Book.

Concluding Mr. Jinnah said that the Mussalmans wanted to organise themselves and they wanted selfless and disinterested workers who could take up constructive work in order that they might uplift the Mussalmans of this Cantonment, economically, socially and educationally. "Believe me" said Mr. Jinnah "small as your number may be, as you know, even a mouse can face a lion."

Mr. Mahamad Sheriff thanked Mr. Jinnah for his great message.

Mr. Jinnah's Urdu message

At the request of the audience Mr. Jinnah gave a short message in Urdu the purport of which is "work under one banner, on one platform, and let all Muslims work unitedly."

After the function was over, Mr. Jinnah left the meeting amidst cries of "Quade-Azam Jindabad."

CONVERSION SCHEME ANNOUNCED

IN RESPECT OF STERLING LOANS

(Associated Press of India)

Simla, June 8

In a speech introducing the budget, the Finance Member explained that as an interim measure, pending detailed consideration counterparts bearing the same rate of interest and with the same maturity would be issued immediately in lieu of sterling loans repatriated and that permanent arrangements would be decided upon later.

Conversion scheme announced today, whereby holders of two four-and-half percent sterling loans repatriated, namely four and half percent 1950-53 and four and half percent 1958-68 will be given option of converting them into three percent loans about the same maturity on terms corresponding to the present market prices of securities in question, forms part of more permanent arrangements foreshadowed. The total face value of Indian sterling stock cancelled under repatriation scheme upto 16th May, 1941 is just under 70 million pounds of which a greater part (nearly £42 million) is in the form of four and a half percent stock. Of the remainder, five percent stock amounts to four and three-fourths million and the balance divided roughly equally (about seven and half million pounds each) between four percent and three and half percent and three percent stock. The face value of rupee counterparts created amounts to about 93 crores whereof about twelve and a half crores has been taken up by the public and the balance divided approximately equally between the Government and the Reserve Bank. In deciding permanent arrangements to deal with the question Government have had two aims in view, namely firstly to reduce as far as possible stock counterparts bearing high nominal rate of interest and secondly to leave sufficient volume of counterparts to maintain marketability in the interests of those who accepted repayment of sterling loans in this form. They have also taken into consideration the improbability of the market being able within a reasonable period of time, to absorb as much as of surpluses judged undesirable, acting to however limited in extent, as a depressing factor on the market. In pursuance of those objects

HOW CRETE'S DEFENCE DELAYED HITLER'S PLAN

(By Cable) London, Daily Telegraph Cairo correspondent

cabled on June 2:
The evacuation of Crete is regretted, but the effect of its epic defence by British and Anzac troops and airmen may prove to have been invaluable.

Hitler's time-table was held up at least three weeks and a new one had to be elaborated. The Germans expected long before this to have been well into the Western Desert and Syria and to be advancing towards the Suez Canal and the oilfields of Iran and Iraq.

Moreover the damage inflicted on the Germans in men, and, what is even more important, on equipment and air-transport must inevitably have increased the embarrassment of the German High Command.

The retention of Crete in Greco-British hands would have been a great step towards ending the war. Its capture by the Nazis does not mean that they are nearer winning the war; on the contrary they still have to beat the British fleet and to cross to meet the British Army and air force which is growing in strength daily.

means Responsible Government? But the Reforms announced by the Durbar lack the very touch of humanity which should have otherwise endeared the Rajasahab and the Government to the people of Jamkhandi. I, therefore, endorse your opinion that the reforms introduced in your State fall far short of the popular demand for the establishment of Responsible Government and are certainly retrogressive in nature. In conclusion, I exhort you all to be united and defend your rights with every means possible. Be bold; and yet, be meek in heart!"

After the conclusion of the President's speech six resolutions were passed. The main resolution condemning and rejecting the new constitution inaugurated recently by the Jamkhandi Durbar as unworthy of acceptance and retrogressive was passed unanimously.

The President then brought the session to a close in a short speech in which he exhorted the people to stand firmly behind the Prajaparisad which has yet to play a great part in the shaping of their future destiny and the attainment of their goal.

Shri T. Siddalingayya left Jamkhandi for Bangalore at 4 P.M. today.

NAVAL REPERCUSSIONS OF CRETE WITHDRAWAL

(By Cable) London, The Times Naval Correspondent writes:

The withdrawal of British forces from Crete affects the naval situation in the Mediterranean in two ways: it deprives us of advanced bases, both naval and air, which greatly extended the range of operations of the forces based on Egypt; and it produces a second narrow defile between the west Mediterranean and Egypt in the passage of which British ships will now be subject to heavy air attack from both sides. There is, however, this difference: whereas in the Sicilian Channel British air support could be available only from carriers, the channel between Crete and Cyrenaica, 200 miles wide, is flanked by Egyptian territory from which the British air forces can operate. Dive-bombers have not been able to prevent British ships, protected only by warships and naval aircraft, from using the Sicilian Channel. In these other narrows they will presumably have to reckon with R.A.F. fighters as well.

NEW DEWAN'S FIRST ADDRESS TO ASSEMBLY

Appeal to Members for Whole Hearted Co-operation

SUBORDINATE PARTY TO STATE INTEREST

MINISTERS TO KEEP ALOOF FROM PARTY AND PARTY POLITICS

(From our Correspondent)
By Wire) Mysore, June 10
Addressing the first session of the newly constituted Representative Assembly, Rajamantravina N. Madhava Rao, Dewan of the Maharaja has told us that we are meeting at a remarkable time of the history of the world.

Remarkable Moment in History
In welcoming you today I feel that I am doing so in no less a remarkable moment in the history of our State.

Maharaja Wise Beyond his Years
This is the first budget session under the aegis of Our New ruler who has shown himself with sympathy, judgment, understanding and wisdom, beyond his years.

Paying his respects to H. H. the Maharaja for appointing him Dewan, Mr. Madhava Rao said, "From my long association with the Government, I realise how greatly the successful discharge of the duties of the Dewan's Office depends upon the goodwill of the people and the co-operation of the Members of the Legislature. If I make an earnest appeal for such co-operation from you, new representatives of the people, I feel I am making no conventional and perhaps no vain appeal."

Tributes to Sir Mirza
Paying a handsome tribute to Sir Mirza, Mr. Madhava Rao said, "We miss his familiar figure today. He presided over 15 sessions of the Assembly, during 15 years and by his patience, affability and more than that, by his large-hearted sympathy for people he endeared himself to the members of this House. As you know I was closely associated with him for many years, an association which has been of greatest value to me."

Surplus Budget

The Dewan analysed the budget and said that the total revenue was 458.24 lakhs. Expenditure expected to stand at 454 lakhs with surplus of Rs. 4.24 lakhs.

that the administration's main purpose was to increase the material prosperity of the people.

Appeal for Co-operation
In conclusion he said, "We are anxious to see that the new Constitution is worked in a liberal spirit. I for one, regard it not as a patented machine but as a living organism capable of development and growth. The growth will not perhaps be on narrow party lines. Indeed it would be unfortunate if party differences should arise at this critical time or disturb our even tenor of our progress."

Duty of Ministers
"As Ministers of H. H. the Maharaja we have to keep aloof from parties and party politics and inculcate a similar attitude of detachment in our officers."

"We have no doubt that it is the desire of you all to subordinate party to State interest."

"We hope that we shall be able to enjoy your whole hearted co-operation and benefits of your wide experience and influence in solving many problems that will arise."

"NO CONFIDENCE IN PRESENT SYSTEM OF ADMINISTRATION"

MYSORE CONGRESS WORKING COMMITTEE CRITICISES GOVERNMENT POLICY

"NEGATION OF DEMOCRACY"

(From our Correspondent),
Mysore, June 9

The Working Committee of the Mysore Congress has issued the following statement to the Press:

The Working Committee of the Mysore Congress followed the recent political events in the State with grave concern. Despite the utterly inadequate and in many respects retrograde character of the Reforms the Mysore Congress decided to suspend Civil Disobedience and to contest the elections mainly with a view to demonstrate the volume and strength of public opinion behind its demands and to consolidate its position in the State. It gave an opportunity to Government to restore peace and harmony in the public life of the country and to allay the discontent of the people.

The Mysore Congress swept the polls in the elections to the District Boards and in many of Municipalities, especially in the Cities of Mysore and Bangalore. Far from reading the signs aright and befriending the Congress the Government resorted to crush the Congress and its electioneering machinery. How Government attempted to sabotage the Congress in the General Elections and how in spite of extreme official interference the Congress candidates have been returned in large numbers to the Legislatures is a matter of recent history.

With the advent of the new regime it was hoped that the Government would even within the limited sphere open to them try to meet popular aspirations as far as possible and adopt a policy of befriending the Congress which is the strongest and most dominant Political Party in the State.

The Mysore Congress notes with the deepest regret that the Government have however continued to follow the same old policy of ignoring and of even trying to undermine the Mysore Congress by mustering anti-Congress elements and relying upon reactionary forces. The attitude of the Government as reflected in the nominations to the Legislatures, in the advice to His Highness the Maharaja regarding the choice of non-official Ministers and the President of the Legislative Council and generally in the utter disregard of public opinion, has not only belied the hopes of the people and caused immense dissatisfaction and indignation among them but also confirmed the view widely held about the hollowness and illusory character of the Reforms.

The Government of His Highness proclaims its faith in democracy in words but denies it in practice, while, having regard to its constitution, it is in itself a negation of democracy. It is altogether out of tune with the times and its continuance as such will be a source of perpetual friction in the State.

The Working Committee feels constrained to observe that the people have no confidence in the present system of administration and that there can be no contentment or satisfaction in the country unless and until the present system of Government is changed and replaced by a system of responsible Government. Later, all members took the oath of allegiance.

Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja.

The Working Committee desires to emphasize the need for a State-wide agitation in this behalf and suggests that the people should not only express their feelings and aspirations in unmistakable terms but must also acquire increasing strength and sanction a support of their demand by carrying out the constructive programme of work in a perfectly disciplined, truthful and non-violent manner.

DEWAN'S ADDRESS TO ASSEMBLY

Rajamantiravina N. Madhava Rao's first welcome address to the first session of the newly constituted Representative Assembly contains as usual a brief survey of the Finances of the State. The Budget estimates for the year 1941-42 show Revenue of Rs. 458.24 lakhs, Expenditure of Rs. 457.04 lakhs, leaving a surplus of Rs. 1 lakh and 20 thousand. An amount of 11 lakhs has been donated by the State towards war effort. It is gratifying to note that our revenues are on the upward path but it should be remembered that the post war period is more dangerous than the war period and any financial planning should take into account the coming times. We have every confidence that the resources of our State would be husbanded wisely by the new Government.

As is natural, the new Dewan has made an eloquent reference to Sir Mirza Ismail his predecessor who won all-India reputation as the Dewan of Mysore. Sir Mirza presided over twenty-eight sessions of the Assembly and by his affability, large-heartedness and other personal qualities, he won a unique position in the hearts of the people.

Mr. N. Madhava Rao speaking about himself, respectfully thanked H. H. the Maharaja for appointing him as Dewan and President of Council of Ministers. About H. H. the Maharaja he said, His Highness is wise beyond his years and that is the impression every great man has carried about His Highness.

The portion of the Dewan's speech in which he refers to the new Constitution and the spirit in which it is going to be worked deserves particular attention. The Dewan draws the attention of the members of the House to the fact that the success of the efforts of Government depends very largely on the co-operation of the members of the legislature and prays for this co-operation. The Dewan assures the House that the new Constitution would be worked in a liberal spirit. We are thankful for this assurance and we hope that this would be translated into action in the matter of Government's attitude to Mysore Congress. How we wish this liberal spirit had actuated the Dewan in the matter of the selection of non-official Ministers! Had he at least sent for the Congress Leader and discussed the matter with him, the country would have been more than pleased. This call for co-operation has come rather late. It ought to have come a few days earlier, earlier than the appointment of non-official Ministers. We are sure, Mysore Congress would have responded nobly to that call. As the situation stands today, the heart of Mysore Congress is lacerated and any amount of soft honeyed phrases would not heal the wound. Anyhow that chapter is past.

Let us look at the other sentiments expressed by the Dewan. We agree that the constitution is not a patented machine but a living organism capable of development and growth. But it has to develop on some well laid out lines. But what are those lines? The Dewan seems to disparage the narrow party lines. Then what are the lines? H. H. the Maharaja is a convinced believer in democracy and is of the opinion that Mysore constitution should progress on democratic lines. No democracy has been established and progressed except on sound party lines. This is a debatable point that the Dewan has raised and all cannot agree with him and his remarks are liable to be misunderstood if undue stress is laid upon them. In Mysore, the country's politics is growing on party lines and Mysore Congress is a strong well-knit organized political party. We hope these remarks of the Dewan would not affect the progress of Mysore Congress.

Regarding the present Ministers we agree that they should keep aloof from parties and party politics and work in a detached manner.

The Dewan's appeal to members to subordinate party interests to State interests can have only one meaning. When the question of the State comes, all should be united, even as England is today. Every patriotic party does it and we know Mysore Congress party leads the way in that. Much depends on the way the new Dewan would treat Mysore Congress. As he has pleaded, tolerance and consideration for others' views is the primary need at present. As we have urged once before, if His Highness's Government treats its Opposition with respect and tolerance, the way would be smooth. We hope the Government would act with wisdom and statesmanship in this matter.

QUESTION OF WATER SUPPLY IN THE CITY

PROBLEM OF FREE ALLOWANCE

Bangalore June 9

We give below some of the salient points from the interim report of the Sub-committee appointed to go into the question of water supply in the City. The Bangalore City Municipal Council gave its approval to these recommendations of the Committee in connection with free supply of water.

A Committee with Sjt. K. Hanumanthaiya, as Chairman, Sjts. L. S. Raju, B. Subbiah, C. N. Narasinga Rao, H. R. Guruvu Reddy and Mirza Azizulla Beig was appointed to enquire into and report on the system of water supply in the City with particular reference to the control of water-supply, the annual charge payable to Government, contribution of Government to the Municipal Council and the free allowance of water for domestic use and to make recommendations in regard to the measures necessary to improve the water supply generally to reduce the annual charges payable to Government and to enhance the contribution of Government and to increase the free allowance of water for domestic use.

Minimum Free Supply

Of the problems entrusted to the Committee the most urgent and pressing one is that of increasing the free allowance of water for domestic use. The present free allowance of water for domestic use is 3,000 gallons minimum and 10,000 gallons maximum per month, the variations in figures of free allowance between these limits being based on the water-rate payable on the buildings concerned. The present minimum free allowance of 3,000 gallons per month is in operation since October 1939. Prior to this the minimum free allowance was 4,000 gallons per month ever since water began to be supplied from the reservoir at Thippagondanahalli in 1933. The same free allowance was allowed even when water was being supplied from Hessarghatta tank prior to 1933.

The reduction of the minimum from 4,000 to 3,000 gallons has, so far as we are able to understand, been effected for two reasons. The first is 3,000 gallons per month for a family of five members would be sufficient.

The second is that the Municipality is likely to get increased income for it to make up the amount of Rupees Four lakhs that it is ordered to pay to the Government for a supply of 3 million gallons of water per day.

In reducing the minimum to 3,000 gallons per month, those responsible for it have believed that 3,000 gallons would meet the normal requirements of a household in the City. This belief indicates, happily, that they were conscious of their responsibility to allow sufficient free allowance of water to answer normal requirements of a household. The Government who have the control and management of the Water Works with them have also, we can safely assume acted, on this basis throughout. No other conclusion is possible for us to arrive at on our going to the history of water-supply system of the City. Is it really the case that 3,000 gallons of water would meet the normal requirements of household of five? Is it really the case that the average number of household in the City is five? Let us look into the problems in detail a little.

Washing Requires More Water

Washing mouths and face and bathing are daily necessities. These together require on an average ten gallons per individual or 50 gallons for the family. Many people are accustomed to take oil-baths and though this would require considerable quantity of water we have not taken into account as oil baths may not strictly come within term "necessity for all". Answering calls of nature would require about 4 gallons per individual or about 20 gallons for the family. This will come to 600 gallons per month and is fairly accurate in view of the 750 gallons of water allowed free for a flush-out latrine (we are considering the question of flush-out latrines separately.) A family of five would require about 30 gallons per day for drinking and cooking. It is necessary to wash hands, feet and face before, and wash hands and mouth after taking meals. This would easily take about 20 gallons for the family.

Washing utensils is a daily necessity which has got to be taken into account. This washing takes place as many times as there are cookings and as many times as something is drunk or eaten. We think that this washing requires 12 gallons per day for a family of five. Washing clothes can by no means be forgotten. Even when there is a family washerman to wash the clothes, there will always be some clothes which are usually washed by the women of the family like sadies, towels, under-wears, children's clothes etc. A family of five can be taken to use about 5 gallons per day or about 150 gallons per month on this account. Besides keeping ourself and our clothes clean, we have to keep our premises clean if we are to be healthy. This requires about 4 gallons per day or 120 gallons per month. The other minor needs of the family may require daily about 2 gallons of water. A family of five may be taken to require water for its necessities as follows:—

| Needs | Quantity of water per day Gallons. |
|--|------------------------------------|
| 1. Washing face and bathing | 50 |
| 2. Answering calls of nature | 22 |
| 3. Drinking and cooking | 30 |
| 4. Washing hands and feet in connection with the meals | 20 |
| 5. Washing utensils | 12 |
| 6. Washing clothes | 5 |
| 7. Washing premises | 4 |
| 8. Minor needs | 2 |
| Total | 145 |

It would thus be seen that a family of five requires about 145 gallons per day or about 4,350 gallons per month, and the free allowance of 3,000 gallons per month is quite insufficient.

We have so far proceeded on the basis that the average number of inmates of a house in the City is five. It is not really so. There are as per figure furnished to us by the office 25,582 houses in the City. Out of this number residential ones may be taken as 21,000. The population of the City as per the Census is 2,47,902. The figures show that the number of inmates of a house in the City is 12. If only 10 houses are taken as residential and about 10 if all the houses are taken as residential. It is the house connections, not the family that forms the basis of free allowance of water and the estimate that a household in the City consists of five people on the average is therefore not correct.

The reduction of free allowance from 4,000 to 3,000 gallons is therefore sustainable from the point of view of normal requirements of the household nor from the point of view of its size.

FLUSH OUT LATRINES
Additional 3 Gallons Standard

We have so far taken into consideration the normal requirements of the household. The difference between the normal quantity of water required per use. A latrine is likely to be used at least twice a day by an individual and hence the quantity required by a household of five people at 30 gallons per day is 900 gallons per month and seems to be sufficient for the purpose. The size of the household in the City is more than five on an average. Happily, the allowance for flush-out latrines is elastic. The free allowance now allowed by rules for a flush-out latrine is 750 gallons and a house can have free allowance for two flush-out latrines. It is to say, a house by having two flush-outs can have a free allowance of 1,500 gallons per month. A household in the City can have thus either 3,000 or 1,500 gallons of free allowances as the need requires. We are of opinion that the present rules are too liberal. The allowance of water may be allowed so as to increase the minimum 900 gallons for two flush out and 1500 for two Unfortunately, this free allowance is not enjoyed by all house connections uniformly. Out of about 11,700 connections only 3,250 houses have flush-out latrines whose number is ever is 4,700. The number of houses in the City are 25,600. The underground drainage is being introduced gradually to all parts of the city. Now, the people in the vicinity of whose houses underground drainage is not yet laid out are allowed to be on a par in the matter with those lucky who have already the drainage of flush-out latrines. The inequality in the enjoyment of free supply of water should be set right as soon as possible.

The required free allowance for Domestic use

As for domestic use minimum free allowance of water for connection up to 4,000 gallons per month. We put forward the following reasons for it:

(a) As already shown, the size and the normal requirements of a family in the City requires more than 3,000 gallons of water, but the people are not satisfied with the minimum of 4,000 gallons free allowance per month.

(b) The office which is closely in touch with the rates under excess water charges is of opinion that the rate of free allowance per month

WISHING GODSPEED TO NEWLY CONSTITUTED LEGISLATURE

H. THE MAHARAJA'S SPEECH

TRUE HAPPINESS AND PROSPERITY OF PEOPLE

(From our Correspondent)

Mysore, June 9
It affords me sincere pleasure to welcome you to this joint inaugural meeting of the two Houses of our Legislature, and give you this message of goodwill on the eve of your entering upon the new responsibilities which will be yours hereafter.

It is now a little more than 17 years since my beloved uncle, Krishnaraja Wadiyar Bahadur, of revered memory, addressed the Houses of the Legislature, introducing a scheme of constitutional reforms. Those reforms were acclaimed as giving the two Houses a position of far greater importance than they had then occupied. The reform in which we are taking part today raises them to a higher level. The Government of Mysore Act, 1940, may be regarded as the culmination of a policy initiated by my revered grandfather, and developed in the light of his own profound insight and rare experience, by His late Highness, in order to ensure increased association of the representatives of the people with the Government of the State. I feel that, in addressing this joint meeting of the Houses today, I am bearing a further stage the torch of constitutional progress which has been handed down to me as a family heritage. It is my ambition, as I am sure it is yours, to ensure that its light does not grow dim, but will burn ever brighter with the passage of time.

Origin and Growth

Those who have watched the origin and growth of our political institutions have noted that Mysore has always been in the vanguard of progress. Our Representative Assembly was started 60 years ago when the principle of representative institutions was little known and practised in this continent, at any rate in Indian India. In later years the principle of associating representatives of the people with the affairs of government has been widely applied. In Mysore it has come to stay, and in the manner in which it has worked all these years, affords scope for genuine satisfaction. Since 1924, to go no further back, the Assembly and the Council have dealt with more than 160 measures of legislation including several of great importance, and have discussed hundreds of resolutions, while the questions put to the Government and the representations made to them run literally into thousands, and cover every branch of the administration. The discussion of them a spirit of co-operation and a sense of responsibility have rarely been absent. The reforms that are now to come into operation are a natural corollary to the commendable record established by these bodies, and a recognition of the experience they have gained in parliamentary methods of business. At the same time, to ensure that these reforms will be recognised as a generous response to the desire of important sections of the people for increased participation in the administration of the State. It has been said that a constitution is "successful in proportion as it presents, not a new creation substituted for an old one, but the "natural extension of its past tendencies." The present reforms are conceived in this spirit. At the same time, we have not hesitated to adopt rules of procedure and electoral schemes which have been tried in British India. As realists, we must be ever ready to profit by the experience of others as well as our own.

Interests of People and Government

We will do well to remember that, in a State like ours, the interests of the people and those of the Government are fundamentally identical, and that differences in ideology as between different sections are, for the most part, superficial and transient. You will also recognise that, to whatever extent you have proved yourselves worthy of closer association with the Government, your claims have been neither denied nor lost sight of. On the other hand, the sober politician will be struck by the surprising advance that has been made. In order to realise the magnitude of this advance, you have only to recall the fact that the Representative Assembly was first brought into existence in order, in the words of its authors, that the views and objects of the measures adopted by the Government might be "better known and appreciated by the people for whose benefit they were intended," and that "the action of the Government should be brought into greater harmony with the wishes and interests of the people." From that small beginning, the Legislature has grown from power to power, until now it is to enjoy an effective voice in the shaping of the day-to-day administration of the State.

Special Feature of Reforms

It is needless to mention all the special features of the reforms which are being inaugurated to-day. But it will be useful to recount a few of them: wider franchise in the case of both Houses; substantial increase in their strength; larger representation for special interests and minorities, and for women; representation of minority communities by direct election; extension of the life of each House from three to four years; provision of a statutory elected majority in the Legislative Council of nearly two-thirds; power to elect a non-official President and a Deputy President for the same body; increased power of the Representative Assembly in the matter of legislation and control of State expenditure; and freedom of speech and immunity from arrest under certain conditions members of both Houses. These are all calculated to secure to the people, and more particularly to those sections which have been relatively neglected in the past, an effective voice in the constitutional assemblies of the State.

Appointment of Non official Ministers

Above all, I am sure you will appreciate the decision to give a place to elected representatives of the people in my Executive Council, with regular portfolios of the Administration. The antithesis that is sometimes set up between official and non-official points of view may often lack substance in the conditions of public life prevailing in our State. Nevertheless, the appointment of non-official Ministers is rightly regarded as a reform of a far-reaching character. For my part, I am convinced that a variety of experience on the part of my Ministers can only add to the weight and value of the advice that I receive from my Council and I take this opportunity of according a very hearty welcome to all the members of that Council who have just entered upon their new duties.

It is now for us all working together with the welfare of our State as our united objective, to take steps to ensure that our future is worthy of our past.

Remarkable Moment of History

As popularly elected bodies you are embarking on new responsibilities at a remarkable moment of history. To-day many parts of the world are strewn with the wrecks of popular institutions. Some have been destroyed by external aggressors; some have collapsed of their own weakness; the strongest of those that have survived have of their own free will accepted large curtailments of their liberty while the war lasts. It may well be asked whether this is a time to embark on a large experiment in the expansion of democratic institutions. My answer to such a question would be that I am a convinced believer in the virtues of democracy and in the qualities of the people of Mysore. I do not for a moment disguise from myself that the successful conduct of democratic institutions, especially at a time like the present, is a very difficult task, that it will require all the best that is in us, and especially that tolerance and consideration for others which are leading qualities of a truly civilized man. But I believe that my people, and especially these elected representatives whom I am addressing to-day, will be found to possess those qualities. And I am inaugurating these reforms in the confident hope that you and all concerned will display them to the full.

State as a whole

Most of you represent particular areas of the State; some of you represent special communities or interests; some may have come here to promote particular policies. I urge you, while faithfully representing your own constituents, never to forget that in all things the State must come first, and that, if our reforms are to be a success, each of the many castes, creeds and communities of which the State is composed must feel that its rights are protected and its interests promoted so far as they are consistent with the good of the State as a whole.

True Happiness and Prosperity

I do not wish to suggest policies to you. But it is my hope that the new constitution will be so worked as to ensure and maintain equal opportunities for all, security and freedom under the law, and the raising of the general standard of life by the full development of the great resources with which this State is so bountifully endowed. With these objects, let us work together, not for any selfish or sectional end, but for the good of all and for the true happiness and prosperity of Mysore.

Tragedy of Immediate Present

One last word regarding the tragedy of the immediate present. While speaking of our achievements in the past and our hopes for the future, we cannot forget the enormous sacrifices which are being made in many parts of the world to save civilization. Forces of destruction have been let loose, and it looks as if those who released them have lost control over the consequences of their recklessness. All human comfort and safety have been jeopardised to a degree unknown to history; and the danger to peaceful pursuits, which till lately was visible only on a distant horizon, is now at our own doors. No well-wisher of human freedom and ordered progress, and patriot seeking India's safety and happiness, can afford at this hour of imminent peril to exaggerate the importance of local questions or to fail to do all that lies in his power to achieve victory by collective and individual effort. When victory has been won, then will be the time for us fully to enjoy, in an atmosphere of undisturbed peace, the fruits of constitutional progress. Meanwhile our perspective must be conditioned by the imperative needs of the present situation. It behoves every true lover of his country to bend his whole energy to the strengthening of India's defences, and to the equipping of our soldiers who are fighting India's battles on foreign soils. And this applies just as much to those who are living peacefully at home as to those who are making munitions or preparing for the battle. Let our watchwords be Economy and Production in every possible direction, but most of all in those that will help India to play her full part in the War.

With Godspeer

I wish you Godspeer in the discharge of your duties and responsibilities. May God grant that, as a result of your united efforts, devotion to duty and high patriotism, our beloved State may, in the days to come, make yet more rapid progress in all directions, and that the new constitution may help to train the people in the virtues of citizenship, which are the only enduring foundation and ultimate justification of any political system.

ANTI-SEPARATION CONFERENCE

RESOLUTIONS AGAINST PAKISTAN PASSED

A.P. Kumbakonam, June 9

Anti-separation Conference resuming its sitting to-night passed a resolution. It is the considered view of Mussalmans in all parts of South India that two nation scheme of Pakistan envisaged in the resolution of Muslim League will not only not serve the interests of the Muslim community in India for which purpose it is avowedly declared but also is definitely detrimental to its growth, expansion and solidarity and further result in disintegration of this country which all along has been geographically politically an integral unit.

Another resolution strongly condemned all attempts by whomsoever made to vivisection India on any grounds such as ethical, religious etc. The third resolution disputed the claim of Muslim League to represent the Muslim community as a whole as the major reaction of the Muslim community never subscribed to the policy of All India Muslim League. Another resolution declared that the Conference was strongly opposed to all constitutional schemes for the future governance of India not based on the fact that India is an indivisible nation. The Conference also appealed to Congress High Command to set up an enquiry court to look into all the charges made against Congress Ministries in different provinces and take adequate action in order to infuse confidence of all communities. The Conference also asked for repeal of Vidya Mandir Scheme as it provoked a controversy.

The Conference condemned inter-communal trouble and ruptures which occurred in different places in the country and sympathised with sufferers.

Sir G. S. Bajpai to Lead Indian Delegation to Burma

Fall in Value of Exports in April

(From our Correspondent)

(By Wire) Simla June 9

It is understood Sir G. S. Bajpai, Education Member, will himself lead the Indian Delegation to Burma to settle the outstanding issues connected with Indian immigration. The delegation will also include Mr. G. H. Boman and probably an official representative from Labour department. It may be remembered that Sir Bajpai went to Ceylon last year personally to discuss the Indian question with Ceylon Ministers and the Governor.

A fall of over rupees seven crores as compared to last year in the value of exports of Indian merchandise is disclosed by April figures. The total exports in April were only of the value of twelve crores which is the lowest figure reached since the war began. The United States have come to occupy the position of India's best customer beating even United Kingdom by a small margin. United Kingdom's share is just over two and a half crores, an unprecedented fall compared with over nine crores in January 1940. Japan's purchases have dropped to just over half a crore. Fall in exports is largely in items like Raw cotton and jute the former shows a fall by fifty per cent compared with 1939.

MYSORE CONGRESS PARTY AND ASSEMBLY

Why the Party Kept out of Assembly During Address?

VOICE FEELINGS OF RESENTMENT AND REGRET AT GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE

Bangalore, June 11
K. Sampangi Ramaiya, Officer, Mysore Congress issued the following statement to the Press:—
Working Committee of Mysore Congress reviewed the political situation in Mysore at length in its meeting at Bangalore during the last three days. The series of events that led to the unmitigated terms and the hostile attitude of Government towards the Congress came in for consideration. The interference of the Government in the General Elections and in the nomination of candidates to the Disputes Boards in violation of all democratic principles, as well as the recent nominations to the Mysore and other Government Offices and others who either lost the confidence of the electorate or had been found to be reactionary in ways, the appointment of non-official Ministers and President of the Legislative Council in a manner that cannot be popular satisfaction, ended the attention of the Working Committee. It took note of the general resentment at these happenings.

In a view to voice the feelings of resentment and regret of the people of Mysore at the unjust and unpopular actions, the Working Committee decided to register its protest on the first available occasion. Working Committee accordingly decided to suggest to the representative Assembly Congress Party to demonstrate this feeling of resentment.

On the morning of the 10th the Chief Secretary to Government called on Smt. Chengalaraya Reddy, the member of the Congress Party in the Assembly and pleaded for consideration of the position. The Working Committee decided that the members of the Congress Party should not participate in the Assembly during the address of the Dewan and go into the Chamber there.

arrived at the premises of the Jagannathan Palace and kept out for about half an hour and then after marched into the hall led by the leader immediately after the Dewan's address. It was a very impressive scene reminiscent of the memory of the famous re-entry in October 1937. As the party entered it received tremendous ovation in the house. Smt. K. Chengalaraya Reddy rose and made a lengthy statement detailing the causes of abstention and gave expression to the feelings of resentment throughout the country at the recent happenings and regret at the advice tendered to His Highness as was evident in these events. He however felt encouraged in the fact that His Highness the Maharaja had expressed his firm belief in the virtues of democracy and in the qualities of the people of Mysore. He also expressed the loyal felicitations of the Congress to His Highness the Maharaja. He stressed the fact that whereas it was very comforting to see His Highness express his firm belief in democracy it was disappointing to see that the Government was making appointments and nominations in a manner as to negate the very foundations of democracy and otherwise thrust an undemocratic constitution on the people of Mysore.

THURSDAY—JUNE 12, 1941

MYSORE FINANCES

As has been pointed out in the Dewan's opening address to the first session of the newly constituted Mysore Representative Assembly, income for 1941-42, is estimated at Rs. 458.24 lakhs and expenditure at Rs. 457.04 lakhs leaving a surplus of Rs. 1,20,000.

We have not before us the memorandum of Financial Secretary explaining the details of the budget. From the Dewan's address we understand that the Government have been pursuing the same old progressive policy of industrialisation and rural uplift. As the Dewan has pointed out, during this war time, when every country has been making the greatest sacrifice possible, it is but incumbent on Mysore also, to meet the new situation. In addition to the annual subsidy, Mysore Government have already contributed Rs. 11 lakhs for war effort, and they have also sent an Infantry Battalion. There may be many more demands on Mysore before the war comes to an end. And we cannot foresee at present how much more the humanity has to spend for this war. That is an uncertain factor

At the sametime we have to husband our resources prudently with a view to meeting any situation. The Mysore Government have, for the past quarter of a century, been embarking on new industrial enterprizes which have brought not only much wealth to the people but glory to the State. We cannot adequately measure the enterprising qualities that have been generated in our people by the progressive industrial policy of our Government. We have amidst us big industries started and maintained by Government themselves but there are many more which have been started with the joint enterprise of people and Government and conducted and maintained under joint management. We would not have found so much money for Education, Rural uplift, Medical aid, Health and Sanitation but for the progressive industrial policy adopted by our State.

We have perused the old records of our State and we find therein that in 1834 Mysore Government's expenditure on the whole was Rs. 65 lakhs and today in the year 1941, we are spending Rs. 64.31 lakhs for Education alone. This is remarkable progress. But we cannot be content with this. We have only now 10 per cent of the people who are literate. If we have to bring in a condition in which all the 70 lakhs are literate we have to spend atleast 60 crores of Rupees for education alone. If we have not been spending that amount today it shows so much the poorer we are.

If it should be the aim of our Government to increase the Revenue at least cent-per-cent within a period of five years. This is not an impossible task. Other countries have done so. For example, the U.S.A., which had an expenditure of Rs. 3 crores in 1800 raised it to Rs. 150 crores in 1900. In another 30 years the expenditure has gone beyond Rs. 1,000 crores. In England in the last hundred years the expenditure has risen from Rs. 90 crores to Rs. 1,200 crores. In Mysore it is only during the last 25 years that the income and expenditure both have risen. This clearly shows that the policy of Industrialization is the most paying. Sir M. Visvesvaraya has in time and out of time been dinning into our ears that the percentage of people engaged in agriculture should diminish and they should go in for industries. U.S.A. 22 per cent of the people are engaged in agriculture, and in United Kingdom 10 per cent, but in India it is 67 per cent. In the same way, if we look at the percentage of population engaged in industries U.S.A. it is 32 per cent; in United Kingdom it is 47 per cent but in India it is only 10 per cent. These figures are startling figures. They show how backward we are here. The reason why India is so retrogressive is a great majority population is rural and illiterate. In U.S.A. 75 per cent are literate, in United Kingdom it is only 8 per cent and in India it is only 8 per cent. This is a sorrowful tale.

In Mysore, the condition is slightly better, due to the policy of industrialisation. From the figures quoted above what policy we have to adopt is clear. Along with industrialisation, mass education also ought to progress. Without mass education the policy of industrial advance will not give cent-per-cent results. We would therefore appeal to the Government to devote greater attention to Primary education and Middle school education, than they have been giving at present. All the past plans devised to promote Elementary Education have failed for one reason or other. It may be partly due to the apathy of our villagers. But they should be made to realise the importance of Education. Hard and fast rules of Education Department in the matter of buildings and other details ought to be relaxed. There should be something like a drive in the matter of Elementary Education.

In Mr. J. Mahomed Imam, we have a competent and sympathetic Education Minister who knows the conditions of the villages intimately. May we expect him to go over the question of Elementary Education of the State once again and see if we cannot double or treble the number of literates in the next five years. This is a very urgent problem and we hope our legislators will pay their earnest attention to this.

The following is the full text of the Dewan's address:

Members of the Representative Assembly,

In the inspiring speech which he addressed to the joint session of the two Houses of the Legislature yesterday, His Highness the Maharaja told us that we were meeting at a remarkable moment in the history of the world. In welcoming you here today, I feel that I am doing so in no less a remarkable moment of the history of our State. This is the first Budget session under the aegis of our new Ruler, who has already shown himself endowed with sympathy and judgement, understanding and wisdom beyond his years. It is the first session of an Assembly elected on a broader franchise and with greater powers. And we on the Government side, meet you as a new body in larger numbers and with a wider and more divergent experience.

Appeal for Co-operation

His Highness the Maharaja has been graciously pleased to appoint me as his Dewan and President of this Assembly. While I am proud of this honour and grateful for the increased opportunities for public service thus vouchsafed to me, I am, at the same time, sensible, deeply sensible, of the responsibilities of the task before me. From my long association with the Government, I realise how greatly the successful discharge of the duties of this office depends upon the goodwill of the people and the co-operation of the members of the Legislature. If I make an earnest appeal for such co-operation now from you, the representatives of the people, I feel I am making no conventional and, perhaps, no vain, appeal.

Tribute to Sir Mirza

I succeed a statesman of all-India reputation who has served the State with ability, zeal and far-sightedness which have earned for him the approbation of our gracious Sovereign. I refer, of course, to Amin-ul-Mulk Sir Mirza Ismail. We miss his familiar figure today. He presided over twenty-eight sessions of this Assembly during a period of fifteen years and by his patience, affability and, more than all, by his large-hearted sympathy for the people, endeared himself to their representatives in this House. He did all in his power to enhance the dignity, prestige, and usefulness of this Assembly and it is a matter of disappointment to us all that he is not to preside over its first meeting under the new Constitution. As you know, I was closely associated with him for many years in the work of administration, an association which has been of the greatest value to me. I should like to ask you to join me in paying our tribute of admiration to the great services of Sir Mirza Ismail and in wishing him many more years of health and happiness and of continued public usefulness.

The Budget Estimates

I will now proceed to make, as usual, a brief survey of the financial position and problems of the State in the light of the budget estimates for the coming year. These estimates provide for a total revenue of Rs. 458.2 lakhs. Our expenditure has also risen proportionately and is expected to stand at Rs. 457.04 lakhs, so that we shall be left with a surplus of Rs. 1,20,000. The Financial Secretary has explained in his memorandum, which is shortly to be circulated, the main features of the budget which this Assembly has met to discuss. It is not necessary for me to cover the same ground but I should like to place before you two observations in the light of which I feel the budget programme might be considered. In the first place, this programme reflects the influence of the war effort which the State, in company with the rest of the Empire, is proud to make at this critical time in the history of our country, and, indeed, of this whole world. Secondly, I may also claim that the figures testify to the anxiety of His Highness's Government to utilise as large a part of the State's resources as possible for education and measures of economic development.

The State's War Effort

Apart from a direct contribution in money for war purposes of Rs. 11 lakhs, the Government have taken several measures to promote the State's war effort. The First Battalion of the Mysore Infantry, whose services were placed at the disposal of the Government of India at the outbreak of war, is now serving overseas. The pay and allowances of the officers and staff of the Unit have been raised to the scale of the corresponding ranks of the Indian army. It has also been arranged to provide, with all due despatch, reinforcements for the Battalion. The Government have also made available for the purpose of the No. 51 (Mysore) Mechanical Transport Unit, a number of trained men drawn from the Mysore Lancers and other Units. This has, to some extent, depleted the effective strength of units within the State and it has been necessary to undertake further recruitment to make good this deficiency. The expenditure on Police has been increased to the extent of about Rs 1 lakh in order to provide for war time requirements. About 600 civic guards have been enrolled in different centres and have received training. In

New Factories

It is, however, to be noted that the efforts have been directed towards the most among these mentioned aircraft by the Hindustan Aircraft Company, in the Government of Mysore associated with the Government of India and with Messrs. H. S. Hiranandani and H. S. Hiranandani. Each party holding an equal share of the paid-up capital of Rs. 10 lakhs. We may well be interested in the part played by the Government in the establishment of this great industry which is of such importance which is a very important one in the industrial history of the country. The Government of Mysore established a Bicolour Aircraft Factory at Belagola which was started in full working order in 1941 and its whole output will be used for war purposes. It has also been planned to start the starting of a major aircraft factory at Hanjar in the near future for the purpose, a company has been registered and it is expected that it will commence production in the course of a few months.

War Supply

Meanwhile, every being made to develop and steel, chemical and ing industries already in the State. The Steel Works, Bhadrav supplied acetate of iron pipes, steel and ings the total value exceeded Rs. 11 lakh. The entire output of the certain lines will be disposal of the Depas Supply. The Mysore als and Fertilisers have considerable quantities of cal products. The Factory is supplying mers. The Government Weaving Factory and the Silk Mills are arranged manufacture silks for cloth and silks for specifications required. The Department of Industries supplied considerable quantities of cocoanut shell charcoal gas masks. The manufacturing hand-woven army blankets have been organized. The Government have also undertaken training of war technicians. The Technical Training is organised by the Labour Department of the Government of India, and two hundred will be trained at the Industrial College, Bangalore. Eight at the Industrial Works and forty at the Iron and Bhadravati.

The difficulty of machinery and from abroad has affected the growth of industrial concerns. In cases, however, early use was made of material placed for equipment in the country. The result that it has been to carry out or put in to schemes of industrial development. At the Bhadravati Steel Works, an additional hearth furnace at a cost of Rs. 6 lakhs and a step in the cost of about Rs 10 lakhs is to be installed shortly to be installed in the electric furnace for the manufacture of steel has already been completed.

and two furnaces for the manufacture of ferro-chrome and chrome plant are expected shortly. A pilot plant for the manufacture of plastics has given good results. A formaldehyde plant is being erected. New lines of manufacture have been under construction in the Electric Factory, the Soap Factory and Industrial Testing Laboratory. The production of the Soap Factory has been increased, and the question of shifting the Factory to a more suitable site is being considered. Looms have been added to the Government Silk Weaving Factory and a new flature at a cost of Rs. 75,000 is being erected at Channapatna.

Irrigation

While the resources of the State have been utilised without stint for war purposes, it has fortunately been possible to give to the problems related to the prosperity and well-being of the people their due consideration. One of the most important activities under this head is the development of irrigation which, as you are aware, has received special attention for some years past. Throughout the years of financial stringency when grants were reduced and salaries were cut, the minimum annual grant of Rs. 10 lakhs was continuously maintained and, at the earliest moment after the passing of the Depression, the funds allotted for irrigation works were greatly augmented. A new fund, "The Irrigation Development Fund" was created in 1938-39 with an initial contribution of Rs. 28 lakhs for financing large irrigation works of a protective character. Four large projects—the Byramangala, Allahalli, Thippaganahalli and Ragimakalahalli schemes—were sanctioned last year and, in the current year, six large tank works of a total estimated cost of about Rs. 25 lakhs and with an irrigable area of about 8,500 acres have been undertaken. The most important of these is the Kanva reservoir in Channapatna Taluk which is estimated to cost nearly Rs. 16 lakhs. In the coming year, it is proposed to build a reservoir across the Lokapavani River at Sunka Tonnur, at a cost of Rs. 5 lakhs and also to construct a feeder to the Tonnur Tank, French Rocks Taluk, for Rs. 1.5 lakhs. Apart from these works financed from the Irrigation Department Fund, two works, which are considered to be remunerative, are to be financed by a capital grant. These are projects, estimated to cost Rs. 5 lakhs, for opening a left bank channel from the Mandagere anicut to irrigate about 3,000 acres and from the Chamaraja left bank channel to irrigate 1,400 acres.

Repairs of Tanks

At the same time systematic attention is being taken for the restoration of major and minor tanks. The expenditure under this head in the current year is expected to be Rs. 2.5 lakhs and a similar provision has been made in the budget for 1941-42. A special contribution of Rs. 3 lakhs was made to the Irrigation Department Fund for the repair of tank sluices and other urgent repairs and of this sum about Rs. 1.34 lakhs is expected to be available for expenditure in the coming year.

Public Health

It may be recalled, in this connection, that during the period 1925-1940 a sum of nearly Rs. 4 crores was spent on new works of irrigation and that an area of nearly 2,00,000 acres will be benefitted by these works. The irrigation of large tracts brings in its train problems of public health which require attention. A sum of Rs. 1 lakh has been sanctioned for anti-malarial work near Marconhalli, Rs. 82,300 for the Anjanapur Reservoir area, and a further sum of Rs. 30,000 has been provided for fifteen villages in the Irwin Canal area where the problem has become acute. Besides, large amounts are being spent from capital funds for lining channels draining tanks and, where necessary, for shifting people to new village sites.

Drinking Water Wells

The Government have always regarded it as one of their primary duties to provide an adequate supply of drinking water in all the inhabited villages of the State, and a sum of Rs. 15 lakhs, spread over 5 years, is to be spent for this purpose. During the current year 3,946 wells in all were taken up and in the coming year the provision of Rs. 3 lakhs will be repeated. If the amount allotted is not fully spent in any year, the balance is credited to the Rural Water Supply Fund and will be available for expenditure in subsequent years.

Rural Communications

A provision of Rs. 4 lakhs has, as you are aware, been made in the budget of the current year for the development of rural communications and a similar grant is included in the budget for 1941-42. This does not include the special grant of Rs. 6 lakhs sanctioned for roads in the Irwin Canal area; nor does it include the expenditure on roads incurred out of the funded Maldan Improvement Grant of Rs. 2 lakhs sanctioned by His Highness the Maharaja during his tour in the Shimoga, Hassan and Kador Districts in February this year.

Marketing

Since 1935, the Department of Industries and Commerce has conducted a number of marketing surveys of important agricultural products and it is now felt that a further step should be taken in the direction of extending these activities which will include the opening of grading stations and regulated markets, the improvement of containers and methods of packing, of storage and other facilities and the development of a market news service. With this object, a separate Marketing Department has now been established. Proposals for establishing a regulated market for cotton and groundnuts at Davangere have been sanctioned.

Agriculture-Paddy Cultivation

Among the new activities of the Department of Agriculture, mention may be made of a scheme which has just been sanctioned for increasing the output of paddy, which at present is imported into the State in considerable quantities. A sum of Rs. 19,000 has been proposed in the budget for 1941-42 for this scheme which will involve intensive demonstrations by special Inspectors in twenty paddy-growing taluks in the State. Steps have been taken to introduce long staple cotton and to extend the cultivation of cigarette tobacco under the Irwin Canal so as to give the ryots a wider choice of commercial crops which require only light irrigation. I may also refer to the abolition of hulanmi or grazing fees resulting in a loss of Rs. 70,000 per year. The Government are well content to lose this sum in the hope that their own loss is the ryots' gain.

Education

The Elementary Education Act, which has now been passed into law, will, I have no doubt, serve to accelerate the pace of educational expansion in the State. A jump-sum provision of Rs. 3 lakhs has been made in the budget for measures (including the revision of the pay of elementary school masters) to be taken in this connection. I need not refer on this occasion to other schemes of educational progress, but I may draw attention to the fact that the grant under "26. Education" stands in the budget of the coming year at the record figure of Rs. 64.31 lakhs, as compared with Rs. 53.89 lakhs just two years ago. Let me add that this is one of the important Departments that will be administered in future by a non-official Minister.

Broadcasting Station

The radio and the loud speaker are now becoming common in our towns and villages and we look forward to this development with great hope. It is mainly with the object of serving the Karnatak country in this direction that the Government have sanctioned a Broadcasting Station at a cost of Rs. 85,000. Provision has been made for this in the budget of the coming year.

Jog Hydro-Electric Scheme

A provision of Rs. 42 lakhs has been included in the budget for 1941-42 for the construction of the reservoir and other works in connection with the hydro-electric scheme at Jog. An expenditure of Rs. 27 lakhs has been already incurred. It was the intention of the Government to proceed with this work as expeditiously as possible. But uncertainty as regards the receipt of equipment, which must be procured from abroad, has made it necessary to slow down progress, so that the borrowed capital at charge during the non-earning period of construction might be kept at a minimum.

Industrial Concerns

Details of the working of our industrial concerns will be found in the Financial Secretary's memorandum. Generally speaking, the results of the current year have been satisfactory and justify the expectation of a higher revenue from these sources in the coming year. Under electrical undertakings, we anticipate Rs. 58.29 lakhs, under Railways Rs. 26.37 lakhs and under the Iron and Steel Works Rs. 33.5 lakhs.

State-aided Concerns

The State-aided concerns, like those fully owned by the Government, have generally done well in the course of the current year. One significant indication of their sound position is the readiness with which the Banks have come forward to furnish, on favourable terms, long term capital to these concerns which have ordinarily looked to the Government for their financial requirements. The new arrangement is welcome to the Government both because it is in the interests of the concerns themselves and because it will help to release the resources of the Government for purposes and objects to which they may more profitably be applied.

Cottage Industries

The activities of the Badanval Spinning Centre developed satisfactorily during the year, 4,000 spinners and 200 weavers being employed on the work. The value of sales of Khadi amounted to Rs. 57,150. The Kolar Wool Spinning Centre, which was originally established as a branch of the Badanval Centre, has now been developed into a separate unit and its activities have been considerably extended.

Sericulture

Sericulture is one of the most important cottage industries in the State and has received a considerable amount of encouragement and support from Government. The area under mulberry, which was 25,132 acres in 1936-37, has now risen to 34,000 acres, showing an increase of 9,000 acres in four years. The demand for cross-bred layings is steadily increasing, and additional grainages have been opened to meet this increased demand. The number of aided grainages at present is 40, as compared with 26 at the close of 1937-38. The question of increasing and improving seed production also is being investigated by a special committee.

In regard to other cottage and minor industries, the progress has not been equally striking, and, for various reasons, our expectations have not been realised. The Government have now appointed a committee to examine the difficulties in the way of the development of the industries already started and to suggest lines on which future work might most profitably be planned. An Industrial Development Fund was created this year with a contribution of Rs. 2 lakhs, to which it is proposed to add a contribution of a similar amount next year. The bulk of these funds will be available for the expansion of cottage and minor industries.

Labour Unrest

One disturbing feature of the year under review has been the increasing labour unrest which has shown itself in prolonged strikes in several industrial undertakings in the State. The causes of the various strikes have been particular to each concern, but they have all shown the inadequacy of the existing machinery for settling industrial disputes before the differences between employers and workers assume the proportion of a general strike or lockout. The present Government machinery consists simply of a Labour Commissioner, whose other duties often preclude his giving full attention to the problems of industrial peace, although he is assisted by a Labour Welfare Board. Statutory machinery to deal promptly with all differences is, therefore, a real necessity, particularly at the present time. A draft Bill dealing with this matter has been prepared and referred to a committee on which both employers and workers are represented, for a detailed examination of its provisions.

True Financial Position

May I, in drawing this review of the budget figures to a close, refer to a few factors which it is important to bear in mind if our true financial position is to be appreciated? In our revenue receipts two factors, the return from the Gold Mines and the receipts from our commercial enterprises, have played a very large part. While we may look forward to the future with confidence, we cannot exclude from our minds the possibility of a reduction, under both heads. As a matter of fact, as far as the Gold Mines are concerned, some reduction has already taken place. It will be seen that the royalty on gold in 1941-42 is estimated at only Rs. 20 lakhs as compared with Rs. 25 lakhs last year, while from the special duty on gold, we expect to realise Rs. 23.76 lakhs which is also a lower figure than that for the current year. From our commercial enterprises and, in particular, from the Iron and Steel Works, the realisations will depend largely on the extent to which the existing circumstances and prices of finished products continue to prevail. In respect of the Sandalwood Oil Factory, from which it is well to remember that this is conditional among other things, on the requisite shipping facilities being available. While, therefore, we may take comfort from the result of last year's working of the factory and our hopes for the immediate future are fairly reasonable, we cannot, in the difficult times in which we are living, give way to unwarranted optimism.

Windfall Revenue

The State has for many years steadily pursued the policy of using its windfall revenue, arising in the main from wasting natural resources, for the purpose of building up its capital assets. It has also borrowed considerably for productive undertakings whenever that course appeared justified. The total liability on account of permanent and unfunded debt is about Rs. 14.5 crores, but as against this, the investment in revenue yielding assets is about Rs. 20 crores. On analysis, it will be seen that the return from some of the undertakings is comparatively small, but this is more than compensated by the profit on others. A Government whose finances depend so largely, as ours do, on the results of industrial activities has to view these activities as a whole and not only in their individual and present aspect and ensure that the risks are fairly distributed. It is not possible now to forecast with accuracy how Part II of our budget will stand when some of the large schemes in hand at present, such as the Jog Hydro-Electric scheme, have been completed. But it is a matter for gratification that the return on capital investment has been steadily rising, with the result that the State has, in recent years, been able to meet the rising expenditure without any appreciable increase in taxation on the people of the State.

Post war problems looming large

It is not my object, nor is this the appropriate occasion, to review the administration of the year that is shortly coming to a close. I have, however, said enough, I think, to indicate some of the measures which have been adopted in the recent past to develop the resources of the State, to increase the material prosperity of the people, and directly to satisfy some of their important wants. It is our duty to maintain, consolidate and expand the work done in all directions, and the budget estimates for the coming year afford a detailed indication of the extent to which this is considered immediately possible. These estimates postulate the recurrence of a fairly favourable year from the financial point of view. But we should not allow ourselves to forget that, although far removed from the theatres of war to-day, we are already feeling the effects of war in many ways. The intensification of the war effort, in all those directions in which we can render any substantial help, should remain our first concern. At the same time, we cannot forget that post-war problems are already looming large before committees are beginning to get to work both in England and in India on these problems and ordinary prudence requires that we also should address ourselves to them with all the diligence we can command.

Conclusion

Ladies and gentlemen, some of you are not strangers in this House. Others have been elected for the first time. It is, perhaps, not without keen contest that many of you secured your seats. But now that the din of hostilities has, for the most part, subsided, and that you are to take on the role of legislators, it is reasonable to hope that the deliberations of this House will proceed, in a spirit of goodwill and respect for each other's sincerity.

In appealing to you for your sympathy and understanding, in the work before us, I may, perhaps, be allowed to say a word on behalf of myself and my colleagues. We are anxious to see that the new Constitution is worked in a liberal spirit. I, for one, regard it not as a patented machine, but as a living organism capable of development and growth. The growth will not, perhaps, be on narrow party lines. Indeed, it would be unfortunate if party differences should arise at this crucial time or disturb the even tenor of our progress. As Ministers of His Highness the Maharaja, we have to keep aloof from parties and party politics and inculcate a similar attitude of detachment on our officers. We have no doubt that it is the desire of you all to subordinate party to State interests and that we shall be able to enjoy your whole-hearted co-operation and the benefit of your wide experience and influence in your constituencies in helping us to solve the many problems that will arise in the difficult days that lie ahead.

OUR ALLAHABAD LETTER

SIR SAPRU'S CIRCULAR LETTER

(From our Correspondent)

Allahabad, June 6
It is learnt that Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, President of the Bombay Conference, has sent out a circular to about one hundred important public men of India representing moderate but progressive opinion asking if they would participate in the next Conference to be held on the same lines about the middle of July. It is now almost certain that Allahabad is the most suitable venue for the Conference and between Delhi, Lucknow and Allahabad, the last town is likely to receive preference.

The circular emphasises that each leader should attend the Conference in his individual capacity. This is understood, is due to the desire of the organisers to find a common platform for all progressive elements without limitations due to party affiliations. The aim of the organisers is to banish for the present all such considerations which would prevent possibility of agreement and knit up the country to meet the common danger of War.

Sir Tej Bahadur has also made it clear that those who attend the Conference should agree to this, that the discussions relate to interim arrangement only, during the war, of government at the centre. The ultimate constitutional issues should be postponed till the end of the War. The position taken up by Sir Tej is due to his anxiety to keep the field clear for a fuller discussion at the end of the War when the time would be ripe for throwing the constitution into the melting pot. During the war such a discussion was likely to split up the country which might prove fatal in view of daily growing Nazi menace to India and the world.

It is also stated that those who accept the invitation should do so with the full understanding of the Bombay resolution and were willing to abide by it. This proviso automatically rules out those who dissented earlier.

The intention of the organisers is to take a sort of plebiscite of the intelligentsia on the Bombay proposals and also to keep the question of political progress a live issue till final decisions are taken.

I understand following this Conference there will be provincial Conferences on similar lines to ratify the Bombay Resolution. It is also suggested that important political leaders should tour about in the country to popularise Bombay proposals.

CONGRESS PARTY'S SPECIAL RESOLUTION DISALLOWED

(From our Staff Correspondent)

Mysore, June 10

The Assembly Congress party had given notice of a Special Resolution to be moved in the house which was disallowed by the President. The resolution is as follows:—

"This Assembly while conveying its most loyal felicitations to His Highness the Maharaja on this, the first occasion of its gathering after the introduction of the reforms and its grateful appreciation of the observation by His Highness the Maharaja in his Speech at the inauguration of the joint Session that he is 'a Convinced believer in the virtues of democracy and in the qualities of the people of Mysore' desires to place on record its opinion that the reforms granted and sought to be worked are not only undemocratic and unsatisfactory but also retrograde and reactionary and therefore recommends to the Government to convey to His Highness the Maharaja the desire of the House that the reforms and the Executive constituted thereunder should be remodelled so as to bring into being full responsible Government under His aegis."

Mr. Bhoopalam's Resolution Disallowed

LABOUR UNREST IN MYSORE

It is gratifying to note that the Dewan has, in his opening address to the Assembly, made a pointed reference to the labour unrest in the State. It is within the knowledge and experience of every one, how within the last one year or so, the strikes of workers in the Bangalore Mills have been frequent and repeated. All the sincere attempts made by disinterested arbitrators have failed to bring about the desired result. Mere soft and conciliatory words, not backed up by corresponding action have utterly failed. The trouble is, though the world has changed considerably, the mad authorities have not changed and do not want to change with times. In spite of repeated appeals by popular leaders, the mill authorities have gone on with their old ways, unmindful of public interest and public tranquility. We cannot imagine the depth of indifference behind the capitalistic mind. It is time that Government devise an adequate and efficient machinery to effect speedy settlement of industrial disputes. The present machinery that we have is thoroughly inadequate, inefficient and ineffective.

In these circumstances, it is comforting to read the remarks of the Dewan in this connection. He is disturbed at the increasing Labour Unrest which has shown itself in prolonged strikes in several industrial undertakings in the State. As he points out, though the causes of the various strikes have been particular to each concern, they have all shown the inadequacy of the existing machinery for settling industrial disputes before the differences between employers and workers assume the proportion of a general strike or lock out.

What is the present Government machinery? It consists simply of a Labour Commissioner whose other duties often preclude his giving full attention to the problems of industrial peace. It is true that he is assisted by a Labour Welfare Board. But this Board has been able to do next to nothing. It is a pious body with no effective sanction behind it.

It is, therefore, necessary to frame Trade Union Law here, or some Law on the lines of the Trade Disputes Act. We, welcome, therefore, the following statement of the Dewan: "Statutory machinery to deal promptly with all differences, is, therefore, a real necessity, particularly at the present time."

It is understood that a draft Bill dealing with this matter has

MYSORE'S NEW REGIME

Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy's Scathing Criticism

OPENING DAY OF THE MYSORE REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY

Policy of the New Ministers
(From our Staff Correspondent)

Mysore, June 10

The first session of the newly constituted Representative Assembly met this noon at the Rajamohan Palace pavilion. Jagamantrapravina Mr. N. Madhava Rau, Dewan entered the chamber punctually at 12 noon and began to deliver his address. Lt. Col. Gordon, the British Resident, Sir Henry Craik, Sir Charles Todhunter and others were specially invited to grace their presence on the occasion. The visitors galleries both for Ladies and Gentlemen were packed to its capacity and many were eagerly listening to the new Dewan's speech.

The new non-official ministers Messrs H. B. Gundappa Gowda and Mr. J. Mohamed Imam sat to the left of the Dewan-President while Messrs K. V. Anantaraman and A. V. Ramanathan sat to the right.

Congress Boycott

The Mysore State Congress Party decided to boycott the Dewan's speech and as a result of the Party's decision they were not present at the Chamber. As soon as the Dewan concluded his speech all the 104 members of the party led by their Leader Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy entered the House from the main entrance amidst applause. Scenes reminiscent of the historic boycott of the Central Assembly Congress party were witnessed today at the Mysore Assembly. The whole house was struck by the constitutional protest the Congress Party showed on the policy of the present administration.

All the Congress Party members were attired in spotless white khadder and Gandhi caps while Messrs Bhoopalam Chandrasekhariya, S. N. M. Razvi and Veerakesari Seetharama Sastry also wore the same dress though they were unattached members.

Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda the Local Self Government Minister was seen in his usual khadi dress with a dhoti. This is the first time that a Minister of His Highness comes in to the Chamber with a dhoti. On the Dewan, the Ministers and the officers of Government were in their Durbar clothes.

Among those that took seats on the distinguished visitors gallery were Messrs B. S. Puttubeen prepared and referred to a committee, on which both employers and workers are represented, for a detailed examination of its provisions. We hope, popular leaders like Mr. K. T. Bhasyam, who understand Labour problems well and who have practical experience in the line, would be in that Committee.

We have every hope that under Rajasevapravina A. V. Ramanathan, our new Labour Minister, we shall be able to tackle industrial disputes in a really sympathetic manner.

wamy, A. Krishna Rao, C. Narasimhaiah, O. S. N. Sheriff, K. Shankaranarayana Rao, T. T. Sharma, Syed Ghous Mohi-udeen, K. S. Venkaramani, V. Gopalaswami Iyengar, D. Guru Basappa, R. Chennigaramiah, T. Madiah Gowda, V. L. D'Souza, J. C. Rollo, Rev. Tomlinson and others.

The Dewan's budget speech was the briefest on record. The financial position of the speech was from this year detached from the speech and as such the speech was short and suggestive. The Dewan took 35 minutes to read the speech and where he referred to Sir Mirza there was thunderous applause.

Congratulations to the Dewan

After the Dewan resumed his seat Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswami in a short speech congratulated Mr. N. Madhava Rau on his elevation to Dewanship. He expressed his deep loyalty to the person and throne of His Highness and said "Mr. Madhava Rau is an idol of the Mysore Civil Service and a pride of the State. Though he has served the State from a small office to that of the highest post he has kept up his impartiality which is one of his rare virtues. His elevation to the exalted office of the Dewanship is a matter of sincere joy to the people of Mysore." Rao Bahadur then eulogised the services of Sir Mirza who engineered the State for fifteen long years.

Lokasevanirata Mr. Bale Siddalinga Setty congratulated the Dewan and welcomed the new reforms.

Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao praising the qualities of the head and heart of the new Dewan expressed his admiration on the worthy traditions left behind by Sir Mirza M. Ismail.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekhara Setty in an eloquent speech referred to Sir Mirza M. Ismail's untiring service to the State. He said "This House has a life of four years and when the time comes for the next general elections let us all hope that we will have the rare benefit of an elected president to this Assembly."

Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy

Mr. K. C. Reddy the leader of the Mysore State Congress in a spirited speech disapproved the curious practice of congratulating the Dewan and Ministers. He said "This practice of making speeches of eulogy is unheard of in any democratic country. The speech will have its own repercussions in that it provokes opposite points of view. It is quite unnecessary to have this procedure followed." Mr. Reddy then expressed his party's deep loyalty to His Highness and expressed feelings of joy at His Highness' yesterday's speech affirming faith in democracy.

Speaking about the unsatisfactory nature of the present reforms he said "The present constitutional reforms do not in the least satisfy the aims and aspirations of the people. It is reactionary in many aspects. While we condemn the unsatisfactory nature of these reforms should not feel that we are disloyal to the Maharaja. We have given expression to our feelings and protest against the advice tendered to the Ruler by the Powers that be. The procedure of making congratulatory speeches was opposed to principles and Mr. K. T. Bhasyam Iyengar has in a previous session of the house explained the view. In spite of it the Government are pursuing in the old habit of tolerating the eulogies.

Mr. Bhoopalam:—The practice of congratulating the new President is in vogue even in the Central Assembly.

Mr. K. C. Reddy:—In all democratic Assemblies the President is elected by the people and here it is not so (loud cheer)

Mr. Gurulingiah:—Why should Congress feel jealous about this?

Mr. Reddy:—When the Dewan and the Ministers are cheerfully smiling at our attitude why should my hon'ble friend get himself enraged (laughter).

Proceeding Mr. Reddy said "The Mysore Congress stands for full Responsible Government. With that end in view it has pursued its path of ideal and has suffered untold privations. In the last District Board Elections the Congress secured 119 out of 134 seats.

Dewan:—Please be brief. All that is not relevant to the issue.

Mr. Reddy:—Sir, the previous speakers have referred to the reforms.

Mr. Reddy then spoke about the brilliant success at the Municipal Elections of Bangalore and Mysore cities, deplored the interference at the recent general elections which at all events didn't speak well of the administration.

Mr. Bhoopalam:—The Hon'ble member of the Congress if he so wishes may bring this subject in the form of a resolution or a subject.

Mr. Veerakesari:—Sir, we should know that there are others also who wish to speak and eloquently speak. At this rate of long speeches we will not be worthy to be called members.

Continuing amidst interruptions Mr. Reddy said "The country expected that there would be a change of policy with the new Dewan. But taking stock of the recent policies, we cannot congratulate on the way the new regime has begun. The nominations, the appointment of Ministers have not been done to the satisfaction of the public. It is indeed regrettable that the new administration has not paved the way for peace and contentment in the country. Under the circumstances the Congress Party cannot congratulate any one, but will strive hard to get full Responsible Government. When that materialises we will be wholeheartedly with you and shall feel gratified to congratulate you to our heart's content.

Messrs S. N. M. Razvi, Dr. S. Paul Chinnappa, Mirza Azizulla Beig, S. C. Malliah and others spoke congratulating the Dewan.

Mr. J. Mohamed Imam's Reply

Mr. J. Mohamed Imam the Minister of Education replying in Kannada indicated the policy that the new Ministers are to pursue. "Several people have congratulated me and my colleagues on the high honour His Highness has conferred on us. It is my bounden duty to reply to those felicitations. Our gracious sovereign has placed his trust in me and has appointed me to this exalted post. I shall be ever grateful for this honour. I shall leave no stone unturned to prove worthy of the task that has been entrusted to my care. We on the side of non-official Ministers deem it a great privilege to work in close collaboration with Messrs K. V. Anantaraman and A. V. Ramanathan and with our beloved Dewan Sahib. THE MYSORE CIVIC GUARDS BILL

Discussion in the Mysore Representative Assembly

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

SEVERAL BILLS PASSED

(FROM OUR STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

MYSORE, June 11

The second day's deliberations of the Mysore Representative Assembly commenced today at 10 a.m. at the Jagannathan Palace, Mysore, the Dewan-President presiding. As usual all the members of the State took their seats besides the Dewan. The Congress party sat in a body to the right of the chair.

Before the question time Lokasevaparayane Srimiti, D. Lakamma, congratulated the new Dewan and Ministers and said that these appointments have created deep satisfaction in Mysore.

Mrs. Sunandamma, a Congress member, speaking on behalf of her party deplored the inadequate nature of the present reforms and felt constrained to say that it has created deep dissatisfaction in the minds of the people.

Question Time

Mr. J. C. Revanna of Jagalur, Kural, elicited from the P.W.D. Secretary that the Thuppada-halla and Gadimakunte projects were prepared in 1938 and 1939 and that the projects could not be taken up for consideration until the informal agreement with the Government of Madras of 1936 is finally ratified.

During supplementary questions the Dewan assured that the projects would be taken up as soon as funds permitted.

Mr. K. Chengelroya Reddy:—Is it not the desire of the Govt. to see that tanks are increased in numbers?

Minister for Finance:—Unsubstantiated.

Representation in Services

Nawab Sher Khan of Honnali asked the percentage of Muslim representation in all the departments of the State and also the percentage employed in quasi and semi-Governmental industrial and other concerns.

The General Secretary to Govt. Mr. J. Appaji Gowda replied that the percentage was 39 on 30th June 1939. As to the percentage of Muslims in industrial and other concerns is not ready he said he was sorry but the information was not available to the house.

During supplementary questions it was revealed that no fixed procedure is being adopted in respect of representation for various communities in the State.

Mr. S. Venkatasami Gowda of Chikmagalur asked the Govt. to furnish statement showing the prevailing dry, wet and garden rates in all the districts.

The Chief Secretary to Govt. replied that the maximum dry rate has since been reduced to Rs. 2-12-0 per acre wherever it was in excess of it.

Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy requested the Govt. to revise the rates.

Chief Secretary:—Remissions have been shown whenever the crops have failed due to paucity of rains. Government have been wedded to the policy of granting remissions.

Mr. S. T. Mallasetappa of Nagamangala, Rural, elicited from the General Secretary that a saving of Rs. 3,500 per annum was realised by the discontinuance of supervisors in grant-in-aid hostels in 1931. The secretary explained that the Government do not think it necessary to revive the scheme of appointing supervisors.

Labour in Bangalore

Mr. G. R. Chengalaradhy, Labour member, asked whether the Labour Commissioner received any letters from the Bangalore Textile Labour Union during the month of March 1941.

The Development Secretary answered that no letters were received by the Labour Commissioner but six copies of letters addressed to the Managers of the Mills were received.

During supplementary questions Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy asked whether Government kept silent because they were in receipt of copies only and not originals.

Dewan President:—Ordinarily yes.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekhariah:—May I know whether any principle was involved to recognise Unions.

Dewan:—The letters were addressed to some one and how can Government reply to those letters? We are not worried about principles. There is the reply to the question.

The General Secretary answered in the negative to a question put by Mr. Gowdara Gurusantappa whether the provision of an inter college in Davanagere Town is under the consideration of Government.

Bills

Question time was over, the house took up for consideration the Bill to amend the Registration of Foreigners in Mysore. Mr. H.V. Narayana Rao, the Law Secretary to Government, explaining the general principles said that the definition of "foreigner" in section 2 of the Registration of Foreigners Act 1940 does not indicate the nationality after marriage of a woman who was not a foreigner but is married to one. According to well-known principles of international law as well as under the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act a woman takes on after marriage the nationality of the husband. In order to clear doubts that might arise under the Act an explanation is proposed to be added to the definition of "foreigner" that a woman who is married to a foreigner shall be deemed to be foreigner.

Mr. Veerakesari Seetharama Sastri wanted to know whether a European girl if married to a Mysore Hindu retains her nationality.

Dewan:—No, she will be called an Indian lady (laughter).

Mr. Veerakesari:—Why should we worry about marriages of Foreigners. (laughter).

Dewan:—No, this is a war time law. It applies only to foreigners.

Mr. K. C. Reddy welcomed the measure and requested the Government to be more clear when dealing with such amendments. He deplored the paucity of information. The Bill was passed.

The Civic Guards Bill

Mr. H. V. Narayana Rao, the Law Secretary to Government explained the objects of the Civic Guards Bill which provided inter alia for the constitution of Civic Guards and their functions and duties. In order to provide for the continuance of the Emergency Act till such time as it is replaced by permanent measure this act has been continued by another Emergency Act.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekhara Setty proposed an amendment to Clause 3 of the Act to make the formation of Civic Guards compulsory. He said that the present unsettled conditions in the world demanded the formation of Civic Guards on a compulsory basis in order to guard the tranquility of the land.

Deshbandhu Sankaralinge Gowda opposed the amendment and said that no compulsion need be made for a voluntary service.

Mr. Subbiah supported the amendment and said that compulsion alone would constitute effective Civic Guards.

Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao speaking on the amendment said that compulsion would disturb the normal social calmness and wanted the benefit only to those who are willing to join it. He opposed the amendment.

Mr. Veerakesari Seetharama Sastry opposed the amendment and pleaded for voluntary nature of the provisions which alone would result in the best Civic Guards of the country.

Congress Oppose the Bill

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiah (Congress) opposed the Bill and asked whether there was any necessity for the measure. "Our land is calm and the police and the military are guarding the life and properties of the people. No one desired that separate guards should be constituted. As such it is strange that the Government have embarked on an unwanted legislation. It is unnecessary to invest the District Magistrates with extra-ordinary powers under the provisions of the Bill.

Dewan:—All that is irrelevant to the point.

Sir, I am speaking about the measure and the powers that the District Magistrate has by virtue of the Bill. A Congress member of Chickmagalur joined the Civic Guards and when that member contested the elections the District Magistrate never cared even to talk to him.

Dewan:—Where is the Party animosity here?

In conclusion Mr. K. Hanumanthaiah opposed the Bill on principle and said that the people are in no way enthusiastic about these Civic Guards.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi welcomed the measure and said that the District Magistrates were in no way be partial to a section as was insinuated by a member who spoke opposing the measure.

Nawab Sher Khan prayed that each community be given proper share in the formation of the Civic Guards.

Mr. Ramappa welcomed the measure as a necessity during the present conditions of the world and said that any one would if he so desires resign from the Guards. It would be calamitous to ignore the Government in times of crisis and take law into their own hands as suggested by some members.

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar, (Congress) speaking about the Bill said that merely because British India have enacted a measure Mysore should not copy it. When the Police are guarding the interests of the people where is the need for the formation of a separate Civic Guards? Moreover the Government have not defined the exact duties of the Civic Guards and as such he said that it is unnecessary to have this burden.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswamy said that there are no terrifying clauses in the Bill and a trained corps would help in times of trouble. He welcomed the measure.

Mr. Abdul Rasool in welcoming the measure opposed the principle of compulsion.

Mr. Shampoor Papanna said that the formation of Civic Guards is a necessity at the present stage and wanted all to support it.

Messrs Nadiga Nanjappa, F. C. Devaraj Urs, Syed Yusuf and others supported the measure.

Mr. K. C. Reddy

Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddy speaking about the Bill assured that Congress is not opposing the Bill merely for the sake of opposition. It is not their wish to merely oppose a bill without reasons. He continued, "The Government have brought this measure as an expedient. We want to know what that expediency is. The Congress is not opposed to measures of public safety. The Civic Guards are functioning since last so many months. I want to know how they have acquitted themselves in protecting the lives and properties of the people. In several British Indian Provinces the communal disturbances have demanded the formation of such guards and in Mysore luckily we have no such troubles. It is deplorable that several officers have proceeded in a manner showing political bias when forming such guards. Under the provisions of the Act the District Magistrates and Police officers have been invested with extra-ordinary powers. A glance at the measure would convince anyone that Police Officers given unlimited powers over these guards. Some members spoke about the Congress volunteers. But it has been constituted on a purely voluntary basis. Instances are not wanting of Police Officers misusing their powers as was seen during the operations of the Public Security Act. I am compelled to say that the Government are desirous of placing this measure permanently on the Statute Book. It is the practice of the Government to have more powers under enabling powers. This was revealed when they introduced the system of cumulative voting in the constitution. It is feared that the provisions would be misused and as such I oppose the measure.

Mr. S. C. Malliah the Leader of the Rashtriya Maha Sabha in welcoming the measure said that those who opposed it never intended that the Bill would create hard-hips to the people at large. If there is anything good in British India let us, as said, copy it. It is well known that after the introduction of Provincial Autonomy in British India we in Mysore are stated for more powers. If they in British India kept quite we would not have enjoyed the privilege of non-official Ministers. Why should we not copy good things from the neighbouring provinces. No one need fear this measure and let us all welcome the formation of Civic Guards.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekhara Setty speaking next assured that the Civic Guards formation would in no way work harmful to the interests of the people.

Minister's Reply

Rajasevaprakashta A. V. Ramnathan, Minister for Law speaking on behalf of the Govt. said that luckily no use was made of the Civic Guards till now but due to developments outside the Government may find a use for them. He assured that there would be no misuse of the powers.

Mr. K. C. Reddy:—We have never placed confidence in you!

Continuing Mr. Ramnathan said "The Civic Guards will be used for local trouble in view of the war emergency. When such emergencies arise powers have been given to District Magistrates to facilitate the protection of the lives and properties of the people. I hope the Bill will be approved by the house.

Mr. Bhoopalam withdrew his amendment.

The Bill was put to vote and was carried by 141—74 votes.

The House adjourned for lunch interval.

AFTER LUNCH

Resuming after lunch the House took up for consideration the Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act 1925 Explaining the provisions Mr. H.V. Narayana Rao the Law Secretary said that in 1915 the Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act of British India was put into force in Mysore and its provisions made applicable to all the members of the Mysore military forces. This Act was intended to provide inter alia for the postponement in certain circumstances of civil or revenue proceedings to which an unrepresented member of the Mysore Military forces serving under war conditions was a party. In British India the provisions of the 1915 Act were re-enacted with certain amendments in 1918. It was later suggested that the protection afforded to Indian Soldiers in these matters while serving under war conditions was also required while serving on garrison duty overseas and in certain areas in India. The opinion was also expressed that the Act should not apply to suits, appeals or applications to enforce rights of pre-emption nor to a soldier in which the interests of a soldier in the proceedings are other identical with or are adequately represented by another party to the proceedings. It has been considered desirable to bring the law in Mysore in line with that in British India and the present Bill is intended to enforce "militia standards" in Mysore the provisions of the 1925 Act.

Without any discussion, the bill was approved.

Another Bill

The Mysore European British subjects re-instatement Bill was moved by the Law Secretary. One of the provisions of the Act is that any employer by whom a European British subject called up for national service was employed has to reinstate him in his employment at the termination of the national service subject to certain conditions and expectations.

Mr. Bhoopalram Chandrashekhara Setty wanted the Bill to be so framed as to facilitate even the sons of the soil to get themselves re-instated after their military service.

Dewan: There is no compulsory service for our people, what the member intends is altogether another question.

Mr. Bhoopalram Puttananjappa wanted to know the details of the tribunal to be constituted under section 9 of the Act and to see that Mysoreans are nominated to that body. He expressed surprise at the absence of Section 9 in the published Bill.

Mr. A. V. Ramanathan replied that as this is an emergency measure it would facilitate the working of the Act if the British tribunal is taken for the purposes of the Act.

Mr. M. N. Jay said that to accept an outside tribunal would be derogatory to the interests of Mysoreans in accordance to that effect would make them support the bill in its entirety.

The Dewan assured that the Government would consider the question. On this assurance the Bill was approved.

Railway Lands Bill

The Law Secretary next moved the Railway Lands (Employment of Foreign Forces) Bill and in the course of his explanation he said "The jurisdiction over certain railway in Mysore has been ceded to H. E. the Crown Representative. In the course of the production of such lands it may happen that British Indian forces may have to operate in Mysore territory within tactical distance of the railway lands. This Bill is intended to protect such forces from the consequence of any action they may take in the protection of the railway lands.

The Minister for Law cleared certain doubts arising out of the wording of the statement of object and reasons as compared with the Bill itself.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi feared that in exercise of the powers conferred by the Act people may be put to suffering. And hence he wanted some compensation to be included.

Mr. K. Chengalroya Reddi supported the same point and urged the Government to include a compensation clause and said "If these measures come under war efforts then the Congress party will remain neutral and not oppose it. His Highness has decided to aid Britain's war efforts. We as congressmen wedded to the principle of achieving full responsible Government under the aegis of the Ruler will not oppose the measure.

After some discussion the Bill was passed.

The Matches. (Excise duty) Amendment Bill was taken up for discussion late in the day. Mr. Bhoopalram Chandrashekhariya opposed it.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS WANT INDIAN WOOLS

HOW TO ENLARGE MARKET

Need for Wool Exchange in U. S. A.

TRADE COMMISSIONER ON FUTURE PROSPECTS

Simla, June 13. A good market for Indian wools exists in the U.S.A. and American carpet manufacturers are anxious to obtain Indian wools, according to the Indian Government Trade Commissioner, New York.

The future may see increased purchases of Indian wools and this would be facilitated if direct contact between the Indian shipper and American importer were established. If in the U.S.A., e.g., in Boston or Philadelphia, there were established a wool exchange and a centre comparable to Liverpool where wool could be sent on consignment, the price of Indian wool would be lowered at least by the difference in freight costs for shipment to the United States from Liverpool and with a decrease in prices an increase in demand for Indian carpet wools could be anticipated. The American market for Indian carpet wools can be additionally enlarged if the Indian exporter will accommodate his trade practices to the requirements and customs of the American importer and manufacturer, especially in regard to quality.

The United States is entirely dependent upon imports for its supply of carpet wools although the true carpet or "unimproved" wools are supplemented to some extent in carpet manufacture in the United States by "improved" wools, not finer than 40s.

India is an important source of supply but by no means the sole one or the most important one and in normal times India shares the American market with China, Argentina, the United Kingdom, Asia Minor and Iran.

Indian carpet wools are popular in the United States with carpet manufacturers because, compared with other carpet wools, they shrink less, have a fairly long staple and unusually good colours and therefore are desirable for the manufacture of better grade carpets. In ordinary times the bulk of the business is done through Liverpool where brokers for American buyers inspect the bales and send samples in advance of the wool auctions. Some American importers, however, have their offices in India and buy their requirements there.

In 1939 India supplied nearly DL. 5,000,000 worth of duty free carpet wools in the green and nearly another DL. 2,000,000 worth of duty free carpet wool in other categories. Indian carpet wools were, during 1939, second only to jute and gun products in importance among Indian exports to the United States. This, moreover represented a sharp increase over imports in 1938.

Britain heavy purchaser

The explanation for this development lies principally in certain abnormal factors which were operative during 1939. Outstanding among these was the large amount of carpet type wool used for military clothing, etc., during the period preceding the outbreak of war which would normally have gone into floor coverings. England's heavy purchases of wools suitable for uniforms and blankets was an especially important factor in the carpet wool situation. This coincided with one of the late consumption years in America and moreover with a period when supplies had been reduced to subnormal on account of the dislocations of trade with China.

These abnormal factors were accentuated by the outbreak of the European war. The American mills bought heavily after September, as reflected in the import figures for the last four months of 1939 and the opening months of 1940. India, however, as a result of the restrictions placed on the export of wool from India did not profit fully by the increase demand. Imports from India of duty free wool in the greasy and washed condition, somewhat during the first quarter of 1940 as compared with the corresponding period of 1939, while imports of duty free wool sorted or matchings and scouring made substantial gains.

KNITTED WEAR FOR FIGHTING FORCES

REMINDER TO THE WOMEN WAR WORKERS OF HYDERABAD

Fighting fronts will be extended in next Cold Weather
(By Mail) Hyderabad, (Dn.) June 11
Increased output of knitted woollen garments for the fighting forces is suggested in the reminder issued by the Women's Sub-Committee of the Hyderabad War Purposes Fund.

The reminder says, "The Women War Workers of Hyderabad are reminded that the demand for knitted woollen garments for the fighting forces during the next cold weather is a very heavy one, as all the fighting fronts are likely to be extended by that time. Many ladies are already knitting in every spare moment, but those who have not as yet realised the need are urged to redouble their efforts, so that from the middle of July onwards, a splendid supply of cardigans, pull-overs, woollen helmets, gloves, mittens, mufflers may pour steadily from Hyderabad to cheer and comfort the men who are enquiring so much for our safety."

Mr. Amery said he was aware of the situation but was unable to say when he would make the statement.

Mr. Gordon Macdonald asked whether the political developments in India are not retarding the industry and the war effort. Mr. Amery replied: "I am not aware they are."

WHAT THE DEWAN SAID

"NO POLICY OF APPEASEMENT"

ASSEMBLY DISCUSSION ON THE REMOVAL OF DISQUALIFICATIONS

(From our Correspondent)

(By Wire) Mysore, June 13

The Mysore Assembly resumed work this noon the Dewan presiding. Today at the commencement separate sitting blocks were provided for the Congress and Muslim League parties. As usual interpretations were taken up first and representations were considered next. Mrs. S. Annappa Setty prayed that disqualifications and other restrictions imposed on some persons be removed. Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya of Bangalore speaking pointed out that though people fought for complete independence in British India, such persons were not disqualifed while in Mysore people who worked for Responsible Government under the aegis of H. H. the Maharaja have been disqualified and that is less than fair.

Mr. F. C. Desvaraja Urs stated that though disqualifications should be removed still people who disobey the law deliberately should reap the consequences.

Mr. Sankaralinge Gowda, (Independent) supported the removal of disqualifications. Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekhariah, S. C. Malliah and others prayed for liberal consideration by the Government. Mr. K. Chengalraya Reddy pointed out that the Congress prayer was not to be considered as apologetic.

Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao pleaded for sympathetic consideration of the matter and made a very fine speech.

DEWAN'S REPLY

The Dewan said that the Government had already extended various concessions to the political prisoners arrested on account of non-cooperation movement. Most of these had already been released and fines had been remitted in most cases. In certain cases when punitive police had been imposed the amount to be collected had been reduced where circumstances justified this course. It might be remembered by those who advocated further concessions that the disqualifications about which they have complained existed under the old rule and were not newly imposed. Satyagrahi knew quite well that they had to reap the consequences of their act which included the possibility of disqualification under the Legal Practitioners' Act and disqualification for voting in the elections.

The Dewan added: "Government could not pursue an indiscriminating policy of appeasement. Any one who viewed the various concessions already made with an unbiased mind would agree that the Government had already done all in its power to continue leniency with its paramount duty of maintaining law and order. It was very difficult having regard to all the circumstances to see what further concessions were feasible and what other action could be taken on the lines desired by the mover of the representation."

INDIA'S POST-WAR ECONOMY

NEED FOR INDUSTRIAL RECONSTRUCTION

Committee to undertake Survey

A Press Note issued by Government of India says:—
After the experience of 20 years ago, no argument is necessary to support the statement that, following upon the war, and steadily increasing economic, and industrial conditions, but more abrupt, dislocation of these conditions is to be expected on the return of a state of peace.

Industries that are now being developed as rapidly and extensively as possible will no longer actively engaged upon urgent contracts; labour that has been employed on those industries will become redundant; and the surplus and finished goods prepared for war uses will become surplus and their disposal will have to be arranged. Although the details of these schemes cannot be accurately forecast, their broad outline is clearly visible, and the Government of India have come to the conclusion that it is not too soon to begin to survey them while there is yet time to do this without incurring the perils which attend hasty improvisation, so that they may be prepared with plans when the anticipated emergency comes.

The Government of India have accordingly decided to appoint a Reconstruction Committee, to be presided over by the Hon'ble the Commerce Minister, the other members of which will be the Economic Adviser to the Government of India and representative of the Finance Department, the Commerce Department, the Defence Department, the Department of Education, Health and Lands, the Labour Department, the Department of Supply and the Railway Board.

This committee will, it is expected, arrange for the bulk of detailed work to be done by sub-committees appointed to deal with various problems, and its main functions will therefore be to direct and co-ordinate the work of the Sub-Committees. It is further intended that persons of special knowledge, whether official or non official, shall be attached to the various Sub-Committees.

In due course, arrangements will be made to bring the main committee and the Sub-Committees into touch with Provincial and State Governments and enable them to obtain the co-operation of industrialists and other business men, who will be in a position to give valuable assistance on the diverse problems which will arise from time to time.

The Government of India consider that the most effective way of bringing expert opinion to bear is by way of inviting its collaboration with reference to specific problems and not by entrusting the main Committee, especially as experience shows that an unduly large Committee cannot function efficiently.

The first meeting of the main committee is likely to be held in the early date and it will then be asked to consider the appointment of Sub-Committees and the assignment of tasks to them.

ALLIPURAM JAIL INCIDENT

Mr. KARMARKAR'S STATEMENT

(From a Correspondent)
Dharwar, July 11.

Shri D. P. Karmarkar, President, Karnataka Provincial Congress Committee, has issued the following statement to the press:—

"I feel it is my duty to share with the public the statement submitted by Shri Kasi Reddi to Shri Veeraswami the President of the Bellary District Congress Committee regarding the happenings in the Allipuram Jail on the 13th April."

"I was released today from the Allipuram Jail. I was at first in the Central Jail for about 2 months and thereafter taken to Allipuram Jail where I remained for 3 months before my release. I was kept in the 16th Block of the Allipuram Jail. I have personally seen the lathi charge that took place on the political prisoners on 13-4-1941 in the 17th Block.

"The lathi charge was made on about 75 persons of that block. At first the Superintendent, Jailor, Deputy Jailor and warders got clothings, bedding etc., of the prisoners thrown out into the open. Then some of the prisoners were given big Handas (water vessels each of about 10 gallons capacity) and asked to fetch water from the Jail water tank situated about a lurlong away from 17th block. Such of those who could not cope with the weight were butted with the ends of lathies and made to walk. Of such persons one Sankara Nambiar and another Jagann Mohan Rao fell down unable to carry the heavy vessels and were beaten with lathies by the warders. Some of the other prisoners who were given broomsticks to clean the block were kicked and abused in filthy language by the Superintendent on some pretext or other. After the lathi charge the prisoners were removed to quarantine. They were there without food for 3 days. On the 4th day food was served to them at their place on the recommendation of the District Medical Officer. I am surprised that the Government should have unjustly hushed up the above facts and issued a false press note that there was no lathi charge in Allipuram Jail on 13-4-1941.

"Shri Kasi Reddi has further stated that the Superintendent of the Allipuram Jail refused to give writing materials to Shri Nambiar to enable him to make a representation regarding the ill-treatment on the 13th April and consequently Shris Nambiar and Krishna Rao have gone on hunger strike from the 23rd May.

Will the Madras Government at least now make a full and unvarnished disclosure of the ugly happenings in Allipuram Jail on the 13th?"

TRIBUTE TO SIR MIRZA

FELICITATIONS TO THE NEW DEWAN

Resolution Passed by the Association of Mysore Engineers, Madras
(From a Correspondent)

Madras, June 12
At a meeting of the Association held on Saturday the 7th June, 1941, the following resolutions moved by Mr. A. A. Row, President of the Association were unanimously passed:—

1. On the retirement of Sir Mirza Ismail as Dewan of Mysore the Association wishes to express how deeply it appreciates the services he has rendered to the State. Under his able leadership, Mysore has shown a remarkable amount of improvement. The Association wishes Sir Mirza many happy years to come and expresses the hope that he will continue to evince interest in making 'Mysore' the by-word for enlightenment, unity and progress.

2. The Association offers its best felicitations to Rajamantrapravina N. Madhava Rao on his appointment as the Dewan of Mysore and expresses the hope that his regime will be marked by a rapid progress in all the Nation Building activities.

3. The Association welcomes the Council of Ministers appointed by His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore under the new constitution and congratulates the new Ministry, while expressing the hope that it will contribute to the lasting good and prosperity of the State.

EFFECT OF SIR MIRZA'S RETIREMENT ON MYSORE

"The Statesman" Political Observer writes:
Mysore has a Maharaja who is new to his office, not having been a full year in it. It has a new Dewan, a State official who has served Mysore all his life. In a fortnight it will have a new constitution whose chief feature is the selection of Ministers from among elected members of the legislature. These changes taken together mean a complete transformation of Mysore's landscape.

The State has hardly yet recovered from the shock of Sir Mirza Ismail's sudden decision to retire. In the ordinary course he would have stayed on for another year and a half, he would have seen the Reform through and guided the footsteps of the young Maharaja along the steep path that all progressive Rulers pursue. That has not been given to him. He has preferred to withdraw rather than abandon the methods and policies which he practised as Dewan for fifteen years and which have made Mysore famous. The best of Dewans must retire says, a South Indian newspaper. So they must; but such sudden resignations leave a bitter taste in the mouth. They remain an unpleasant background to whatever may happen in a new order of things. The affairs of minor States are quickly forgotten, but a major State like Mysore is in the public eye from year's end to year's end. Mysore fills a large space in all-India polity and it will have to do much to smooth over a difficult transition.

High Speed Particles

Furthermore, the beam of exceedingly high-speed particles can be applied, like X-rays, gamma rays, and other types of radiation, directly to living organisms, and the efforts can be analyzed and ultimately utilized. It will require years to investigate the efficiency of beams of different composition and intensities on various vital processes; but experiments have already shown, for example, that beams of neutrons can penetrate deeply into living tissue and can there release local radiations which can be, but need not be, intense enough to kill cells. Their further applications are now in the first tentative stages. It is as difficult to predict the exact nature of their use as it would have been in the case of X-rays at a similar point in their development.

The most powerful cyclotrons now in existence produce particles whose speeds, when fired at atoms, enable them to knock off only the external and more loosely bound features of the atoms under attack. It is at this point that the new giant cyclotron, now under construction, is of critical importance, for it is designed to produce properties of mesotrons that they can penetrate and explore the nucleus itself.

During the last forty years, science has learned much about atomic structure, that it is formed of certain elementary units in accordance with laws with which we are not familiar; and physicists to-day consider its investigation the most important present problem in physical science. Here in the interior of the nucleus is the one essentially unexplored part of our universe. It is a world into which we have hitherto been powerless to enter; and the urge to penetrate, to explore and to analyze is irresistible.

This urge, moreover, is heightened and justified by the conviction that this virgin territory will prove to be rich. Practically all of the energy of the atom, for instance, is stored within the nucleus; and it is the nucleus which really determines the character of an atom and is hence ultimately responsible for all the properties of matter. Furthermore, there is evidence that the essential forces which bind the nucleus together are due to an elementary particle called a "mesotron." These same mesotrons play an important role in cosmic rays; and if more could be learned about mesotrons it would immediately throw light not only on this other perplexing problem, but on still further riddles with which science is now grappling on the frontiers of knowledge—Rocke-

Part in Desert Fighting

(By cable) London
The Times special Correspondent at Amman cabled on June 4:

Major J. B. Glubb (Glubb Pasha) will be welcomed to Amman tomorrow when he returns with the Transjordan Arab Legion under his command. Today the Emir of Transjordan, who is the Commander-in-Chief of the Arab Legion, received a letter from the British Commander of the operations in Iraq dwelling on the remarkable part played by Major Glubb's desert legionaries who reconnoitred ahead of the British mechanized columns harrying the enemy's communications, cutting the railway, protecting British communications against attack from the rear and generally showing initiative, determination and resourcefulness during the guerilla fighting over deserts covering a thousand square miles.

The German wireless recently reported that Major Glubb had been killed in the desert fighting near Rutbah, but he is very alive.

The Times Jerusalem Correspondent cabled on June 4:

Appreciation of the British co-operation with the Iraqi Regent, Abdull Ilah, and the considerate policy followed by the British Commander in quelling the revolt has been expressed by the Emir of Transjordan in a telegram of congratulation and thanks addressed to Sir Harold Macmichael, High Commissioner in Palestine, for transmission to London. Throughout the difficult period the Regent maintained the closest contact with his uncle, whose unwavering loyalty to Britain was most helpful.

ECONOMIC BOYCOTT
SUGGESTEDACHARYA KRIPALANI ON COMMUNAL PROBLEM

(Associated Press of India)

Lucknow: June 14

"Can effective non-violent way to tackle the communal problem be devised when peaceful negotiations fail?" asks Acharya Kripalani in the course of an article on communal riots and satyagraha. Answering the question himself Acharya Kripalani states unlike as against foreign domination in communal conflict, field of action is extremely limited. "No one community is in possession of political power. Under these circumstances only field for withdrawal of cooperation seems to be economic. Such action, he proceeds, will be justified ethically as well as politically, especially if armed resistance is precluded. It is no duty of community to help or patronise the group that creates or foments riots. All national-minded Indians, says Acharya Kripalani, must throw in their weight with the aggrieved community in communal conflict. Nationalists will have to be absolutely like Caesar's wife above all suspicion and unaffected by frowns or favours of their community.

Acharya Kripalani proceeds to say that non-co-operation which should be resorted to only after anxious, prolonged and patient deliberation, should not be vindictive and must be withdrawn the moment it has served its usefulness.

He says there must be no effort at social boycott for the object is to bring the communities together and not to separate. Non-cooperation must not be carried into the field of necessities of life. It cannot in the nature of things be carried on in a way that will endanger the life or limb and it must be carried on in such a manner that no bitterness is created so that when peace is restored there are no wounds and scars left behind. This weapon, he continues, can be handled with equal effect by the majority as well as minority communities.

Acharya Kripalani concludes by saying that it is for the leaders to put their heads together and devise full and comprehensive plan of action.

SHED BLOODBRITAIN'S REPLY TO VICHY
RE: SYRIAN QUESTIONVichy—British Correspondence Published

Text is published in London of Vichy notes to Britain about our advance in Syria and our reply. Vichy notes point out that all German planes and personnel which were there during their advance on Iraq have been withdrawn with the exception of two or three damaged machines and about ten Germans. Vichy notes affirm that they would avoid taking any action which might spread the conflict but that they will defend French territories.

Great Britain's reply says that Britain's action in Syria is based on facts and not on theoretical situations. There can be argument about the meaning of the word collaboration and Marshal Petains Government, it says, must take the consequences of having instructed the authorities in Syria to help our enemies. Finally British reply repeats that the Government have no desire that French blood should be shed and that Marshal Petain in the interest of both sides should instruct his forces in Syria not to oppose the measures taken by the Allied to prevent Germans using Syria as a base.

THE MOTORISTS' NIGHT MARE

The traffic problem in our City has been there for years without just and proper solution. It is all very well to put a few untrained constables to control the ever growing Automobiles as they pass the numerous traffic points. But what of the poor vehicle owners who for no fault of theirs are hauled up before the Magistrate to reap the consequences attached to the rigour of law. Mulcting those who offend the traffic regulation cannot in the least improve the situation unless an altogether different mode of chastisement is observed on the part of those who dispense justice in the name of law. We have known instances where an innocent Motor-driver is punished for the fault of a constable who does not know the sanctity of a traffic point. We have instances where an angry look or a contemptuous nod on the part of the vehicle owners have landed them in trouble. We for one moment hold no brief for those lucky few who drive small automobiles but our sole concern is to improve the situation where the interests of Motorists are not safe in the hands of the constables.

The crux of the problem lies in having "unsanctified wits" and not "scattered" wits on the part of our motorists. The duty of these heaven born people who control the Packard, Cadillac, Ford, Buick and other factory products is to educate the road users rather than look helplessly to the hand-waving constable. If only the brains are not used it is indeed an effort to teach our jay walkers of what it is to swerve to the left and keep going in that direction. A little of commonsense which every man and woman does possess will put them in ease as to elude the hooting of a horn or the jamming of the foot-brakes. Let us examine the component parts of our roads and see what are the things displayed on them. Invariably the Bulls with their eagerness to occupy the most dangerous part of the road for their strategy are to be seen, or the disease ridden dogs which should ordinarily take up residence in the Municipal lethal chamber are seen to be in playful mood, the whining beggars in their hundreds, the children who look to busy streets as their playground—all these make the motorists of our City nervous.

Another aspect of the problem deserves close study. It is more often the rule to cut the roads for purposes which according to

AUSTRALIAN WAR

Ban on Australian Funds to Britain explained

(Associated Press of India)

SIMLA, June 13

Sir Bertram Stevens, Australian representative in the Eastern Group Supply Council addressing the representatives of Indians to Overseas Press said that the Australian press in the early stages of the war had been very outspoken and frank in their criticism of the Australian war effort and today they had the satisfaction of seeking and claiming some credit for the remarkable acceleration of the war effort.

He emphasised that Australia's representation on the Council aimed to help India and the group and not to seek commercial and industrial advancement. He said that he was most anxious to understand fully the problems and aspirations of India because he believed in mutual understanding. Each member of the Empire had a duty to understand and help others.

Sir Stevens outlined the extent of Australia's war effort and described the progress made in the manufacture of munitions and machine tools, warships, freighters, aeroplanes, motors, tanks and armoured vehicles, guns and war stores of all kinds.

Questioned regarding the recent decision of Australia to suspend the transference of funds raised for spithires to England, he said the Australia's motives were in danger of being misunderstood and misrepresented. Such action was merely a matter of accounting and transference of funds between Australia and London had nothing to do with the Crete Campaign. Australia knows, he said, she must suffer with Britain in the ordeal of war, as well as share, in triumphs. There is no glimmer of rift between Britain and Commonwealth. We are with them to the last and we endure all.

the authorities demand urgent attention. The excavations on the road are never ending sometimes continuous which make the motorist to be extra careful when negotiating sides. A slight fault will make any one to get into the pit enroute to the Victoria hospital wards. These are the difficulties which should be rectified instantly. One suggestion if it is practicable. Instead of mulcting the drivers for breaches of traffic rules they should be sent to Traffic School for some days detention. And also educated constables should be put on the traffic points. Civility should be their guiding motto. We do hope these things will demand the urgent attention of those who guard the interests of Motorists and traffic problems.

REMOVAL OF DISQUALIFICATIONS

Interesting Debate in the Assembly

DEWAN STATES GOVERNMENT VIEW POINT

(From our Staff Correspondent)

MYSORE, June 13

The Mysore Representative Assembly met this noon. Rajamantapravina N. Madhava Rao the Dewan presiding. After the question hour representations were taken up.

Representations

Mr. S. Anappa Setty (Congress) prayed that the fines, disqualifications and other restrictions imposed on some persons be removed immediately, having regard to the amnesty unconditionally granted to all political prisoners on the occasion of the Pattabhishekam of His Highness the Maharaja.

An interesting debate took place on this, for nearly two hours. Some fine speeches were made both for and against the representation. The most important contribution to the debate was made by Mr. Navarajna Rama Rao who pleaded for a policy of better understanding between Congress and Government.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya (Congress) said that they were not begging on their knees for this concession. The Government might comply with this request in the interest of the country with a view to creating a peaceful and wholesome atmosphere in the State. In his opening address the Dewan pleaded for wholehearted co-operation of the members and it is to further that object that it is necessary that Government should comply with this representation. This would be an acid test of Government's sincerity in the matter.

Mr. T.S. Rajagopala Iyengar

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar (Congress) in supporting this representation said that the punishment meted out to offenders was disproportionate to their offences and it created an impression that Government, was vindictive to their opponents. Civil disobedience was only a technical offence. It did not involve moral turpitude. Some practising Lawyers have been debarred from practising in any Law Courts of the State. They have been further disqualified from standing as candidates for elections. In Br India, in similar circumstances, the punishment was temporary, but here, it was not so. He, therefore, appealed to Government, in the interests of equity and justice, to remove the restrictions placed on some Congressmen.

Mr. F. C. Devaraja Urs

Mr. F. C. Devaraja Urs (nominated) said that he had no objection for showing concessions to people who asked for them. But if those who disobeyed Government's laws, maintained that they were not going to repent for three actions, no concessions Government showed concessions to such people, there would be disorder in society and it is Government's duty to maintain law and order.

A question of policy

Mr. Subbaiah Setty (Congress) in supporting the representation said that it was not an individual request that was before the house but it was a question of policy. They were not asking for mercy. If the Government were convinced that the representation was just and reasonable, they might comply with it of their own accord.

Mr. Shankaralinga Gowda

Mr. Shankaralinga Gowda said that at the time of Pattabhishekam many concessions were given and the one before the house was comparatively a small one and he would request Government to comply with it. If they again broke law, it is open to Government to punish them again.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya (Maddur) Leader, Rashtriya Mahasabha, doubted if Government had any power to interfere in the decisions of the High Court. But anyhow in view of the inauguration of the New Reforms, the Government might consider the question of concessions if the party prays for it, but he could not subscribe to the proposition that the punishment was unjust and disproportionate. He instanced the case of Mr. Batiwala when Congress was in office in Madras and said that the person was punished under law.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya: I did not say that the punishment was unjust. The Congressmen have suffered their punishments cheerfully. The point before the house is, whether disqualifications should be removed or not.

Dewan: It is not clear in the representation.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya: Incidentally Government policy may also be considered. There is the word disqualification in the Representation.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaiya

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaiya struck a mean path and said that the representation could be considered from two points of view. One was the point of law and the other was the policy of Government. He agreed with the proposition that Government should adopt a liberal policy in this matter. He would like the Congressmen to request Government to adopt a liberal policy.

One thing was clear to him. In the face of the decision of the High Court, the Government could not do anything. They have to frame a special legislation for the purpose or advise H. H. the Maharaja to exercise his special powers in the matter.

Mr. Bhoopalam continued and said that the Mysore Legal Practitioners Act was very harsh. Referring to the Bowringpet incident he said, Mr. K. C. Reddy was also one of those who disobeyed the Magistrate's order. He was also sentenced and he suffered the imprisonment. Simply because he was not enrolled himself as a lawyer though qualified to do so. There was no ban on him to do so. He could even be appointed Minister, but in the case of other friends, the fact of their being practising advocates resulted in their not being allowed to enter this house as members. This was a serious handicap. Government should remedy this.

Mr. Veerakurari Sitarani Sastry said that it was not possible to the proposal that some of his Congress friends who were disqualified to be removed as members of this house should be enabled to do so. He did not want the world to be left with the impression that those gentlemen could have done wonders if they had not been given a chance to be members of this house. If there was a request that disqualifications should be removed, he would request Government to comply with it.

Speaking about Satyagrahi and Satyagrahis, Mr. Sastry said that true Satyagrahis do not ask for any concessions. Mahatma Gandhi would ask at the so-called Satyagrahis who would ask for concessions. If Congressmen wanted anything let them say so in a straight forward manner. Let them be one in thought, word and deed. On one side, they talk of accepting ministry and on the other they talk of walk-outs and lock-outs. If he were in the Congress party, he would never have agreed to the keep-out when the Dewan read his opening address. What is the meaning of all this?

(There was an interruption from Congress benches.)

Mr. Veerakurari concluded his remarks, once again advising Mysore Congress to be consistent in thought, word and deed.

Mr. M. N. Jois

After Mr. V. Venkataswamy Chetty spoke against the representation, Mr. M. N. Jois (Congress) said, a gentleman speaking of Satyagraha and ethics of Satyagraha. The same gentleman had taught him (the speaker) what Satyagraha was. He continued it but that gentleman being unable to pursue the ethics of Satyagraha gave it up. The same gentleman asked Congressmen to be one in thought, word and deed, the world to judge men and things.

Continuing his speech, Mr. M. N. Jois said that the representation referred to the Government. If a Government had to progress, several movements were necessary. In every civilized country, there was progress was strewn with turmoilis. The Mysore Congress conducted a movement to establish full responsible Government under the aegis of H. H. the Maharaja. Congressmen suffered many privations. They could see on the day two official Ministers today, and due to the sufferings Congressmen placed before Govt. suggestions for removal of difficulties in the way of progress.

...Please confine to the merits of the proposition.

...Join referred to the case of the speaker also had been imprisoned, but since he was not a B.L., and because he could be returned to his house, and not the friend of a B.L., and practising law.

...Jatra Naik appealed to the speaker, "ours is Rama-... We are pleased with the Maharaja's speech and speech. Please remove the disqualifications and restore order in the country."

...Ballam Srinivasa Rao said the words "discipline" and "order" were freely used in the days. There was discipline in the Congress, why should there be discipline in the country? The Government might ask it to them.

Mr. K. C. Reddy

...Mr. K. Chengaralaya Reddy made a lengthy speech in which he explained the spirit behind the representation. He was of the ethics of Satyagraha and congressmen who had been law had suffered the consequences in a cheerful spirit. Mr. Veerakesari said that Satyagraha should suffer the consequences of their acts cheerfully. Congress had done so, he all remind the house. No congressman desired to escape the consequences. On the other hand, they had not defended themselves in the propositions launched against them. They willingly bowed down to the punishments.

...Mr. Reddy proceeding said, they were not satisfied with the form in which the representation has come before them. anyhow it was there. They were not prepared to bow down their knees and beg for mercy. They were not going to say that they did in the past was wrong, nor were they going to ask an assurance for future. They could not accept the advice of some friends to go back cloth and ashes. The representation was supported by a view to creating a new atmosphere in the country.

...Mr. Reddy said that he was going into the details of the Congress movement. He would refer to the Legal Practitioners who were disqualified in Mysore. In India too, some lawyers were temporarily discredited. They were not disqualified in elections. It looks as if our Government here introduced restriction to keep out some people.

...There was no question of disqualification. The Government should consider the proposition in the matter of general policy in the interest of justice and equity. It was not even a question of majority or otherwise. The Government themselves made a very stiff and it is for them to consider if they could make it a bit less harsh.

HINDU MAHASABHA EXECUTIVE MEETING

Leaders Arriving in Calcutta

(Associated Press of India)

CALCUTTA: June 13. Hindu Mahasabha, arrived here this morning from Bombay. Other arrivals connected with the coming meeting of the All India Committee of the Mahasabha are, Dr. B.S. Moonjee and Mr. L.V. Bhopatkar.

Mr. Reddy referred to the rigours of the Mining Regulation and said that he could not enter that area for life.

Dewan:—Why should you go only there?

Mr. Reddy continuing said, that this representation was made in the interest of the Government themselves, so that they may remove the restrictions and earn a good name. If the Government should consider that the representation was reasonable, let them comply with it other-wise not.

Mr. Reddy concluded his speech saying that he would not reply to the point raised by Mr. Veerakesari Sitarama Sastry, as to who was consistent in thought, word and deed etc.

Mr. V. Venkatappa

Mr. V. Venkatappa referred to the Congress movement which he said was started as an answer to Sir Mirza who said in 1934 that there could be no further Constitutional Reforms in Mysore.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi and some Muslim League members pleaded for favourable consideration of the request.

Mr. N. Rama Rao

Mr. Navarathna Rama Rao pleaded for a policy of re-conciliation. The Congress had done in the past, what it considered to be right, according to their conscience. The Government also had done what they considered to be right. Now the time had come to forget the old things and begin a new chapter, specially in the wake of the new Reforms.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswamy said that if Congress repented for its action Government could favourably consider the proposition.

DEWAN'S REPLY

The Dewan said that the Government had already extended various concessions to the political prisoners arrested on account of satyagraha movement. Most of these had already been released and fines had been remitted in most cases. In certain cases when punitive police had been imposed the amount to be collected had been reduced where circumstances justified this course. It might be remembered by those who advocated further concessions that the disqualifications about which they have complained existed under the old rule and were not newly imposed. Satyagrahis knew quite well that they had to reap the consequences of their act which included the possibility of disqualification under the Legal Practitioners' act and disqualification for voting in the elections.

The Dewan added: "Government could not pursue an indiscriminating policy of appeasement. Any one who viewed the various concessions already made with an unbiased mind would agree that the Government had already done all in its power to continue clemency with law and order. It was very difficult having regard to all the circumstances to see what further concessions were feasible and what other actions could be taken on the lines desired by the moves of the representation."

QUESTION OF TRANSIT OF WAR MATERIAL THROUGH TURKEY

Ankara's attitude to French Request

(By cable) London, June 9.

The Daily Telegraph Ankara Correspondent cabled on June 6: It is believed that Turkey will not reply to the French request made on June 2 that the transit of war material from France to Syria should be permitted through Turkey.

Turkey's resistance has been stiffened by the ill-timed allegation of Admiral Darlan, the Vichy Vice-Premier, that Britain instigated Turkey to attack the French in Cilicia, Asia Minor, during the last war. The request for transport facilities twenty-four hours after this speech was particularly badly timed.

Everybody here has, nevertheless, seen that the French demand is really German-inspired.

There is evidence that Germany is preparing thoroughly for her next move. These preparations may last some time because excessive pains are taken by Berlin to avoid ruffling Turkey's tranquillity.

THE ART OF SOHRAB MODI

(BY SAHASI)

Sohrab Modi is one of India's ace Directors. Fans conjure up visions of a glorious filmdom whenever his name is mentioned. For sincerity in film work and loftiness of purpose, few mag- nates can rise to level of Modi.

To judge his contribution to film art we can now survey his productions, 'Syd-e-havas', 'Jailor', 'Pukar', and 'Bharosa'. These are the pillars on which his fame rests.

We easily infer that Sohrab Modi's greatness in film art must have had its foundations in the drama. 'Syd-e-havas' appeared in the early days of the Talkies in India. Those were days when film capitalists found it quite an easy work to exploit the curiosity instinct in the fans—an all-talking and singing picture was a rare phenomenon in those days by producing stunt pictures. Modi however must have discarded such cheap money-mongering for he produced in the first instance alone pictures like 'Syd-e-havas'. He proved his title to noble film and thereby. 'Syd-e-havas' is the equivalent of Shakespeare's 'King John'. Its settings are those of a stage film. The costumes of the actors have been got up after due deliberations. If Shakespeare himself were to come down and see this Urdu version of his 'King John', I think he would not say that Modi did injustice to his art. And in this stage film, practically a novelty for India in those days, Sohrab Modi has assumed the principal role: he is its 'Hubert'.

Next comes 'Jailor'. The play is a tragedy. Modi enacted Jailor, the tragic hero of the plot. Indeed he seems to be cut only for tragic roles. For his action is superb, as Jailor. First he is the ugly, despairing, husband of a lovely wife. Next he appears on the jilted, infuriated and vindictive boss of his household. Then the tragic figure searches peace in the corners of his soul which erstwhile thirsted for vengeance. At last remorse and peace he obtains in a way, when he sees the blind girl left orphan in the world and brings her up as his own daughter. All the deep cords of life are struck in unison in 'Jailor'. It is no doubt a marvellous plot; it has made Sohrab Modi leap into fame.

In 'Pukar' Modi's sincerity of work is unmistakable. It is the first historical picture for India in the real sense of the word, 'historical'. The theme is very simple but the effect is brought out fully through settings, the details of which have been attended to with meticulous care. It is on the whole a gorgeous film which unrrolls the past before us and makes us realise 'glory that was Ind and the splendour that was Orient'. As can be expected, lover or tragedy that he is, Modi appears as Sangram Singh, the general under Jehangir, who has to hand over his own son to the King's justice of the bells'.

The wedding of the First Sister of H.H. the Maharaja with the Thakore Sahib of Kotda Sanghani was celebrated on Thursday. These pictures were taken inside the Kalyana Mantap by our Mysore Correspondent. Sir S Radhakrishnan is seen sitting with other invitees.

By always donning the robes of a tragic hero, Sohrab Modi tends to weaken the grip in a plot. This much can be made out from the way in which the fore-going three stories have been handled. Modi's art is egoistic. He reveals in tragedies no doubt but he makes himself too prominent when he enacts the principal character. We may not blame him much for that either. Modi cannot easily escape from the obsession of the old stage art in his attempts to find expression in film art. He is at the cross roads of purposes and has not yet found the golden mean path. In this enthusiasm to make the hero of 'Jailor' appear noble, merciful, and therefore divine, he forgets that critics can point out the other side of the shield. The doctor who eloped with the Jailor's wife is to be pardoned and comfortably lodged in the Jailor's own house. It can justly be pointed out that this is not appropriate denouement. It is something like placing a premium on immorality. But that is far from the author's or the Directors' intentions.

In 'Pukar' Modi appears as the general in the service of the Great Mogul, with a clear sense of duty which he places above all other things in life. He subdues all the feelings of a father and hands over his own son to the arms of Law; yet see how he, Sangram Singh, glazes over the prospective helplessness of Jehangir's 'Justice of the bells' when a washerman is struck down dead by Nur-Jehan's arrow! The queen has done the act quite innocently; the general knows that. But does he not appear to be too eager to trap Jehangir's justice and put into a hermitically sealed tube when he ushers the washerman into the Imperial Presence and goads her on to demand, life for life, at the Great Mogul's hands?

In spite of his great position in filmdom, Sohrab Modi has not been able to differentiate film art from stage art. He carries the traditions of the latter into the former and makes himself the central figure in a story, round which the other characters have to revolve as satellites. He has no clear team work sense.

The above rather big preamble is necessary for us to grasp the art in 'Bharosa'. Modi has only directed this film. But there is in it, the same ambition to emphasise plot-value, the same delight to create thrilling paradoxical situations and problems. In 'Jailor' a husband has to forgive his own wife's lover. In 'Pukar' a father has to arrest his own son and hand him over to Law. In 'Bharosa' a brother feels the elements of love towards his step sister the relationship is only implicit. Of course the two love each other quite innocently and their tragic parentage is discovered only in the end. But to persevere in a theme based on their innocence is to ignore the supremacy of the moral law over the biological. The picture no doubt abounds in poignant scenes and affords splendid scope for character action. But nowhere in the story has the above moral law aspect been brought out so as to be grasped easily.

Sohrab Modi has a passion for plots of the Hall Caine type in western fiction which he handles in oriental fervour. He can become a giant among ace Directors if only he forgives a new weapon on the anvil of art, changing his old stage tactics. But there seem to be as yet no signs that he will do it.

Mahatma Gandhi in the course of a conversation with the President of the Maharashtra Provincial Congress Committee revealed that he decided to introduce a change in the technique of passing lists of satyagrahis. Gandhi says:

"From the date wherein a number of prospective satyagrahi offer themselves for sanction the satyagrahis have to stop private practice and devote themselves wholly to working out one or more items of the thirteenfold constructive programme. Every prospective satyagrahi is expected to keep a log book or a diary wherein he has to enter the work turned out. Then only I shall grant permission to deserving persons."

Regarding congress attitude to elections to local bodies Gandhi stated "As a rule elections to such bodies should not be run in the name of the Congress. There may be no objection to Congress men fighting the same on individual responsibility."

He answered in the negative when asked whether enrolled Satyagrahis could fight such elections and added "Satyagrahis who have already put in candidature to such elections should withdraw them or failing which should withdraw from Satyagraha."

All India Hindu Maha Sabha Committee on Direct Action

NOT OPPORTUNE AT PRESENT

(Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, June 15

The two-day session of the All-India Committee of the Hindu Maha Sabha at Asutosh College Hall concluded today after having adopted by 61 votes to 10 the resolution moved yesterday by Dr. Moonje, recommending the postponement of effect being given to the Madras Resolution on "Direct Action." Mr. V. D. Savarkar was in the chair.

Altogether three amendments were moved to the resolution of which one was withdrawn and the other two were rejected.

The opposition point of view was that a decision to postpone direct action for the present would virtually mean going back on the Madras resolution on the matter. It would also bring them down in the estimation of the Government as well as the people in the country.

Mr. Deshapande, who led the opposition said that by taking this backward step they would lose the popularity they had gained by the stiffness in their attitude and boldness in their activities with regard to the problems facing the Hindus.

Replying to the opposition arguments Dr. Mookerjee said that the present resolution on direct action did not contemplate going back upon the Madras Resolution. They had postponed its All-India operation for the time being. At the same time each Province would get ample scope to carry on the struggle for upholding the Hindu interests in the different spheres of activities.

ACHARYA KRIPALANI'S
NEW ETHICS

Acharya Kripalani the wizard of the All-India Congress has a new suggestion to offer for effectively ending communal rancours in the country. We have examined his view point closely but we are constrained to say that those suggestions are wholly impracticable in the present state of world's conflict. "No one community is in possession of political power. Under these circumstances the only field for withdrawal of co-operation seems to be economic" he says when discussing the form of his action. We fail to see how withdrawal of economic co-operation would pave the way for better understanding between the warring communities. The dependence of one community on the other for living necessarily postulates good relationship but any withdrawal of patronage for a possible better understanding is impracticable and would go the whole way to embitter sweeter purposes. Acharya Kripalani has come out with previous instances to substantiate that such boycotts are in keeping with the principles of Satyagraha. But where is the similarity between the British goods boycott and the one that is foreshadowed now. It is easily argued that one community is in duty bound not to patronise the other group which foments riots. If the community that is in need of patronage turns round and say "we keep aloof" where is Acharya Kripalani's palliative to result in success. So far communal troubles have been traced to religious frenzies. If the religious part of any one community is confined to the four corners of the house all the troubles which we are witnessing in the many parts of the country would lessen or completely vanish. The boycott, be it economic, tends to foment bitterness and defeats the purpose for which it was intended.

In dealing with certain negative aspects Acharya Kripalani lays down curious ethics to end what he presumably understands the communal conflict. He rules out social boycotts for the simple reason that it would separate the communities. But how does his economic boycott help him to achieve his desired end? Keeping out a certain community from enjoying the economic benefits of the society at large is good as segregating them as unreachables. Those who are fighting untouchability as a social menace are certainly averse to the contemplated mode of segregating a group in order to teach them communal harmony.

MYSORE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT SEVERELY CRITICISEDRepresentations in the Assembly
SUNDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

(FROM OUR STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

MYSORE, June 15

The House assembled this morning at 8 O'clock to consider representations from the Dewan-President in the chair.

There was a good deal of discussion on the subject of removal of restrictions on Patels and Shanbhogues from being members of political parties. It was prayed that in view of the fact that they are accorded the right of contesting the elections to the Representative Assembly and the local bodies, the restriction may be removed.

In this connection, Mr. K. Chagalaraya Reddy referred to the fact that in the last elections Patels and Shanbhogues, openly worked for Rashtriya Paksha and Officers encouraged them to do so, but when they showed any inclination to Congress, they were heavily punished and penalized.

He pleaded for removal of all restrictions and enable them to play their part as free citizens of the State.

Rajamantra-pravina K. V. Anantharaman, Revenue Minister, said that Patels and Shanbhogues were public servants and they have to conform to the rules governing them and restrictions could not be removed.

There was a good deal of discussion on the subject of relaxing the rules regarding promotions in High and Middle Schools. It was pointed out that the present rules worked as a great hardship to students.

Education Minister said that the rules were meant for the good of students and it was not wise to relax them.

Mr. C. Subbanna Naik prayed for arrangements for destruction of wild beasts in the Malnad. He suggested that shikars should be organized.

The negative precaution which Acharya is so loud to proclaim is negated by his own groundless argument. While explaining his objects Acharya sounds a caution but we are constrained to observe that what he intends is battered by his own reasoning when he admits that some neutrals and innocents may inevitably suffer. There is no use pursuing a policy that is opposed to principles of equity. We are sorry we do not quite approve the novelty of Acharya's arguments.

All said and done the communal problem is a thorn in our body-politic. Several palliatives have been put forth but none of them has emerged out with success. It is up to the leaders to take courage in both hands and solve the problem with the assistance and authority of the other community which alone would pave the way for sweeter understanding Acharya's suggestion is academically brilliant but in practice a nullity.

Government promised to look into the matter.

Mr. K. Subbiah setty (Congress) prayed that the economic condition of the people of the State may be improved by Government bestowing greater attention to the development of village industries and other subsidiary occupations, by providing raw materials required for such industries at cheap rates and by making arrangements for the finished products being taken over by marketing officers on payment of proper prices and profits.

The Director of Industries gave an account of the activities of Government in the direction of promotion of cottage industries.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya (Congress) pleaded for a definite plan.

Mr. S.N.M. Razvi appealed to the Government to aid nonofficial efforts made in the direction of promotion of cottage industries.

Mr. K. Chagalaraya Reddy said that our agriculturists had not enough employment and cottage industries would supplement their income. Cottage industries should be fostered much more. He appealed to Officers of the State to use Khadi in greater quantities and encourage Khadi industry.

Dewan:-We want to make as big an effort as possible.

K.C. Reddy:-We are prepared to offer as much co-operation as possible in that direction.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaia suggested that members of different parties of this House be co-opted to Cottage Industries Committee.

Dewan President:- There are no party differences at all on this question.

The House rose for the day.

FOURTHDAY'S PROCEEDINGS
Interpellations

When the Assembly resumed its business on Friday, interpellations were first taken up.

In reply to a question put by Mr. Abdul Rahim Sheriff, Mr. J. Appaji Gowda, Secretary to Government, General Department stated that there were 44 Urdu Middle Schools existing at present in the State and there were 24 graduate headmasters in such schools and there were 24 vacancies existing in the grade of assistant masters in such schools. It was also replied that some of the vacancies had been temporarily filled up and action was taken to fill the vacancies permanently as per rules.

It was pointed out by members of Muslim League that Muslim graduates were not attracted to the posts, because the pay was not attractive and so with a view to attract them, pay should be enhanced.

Mr. J. Mahamed Imam, Minister for Education, promised the house to look into the matter.

Public Service Commissioner

In the course of a reply to an interpellation the Government stated that the Public Service Commissioner had submitted his report to Government and they did not consider it expedient to ascertain the views of this House at the present stage. It was also stated that the report would not be published for eliciting the views of the public thereon and that no final decision had been reached on the report.

At this stage, Mr. K. Chagalaraya Reddy, Leader, Congress Party, suggested that Ministers in charge of the Departments should themselves answer the interpellation because that was the practice followed in Br. Indian Assemblies.

Mr. Abdul Rasool asked how many departments of Government there were in the State. He also asked how many officials in each of the departments were drawing salaries between Rs. 15 and Rs. 50 (taluqdar and districtwar) how many drawing between Rs. 50 and Rs. 100, between Rs. 100 and Rs. 250, between Rs. 250 and 500, and of the above total number how many were Brahmins, how many non-Brahmins, and how many Mahamadans.

The written reply was that there were 27 departments but as to the remaining portions of the question, it was stated that the collection of this information would require a lot of time and trouble which was out of all proportion to its value and usefulness.

This reply evoked strong criticism of the House. Mr. K. Chagalaraya Reddy objected to the manner in which the above reply was given. The question had been allowed and there was no point in saying that the information asked for was valueless and useless. It infringed the right of the members of the House. He appealed to the chair to protect the rights of the House and its members.

Dewan President:- I cannot allow any comment. It is out of order.

Mr. K. C. Reddy:- It relates to the right of the members of this House.

Dewan President:- I rule you out of order.

In connection with another question relating to defalcations that have taken place in Government departments during the last fifteen years, the Government replied that the information was not readily available.

Mr. K. C. Reddy objected to this reply also and said that there was no point in saying that the information was not available, the Government should satisfy the member and supply the information asked for.

The Dewan-President stated that the collection of information involved time and money and whatever was readily available, the Government would supply. He also brought to the attention of the House, that in the Central Assembly, it was once pointed out that reply to each interpellation sometimes cost Rs. 2000.

Mr. K. C. Reddy:- That expenditure was useful.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya:- It involves the right of a member of this House.

Dewan-President:- You should not comment.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya:- I am bringing a standing order to the notice of the chair.

Dewan-President:- I do not comment on the chair. You are out of order. The General discussion of the budget was then taken up.

OFFICIAL INTERFERENCE IN RECENT ELECTIONS CONDEMNED
General Discussion on Budget

After interpellations on the over, general discussion of the budget was taken up. The Dewan-President a fixed limit to speeches, and fifteen minutes to each speaker.

Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao who opened the general discussion on the budget referred to the condition of the agricultural which required to be immediately investigated. Quoting the latest administration report, Rama Rao stated that seven lakhs of ryots owned less than five acres and they contributed the bulk of land revenue. On an average, considering each ryot, had to maintain a family of five people, nearly lakhs of people lived in a miserable condition. The speaker wondered how they lived. The standard of their life was very low and it was the burden of the State to improve the condition. He suggested a representative Committee to be appointed to enquire into the condition of the ryots.

Referring to Sericulture, Mr. Rama Rao brought to the attention of Government, the need of publishing a popular Kannada book on Sericulture, explaining all the details of that industry. He requested Government to grant Rs. 1000 for the purpose.

He also referred to the need of drinking water wells in the villages of the State.

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar (Congress) reviewed in detail the budget figures and suggested drastic reduction in salaries of Ministers and High Officers of the State.

Referring to local boards, Mr. Iyengar, requested Government to abolish the system of nomination in appointing members of them.

He appealed to Government to abolish the Middle School Public Examination and improve the pay and prospects of school masters in the Primary and Middle School stage.

Referring to Wardha scheme of education, Mr. Iyengar, requested Government to implement it in a few places.

A Muslim member pleaded eloquently for a larger number of scholarships in the Engineering College for Muslim students.

Mrs. Madhava Rao who was the first lady member to speak on the budget referred to the problems of Education of girls and requested Government to pay greater attention to it.

Referring to research scheme in our State, she suggested that instead of students pursuing their own subjects, they should be given definite subjects for research upon.

In a humorous way Mr. Madhava Rao, pleaded for representation of women in the Ministry.

Mr. Shankerlinga Gowda compared the budget figures of Mysore to those of some British Indian Provinces and said that the incidence of general taxation in Mysore was much lighter than in British India. He had also of praise for the industrial policy of the State. He warned Government against the mounting figures under Pensions. Mr. Shampur Pannappa referred to the pitiable condition of the weavers and appealed to Government to come to their rescue.

When a Muslim member began speaking in Urdu, Mr. Chandra Sekharaiya took a point of order that according to the standing orders of this House, Members should speak only in Kannada.

The President permitted the speaker to speak in Urdu.

Mr. Narayana Setty

Mr. Narayana Setty (Congress) speaking on the budget, referred to the new constitutional reforms which according to him were unsatisfactory. In respect of Rs. 1 crore and 16 lakhs under the heads, Army etc., members could not offer their comments at all. That was outside the purview of this House. He also pleaded for reduction in the salaries of officers.

An Adikarnataka member appealed to Government to grant concession to Adikarnataka students in the matter of sports and library fee.

The House adjourned for lunch.

When the House re-assembled after lunch, another Adi Karnataka member brought to the notice of the House, that in spite of the fact that there were 14 Adikarnataka graduates present, there was not even a single Deputy Commissioner in the Community.

Education Department Criticised

Mr. Subbaiya (Seringapatam) made a scathing criticism of the working of the Education Department. He brought to the notice of the House that in the last Middle School Public Examination, two students were declared at first as having failed and when the parents insisted on re-totalling of marks, it was found out that instead of 70 marks, in the register it had been entered as 17. These students were declared subsequently to have passed in first class. But later on it was found that they could not secure seats in the IVth term. This was a tragic state of affairs which ought to be remedied. He also explained the difficulties of the optional system in high schools.

The D. P. I. admitted that in the last Middle School Public Examination, two students had, due to a mistake, been declared to have failed.

Mr. Subbaiya appealed to Government to improve the condition in Seringapatam.

Mr. B. S. Chandrasekhara Rao (Congress) referred to the miserable condition of labourers and appealed to Government to take measures to improve their lot. He referred to the latest appointment of Labour Enquiry Committee, but regretted that no member of the Labour Union at Bangalore or K. G. F. had been appointed to the committee. He also was of the opinion that the scope of the enquiry was very limited.

Mr. V. Venkatappa

Mr. V. Venkatappa (Congress) pleaded for economic survey of the State and enquiry into the condition of ryots.

The speaker made a scathing attack on the attitude of Revenue Officers to ryots. In several parts of the State, the ryots had been terrorised and no replies were given to petitions.

Mr. Venkatappa referred to the treatment meted to Shanubhogs and Patels. He said it was heart-rending. They were very much ill-treated. A Patel was whipped in public.

[At this point there was commotion in the House.]

A member: Yes Sir, in Krishnarajpet Taluq such a thing happened.

Mr. Venkatappa continuing said, Government Officers should not tyrannise over the ryots, they should impartially work for the welfare of the ryots.

The speaker referred to the recent elections and said that in spite of the Government circular that Government officers should not take sides in elections, they had openly sided a particular party and worked against another party. What was the value of that circular? Why should Government Officers take sides? What did it matter to them, whether Congress came out successful or Rashtriya Sabha? Why should Government servants interfere in elections?

Dewan-President: There is no difference of opinion on that point.

Mr. V. Venkatappa asked Government if it was not a fact that many telegrams had been sent to Government complaining against such interference.

Lokasevanirata Bale Siddlinga Setty: No injustice has been done.

Mr. V. Venkatappa deplored how this interference had degenerated Government servants.

When there was some interruption, Mr. K. C. Reddy intervened and stated that they were only stating facts.

In concluding, Mr. V. Venkatappa referred to education and hoped that Mr. Imam, the new Education Minister, would have a plan before him and see that at least 10 per cent more of the population would be literate before he lays down his Office.

Appoint Mysorean as D. P. I.

Mr. A. Srikanthappa urged on the need of Government appointing a Mysorean as D. P. I. He said that the present D. P. I. was an outsider, not even an Indian; he did not know the Indian ways of life. He had no sympathy for the aspirations of the people. He ruled the department by terror and not by love. During his time, Middle School Public Examination had been made more difficult than the M. C. S.

He also narrated the difficulties of students in respect of accommodation in various classes.

Mr. Subbaiya Setty (Congress) pleaded that Government should give greater encouragement to Unani and Ayurvedic systems of medicine.

At this stage, the House closed its business for the day.

THIRD DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

Mysore, June 13.

The Assembly resumed its business today with the Dewan President presiding.

Interpellations were taken up until 1 p.m.

A number of supplementary questions were asked in respect of an interpellation tabled by Mr. S. C. Malliah, with reference to sugar-cane cultivation under Irwin canal area.

The Government replied that it had not come to their notice that in accordance with the block system of irrigation in the Irwin canal area, cane growers are not free to raise sugar cane once in three years and supply the entire crop to the sugar company. All the supplementary questions put in connection with this, revolved upon the point of Government permitting the landowners to raise paddy instead of sugar cane. It was brought to the notice of Government that in most cases, sugar cane grown, was not allowed to be harvested in time due to the fact that the sugar factory was not purchasing all the sugarcane. This worked as a great hardship to the ryots and thus the request was made that they may be allowed to grow paddy instead. On behalf of the Government the reply was given that there was not water sufficient to grow paddy. It was suggested that they may grow some other crop.

Anyhow, the Government promised consideration of the matter.

In another question, the subject of primary grant-in-aid schools came up. The house was informed that there are 1443 primary grant in aid schools in the State and that the pay of the teachers is disbursed in the Taluk Treasury not later than the 2nd Saturday in the month, if the school is within 10 miles from the Treasury. If it is beyond 10 miles the pay is sent by M. O. The annual expenditure under salaries to these teachers is Rs. 1,45,080. It was given out that the increase in expenditure, if all the schools are converted into pucca primary schools and each teacher granted a salary of Rs. 20 per month, would be Rs. 2,05,560 per annum. The Government stated, due to financial reasons they were not able to provide pucca primary schools to all villages.

A number of interesting supplementary questions were put in this connection. The Dewan President suggested that the members might raise a general debate on this question and offer their suggestions.

Some members pointed out that it worked as a hardship for teachers to walk 10 miles to get their pay. The General Secretary, humorously replied that walking would do the teachers good and it was a healthy exercise.

It was also pointed out in this connection that in the case of women teachers, if the distance of the Treasury was over five miles, the amount was sent by M. O.

Today being Friday, the Muslim members of the house adjourned for a few minutes to do namaz at about 12-45 and returned after about half an hour.

The house was today divided into blocks, the Congress party occupying the right-most position opposite to the dais. The Muslim League occupied the central block, the Independents and non-descripts occupying the left most wing of the house. It is noteworthy that the Rashtriya Maha Sabha party did not claim a separate block.

After the interpellations were over, representations were taken up. The representation in connection with removal of fines, disqualifications etc., took nearly two hours when the house adjourned for lunch, at 3 p.m. hardly two representations had been gone through.

NO DIRECT ACTION BY MAHASABHA

RESOLUTIONS BY ALL INDIA COMMITTEE

'Jail Seeking Foolish Congress Fiasco'

(Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, June 14

The All-India Committee of the Hindu Maha Sabha met this evening at Asutosh College Hall for its two-day session under the presidency of Mr. V. D. Savarkar, about 200 members from the different Provinces attending the session. Altogether five resolutions relating to the question of giving effect to the Madura Resolution on "direct action," the recent cyclonic storms in Barisal, Noakhali, Assam and Malabar, communal harmony, census operations in Bengal and the action of the Government in the application of the Defence of India Rules came up before the Committee today.

Of these, the last four resolutions were adopted while consideration of the Madura Resolution was postponed till tomorrow.

The resolution on census operation in Bengal condemned the action of the Bengal Government in interfering with the census work in the Province and urged the Government of India to intervene and prevent any "manipulation of them" so as to inspire confidence in the Hindus of the Province.

The resolution on direct action recommended the postponement of the question of launching any direct action on an all-India issue and scale for the present in view of the fact that "war is rapidly approaching our Motherland on both the frontiers and in view of the widespread and organised aggression on Hindus."

Urging postponement of the question of launching any direct action movement for the present Dr. B. S. Moonje pointed out how the interests of the Hindus would be jeopardised if the Hindu leaders and workers now courted arrests and kept themselves confined in jails. He emphasised that Hindu interests could better be served by organising themselves than by following jail-seeking programme.

The Committee adjourned till tomorrow morning when it will resume discussion on the resolution regarding direct action.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Savarkar explained what the attitude of the Mahasabha should be with regard to direct action resolution of the Madura session in the light of the present international and internal developments. He added they were going to postpone giving effect to the Madura resolution. Developments in politics after the adoption of the Resolution of Direct Action required them to adjust themselves to the changing circumstances. In view of the war approaching on both the frontiers and also in view of the international developments and disturbances in the country, internal peace and order was being threatened. "It is therefore," he emphasised, "in the best interests of Hindus that we should postpone any foolish jail-seeking programme, taking lesson from the Congress fiasco of their jail seeking programme."

The Assembly was adjourned today after lunch, for elections to various Standing Committees and Senate.

Mr. Indra Prakash regretted complacency of some of their fellow members with regard to replies by the Viceroy to their demands.

Dr. Shamaprasad Mookerjee

Replies to Criticisms

Dr. Shamaprasad Mookerjee refuting opposition arguments said since the passing of the Madura resolution, particularly in last three months, they had witnessed the outbreak of several communal risings, some of whom had the unusual character of indicating a well-organised campaign of oppression on Hindus and an attempt at terrorising them to accept Pakistan. It would not be understood that an all-India struggle should be postponed because of possible communal disturbances, but these two were separate issues at present and their attention should be concentrated in consolidating the Hindus in order to ensure security of their hearths and homes.

WEDNESDAY—JUNE 11, 1941

BAFFLING AND INTRIGUING

The Mysore Government have evolved a pet theory of their own by calling the Patels and Shanbogues of the State "quasi-government servants." We fail to see how two separate groups enjoying separate privileges have to submit to the discipline of the Government servants' conduct rules. If Patels and Shanbogues are brought under the category of Government employees then the field of fighting the elections are certainly not open to them in as much as such participation of funds in the election code, which any Government in the world has to wed itself for proper and efficient discharge of State functions. The anomalous nature of these rules have been subjected to close scrutiny times without number on the floor of the State's legislature but the authoritative spokesmen who has given the Government's version has no convincing answer to offer beyond the cryptic remark that Patels and Shanbogues are Government employees. This confusion has necessitated the issue being brought again and again for clarification.

A new answer has been given as to why the privilege of contesting elections has been conferred on these Village Officers. The Minister in charge of the portfolio has come out with rather a curious statement that the paucity of competent candidates has made the Government to confer that privilege on their own officers. We are astonished at this admission of Mysore's misfortune. After sixty years of political education to the people at large if competent men are not forthcoming the fault—if at all it is there—lay on the powers that be than on those who are thirsting for political power. The Minister has unguardedly trodden on dangerous ground when he asserts this statement. It is a serious charge to level on a progressive people who could stand a match to any civilized nation on earth. We have certainly competent men in the villages to stand as candidates for any elections. Are there no men more educated and more competent than these village officers? Then why this allegation on the State's intelligence? We do hope the Minister will realize that his statement is—simply false and quite unconvincing.

Patels and Shanbogues have been allowed to contest elections but they are found to incline towards a particular political party through the influence of the Government. Hundreds of Patels and Shanbogues have Visvesvaraya on his Eighty-first Birthday, the wish which I know will go forth from every corner of India. May he live long and well to continue his work and to enjoy the full benefits of the promising seeds he has sown in the various walks of India's Economic and Industrial Life." The book is written with Professor Srikantha Sastri's expert guidance and dedicated to the renowned industrialist Mr. B. M. Srinivasiah.

It is understood that Mr. Belur Sreenivasa Iyengar will stand as a candidate for the election of the Vice-Presidency of the Mysore Legislative Council.

been penalized for there legitimate action. When democracy is the key note of our beloved Ruler how could a Government deriving its command from the Sovereign mulct a class of people merely because they felt drawn towards the principles of democracy? It is surprising that our Government should show cold shoulder to a particular group for no fault of theirs. When the authorities apportion a classification to these people the privilege of contesting in open elections has necessarily to vanish. Instances are not wanting how non-officials who are appointed as Public Prosecutors or Government Pleaders are forced to vacate their seats in the legislatures. If the same procedure is adopted elsewhere the Government have no other way than to ask the Patels not to stand for elections. We hope the Government will rectify this anomalous position which is indeed baffling and intriguing. If the Government feel that these village officers are servants of the State, the privilege of contesting the elections automatically lapses. The sooner this privilege is removed the better for the State.

GANDHIJI'S NEW TECHNIQUE

SATYAGRAHA TO BE REDUCED TO QUALITY

"Fiercer Phase of the Struggle" (Associated Press of India)

Poona, June 16

In the course of a conversation between Gandhiji and Mr.

Gosavi, President of the Maharashtra Provincial Congress Committee, Gandhiji revealed that he proposes to introduce a change in the technique about passing lists of satyagrahis. Gandhiji says: "From the date whereon a list of prospective Satyagrahis is forwarded to me for sanction by the Provincial Congress Committee the Satyagrahi concerned has to stop his private practices and devote himself wholly to working out one or more items of the thirteenfold constructive programme. Every prospective Satyagrahi is expected to keep a log book or a diary wherein he is daily to enter the work done during the course of day and logbook shall be submitted to me through the Provincial Congress Committee concerned.

After going through the diaries I shall grant permission for Satyagraha to deserving persons. Others have to follow the course till they get permission. Satyagrahi may not expect any financial help from the Congress. Gandhiji says that he knows on this basis that the number of Satyagrahis will be reduced to a very large extent but he is keen on the quality and not quantity.

Answering a question Gandhiji said "It is the duty of the President P. C. C. to ask the released Satyagrahis to repeat Satyagraha till he is jailed again within about a week from the date of their release. He adds the process will go on indefinitely till we achieve our goal. Deep down in me there is a feeling that the struggle has become progressively fiercer and we must pass through all such trials.

Proceeding Gandhiji says "Satyagrahi who is enrolled on original basis but feels himself unable to accept new basis is free to withdraw his name and there is no disgrace attaching any such honest withdrawal. Gandhiji had no objection to starting and developing volunteer organisation but laid down the condition that it should be organised only on basis of non-violence. Answering further questions Gandhiji states that living organism was establishment of full responsible Government.

Mr. Reddy referring to H. H. Maharaja's address to the joint session of Assembly and Council quoted his wise words which expressed his faith in democracy and the qualities of his people. There could be no democracy without development and growth of political parties on sound lines. In all countries where democracy prevailed and flourished political parties had grown and done commendable work.

Dewan:—There should not be bitterness.

Mr. K. C. Reddy agreed that there should be no bitterness, on the other hand, there should be mutual respect and toleration. He hoped that Government would allow political parties to develop on sound lines.

Official Interference and recent Election

Continuing, Mr. Reddy said, "Sir, you said in your opening address that Government and Government Officers should keep out of parties and party politics. This is no doubt very desirable. But on the other hand, I have to mention with regret, that in the last two or three years, some Government Officers and servants, directly and indirectly interfered in elections and openly flouted the Government. circular that Government servants should keep out of them. They threw that circular to the waste paper basket. This was a distressing state of affairs, and the reputation of the State had suffered much on account of this impurity of official life. I am not referring to any individual case or subordinate matter. I am speaking in a very general manner."

In conclusion, Mr. K. C. Reddy appealed to Government to maintain the purity of administration and help public life to develop on healthy lines. He hoped that it would be given to Mysore people to establish full responsible Government in the shortest time possible.

Mr. F. C. Devaraj Urs speaking next impressed on Government the urgent need of building a home for Representative Assembly. He said that it was deplorable that the educational institutions of the City of Mysore, were disturbed during the Assembly session.

Nawab of Honvali requested Government to introduce Intermediate class in Mysore Rail ways, between Bangalore and Mysore.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya, Leader, Rashtriya Maha Sabha, spoke at length on the educational needs of the country and said that education without character was useless and the Department should make necessary arrangements to develop the character of children.

Mr. Mallaiya referred to the remarks made by Mr. K. C. Reddy with regard to elections and agreed with him that they should be conducted in a pure atmosphere in an impartial manner. Purity of elections was an essential need and every voter should be allowed to cast his vote according to his conscience, what applied to Government servants in the matter of elections applied also to political parties. No voter should be influenced or terrorised to vote in a particular manner. Every party must be allowed to do its legitimate propaganda at the time of elections, but on the day of elections, the polling booths should be free from all influences, and the voters should be allowed to exercise their franchise in a fearless manner.

Mr. Mallaiya, continuing, said that people in Mysore were in exorbitant expenditure and ruined themselves. Government should take up this question and see if they could not devise some means to bring home to people the necessity of living within their means.

In conclusion, Mr. Mallaiya referred to the report of Public Service Commissioner and requested Government to publish it and carry out his recommendations as early as possible.

Mrs W. H. Theobald speaking on the budget grants expressed her opinion that the grant allotted for Medical Department was not adequate. She instanced the allotments in respect of constructing residential quarters for nurses and menial staff in hospitals.

Mr. Middleton spoke in Kannada and referred to the hard lot of coffee planters, due to the present economic conditions. He also brought to the notice of Government that fieldmen practised julum on petty planters and left alone rich planters.

After Lunch

Srimati Sakamma congratulated Government on surplus budget and said that in the years to come Government should make it a point to lower the burden on the poor ryot.

The speaker requested Government to devote greater attention to education of girls. There were many poor families which could not educate their girls and Government should come to the rescue of such people. At present, Srimati Sakamma said, scholarships and facilities went to girls of rich and influential parents.

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaia

Mr. Bhoopalam Chandrasekharaia referred at the outset to the Bhadravathi Iron Works and pointed out to the defective way of showing the income and expenditure. The way in which the accounts were shown led to the belief that there was much surplus and Government of India might demand more subsidy. He appealed to Government to take into account the losses sustained by the concerns.

Referring to Education he hoped that Mr. Imam, though hailed by Muslim League Members as their party man, would administer the Education Department to the benefit of all communities in an impartial manner. He did not grudge the concessions and facilities given to Urdu Schools, but he requested Government to look to the interests of other backward communities also.

Concluding Mr. Chandrasekharaia appealed to Government to continue their efforts in the direction of abolition of subsidy and he assured the fullest support of this house. He also criticised the idea of check-mating the progress of responsible Government, until the minority communities fell into line, for they would have to wait in vain, eternally.

Mr. B. R. Pottananjappa (Congress) asked for more details regarding aided industrial concerns and the insurance department. He suggested the transfer of Engineering College from Bangalore to Bidar, where, according to him, there were more facilities. He stressed

All the benefits accruing from the Chamaraja Water Works at Thippagondanahalli should be given to the Bangalore Municipality. He also pleaded for establishment of responsible Government in the State.

Mr. Veerakesari Sastry

Mr. Veerakesari Sitarama Sastry speaking of Parties and Party system said that the State was higher than party and if need be, one should give it up for the sake of the higher interest. He said responsible Government was a desired ideal and to attain it people should be prepared to bear further taxation. Without further taxation, no improvement could be achieved.

FORT CAPUZZO REOCCUPIED

TRIANGULAR FIGHT IN EGYPTIAN FRONTIER

Indians and British Troops busy

According to unconfirmed reports Imperial troops have re-occupied Fort Capuzzo. Fighting is taking place between the triangle of Hailaya pass, Sollum and the Canal. Imperial troops consist of British and Indian. It is pointed out in Military circles that this advance does not mean a general large-scale operation but only a continuation of ding-dong struggle which been going on ever since our withdrawal from Benghazi. This has brought our troops to the west side of Hailaya Pass.

BRITISH PRESS ON CRETE DEBATE

No Hunt For Scapegoats

(By Cable) London. The Times yesterday led the Crete debate on June 11. The country can face reverses and does not need to hunt for scapegoats. There is no wish to call Ministers to account for each incident of the war in isolation. Indeed there was warm applause yesterday for Mr. Churchill's claim to choose rare occasions expounding and for explaining. Nevertheless yesterday's debate did not originate an optimistic light-minded carrying. It arose out of a very real and deep feeling that the coming passage of war could be managed and that in some directions the powers conferred on Government are not being fully used and from a desire to assure them that the nation is ready for any action that may be required. It should never be forgotten that in spite of setbacks, our position has immeasurably improved since this time a year ago, and that must be spared to spend the pace of progress.

The Daily Herald writes in an editorial on June 11. Mr. Churchill, with all respect, has not comprehended the spirit in which the Government acted for a debate on the conduct of the Crete campaign.

The manner in which the debate was conducted, he said, has done more to strengthen the confidence of the Government than any other action.

The Government should be encouraged to continue its policy of firmness and to resist any suggestion of compromise.

AMERICAN VIEW OF ALLIED MOVE IN SYRIA

What Mr. Cordell Hull told Vichy Ambassador

(By Cable) London. The Daily Telegraph Washington Correspondent cabled on June 17.

The Vichy Ambassador in Washington, M. Henri Haye, today protested to Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, against the Allied move in Syria and expressed the "indignation of the French people."

The protest lasted more than an hour, and judging by the Ambassador's manner when he left, he found Mr. Hull in no mood to listen to his version of the events.

Mr. M. Haye declared to Mr. Hull that he had received a message from the French Government that there was a small German soldier in Syria, and that to the contrary, were British. It was contrary to the tradition of the French people to permit the independence of Syria and Lebanon.

It was evident that Mr. Hull did not agree with Mr. Haye's statement. Mr. Hull, it is understood, told Mr. M. Haye that he was surprised at the failure of the French to stop German infiltration into Syria compared with the speed with which they took up arms against the British.

Vichy troops in Syria have now orders to fire at any troops or individuals in uniform or otherwise who go forward to parley with British and Imperial troops. Copies of those orders have fallen into the hands of Allied troops.

Efforts to end the five weeks strike in the shipyards of San Francisco failed.

Mr. Torhan Boray high official in the Turkish Government ministry of commerce accompanied by several experts is proceeding to India shortly to increase trade.

of his Government is being challenged.

He bade the nation— which eagerly responded—to the sacrifice of blood and toil, tears and sweat. And the nation met at every stage that the Government is turning its sacrifices to the utmost account.

The Government should be encouraged to continue its policy of firmness and to resist any suggestion of compromise.

Let us face this frank and courageous country is proud of its sacrifice and its sacrifice.

DEVELOPMENT OF SINGAPORE BASE

To meet needs of Allied fleet

(By Cable) London. The Singapore correspondent of the Times cabled on June 10: Vice-Admiral Sir Geoffrey Leighton, Commander-in-Chief of the China station, broadcasting from Singapore declared that the new base would be ready tomorrow to handle an Allied fleet. This fact had been taken into account in planning works of large dimensions which were at present in progress and materials from the United States were being used.

The war's progress in Europe, he added, had shown that the defence of sea and land bases against air attack was of primary importance and this aspect of the defence on the naval base had not been neglected. Recently men and guns from the United Kingdom had arrived to strengthen the defence of the base and preparations for the arrival of the Fleet Air Arm had been made. This arm would arrive immediately in the event of hostilities spreading to Malaya. Evidence of material assistance from the United States was seen in the fighter aircraft, such as Brewster Buffaloes medium and heavy bombers, that were daily flying in Singapore skies, while a wide variety of other essentials was pouring in from America under the Lease and Lend Act.

Congress & Elections

Regarding Congress attitude towards elections to local bodies Gandhiji stated that as a rule elections of such bodies should not be run in the name of Congress. There may be no objection to Congressmen fighting same on individual responsibility. He answered in the negative when asked whether enrolled Congressmen could fight such elections individually and added that Congressmen already put should either withdraw from the election or from Satyagraha.

WELFARE OF INDIAN STUDENTS IN ENGLAND

Accommodation officer's term Extended

(By Cable) June, 18. Miss C. H. Bose, whose term of appointment as part-time Accommodation Officer, Education Department, India House, expired on March 31, 1941, has been granted an extension of office for three years.

The main functions of the Accommodation Officer are to maintain a list of lodgings suitable for Indian school and college students, to advise students and their guardians about lodgings and to meet new comers at railway stations.

During the academic year 1938-39 and especially after the outbreak of war, the Officer had to find accommodation in safer areas throughout the country for students whose schools or colleges had been evacuated. Since then the number of Indian students has naturally decreased, but there are still about 400 pursuing full-time courses at colleges and universities in England and many of these continue to seek the assistance and guidance of the Accommodation Officer, especially in regard to the difficulties arising out of the evacuation of many of the colleges from London to various parts of the country.

At the same time the High Commissioner was of the opinion that the volume of work during the current academic year would not justify the continuance of the consolidated allowance of £100 per annum drawn by the Accommodation Officer and he recommended that the appointment be continued for a further period of three years with effect from April 1, 1941, on a reduced consolidated allowance of £50 per annum, subject to his reconsideration any time within this period, if he should think it necessary or desirable. The Government of India have accepted this recommendation.

GERMAN CONSULATE IN U.S.A. TO BE CLOSED

GERMAN STAFF TO QUIT WITHIN 10th JULY

U. S. A. Defence Department. Defence department of U.S.A. had asked the closure of German consulates in United States and removal of German staff connected with them by July next. This was announced by Mr. Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State. The closure also requires the closure of German Library of Information, Tourists agencies and German Trans-ocean news agency.

Mr. Sumner Welles stated that this step did not mean a diplomatic relations with Germany, and in no way affected German Diplomatic staff in Washington. It is pointed out that man consular officials and agents have been engaged in activities harmful to the interests of the United States. This was in no way connected with the sinking of Robin Hood German submarine.

BATAVIA TRADE TAXES

Will Japanese Delegation Withdraw (By cable)

The Tokyo correspondent of the Times cabled on June 10:

The withdrawal of the Japanese Trade delegation to Batavia is generally believed to be imminent after a discussion of the Dutch reply which lasted two and a half hours and in which all Foreign Office, Departmental Chiefs, headed by Mr. Matsukata, took part. The withdrawal, which will be subject to the approval of the government, is said to have been decided by the Foreign Office on the ground that the Dutch reply, which is accepted in principle, was unsatisfactory. But it is still disagreement as to whether the delegation has returned. Stock markets lost their optimism to day and reacted sharply.

Some of the newspapers continue to assert that Japan will take appropriate action to what is denied to her, but Yumuri, in agreement with conservative opinion, suggests Japan will bide her time and chance of reopening negotiations "under a better national constellation" which that may mean.

According to dispatches from Batavia the Dutch authorities have cut down the quantity of goods to Japan for July to the average quantity of the last six months, while allotment is to be the same for June.

German Protest to U.S.

OUR TROOPS SHOULD BE PLACED ON INDIAN FRONTIERS

Indian War Funds to be Utilised only for Indian Defence

HINDU MAHASABHA WORKING COMMITTEE RESOLUTIONS

"RAPID APPROACH OF WAR TO INDIAN FRONTIERS"

(Associated Press of India)

Calcutta, June 18

Great concern is expressed of the recent communal riots in Dacca, Ahmedabad, Bombay, Cawnpore, Bihar Shariff, Bhiwani and other parts of the country by the Working Committee of the All India Hindu Maha Sabha in a resolution adopted at its meeting held on 15th June at the Ashutosh Memorial Hall, Dr. Syamprasad Mukerjee presiding.

Anti-Hindu elements should be Suppressed

While recognising the imperative need for stringent measures having been taken by the Government for suppressing the activities of aggressors and rioters, the Committee pointed out that the recent riots disclosed a well-organised campaign of oppression of Hindus by anti-Hindu elements and that this could be effectively resisted only if the Hindus themselves decided to organise their own defence to the best of their ability and resist attacks on their person and property. It accused the Government of Bengal for having failed in its primary duty of maintaining law and order in the Province. The Committee urged the Central as well as the Provincial Governments to make provision for adequate compensation for victims of loot and arson and for the families of persons murdered in the riots.

Referring to the disturbances in Bihar Shariff the Committee pointed that the statements issued by Babu Rajendra Prasad and others holding the Hindus responsible for them were baseless and not warranted by facts.

Defence of India

By another resolution the Committee demanded that in view of the serious international situation and particularly the rapid approach of war to the Indian frontiers, henceforth all the country and all military movements should be concentrated on the frontiers of India and our own defence and all funds now being raised in India for purposes of war should now be solely utilised for Indian defence inside India.

Thailand Congratulated

A resolution offering heartfelt congratulations to the Government of Thailand for the courageous stand in defence of its empire was also adopted by the Committee.

MYSORE'S ALLIANCE WITH BHARATHPUR

Two ancient States have been united with the marriage of Sri Sri Jaya Chamundammanniavaru to His Highness the Maharaja of Bharathpur. This holy wedding is an historic episode in the annals of Indian India and Mysore with the rest of our notherland feels buoyant at this happy alliance. The Maharaja of Bharathpur is young in years having spent only twenty-two summers in his long span of life. Though new to the gad, he has evinced a remarkable draught, a sharp intellect and a statesmanship so rare in the ruling chiefs of India. His ancestors left a heavy tradition that would have long in this world. They fought for the nation's liberty with a valour second to none in the martial history of the world. The present Maharaja carries with him all the lofty qualities of his ancestors. With the new Maharaja to assist him the State and people of Bharathpur may well feel proud that their destinies are safe in the worthy hands of one who has a wise head on young shoulders.

Sri Sri Jayachamundammanniavaru, the youngest sister of His Highness the Maharaja, is an accomplished princess having been bestowed all the care that Royalty demands. She has travelled widely both in Europe and India and being the last daughter of His late Highness the Yavaraja she had all the advantages of her position as a loving princess. Her culture, charm, conversation and deportment have fascinated those who had the privilege of knowing her. Her wedding with a great Ruler has given abundant satisfaction to those who were wishing her a matrimonial alliance worthy of her personage. His Highness has made a choice in keeping with our ancient traditions and his people are proud of this.

As the Maharani of Bharathpur Sri Sri Jaya Chamundammanniavaru has a noble task to perform. She is going to a State which is quite new to her. The language, the customs, usages are all different from Mysore. At a time when democracy and ideas of liberty are infiltrating into the domains of Indian India Sri Sri Jaya Chamundammanniavaru is the consort of a worthy Ruler assumes a new role. She breathes the air of democracy and knows the aims and aspirations of the people at large. We hope the Princess of Mysore as the Maharani of Bharathpur will influence her husband to be progressively democratic in the years to come.

BRITISH MOVE IN SYRIA

EGYPTIAN REACTIONS

(By Cable) Cairo, June 18. At Balagh of the afternoon of June 10 in an editorial headed "New stage in realisation of Syrian independence" writes: "When Mr. Eden in his speech reaffirmed the British Government's respect for Iraq's independence and announced Britain's great sympathy for Syrian independence and was prepared to support the Arab leader's efforts to create Arab unity—then it was clear that Iraq situation was nearing the end and that the Syrian was about to enter a new phase. Both these developments have taken place. We are justified in the confidence that our sister Arab nation Syria will enjoy the pledged independence. Vichy has no right to object since the Mandate automatically ended with the French announcement of withdrawal from the League of Nations. The Allied advance proves that British sympathy is not merely verbal but in deed. Britain's behaviour in Iraq at the end of the dispute there and in Syria now, prove that Britain is still the state with whom Arab natives can share common interests leading to close strong friendship based on loyal co-operation by each side."

Al Mokattam of the afternoon of June 10 editorially commenting on Marshal Petain's appeal states, "It may be true that there are no Germans in uniform in Syria but it is certain that there are hundreds without uniform. Moreover General Dentz has admitted what Petain denied. Petain's claim that history entrusted Syria and Lebanon to France is a ridiculous lie. France denounced the treaty of Syrian independence after signing it. France had better leave the East alone and concentrate on the care of French territory and people whose present state demands much more care than the present Government's efforts ensure. The Allies are determined to restore Syria and Lebanon to their peoples and prevent the Axis making it a military base. The people of the East had difficulty in understanding why Britain waited till now but cleaning up and liberating Abyssinia was an important task now accomplished."

REVISION OF THE SALARY OF SCHOOL TEACHERS

Government Order

(From our Correspondent)

Mysore, June 17. The Government of Mysore have passed an order regarding the revision of the salary of school teachers. The order States that the revision sanctioned by Government in November 1938 in the revision of scales of pay of teachers in High and Middle schools and the inspectorate, could not be given effect to as it was found subsequently that by oversight a good number of appointments had not been taken into account in calculating the extra cost of the revision and the grades as sanctioned were considered not suitable as they overlapped. It was therefore ordered, that pending further examination of the question the old scales of pay might be continued and increments sanctioned in such scales when they fell due.

The Director of Public Instruction has now submitted fresh proposals. Government have sanctioned the subject with certain modifications entailing an extra average cost of Rs. 83,577 per annum. A provision of Rs. 25,000 had been made in the departmental budget of 1941-42 for meeting the actual extra cost of the revision.

The revised grades will come into effect from 1st July.

Indian Troops Brilliant Attack

Oppose Superior Vichy Forces

(Associated Press of India)

SIMLA: June 16. A Press Note states that Indian troops alongside the British and Free French comrades are playing a prominent part in investment of Syria, says a cable received today from an Indian Army observer. The Indian troops effectively participated in the advance on Damascus. They have shown great dash and resourcefulness in capturing important positions on the way and by particularly daring raid prevented the demolition of a vital railway bridge though opposed and cut ter-attacked by superior Vichy forces. On Sunday morning a brilliant attack was executed and resulted in the capture of village Kiawe and an important hill beyond called Telkiaswe. This action helped materially to clear the main road to Damascus. Earlier, particularly gallant action by a Naik who comes from Siyria village, Sholat Teshil, Jodhpur District, led to the capture of an important village, Sheikh Miskin on the road to Damascus. The same bridge near Tellshahab and on the main line between Haifa and Deraa that we wanted to destroy in 1917 was now essential to us for advance in Syria. To prevent demolition a daring night attack was organised and the task was entrusted to a platoon of Indian Regiment which had already distinguished itself in Egypt and Abyssinia. The platoon captured the bridge and held it despite heavy machinegun fire from the village of Tellshahab and from other Vichy posts in the neighbourhood.

GEN. DENTZ TO MAKE

DETERMINED STAND AT BEIRUT? Evacuation of Women and Children ordered

(By Cable) London. The Daily Express Special Correspondent in Cairo cabled on June 10 about the events in Syria: It is three-arm warfare there, with the Army, Navy and the Air Force all taking part.

Warships of Admiral Cunningham's Eastern Mediterranean Fleet sailed up the coast and landed a reinforcing party north of Tyre under the cover of heavy gunfire.

Their object was probably to prevent General Dentz's forces from blowing up bridges.

Other naval units shelled points of resistance between Tyre and Beirut and cleared the way for the Allied army.

Enemy planes-believed to be German—came over to attack our ships. R. A. F. patrolling planes took them on and sent five hurtling down into the sea.

As the Allied forces with both the R.A.F. and the Australian Air Force machines guarding them, drove northwards to Beirut, Gen. Dentz ordered French women and children to evacuate the city.

In a stream of cars, buses and mule carts loaded with personal belongings they made for the hills outside Beirut.

This order may mean that Gen. Dentz is prepared to make a determined stand there with his French Forces.

He is known to have been reinforced with planes sent from France and North Africa by General Weygand.

German planes extending their activities for the first time to Palestine made a long night raid on the port of Haifa at the end of the Iraq oil pipeline. They had taken off from Aleppo in north Syria.

Mysore Assembly

TUESDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

RESOLUTIONS ON BUDGET

(From our Staff Correspondent)

MYSORE, June 17.—The Assembly resumed its work today, members present being 10. The Dewan-President of the members had a long session of offering their views on the budget. It was also stated that water is supplied not only to the City Municipality but also to the C. and M. Station, industrial concerns and military areas outside the City Municipal limits and the terms of the agreement with the Government of India in regard to the water supply have to be satisfactorily fulfilled. There are also several questions pertaining to water supply still to be settled with the Government of India and the scheme itself is not yet complete. It requires further expansion involving a large capital outlay, in view of the present and future increase in the demand for water supply. The Government regretted, therefore, that the Water works could not be transferred to the City Municipality.

In reply to an interpellation by Mr. Bheema Naik, Government informed the House that 3.02 percent of the population of the depressed classes is literate according to the provisional figures of the present census. Mr. K. C. Reddy wanted to know if out of the special grant of Rs. 3 lakhs, any amount had been allotted specially to depressed classes. The Government said that they would look into the matter. There was an interesting commentary on the word 'literate' as to what exactly it meant. Government stated that those who know how to read and write were considered as literate.

General Discussion on Budget
Dewan-President suggested that general discussion on budget might continue up to 1 p.m.

Mr. N. Nanjappa

Mr. Nadiga Nanjappa offering his general remarks on the budget prayed for increased grants to Minor Municipalities. Referring to grant under drinking water wells, the speaker requested Government to administer the funds with proper scrutiny.

Mr. Devaiah (Seringapatam) criticised the land acquisition policy pursued by Government and said that compensation amounts were paid regularly to ryots.

He also criticised the tour methods of the D. P. I. who visited only motor road side villages. He instanced the case of a petty teacher who was transferred to a far off place as he had not taken face-shave.

Mr. Rasool (Muslim League), complimented Government on surplus budget and prayed for increased grants to Primary Education. He also requested Government to pay greater attention for uplift of villages.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi also made a similar request to the President.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya suggested that opportunities might be given to members to make representations relating to the budget.

Dewan promised to consider the requests made in the connection for the next session. Resolutions on the budget were then taken up. Fifty-three resolutions have been tabled.

Recruitment to Army
Mr. Subbanna Naik referring to recruitment to Army in Mysore, prayed for larger recruitment from the Hindu Community.

Mr. V. Venkatasami Chetty suggested that inspection system ought to improve in the matter of Primary Schools. He also prayed for supply of breeding bulls to all Veterinary Hospitals.

After a few more speeches were over, Mr. K. C. Reddy requested the president to note the fact that the time allotted for general discussion on the budget was not adequate and more time should be allotted for the purpose.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi also made a similar request to the President. Mr. S. C. Mallaiya suggested that opportunities might be given to members to make representations relating to the budget.

Dewan promised to consider the requests made in the connection for the next session. Resolutions on the budget were then taken up. Fifty-three resolutions have been tabled.

Resolutions on the Budget

Messrs G. S. Subba Rao and G. Ramiah moved:—This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that a further sum of Rs. 5 lakhs be allotted for the Rural Electrification Scheme.

The mover said that more than light the need was for irrigation pumps and small industries.

Mr. G. S. Subba Rao seconding the resolution said that electrification of villages meant civilizing them.

Mr. Srinivasamurthy of Chikballapur opposing the motion said that the amount could be better utilised for providing drinking water wells in villages.

Mr. M. N. Jois discussed the general policy of rural electrification and said that with a view to enriching villages Government should adopt a progressive policy in this direction and reduce the power and light charges.

Rajasevrasakta Mr. A. V. Ramanathan, Industries Minister placing the point of view of Government said that there could be no difference of opinion in the matter of rural electrification, but they could not achieve the purpose immediately. He assured the House that as finances permitted, the scheme would progress.

In view of this assurance, the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Bellam Srinivasa Rao moved:—This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that the provision of Rs. 2,07,800 in the vision of Rs. 1941-42 under grants for Public Improvements 5 Rural reconstruction being inadequate, be increased to at least Rs. 5 lakhs, if necessary, by reducing the grants included for Bangalore and Mysore City improvements.

Mr. Mahava Rao, seconding the resolution offered some useful suggestions as to how the amount should be disbursed.

Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekhariya explained that the grants for Bangalore and Mysore might be reduced only if necessary.

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar (Congress) supporting the resolution said India was a land of villages and great attention should be paid to rural uplift.

After Lunch

When the House reassembled after lunch, discussion on the above resolution was proceeded with.

Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda, Local Self Government Minister, explaining the point of view of Government stated that there could be no difference of opinion on the need for making further grant for Rural reconstruction, but he desired that Village Panchayats should take greater initiative in the matter.

The Minister assured the House that the Government would on their behalf extend all facilities to Village Panchayats. It was not possible, at present, he said, to make any increase in the grant.

He objected to the idea of reducing the grants for Bangalore and Mysore, for, the welfare of these two cities, must be the concern of every citizen of the State. He hoped that with the assurance given by him, the member would withdraw the motion.

The resolution was accordingly withdrawn.

Aid to Minor Municipalities

Mr. S. Ramappa moved:—This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that an additional sum of Rs. 2 lakhs be provided in the Budget for 1941-42 for improvement of Towns and Minor Municipalities.

Mr. H. B. Gundappa Gowda, Minister, Local Self Government, assured the House that as circumstances arose further grants would be made.

On this assurance, the mover withdrew the motion.

Mr. K. C. Reddy raised a point of order to ascertain if a member could withdraw his motion without the permission of the House when once it had been moved.

President said that though technically that was the procedure on the present occasion, he permitted the mover to withdraw his motion.

Basic Education

Mr. Bhupalam R. Puttananjappa (Congress) moved:—This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that with a view to establishing a school of basic education in each district, as an experimental measure, a sum of

Rs. 50,000 be provided in the Budget for 1941-42.

The mover said that the most efficient way of imparting instruction was by inculcating the principle of 'learning by doing'.

Mr. S. Kariappa (Kankanhalli) seconding the resolution expatiated on the benefits of the basic system of education.

Mr. Sankarlinga Gowda opposed the motion and said that as many as 5,000 Wardha type of schools were abolished.

Congress members: It is only after Congress Ministry resigned.

LITERATURE STILL HOLDS PRIDE OF PLACE

HISTORY, A POOR SECOND

Annual Report of Imperial Library

June 19
The Annual Report of the Imperial Library (Calcutta) for 1939-40 reveals that Literature continues to occupy the foremost position with readers—a position which has been further strengthened this year by an increase of 50 per cent over that of last year. Its use is five times that of the next subject, namely History, despite the fact that the library keeps a negligible proportion of fiction and light works. Like Literature, History and Law have maintained their second and third positions for several years, except in 1937-38 when this order was reversed.

History includes Politics and Constitutional History, and the public's unflagging interest in the subject is understandable, while the reason for Law being so strongly fancied is that the library attracts a large number of lawyers. Geography and Travels, which Engineering had superseded last year, have regained their fourth place, their use, in fact, has doubled during the last three years and has trebled since 1935-36. Geology, too, has shown a similar gain of two places and now occupies the fifth position at the expense of periodicals.

This is rather surprising, in view of the greater dependence on periodicals under modern conditions which the reference work has indicated in other libraries.

Keen Interest in Biography

Mathematics has shown a steady increase, for it has risen from twelfth position in 1936-37 and 1937-38, to ninth in 1938-39, and sixth this year. The order of the next four subjects in Biography, Administration, Education and Medicine. The public has, of late years, shown a keen interest in Biography and the appearance of this subject among the first ten for the second year in succession (this time registering a further increase of 50 per cent) is noteworthy.

The most striking growth, however, has been in respect of official and non-official publications. From the obscure position which these occupied hitherto, their use has increased to two and a half times that of last year, and to four times that of 1937-38, thus earning for them a place among the first ten subjects. This is probably due to the growing realization by students of Sociology and Useful Arts of the value and wide scope of these documents as a source of information.

Education

Education, which occupies ninth place this year, is gradually receding into the background, although the reference work in this as in other subjects has heavily increased, the figures for the three years 1937-38 to 1939-40 being 1,031, 1,209 and 1,681 volumes, respectively. Medicine and Fine Arts have maintained their upward thrust and are now below Education only by a few volumes. The other scientific and technical subjects which have shown consistent progress are Chemistry, Engineering, Botany and Biology. This fact, coupled with the one that Geology, Mathematics and Medicine have scored places among the first ten subjects, reflects the determination of the public to study these subjects more and more, although the library pays lesser attention to them so far as the purchase of books is concerned.

Among the subjects least favoured by the public are Physics; Sports, Social Reform and Zoology. The position of certain other subjects from the bottom, such as Numismatics, Philology, Ethnology and Philosophy, is more or less unchanged but each one has secured approximately its share of the total increase in the use of books. Notable changes have occurred, however, in the case of Economics, Science (General) and Religion, each of which has to its credit between 1,200 to 1,500 volumes, as compared with 600 to 900 volumes last year.

More Serious Use of Library

Apart from the publications stocked in the Reading Rooms, for reference, requisitions for about 60,000 books were made by readers. There is an increase of 42 per cent in the number of requisitions for books over that in 1938-39 and of 52 per cent over that of 1937-38. This is the highest increase registered in any one year, and, taken together with the increased figures of attendance, points to a more serious use of the library during the year under review. In fact, on certain days, an unusual rush of readers was experienced, and it became difficult to provide seats for all who came. The overcrowding was particularly noticeable in the number of the Reading Rooms. The number of visitors during the year 1937-38 was 71,324 during the year 1938-39 the figure is less than that of the year's by 1,092. This is due to the stock taking of the which lasted for 17 days. The Reading Rooms had entirely closed. The average of readers was against 206 in 1938-39 and in 1937-38.

Loaned to Public

The number of workers who took advantage of the facilities of the Reading Room was 30,427 last year. These came from places as Delhi, Bombay, Hyderabad (Deccan), Lucknow, Patna, but the majority local residents.

In all, 10,325 volumes loaned against 11,109 in previous year, showing a decrease of 784. Out of 832 were loaned for official use and 9,493 to the public. Corresponding figures for last year were 782 and 10,327 decrease in the number of volumes loaned to the public was due to the fact that the library was closed for fortnight for stock-taking purposes. Of the books loaned against 93 last year, excluding Calcutta, but only one book out of every three was loaned against two in previous year, while other provinces combined only three out of every hundred.

English: Largest Addition

The total number of additions of all kinds added to the Library during the year 1939-40 was 9,863 as compared with 10,070 during the previous year. A linguistic analysis of the additions, excluding official publications, shows that the addition, namely, English, made in English, Persian, next with 269 and French with 124. Amongst the languages, there were 112 in Hindi, 71 in Persian, 2 in Urdu, 33 in French, 28 in Gujarati, 18 in Danish, 751 in other languages. The shelf-listed during the year 1939-40 was 224 cards were added to the total of 80,671 volumes shelf-listed to the library. The total number of volumes and 80,671 cards.

(A. P. Simla, June 18)
Great improvement has been noted in the standard of candidates offering for emergency commission for officers in the rapidly extending Indian Army. It is stated boys of right type are coming forward. The minimum age of admission for these candidates has been reduced and those between the ages of 20 and 30 instead of twentyone and thirty is at present will be accepted. It is regarded as quite possible that further reduction may be made. Practically every Province, it is pointed out, has contributed to the improvement, particularly Madras and Assam.

Three Classes of Candidates
On the results of the first interview candidates are placed in three classes: the first those who are fit to undergo training at the Cadet School at Miraj or Bangalore, the second those who are not fit to be sent to training school owing to some defect in education or health which can be remedied, and the third those who are quite unfit.

The second class is a new one and candidates placed therein are allowed to undergo a course before Cadet training lasting two months during which suitable instruction will be given to correct the deficiency noticed at the interview. The candidates are given a second interview and if found upto the standard are admitted for training.

Direct Approach to the Schools

While the defence authorities are gratified at the improvement in the standard of candidates, steps will continue to be taken to get still better and greater number of officer cadets to meet the growing needs of the army. Much more direct approach than hitherto is proposed to be made to colleges and schools for help in obtaining the right material for officers.

BANGALORE ROADS—A DISGRACE

The road cutting excavations that are taking place in our city should at all costs be put an end to before there is a clamour from the rate-paying public. The inconvenience caused thereby cannot be easily explained. Roads which hitherto presented a nice appearance look like shattered cart tracks difficult even for country vehicles to negotiate. Cottonpet beginning from the Briand Square and ending near the Post Office is an example of how our authorities carry out their excavation experiments on busy roads. We are given to understand that there are definite rules governing the cutting of public roads for purposes other than repairs. But the recent excavations which are being conducted with absolutely no idea of public convenience have to all appearances escaped the jurisdiction of rules. Red flags are hoisted suddenly in the middle of the road and vehicles are stopped by a hand-waving maistry. They do not even feel the necessity of a notice to the public. The Electrical or the Sanitary Department have more uses for the road than the poor public for whom they are laid out. The Electrical Department workers cut the road for taking the under-ground cable across, while the Sanitary Department people want the road for themselves for laying out drainage pipes. In between this the Water Supply people come in to fix a tap for a customer. The co-operative endeavour that is evinced in these matters is significant. All these people start their work simultaneously.

We have written this with more of sorrow than anger. Some of our roads have never seen repairs since a decade or more. It is sheer generosity that prompts us to call these as high-ways. The people of this city eagerly expected that the Congress Municipal regime would usher in good civic amenities. But their work especially with regard to roads is thoroughly disappointing. Let alone pot holes on the road surface, hillocks have appeared with remarkable suddenness making the vehicles to have an automatic detour when running on them. People who use vehicles on these roads need have no laxatives. The Municipal people have generously provided them in plenty on the highways.

We cannot congratulate anyone on the way they have kept these roads. It is a standing disgrace to the city's reputation. Even in the extensive story

SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY

REPORT FOR 1940-41

Poona, June, 16

The following is the summary of the report of the work turned out in 1940-41.

The Servants of India Society which completes thirty-six years on the 12th June 1941, was founded by the late Mr. G. K. Gokhale to provide a band of national missionaries, who without seeking any personal advantage for themselves pledge themselves to serve the national interests of India in all secular fields, without reference to religion or community.

During the year under report the Society had to face a crisis of an unprecedented and fundamental character, as a result of which Messrs. N. M. Joshi and S. V. Parulekar and Miss Godavari Gokhale ceased to be members, and the strength of the Society was reduced to 27.

Owing partly to War conditions, the Society was faced with an actual deficit over Rs. 8,000 in 1939-40 and with a prospective one of over Rs. 10,000 in 1940-41, with the prospect of increased expenditure on account of the rise in cost of materials, and decreased income from donations and profits from its presses and papers. The deficit subsequently rose to about Rs. 25,000. The Society nevertheless cheerfully gave fearlessness allowances to its low-paid employees, resisted the temptation to reduce the salaries of its better paid ones, but reduced the allowances of its members by about 20 per cent., and strove hard to maintain undiminished its public work. Thanks to the generosity of friends, the deficit for the year under report was reduced from Rs. 25,000 to Rs. 6,000. But the deficits for the two years, 1939-40 and 1940-41, amounting to Rs. 14,000 still remain uncovered.

The Society issued a statement of its policy towards the war situation in 1940. Although uncompromisingly opposed to Hitlerism, the Society felt that the present policy of the British Government towards India, based as it was on distrust of Indians, unwillingness to part with any real power and the desire to foment and exploit internal differences, stood in the way of India doing her utmost to help England in resisting Hitlerian aggression and earnestly suggested that England should so modify her attitude as to create the necessary psychological conditions to enable India to pull her full weight on the side of the democratic Powers. It supported all has repeated itself. The financial stringency is the only argument that is advanced when the question crops up. But how long can the authorities hoodwink the public at large? We hope the authorities will get up from their slumber and see that our roads are at least repaired. We are sure our words will not fall on deaf ears.

Progress of Agricultural and Dairy Production

Imperial Dairy Department's Annual Report

Simla, June 20
A substantial increase in the agricultural and dairy production of the Farms, a satisfactory number of students attending the courses started at the Institute, an increase in the volume of research in dairy and dairy technology and improvements in the milking stock of the Institute are some of the more features of the Annual Report of the Imperial Dairy Department for the year ending June 1940. The report deals with the activities of the offices of the Director of Dairy Research and of the Imperial Dairy Export, and of the Imperial Dairy Institute, Bangalore and the Milk Depot, Wellington.

The main changes in the Department were the appointment of the Director of Dairy Research, the closing of the Wellington Milk Depot and the granting of the qualifications, Associate of the Imperial Dairy Institute, to post-graduate students including those who attended that course in the

The Director of Dairy Research (the late Dr. V.L. Davies), has made an extensive tour of the dairying areas of India, commencing on the large demand for instruction in dairying in India, the lack of opportunities for satisfying this demand and the need for provincial agricultural teaching institutions to meet the demand.

Research Work

The research work at the Institute has embraced investigations in dairy husbandry, technology, bacteriology and chemistry. Records of performance of the herds have been kept and a considerable amount of statistical information has been extracted from records of previous years. Physiological data regarding growth in calves and weight of cows in their gestation periods continue to be collected. The manufacture of ghee by different methods designed to secure the maximum yield and maintain quality has been extensively investigated. It has been found that the ghee made from cream after repeated washings of cream with water gives the maximum yield of ghee; properly-made butter gives the next best yield and, of all, desi butter. The chemical composition of milk from different breeds of animals have been investigated.

The Institute at Bangalore has instructed to 96 students for a diploma, 21 post-graduates for a short course) during the year 24 out of 25 candidates with honours) passed the examination of the Indian Diploma in Dairying at Bangalore in October-November 1939. 24 out of 25 candidates at Allahabad Agricultural Institute in April-May 1940. Some animals were sent to the India Cattle show at Delhi

SHANTIDALS ARE THE ONLY REMEDY

Dr. RAJENDRA PRASAD ON COMMUNAL BITTERNESS

(Associated Press of India)

WARDHA: June 18
Dr. Rajendra Prasad interviewed regarding to: mural riots stated:

"I think intemperate propaganda embasing that Hindus and Muslims are two different nations which cannot coalesce or work together is responsible for bitterness and communal tension which now prevails. Also reports of incidents in one place published in the press create impressions in other places. For the present it is not difficult to avoid and prevent outbreaks if current efforts are made to impress upon all whatever differences exist whether communal and political and economic nature be adjusted by discussion and negotiation and ultimately this failing by arbitration. If maintenance of peace is accepted as essential consideration it would be not only possible but easy to have joint propaganda on behalf of all who favour this proposition and I have no doubt it will have salutary and quick result. Congress has no new programme. It always insisted on communal harmony and made communal unity one of the fundamental factors of its constructive programme. Efforts are being made to establish "Shanti dal" peace brigades on purely non-violent lines to prevent communal riots not only by persuasion and appeals but by actually standing between contending groups and taking blows of both thus keeping them apart. The movement is just in its initial stages and it is not easy to get many persons with that amount of faith in non-violence and determination to suffer and die without lifting their hands in retaliation but difficulty of task. I hope not to deter our workers making earnest efforts in this direction.

BRITISH WARNING TO GENERAL DENTZ

ATTACK ON DAMASCUS TO BEGIN

Further British success in Syria

It is authoritatively stated that Allies recaptured Kumetra in Syria. Operations for the recapture of Marjayoun area are now in full swing. Further east allied forces are slowly making their way down to the fertile plain of Damascus.

Free French troops are now in the Western suburbs of Syrian capital but Vichy troops are still holding a village three miles from Damascus.

Allied forces have now occupied all fortifications in Kisweh and Vichy troops are demolishing all roads with a view to stem the tide of allied advance. General Dentz is apparently relying on harassing tactics to delay British advance.

According to Ankara correspondent of the Columbia Broadcasting System appeal to capitulate has been made over the Jerusalem radio by the British Commander-in-Chief in Palestine Sir Maitland Wilson to General Dentz, French High Commissioner in Syria. The correspondent adds that the appeal was coupled with a warning that allied attack on Damascus would begin on Thursday morning and that he would be held responsible for the bloodshed caused.

He said: "Arrangements are now being made for the departure of German consuls and belligerents will be requested for the safe conduct of these officials. They will go direct to Germany rather than Latin America. German protest is only about the expulsion order and not about the order freezing German assets."

RULES OF THE ROAD

Compulsory Subject in Schools.

A.P. (Mail) Trivandrum, June 18

The proposals that the rules of the road and principles of road and principles of road safety should be a compulsory subject in all schools of the State, has been made by the State Transport Advisory Committee, which held a sitting this week.

The Travancore State Transport Department has been carrying on educative propaganda through newspaper articles on the rules of the road, and the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. E. G. Salter, referred to this at the meeting of the Committee. He felt, however, that as the adult population had grown up amidst slow moving traffic, it might be somewhat difficult to instil into them the necessity for observing certain rules rendered obligatory by the rapid growth of mechanical transport. It was felt advisable and expedient to educate children who have to live in an age of fast-moving vehicles to achieve the desired effect, and therefore the Committee recommended compulsory education in Safety First on the road.

MYSORE AND PROHIBITION POLICY

—121—

We cannot congratulate the Government on their policy of retaining the Drink Revenue at all costs. They cling to the pet idea of gradual and progressive prohibition which is only a mesh. This incompressible how-closing of a few shops at a particular spot would deter people from losing their sobriety. The thrill of getting tips attracts them even to walk miles to taste the liquor. The progressive prohibition policy which our Government solemnly proclaim from their Olympian heights cannot in the least bring us any nearer to the ideal which any progressive nation wishes for. The Government spokesman was afraid of a serious dislocation in the revenue but what it, that is lost for a better order of society in Mysore. We are having this fifty lakhs of rupees for our coffers to add to the misery of our poor wretched folk. The hard earned money of the poor should make them pursue a better standard but instead the fruits of their sweated labour goes to the pockets of the drink shop proprietors, the pawn broker, and indirectly the Government have the benefit of securing Rs. 50 lakhs. We ask whether this revenue derived from an evil source is right or is in keeping with equity or justice? We are sorry that we are forced to the painful necessity of being emphatic on this point. Unless the Government make bold and forego this ruinous revenue the people at large are bound to suffer in health, wealth and prosperity.

Let Mysore become dry soon thereby setting an example to the rest of Indian India. What is the earthly benefit of making people lose their sobriety? As good citizens they must prosper well. As custodians of people's welfare the Government are in duty bound to protect their health. But instead we are witnessing untold misery and wretchedness by recourse to bottles which only go to shatter the nerves.

We hope the Government will effect this reform as early as possible in keeping with the spirit of times. The drink revenue should be abolished forthwith. We hope to see Mysore becoming dry ere long and its people looking prosperous and gay.

The State should take courage in both hands by abolishing the drink revenue and replace it by other means. It is the general wish of the people to have the prohibition at any cost.

Ethics of Satyagraha

"It Depends on Purity and Strength"

(From a Correspondent)

Dharwar, June, 16

The following is the resume of a talk by Sri Krishnadasi Iyer, President, Gandhi Seva Sangha at the office of the Karnataka Provincial Congress Committee.

1 True satyagraha does not merely connote courting jail. Satyagraha depends on principle of purity and strength. Wherever there is injustice or tyranny, a satyagrahi has to meet it at the risk of life, at the risk of losing all worldly possessions. This is the mind with which he has to work. A person cannot be a satyagrahi unless he has faith in God.

2 In violence there is both victory and defeat. But a satyagrahi carries on his satyagraha with his constructive sense of service with the idea of resisting evil. The person whose mind is imbued with the principle of satyagraha is always engaged in a struggle, may be with himself, his family or his Government. Hence in a satyagraha struggle members do not count but quality does. A satyagrahi's spirit involves renunciation of the worldly mind. There is no scope for idea of profit or power in the mind of a true satyagrahi.

3 It may not be possible to have qualities of a full-fledged satyagrahi all at once. Just as the body grows bit by bit in the same way character also can be slowly developed. The constructive programme is an aid to develop such character. Mere attainment of political swaraj will not give happiness. It must be a swaraj of justice i.e., what is called "Ramarajya". Hence the 13 fold constructive programme. The order of society visualised in the constructive programme must be practised by a large number of our society.

According to the principle of satyagraha even the economic order must be one based on and conducive to non-violence. What we find today is that might is right. The principle of non-violence distinguishes man from the animal. In our private life we do recognise that love and truth should govern our actions. On account of our weaknesses we are unable to practice non-violence and truth in our practical affairs and then we began to defend untruth for fear of difficulty and leave off the principle. If one is not able to practice what one thinks to be right, one should confess one's own weakness and should not try to cover his weakness by specious arguments. We must develop the correct method and we must act up to it. Our task is to remove the weaknesses that are present in India. We must try to build up the necessary virtues but this will be possible only if we pursue a particular discipline of life. We do not understand the full implications of constructive work. The intellectual question, how can Swaraj be obtained by spinning? The spinners of A. I. S. A spin for wages, sell spinners spin for clothes and others spin for economic independence. For some, spinning is a symbol of an outlook in life. It stands for virtues implied in love and truth and the constructive programme. If a person realising in his mind the full implications of the basic principle which underlines the outward symbol of spinning, then he would truly attain the mind of a true satyagrahi and if we become satyagrahis like that Swaraj would be very near. The beauty of satyagrahi lies in the fact that a satyagrahi knows no defeat. Those who have faith have no difficulties. Those who have no faith in satyagraha, they would at least not thwart it.

4. In one sense, constructive work is more important than satyagraha. Gandhi's original idea was to send in only a very few persons for satyagraha owing to Government's action he has to extend it. But even for satyagraha, proper persons are required. Those who are outside jail should engage themselves in constructive work.

Strikes in Bangalore Mills-- Adjournment Motion Disallowed

After interpellations were over Mr. K. Chingalaraya Reddy requested permission of the President, to move an adjournment motion in connection with the matter of urgent public importance, namely, strike of workers in Miraj and Minerva Mills, Bangalore City.

Dewan-President:—Negotiations are in progress to induce workers to return to work. In view of this circumstance, it is desirable to raise a public session over this delicate matter. It is not advisable to portion blame upon any party present. This is the view of the Government.

Mr. K. C. Reddy: We are within our rights in moving this adjournment motion. We have received information that the negotiations have not been helpful and fruitful.

Dewan-President: It would be advisable not to give any opinion at present.

Mr. K. C. Reddy: If Government are prepared to give us an assurance that there would be an early end of the matter in an amicable manner, we may consider that aspect of the question.

Dewan-President: The negotiations are in progress and we hope the matter would end amicably.

Mr. K. C. Reddy: Our attitude is one of helpfulness. If the Dewan-President should give a ruling that the motion would be allowed, I can say nothing.

Dewan-President: I disallow the adjournment motion for the reasons given above.

The adjournment motion was disallowed.

Discussion On Basic Education

Continued
When resolutions on the subject were taken up today, Mr. Veerakarsai Sitarama Sastry reiterated a point in his speech of the previous day. He had said that Tagadur School had been discontinued, but he learnt subsequently that it had not been closed and it was functioning. Mr. Sastry wanted this information to be noted in his speech.

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar supporting the proposition of basic education, gave a detailed review of the attempts so far made and successes so far achieved in this direction. He said that this type of education would give a vocational bias to our present system of education.

Mr. N. Rama Rao
Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao, in supporting the motion said that great men had bestowed their thoughts on our present system of education and the reforms necessary to give it a practical turn. The speaker submitted that this should not be considered as a party question. The question should be considered on its own merits.

The House should consider if the scheme would be helpful to the State. The mover had not asked for a revolutionary change in the present system of education. He wanted to try an experiment. None need ridicule at the idea. It was not an unjust and unreasonable demand to ask for 50,000 Rupees for an important experiment. If it were in his power, he would grant not merely Rs. 50,000 but Rs. 5 lakhs (cheers). He appealed to the House to consider the proposition dispassionately and accord its support to the proposition before them.

Mr. Jatra Naik in supporting the proposition agreed with the view expressed by Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao. Dr. Pal Chinanna suggested that instead of Government schools attempting this scheme, aided institutions might try it and Government might render financial aid to them.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya in offering his remarks doubted the value of the experiment. He asked those who were in charge of D. Boards, why they did not try the scheme in the areas under their jurisdiction.

Mr. K. Chingalaraya Reddy in supporting the motion said that the question under discussion before the House was an important one and they should bestow their serious thoughts on it. There was no difference of opinion, he said, as to the defectiveness of the present system of education. There was also urgent need of remodelling it according to the needs of our country. Till now several schemes had been devised but most of them had failed.

Mr. Reddy continuing said, the Wardha system had several advantages. It was cheap and self-supporting whereas the existing system of education was costly and wasteful. The scheme was beneficial in several ways. Educationists who had much experience in the line declared that special advantage of the Wardha system was that it imparted education through craft. This was a very important point in its favour.

In further supporting the resolution, Mr. Reddy said they were not asking for a wholesale change, they wanted it to be tried as an experimental measure. He was not laying the blame upon any party, Government or local boards, for the failure of the existing system. They might spend crores and crores upon the present system but it would be of no benefit to the country.

In conclusion, appealing for the support of the house to the proposition, Mr. Reddy said that it was not a party affair, nor was it a communal affair, but it involved public good in which all parties and communities were interested.

Mr. Bhoopalram Chandra- sekharaiya in according his support to the proposition said that the aim of the system was to make the educational system self supporting.

Mr. F. C. Devaraj Urs in suggesting that aided institutions might try the experiment, said that Rs. 50,000 was not a small amount and people should not use the name of Mahatma Gandhi or any great personality to further their propositions.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswami in this connection, drew the attention of the house to nursery schools started in various parts of the State, which were also stated as aided institutions.

Mr. V. Venkappa in supporting the proposition said that even ten lakhs of rupees might be spent for the basic system of education.

Mr. Mirza Azizulla Beig in opposing the proposition questioned the utility of the scheme. One of the ostensible purposes of this system was to inculcate a spirit of nationalism among children. Mr. Beig wondered what type of nationalism it would be.

Mr. J. Mahomed Imam in explaining the view of Government on the proposition said that there was yet a lot of difference of opinion on the merit of the system and it could not be said definitely that the scheme had been a success absolutely. In some Br. Provinces it had been tried and subsequently given up.

Congress members: Governments of advisers had abolished them after Congress Ministers had resigned.

In offering his own opinion about the Wardha system, Mr. Imam doubted if it was a wise policy to make young children labour in that tender age. It was not also wise, Mr. Imam, said, to differentiate between the education of the rich and of the poor, in his opinion, the system should be such that each child be enabled to reach the highest type of education. It was not for them to say to any child, "you should only be a weaver, a carpenter etc." The education should be as general and liberal as possible.

Regarding vocational education there were different institutions for the purpose and the students could go to them.

In respect of Primary Education, Government were of the view, that the whole question deserved to be re-surveyed and for the purpose, they were going to appoint a committee.

Mr. Navaratna Rama Rao asked if the views even of those who sponsored Basic Education would be considered in that connection.

Mr. Imam: We shall consider it.

After the discussion was over, at about 2.35 p.m. the President put the proposition to the vote of the house.

177 voted for and 88 voted against the proposition.

The result was received with cheers by the house.

Salaries of Dewan and Ministers

The following resolutions moved by Mr. Bhoopalram Chandra Sekharaiya failed for want of a second--

This Assembly recommends to the Government of H.H. the Maharaja (1) that the salaries of the present Dewan and the Ministers for Revenue and Finance and for Law be provided for according to the existing rules; (2) that on the expiry of their term of Offices, the salary of the Dewan be fixed at Rs. 2,000 per month, and that of both the Official and non-Official Ministers at Rs. 1000 each per month; and (3) that the salaries of the present non-Official Ministers be fixed at Rs. 1000 each per month, provision being made accordingly in the Budget for 1941-42.

Prohibition

Mr. K. Chingalaraya Reddy (Congress) moved:—“This Assembly recommends to the Government of H.H. the Maharaja the adoption of the policy of prohibition and the implementing of it in as short a time as possible.”

Mr. Reddy said that the revenue from this source was an immoral one and Government should be prepared to do without it as early as possible. The poor people were spending as much as one crore of rupees on intoxicating drinks and the Government should in the shortest time possible introduce the policy of prohibition in the interests of the poor.

Mr. Jatra Naik heartily explained the resolution.

Mrs. Madhava Rao referred to the failure of the policy of prohibition in other parts of the world and doubted the wisdom of introducing it here, for, prohibition, in her opinion, would encourage illicit distillation.

Srimati Sunandamma in supporting the proposition pleaded for the policy of prohibition in the interests of women and children.

Mr. Masti Venkatesha Iyengar (Excise Commissioner) explaining the point of view of Government & stated that the policy of Government was clear. They never said that drinking was good, nor did they ask people to drink. Their desire also was that the people should not be addicted to drink. In their own way, Government had been pursuing a progressive policy of prohibition by stages. It was not at all the desire of Government to drive people to the sin of drink and reap revenue. The House had to dispassionately consider it if by closing toddy and arrack shops, drunkards could give up drinking. In this connection, he requested members to study the history of drink evil and prohibition in other countries. They had been informed that prohibition had not been quite a success in America.

As far as the Excise Revenue was concerned, Excise Commissioner said, that Rs. 50 lakhs was not a small amount and Government could not consider it to be so. Surely they would try to replace that revenue gradually, by other revenues.

Mr. Masti Venkatesha Iyengar doubted the effectiveness of the policy of compulsion in this matter. He said the people should be induced to abstain from drinking through proper propaganda. He stated that the steps taken by Government in this direction.

Several Muslim League members expressed the view that Government prohibited its members from drinking intoxicating liquors, but they doubted if the policy of prohibition as suggested by the mover would do any good. They were of the opinion that the suggested policy of prohibition would result only in loss of revenue to Government.

Mr. K. Chingalaraya Reddy in replying to the debate was of the opinion that there was a big gulf between what Government preached and practised. They had been pursuing the policy they had been practising for the past several decades, and they were not able to achieve prohibition even to the slightest extent. He instanced the policy pursued by Congress Governments and drew the attention of the House the commendable results achieved in those provinces.

Mr. Reddy made an earnest appeal to Government to adopt a determined policy of prohibition to be achieved in the shortest time possible. In the interests of the poor, the policy of Prohibition was an urgent need of the country.

He warned the present Government that if they did not adopt the policy of prohibition immediately, popular Governments who would come to power in future, would achieve that end.

Mr. Anantharaman

Rajamantrapravina Mr. K. V. Anantharaman in explaining the point of view of Government, said that there was absolutely no difference of opinion between Government and the mover, on the desirability of pursuing a policy of Prohibition. The difference existed only with regard to the pace of the reform. Even where responsible Government functioned, they moved gradually in the matter. He assured the House that the Government were earnest in the matter.

The mover pressed the motion for a division.

148 voted for and 131 against.

It was understood the Muslim League members voted for the resolution.

The motion was passed by the House.

Before concluding the business of the day, Dewan-President, gave a ruling on the budget resolution.

MADRAS MARKET REPORT

WEEKLY REVIEW

(From our Correspondent)

Madras, June, 18

The following is a weekly review of the market report published by Messrs. Kothari & Sons.

There has been a slight expansion of interest during the period under review in the local Stock Exchange. Securities have maintained fairly steady levels and in sympathy. Banks have ruled steady. A slight increase in the price of yarn reflected a general improvement in the price of textile shares and with a good demand forthcoming from up country most of the shares have now hardened up and sellers have been rather very difficult to locate. Fixed interest bearing securities have received the usual attention from the investors and sellers have been generally reserved in tax free preferences and debentures. As this is the usual time for declaration of dividend for electric companies, there has been a good demand visible in this section too with sellers holding off for realisation or dividend and then to sell. Teas and Rubbers have also participated in the general improvement. Although the transaction in the miscellaneous section was to some extent restricted in the earlier part there was an expansion of interest towards the close. Mysore Group of shares were fairly steady especially Mysore Tobacco, Mysore Paper and Mysore Chemicals.

BRITISH FORESTAL IN WESTERN DESERT

British forces which launched big attack in Western Desert - surprising Germans at Fort Capuzzo - are now safely back to their original positions, it is learned in authoritative circles in London today. These positions are east of Sollum which are still in German hands. There is still no definite report that Germans are preparing to attack but information available tends to show enemy delayed. It seems quite possible therefore we did forestall some action contemplated. During British withdrawal there so little interference it seems either British had hit enemy so hard that he did not want follow up or unable to do so. At any rate British forces got away very lightly indeed.

AMENITIES FOR TROOPS

APPEAL ISSUED

Bangalore, June 20

Copy of the appeal issued through the Press by the Cross Commissioner and Secretary, Amenities for Troops Fund, Headquarters, Simla, for books, periodicals, etc., for use of the Forces Overseas.

"Although various appeals have been made from my side during the past ten months it seems that there is still a general realisation that the whole of the forces—navy, army and Air Force—in the Middle East, in the Eastern Mediterranean and, now, in India are practically dependent on their reading matter. What can be sent to them in India. In time of peace there have been so much accusations to thinking that anyone in Egypt, can buy locally anything he wants, or can get it sent from home, that we are inclined to forget that no man is coming through the Mediterranean at the present time. Consequently the only route for English books, papers, magazines, etc., to reach them is via India which means that these months on the way out through the United Kingdom. The more our forces want something read, to help them pass their leisure hours when they are on duty and it is up to us in India to help them in this.

"To provide this literature however, there must be some form of organization to collect it. It is most noticeable that those places in which such collections are organised a good deal more is being provided than in those in which it is not. Individuals to send what they can spare. Organised house collections and army boxes for provision of clean, boxes in hotels, clubs, and libraries are all most valuable. Anyone who would arrange this will be doing a very good war work.

"As to the type of literature which is wanted, library books of any kind, but particularly those which are light reading, for example, detective stories, Magazines, periodicals and illustrated papers are all wanted. Books of the "Penguin" type are especially useful, as they are easy to carry about. They are also not to be forgotten that these forces there are many who like to see the ladies papers.

"Collections for literature should be sent to the nearest Red Cross or American Troops Depot, where arrangements can be made to forward them to the Red Cross of Bombay."

Dr. RAJENDRA PRASAD REPLIES ENEMIES OF INDIAN NATIONALISM

ATTEMPTS TO DIVIDE INDIA SEVERELY CRITICISED

A.P. Vizagapatam, June 21
"Attempts are being made by enemies of Indian nationalism to divide our country into sections on grounds of the existence of different races, religions and culture, but the whole country behind the theory of different races and cultures India has not only a great past but is destined to have a great future" observed Babu Rajendra Prasad, replying to an address presented to him by the local municipality, the Vizagapatam District Board,
the District Harijan Sevaks Sangha, Unemployed Youths and the Vizagapatam Congress workers last evening.

"We were one. We are one and shall continue to be one" he declared. Proceeding he said if they looked back their ancient history they would find there was not one department of national life wherein they were behind other countries. Shipbuilding was not new to India but now they had fallen on evil times and they were behind other countries in several respects.

Referring to satyagraha movement, he said the present struggle was going to be a long one, adding: "We are passing through critical times in world history and most of our leaders are now in jail. This is a pe-

NON-VIOLENCE AND GANDHIJI

Mr. MAHADEV DESAI'S SPEECH

A.P. Ahmedabad, June 21
"Crores of people may not "Crores of people will follow the footsteps of thousand martyrs

INDIAN PUBLICIST DISHONoured IN LONDON

Refused Accommodation in a Hotel

AN ACT OF RACIAL DISCRIMINATIONS

Mr. Morrison's 'Inadequate'
Reply

In the House of Commons
Sir Stanley Reed at the question time drew attention to the refusal of accommodation to the refugee Indian publicist. Two distinguished Indian publicists on racial grounds and asked whether action would be taken to prevent such acts against Home Secretary Mr. Morrison and he understood the allegation related to an unlicensed private hotel.
Matter was not one wherein he had the power to intervene but if there had been discrimination against a British subject on the grounds alleged he was sure he will have the support of the house expressing the strongest disapprobation. Mr. Winterton declared the incident caused greatest resentment among many friends of Sir Hari Singh Gour like himself and he suggested that Mr. Morrison should publish the names of people guilty of the outrage. Mr. Morrison said he made most careful enquiries whether he could take action which he would be pleased to do if he had powers. He would look into the aspect

MYSORE REPRESENTATIVE ASSEMBLY CONCLUDES LAST DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

RESOLUTION ON REDUCTION OF SALARIES

(From our Staff Correspondent)

Mysores, June 20
The Budget session of the Assembly which opened on 10th June, concluded its business this morning after transacting business for 9 days, nearly, forty five days, nearly, forty five days, in recent years.

The day's business commenced at 11 noon, Dewan N. S. Prasad presiding. Interpellations were first taken up.

An interpellation put by Mr. M. Muniswamappa, Government replied that there were seven departments under Government. General Secretary stated that the collection of information such as how many officers were getting salaries over (Rs. 20) etc., would take a lot of time and trouble and was out of all proportion to its value and usefulness. A number of supplementary questions were asked in connection and Government stated inability to collect the information asked for.

Prices Of Commodities

An interpellation put by Revannagowda whether Government would be pleased to constitute a committee in all taluqs to reduce the prices of commodities which had risen on account of the war Government had in their notification P. 1667, dated 11th Sep. '39, Government had empowered Deputy Commissioners of taluqs to fix, from time to time, maximum prices of food stuff, kerosene oil, piece-goods, medical supplies for their respective districts and directed no person should sell, wholesale or retail a commodity price higher than such maximum. And also, in Government P. 1667, dated 11th Sep. '39, Govt. directed that in order to reduce proper prices being charged at, each Deputy Commissioner may appoint for his taluq an Advisory Committee consisting of the Deputy Commissioner, the Sub-Divisional Officer and four other non-official officers representing commercial and other interests in the taluq to advise him on the maximum prices to be fixed by the Deputy Commissioner on the advice of the Advisory Committee will be applied to the entire district. It appears to be that there are separate taluqs in the district in the fact that while the maximum prices for taluqs, the District Advisory Committee will have taken into consideration the conditions prevailing in all the taluqs in the district.

Supplementary interpellations on the subject of appointing taluq committees, Mr. H. B. Gundanna, Local Self Government Minister said that the Government would consider the suggestion that the prices of vegetables and fruits be controlled.

Some others suggested that prices of medical drugs should be controlled.

Another member suggested that people representing agricultural interests should be appointed to that committee.

Dewan-President promised to consider the suggestion.

One member desired to know if the committees had been functioning properly.

A member complained to President that only two interpellations had been disposed of today and other would lapse.

Rajamantrapravina Mr. K. V. Anantaraman said that they could not restrict the rights of members.

Suggestions for Improvement of Assembly Business and Cognate matters

After the interpellations were over, Dewan-President requested members to offer their suggestions as to how the business of the Assembly could be improved.

Mr. K. Changanarayana Reddy suggested the appointment of a House Committee to settle the details of business.

He also suggested that for facilitating all members of the Assembly to reside in one place and transact business, a common residential home was the urgent need of the day. The member requested Dewan-President to give his mind to provide better boarding and lodging facilities to members of Assembly. Seating arrangements in the Assembly require to be improved. Visitors Gallery is to be improved. Efficient loud speaker arrangements should be made to enable outsiders also to listen to the proceedings of the Assembly, as was being done in Madras.

Mr. K. C. Reddy suggested also the formation of a committee of privileges. He appealed to Dewan President and Ministers to behave towards members in a democratic manner, so that all may feel a sense of democratic equality.

Mr. Reddy suggested that better arrangements should be made for disbursement of travelling allowance.

Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekhariya suggested that the budget session of the Assembly might be held in Bangalore in Sir K. P. P. Chetty Hall.

Dewan said that the suggested arrangement would undoubtedly reduce the expenditure.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya supported the suggestion of appointing a House Committee and expressed his opinion that holding a session in Bangalore would be of special advantage to the members and also the Government.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswami in offering his suggestions said that those who did not belong to any party would suffer by appointing a House Committee. He disapproved the idea of holding the Assembly session in Bangalore; on the other hand, he was of the opinion that even L.C. Sessions should be held in Mysore.

Mr. A. N. Rama Rao opposed the idea of holding Assembly session in Bangalore. He suggested that a building might be constructed in Mysore to hold the sessions of Assembly and also residential quarters might be built for the convenience of Assembly members.

Mr. Ramappa stressed on the need for providing boarding and lodging arrangements to all the members of the Assembly in one single building. He approved the suggestion of holding a session of Assembly in Bangalore.

Mr. Shankarlinga Gowda suggested that Government should give an allowance of Rs. 10 per day per member.

Dewan-President agreed that it was a good arrangement to have a House Committee and if all the members agreed they might have such a committee by the time the next session would be held. Regarding fixing time limit for speeches etc. that was the right of the President and no committee could encroach on it.

The Dewan felt that from the experience of the present session 8 or 9 days was not enough to transact business and even fifteen days might be needed. Perhaps for the next session, they might fix 10 days for business, as a provisional arrangement.

Regarding the suggestion of holding a session in Bangalore and also constructing a building in Mysore, Dewan could not give a ready reply at present, but anyhow for the next year, they might consider favourably the suggestion of holding a session in Bangalore.

In this connection Dewan-President gave his ruling on a point of order. If a member moved a resolution and it was duly seconded and debated upon whether the member could withdraw his resolution with the permission of the House or without it, Dewan-President liked to know the views of the House.

Mr. Virakesari Sitarama Sastry said that in this big house, it was not possible to get the permission of the House, and so the member should be allowed to withdraw the resolution.

Mr. Navarathna Rama Rao said that any member could withdraw the resolution without permission of the House, before it was moved, seconded and debated upon by the House. But when once the House discussed the resolution, it would not be withdrawn without the permission of the house.

Rao Bahadur M. Ramaswami expressed his view that the member should be allowed to withdraw his resolution even without the permission of the House. Insisting on permission of the House would be an inroad on the right of the member.

Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekhariya suggested for withdrawal permission of the House should be taken.

Mr. K. Hanumanthaiya offering his remarks on the point of order whether a member could withdraw his resolution when once it had been moved and discussed by the House, said that it could be withdrawn only with the permission of the House.

Mr. S. N. M. Ravi said that the right of withdrawal should rest with the mover and not with the House. According to him, permission of the House was unnecessary.

Dewan-President gave his ruling on the point of order that when a resolution was moved, duly seconded and discussed, it could be withdrawn only with the leave of the House. The President held that though it was not explicitly stated in the standing orders, it was implicit.

General Resolutions

Mr. T. Thimmaraaya moved: "This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that the present salaries of Government employees in the State be so raised that no employee is given less than Rs. 20 or more than Rs. 500 a month, and that the rates of allowances also modified conformably with the revised scale of salaries."

Mr. K. Hanumanthaya (Congress) in seconding the resolution said that compared to salaries in Japan and Turkey, salaries of Officers in Mysore were very high. He said that one of the ways of translating democracies spirit into action was reducing the salaries of high officers. He had no objection for paying high salaries to experts and that too, for a temporary period. He appealed to the House not to treat this as a party proposition but accord support to it on its merit.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya compared the salaries of Dewans in Cochin and Travancore and said that in Mysore, compared to the revenue of the State, the salary of the Dewan was not much. He was of the opinion that reducing the salaries of officers to Rs. 500 would result in disastrous consequences to the State. The State might not secure the services of the very best people. Mr. Mallaiya also felt that the efficiency of officers would deteriorate, by reduction of salaries. If the resolution aimed at reduction in general terms he might have supported it but he could not accord support to it in the form in which it was moved.

Mr. F. C. Devaraje Urs submitted that the Mysore officers had enhanced the reputation of the State by their efficiency and it was not wise to reduce the salaries indiscriminately. Pay paid to officers should not be measured by the number of hours they work, but by the responsibility entrusted to them, said Mr. Devaraje Urs.

Mrs. Madhava Rao said that there should be discrimination in the ranks of people. The same pay could not be paid to the school master and the peon. Any reduction of salary, Mrs. Madhava Rao, said, would result in corruption and bribery.

Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekhariya supported the resolution, wholeheartedly. He said that Mysore was a poor country and such heavy salaries were not in conformity with the condition of our people.

After a few more speeches were over, Mr. A. N. Rama Rao raised a point of order that the resolution was out of order in as much as a resolution underlying the principle (reduction of salaries) moved by Mr. Bhupalam) was moved yesterday and rejected by the House and that it could not be moved before a year elapsed.

Dewan-President holding the resolution to be in order said that the resolution before the House was of a different nature, from the one moved yesterday, and besides that resolution was not effectively moved as it found no seconder.

The discussion on the resolution continued. Mr. A. N. Rama Rao opposed the resolution and said that it was not wise to reduce the salaries of officers.

Mr. Mirza Azizulla Beig opposed the resolution and said that it was wrong to aim at reducing the revenue of officers only. The officers had to be paid high salaries because their responsibilities were also correspondingly high.

When the House re-assembled after lunch, discussion on the resolution re-reduction of salaries of officers continued.

Mr. M. N. Jois supporting the resolution said in the present economic condition of the people, the difference between the average income of an ordinary man and Government officer was very considerable and it was with a view to reducing this difference that the resolution has been brought forward. It was wrong, he said, to assess the dignity and status of a man by his Bank balances. Character, according to him, was something higher than money. "We should not equate the worth, ability and competency of the Dewan, with the salary of Rs. 5000 per month that he gets" said Mr. M. N. Jois. Salaries of officers should not be compared to the commensurate and allowances of the functionaries of profiting companies. Government Service should, Mr. Jois opined, be considered as an avenue of patriotic service to the country and not of exporters.

Mr. Virakesari Sitarama Sastry said that this proposition had been before the country for the last twenty years. The late Mr. V. J. Patel took the salary of Rs. 4,000 per month and paid it to Mahatma Gandhi. The principle was translated into practice when Congress assumed office. But it was a matter of great sacrifice which could be practised by real sanyasis like Mahatma Gandhi.

Mr. Sastry continuing said that this was an age of raising the standard of life. He said they should raise the salaries of low paid officials.

Mr. Sastry brought to the notice of the House that Mysore Rulers had fixed such a high scale for our officers to enable them to maintain their status above the richest in the land.

The question of reduction of salaries could be considered effectively after Responsible Government is established, when real servants of the public, could occupy the seats of ministers, irrespective of communal and other considerations.

Rajasevaprakashta Mr. A. N. Raghavachar, Financial Secretary, placing the point of view of Government before the House, said that the scale of the salaries of officers had been continuing the same for the past fifty years and when compared to the scale prevailing in Madras, the one prevailing in Mysore was reasonable. According to the circumstances, he said, the scale would change. As far as possible, reduction had been effected and any further reduction would depend on circumstances that would arise in future.

After one more speech was made the resolution was put to vote. Mr. Bhupalam Chandrasekhariya and Congress members voted for the proposition.

Mysore Representative Assembly Concludes

After the result of the voting was declared, Dewan-President, requested the members to offer their remarks on the point of order raised earlier in the House.

Elementary Education

Mr. M. Sreenivasa Murthy moved: "This Assembly recommends to the Government of H. H. the Maharaja that elementary education be made compulsory."

Mr. T. S. Rajagopala Iyengar supporting the proposition said that unless Government made on earnest effort in the matter no progress could be achieved.

Mr. Mirza Azeemulla Baig supported the proposition and said Government might carry out the proposal gradually.

Mrs. Akhila Begum Md. Sheriff said that Elementary Education should be made free and compulsory.

Mr. J. Mahamed Imam, Minister for Education, explained the point of view of Government and said that they were in sympathy with the proposition and they were actually moving in that direction. Government were going to appoint a committee to consider the question of Elementary Education and he hoped that the matter would be considered from all points of view.

Mr. S. N. M. Razvi requested Government to fix a time limit within which they would be able to achieve the objective.

Mr. K. C. Reddy agreed with Mr. S. N. M. Razvi that a time limit should be fixed to achieve the goal. He brought to the notice of the House that the progress achieved in the past was not satisfactory. Unless they had a plan before them, no progress could be achieved, said the member.

Mr. S. C. Mallaiya opined that the proposition was an agreeable one but he felt that Government were not in a position to carry it out, because it was impracticable.

Mr. Mallaiya continuing said, that Government should adopt a bold and liberal policy in the matter. He suggested a definite plan of action.

Mr. Ramlal Tewari urged the establishment of Hindustani Schools.

Mr. Imam, Education Minister, assured the House that all that could be done was being done and would be done in future. He said Government transferred their responsibility to the matter. He also said Government accepted the principle, because the Act itself made it clear.

The mover was prepared to withdraw the motion and leave of the House was asked. The

BUDGET RESOLUTIONS

A POINT OF ORDER

President Lays Down some Principles (From our Staff Correspondent)

MYSOOR, June 19 Before putting to vote the budget resolution on Prohibition, Dewan President stated:

Before declaring the result of voting on this resolution, I wish to say a few words regarding two questions that arose to-day in connection with the budget resolutions. The first question is with regard to the nature of the resolutions on the Budget that should be admitted. Sub-section 2 of section 33 of the Government of Mysore Act provides that no proposal for the appropriation of any revenue or moneys for any purpose shall be made except on the recommendation of the Government. As pointed out by the committee on Constitutional Reform this is a constitutional principle which finds a place in practically all Constitutions Acts in the British Empire. The rules provide that every budget resolution shall be confined to the general principles and policy underlying the budget or any of the major heads of expenditure included therein and shall not have reference to particular grants or particular provisions or to any excluded heads of expenditure. I am sure that members will have noticed that a number of resolutions which have been tabled for discussion in this session propose an increase of expenditure under various heads of the budget, thus infringing the mandatory provisions of the Act. I hope that in future the limitations imposed by the Act will be strictly observed by the members, so that the Chair may be relieved of the somewhat unpleasant task of having to consider whether its powers of disallowance should be exercised in any particular case to ensure compliance with the provisions of the Act.

The next point is with regard to the need for a seconder in the case of the resolutions on the Budget. In the constitution of this Assembly, the rules are somewhat peculiar in this respect. There does not appear to be any counterpart to what are called our budget resolutions in the rules of other constitutional bodies. These resolutions are not in the nature of cut motions which are brought up for discussions in the Legislative Council and which need no seconder, but are in the form of general resolutions. I think it but proper that the procedure followed in the case of general resolutions should be made applicable to the resolutions on the Budget, and that when a resolution on the Budget has been moved, or an amendment has been proposed, it must be seconded by another member.

majority were in favour of withdrawal.

Congress benches and Mr. Bhopalm Chandrashekhariya voted against the withdrawal. For 107, against 83.

Mr. K. C. Reddy suggested that instead of recording votes by raising of hands division method might be adopted.

Dewan's Concluding Remarks

After this business was over, the Dewan made his concluding speech.

Lokasavaritri Bale Siddalinga setty thanked the Dewan-President, on behalf of the House, for conducting the deliberations in an harmonious manner.

The Turkish press generally take the line that Great Britain is Turkey's ally and Turkey should never become an instrument of any aggression against Britain.

At the same time it is held that the new agreement is intended to help Turkey to keep the war out of her territory.

VIGOROUS PROTESTS TO GERMANY

American move re sinking of Robin Moor

According to agency messages formal vigorous protest would be lodged in Berlin on the sinking of Robin Moor. It is also stated American merchant shipping would be armed.

NAZI PROMISES TO RUMANIA

L. C. Session Opens

MYSORE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

BUDGET SESSION OPENS

PRESIDENT'S RULING ON OATH
"Ministers too must take it"

Budget Presented

Bangalore, June 23

The first budget session of the Mysore Legislative Council under the Government of Mysore Act of 1940 commenced this afternoon at the Council Hall, Public Offices.

Mr. D. H. Chandrasekharayya, President, was in the chair.

The Visitors gallery, which was considerably raised up so that visitors might follow intelligently the proceedings, was full.

The members first, took the oath of allegiance; the Congress party members and some others in Kannada, the rest in English. When Rajamantapravina K V. Anantaraman, Leader of the House, rose to make a statement, attention of the Chair was drawn that the Ministers had not taken the oath of allegiance as prescribed for the members of this House.

The Leader of the House invited the President's attention to Rules 11 and 18 of the Legislative Council Rules.

He explained that the Ministers had taken the oath of allegiance before the Dewan, when they were appointed Ministers, in the form prescribed which included if he had remembered correctly, this and more.

The President ruled that all the members of this House, whether elected, nominated or ex-officio, were required under rules to take the prescribed oath of allegiance. The Ministers being members of this House from today only, had to take the oath though as Ministers they had taken the oath before the Dewan.

Mr. O.S.N. Sheriff rose in his seat, when he was asked to take the seat. He remarked that he merely wanted to support the chair. (laughter)

The President: Not necessary. The President continuing, ruled that as the chair was not aware of the nature of the oath of allegiance taken by the Ministers, they, as members of the House might take the oath of allegiance as prescribed for the members.

Mr. O.S.N. Sheriff: Might or must?

The President: I have given my ruling.

Then the Ministers took the prescribed oath.

Mr. J. M. Imam (Minister for Education) rose to a point of order that the President, being a member of this house, had to take the prescribed oath as per rule 18 of the Legislative Council Manual.

One member:—Is the President a member of the House?

Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy said that the President was necessarily a member of the House, in as much as he took part in the proceedings.

The President observed that he had taken the oath, absolutely like the one prescribed for the member of the House, before the Dewan, when he was appointed to the office. The President's appointment was perfectly in accordance with the Act and rules thereunder.

Congratulations to President

The Leader of the House congratulated the President on his appointment and assured the wholehearted co-operation of the House to the President. He hoped the President's term of office would be glorious.

Mr. T. Mariappa, Leader of the Congress Party observed that the observation made by the Leader of the House did not refer to the items in the agenda.

The President: I permitted the Leader of the House to make his observations.

Mr. Mariappa: Under what order?

Mr. J.M. Imam: Order, order.

Mr. Mariappa: Is it in accordance with any convention?

The President: Yes. In the British Indian Assemblies there is such a convention.

Mr. Mariappa asked permission, to make a statement.

Some other members also asked for similar permission.

The President observed that in this House there were two organised parties, namely the Government group and the Congress party. The rest were in an amorphous state!

Mr. O. S. N. Sheriff stated that there were in the House minorities representatives and hoped the Chair would be sympathetic to them.

Congress Party Leader's Statement

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of Congress Party) regretted that he and his party could not congratulate the President, who had not been elected by the House. The new Reforms had been declared by the Congress in Mysore to be undemocratic, they were merely a shadow of democracy. He requested the President not to allow any speeches not specifically connected with the items on the agenda.

The President thanked the Leader of the House for his remarks. He accepted the appointment of the President with the belief that it afforded opportunities for him to serve the people of the State. He was not unaware of the responsibilities and the prestige connected with the office of the President and he hoped that he would get full cooperation of the House. He assured the House that he would sincerely try to discharge his duties independently and impartially, and in keeping with the prestige and dignity of the House.

The President said that he had to nominate persons for the Panel of Chairmen of the House. After the election of Deputy President to-morrow, he would, the next day, nominate the persons to the said Committee.

The Assistant Secretary of the Council (Mr. M. K. Varadarajan) reported that His Highness had given his assent to the following acts passed by the Legislature, since it last met:—the Election Offences and Inquiries Act, the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act, the Advocate-General (Designation) Act, the Contempt of Courts (Amendment) Act and the Elementary Education Act.

BUDGET PRESENTED

Rajamantapravina K V Anantaraman, Minister for Revenue and Finance, in presenting the annual budget to the Council said that the financial position of the State was sound. He also stated that Government had been increasing the provision for the development departments year after year, the expenditure on account of administration and protection being kept at the bare minimum level.

During question-time, Mr. H. M. Siddaramaiah elicited the information from the Minister for Law that from 1938 to 1941 fortyone towns and villages were newly electrified, the total amount spent for the purpose was Rs. 16,90,882. No special scheme was prepared for the electrification of taluk headquarters but it was the general policy of Government to extend power service to all parts of the State as and when the financial conditions permitted and the required revenue returns on capital investment were assured.

Mr. Tare Gowda was replied that two resolutions forwarded by the District Board, Tumkur, by the District Board, Tumkur, for enhancement of the salaries of the caretakers, scavengers and sweepers of musakhannas and of third class traveller's bungalows, were under consideration of Government.

Salary for Deputy President

The Leader of the House (Mr. K. V. Anantaraman) moved that the Council recommended to the Government of His Highness the Maharaja that the salary of the Deputy President be fixed at Rs. 200 per mensem.

The Law Secretary seconded the resolution.

Khan Bahadur Mohamed Abbas Khan moved an amendment that the salary of Rs. 200 be raised to Rs. 500. He said that the amount specified in the resolution was not adequate and in keeping with the dignity of the House and the Office of the Deputy President.

Mr. O. S. N. Sheriff seconded the resolution.

Mr. K. V. Anantaraman explained that the President was appointed and also his salary was fixed by His Highness the Maharaja but the Deputy President would be elected and also his salary fixed by the House. The figure of 200 was not arbitrarily arrived at but the Deputy President was required to preside over the deliberations of the Council in the absence of the President, and he had no other duties as the Secretarial duties were the concern of the President. The Finance Minister stated that the Deputy President's remuneration would be called salary and not honorarium, in the phraseology of the Mysore Government Act.

Mr. Anantaraman opposed the amendment, as the amount was not low. In Madras the Deputy Speaker drew Rs. 150 per mensem, while in Bombay Rs. 100 per mensem. The amount was determined on the basis of work and not on the dignity of the office.

The amendment was put to vote and lost.

The original resolution was put to vote and carried by overwhelming majority.

The House took up Government business.

Before the discussion on Civic Guards Bill concluded, the House rose for the day.

Cuttings, June 23

That they will not authorize anybody to say that the present satyagraha was inadequate was the reply given by Dr. Rajendra Prasad to certain questions at the informal discussion held at Swarajya Ashram this afternoon. He emphasised that the present satyagraha was "adequate, sufficient and effective."

Acharya Kripalani participated in the discussion. As regards the suggestion that the present satyagraha should be enlarged to a mass movement, Dr. Kripalani said, that Congress was not prepared to accept men coming from masses to offer satyagraha, but what was required was certain principles and regulations should be followed as it was the case with any army. Provided these conditions were followed Congress had no objection to taking any number of people.

OUTER MONGOLIA-MANCHUKUO FRONTIER

Soviet Japanese Commission To Resume Work

(Ry Cable) London
The Daily Telegraph Moscow Correspondent cabled on June 16:

The Soviet-Japanese Commission created last September for the demarcation of the frontier between Outer Mongolia and Manchukuo will resume its work on the spot on June 27.

A communique explains that work was temporarily abandoned last year because unforeseen technical difficulties had arisen at the time, and the winter was close at hand. As the result of a recent conference, the technical difficulties were removed in an extremely friendly atmosphere."

HITLER'S INVASION OF RUSSIA

Herr Hitler and his Nazi hordes have decided to sweep across Soviet Russia presumably to impress upon the world that its resources are at a stand-still. If it were not so, the Nazi war machine would not have attempted this mad venture. The present invasion reminds us of Napoleon's grand march towards Moscow when so many thousands lost their lives in thick snow fields. Herr Hitler is also heading towards that. The proclamation of Hitler declaring that Germany is at war with Russia is couched in a language that shows desperation and frightfulness in an hour of travail. When the Nazi chief concluded a pact of non-aggression just before this war, the world was put into the safe belief that all would be quiet on the eastern borders of Europe. That belief has now been shattered to the winds by Hitler's suddenness of action.

This unprovoked aggression of the blood thirsty Nazis of Germany has proved that Hitler knows no solemnity in his treaty ventures. When he says that Bolshevism is opposed to National Socialism in deadly enmity, the culmination of it all is its natural ending in terrible war. Indeed, But in 1939 Hitler was all smiles and love to the Soviets and he was forced to extend his hand of friendship to them. Anyhow Hitler is running a mad race for death. In spite of his hundreds of divisions, the thrust at a vast country like Russia would prove a fatal venture.

Soviet Russia has a splendid army of more than 160 divisions and about ten thousand planes. Even if the Blitzkrieg proves menacing they have a vast hinterland to have strategic with drawals. She can fight to the end and come out victorious.

The British Premier's statement this morning has come as a god-send to them. All those who fight Hitler are the friends of Britain. We wish that the British would have wisdom to free India at this critical juncture and secure the co-operation of Indian on an honourable basis. The world is going to shudder and Britain cannot be still adamant over a burning question. Will she have the courage to declare India a free nation? We are sure she has so much imagination to forestall even's.

ROYAL WEDDING PROCESSION

Brilliant Scenes in Mysore

(From our Correspondent)

Mysore June, 22

The various functions connected with the marriage of Srimad-uvvarajakumari Sri Jayachamundammanniavar with His Highness Sri Brajendra Singh Bahadur, Maharaja of Bharatpur concluded today.

This morning at the Lakshmi Vilas, Yanne Sashtira to the Bride and Bridegroom took place.

Later Aupansana, Dakshayani Puja, Nakabali, Mantap Puje, Sukta Parayana, Holalu Suttuvudu, Chambula Charvana, Neela Lobita Puje and Charane Bombe Puje, Panyaha, Vasanta Madhava Puje and Arati Akshate were held.

In the afternoon the Stambha Puje and Mantap Puje took place at the Kalyana Mantap and at the Devaramane were held the Kankana Visarjana and Arati and Devaru Biduvudu.

The Sobalakki Sastra and Arati Akshate for the Bride only took place at the Ambavilas in the evening.

The procession of the new Royal couple took place early in the night.

The pair wearing rich dress and exquisite jewellery arrived amidst hearding at Ane Bagal where high Government and Palace officers, Royal relatives and other distinguished invitees showered flowers on them.

The Royal Couple ascended the richly caparisoned Elephant and sat in the nicely decorated golden howdha.

With all the Royal paraphernalia including Camels, Elephants, Units of Cavalry and Infantry, Palace jillo and other honours, the procession started from the Ane Bagal and marched through the Fort Forth Gate, Albert Victor Road, Sayyaji Rao Road, Irwin Road and Asoka Road. (Dodpet)

At the entrance to the Albert Victor Road near the Statue Square, Mr B. S. Raghavendra Rao, the Municipal President, and Srimati Kameshwaramma along with other members of the Municipal Council presented flowers and garlands to the Royal Couple. Further up, all through the procession route a number of individuals and institutions presented garlands.

The entire procession route was filled with enthusiastic spectators. The crowd lustily cheered the Royal Couple who acknowledged it with courtesy and smile.

The procession route was illuminated with rows of electric lights.

After the procession returned to the Palace, at the Kannadi Thotti, the Vadhu Pravesha Phida Dana, Hala Ukkisava Sastri and Arati Akshate took place. After Arogane (Dinner) Shanti Prasta was held.

THE LEANING TOWER OF PISA

Symbolical now of Mussolini's tottering dictatorship the Leaning Tower of Pisa must some day crash. For many years it has been falling at the rate of one millimetre a year. In the course of a decade its inclination increases by slightly more than one-third of an inch. Another foot of tilt would cause the vertical line of its centre of gravity to fall outside its base, when the walls would begin to crumble and fall.

At the present rate of tilt this process would occur in about 300 years but as the angle of tilt becomes more pronounced the tower falls faster. The seven bells at the top of the campanile are only rung together three times a year and it is probable that they will soon be silenced completely, because the vibration set up by the bells might upset the delicate balance of the tower and accelerate its fall.

Some time ago, attempts were made to anchor the tower by injecting cement into the subsoil of clay and sand to provide a firm foundation. There is no evidence that these experiments have had any effect in checking the fall of the tower.

At one time it was believed that the builders of the tower deliberately planned an eccentric structure but that idea has been disposed of by recent research. The two architects, Romano Pisano and William of Innsbruck intended to build a perpendicular tower. It was not until the first storey had been built that the tower began to tilt.

Pumping

The trouble was caused by water in the soil. The pumping resorted to by the builders merely created holes and fissures in the subsoil. They had sunk foundations nine feet deep without finding a firm soil. By the time the second storey had been completed, the tilt was so pronounced that the builders abandoned the work and did not resume it until some years had passed. When they discovered that the angle showed no apparent tendency to increase, they cautiously completed the tower and saved their "face" by spreading the tale that the tilt of the tower was intended as a memorial to William of Innsbruck, who was a hunchback.

The campanile is 180 feet high and now deviates more than sixteen feet from the perpendicular. That water is still present in the subsoil is indicated by the greenish pool which always surrounds the base of the tower. The urchins of Pisa seem to take a special delight in throwing rubbish into this pool.

In the sixteenth century, Galileo took advantage of the forward thrust of the tower to give a practical demonstration of the truth of his theory that all objects, light and heavy, fall at the same speed.

PROGRESS OF NATIONAL INDUSTRIES

SHIP BUILDING YARD AT VIZAG

"Gandhigram"

(Associated Press of India)

Vizagapatam, June 20

The foundation of Scindia Steam Navigation Company's first ship-building yard at Vizagapatam was laid by Babu Rajendra Prasad today. The present project for erecting a ship-building yard in Vizagapatam was undertaken after the efforts to secure the sites elsewhere had failed. A fifty-five acre site near the harbour was obtained after much delay in negotiation. The site which is considered eminently suited for the purpose possesses the required depth of water wharf, adequate supply of fresh water for dry dock, facilities for sufficient supply of labour and necessary road and rail connections. The shipyard will include storehouses for raw material, a workshop for preparing steel, for construction of hulls and shipways in wharfs for vessels. There will be eight shipways of two berths for large vessels, six to ten thousand tons. The project when fully developed is expected to turn out sixteen vessels annually and employ eight to ten thousand men. The first ship can be launched, it is stated, before the end of 1942.

Babu Rajendra Prasad laying the foundation stone said that the invitation extended to him to perform the ceremony was a testimony not only of the nationalistic policy of the Scindia Company but also the intimate association of national industries of India with the movement for the national independence of the country. He added that the Congress today might be in the wilderness, but it continued as ever to be a symbol of national aspiration for freedom without which economic regeneration of the country was impossible. He said it was the duty of all those who wanted industrial and economic regeneration of the country to aid in every practicable manner those striving and sacrificing for the early emancipation of the land.

Welcome Speech

Mr. Walchand Hirachand welcoming Babu Prasad referred to the difficulties the company had overcome for securing necessary site, etc. He said as a result of strenuous efforts both in India and in England they obtained priorities for some machinery and some steel without which work would come to a dead stop, but the authorities had categorically warned them that these concessions should not be construed to mean that the Government had in any way committed themselves to give special priorities to this scheme for establishment of shipbuilding yard. He said while every maritime country had been actively engaged in these days of war helping its national shipbuilding industry in every possible way, it was a matter for deepest despair for India that those who were struggling to establish ship-building yard in India to build ships therein were called to fulfil impossible conditions, many of which were beyond their control, and that too, after the clarion call of the Admiral that sooner the shipbuilding industry was started the better it was for India. He added it was clear that real industrial

REPLY TO BRITISH WOMEN
INDIAN LADIES GIVE IT HOT
(Associated Press of India)
Wardhagan: June, 21
The following statement has been issued under the signatures of Smt. Sarojini Naidu, Sri. Kameswari Nehru, Mrs. Kameswari Pandit, Rani Laxmi Bai, Mrs. Radha Bai, Mrs. Ammu Swaminathan and Rajkumari Amrit Kaur.
All India Women's Congress in reply to British Women's message to India's women: We have very carefully read your message addressed to Indian Women. We write to you in our individual capacity as well as that of representative members of the All India Women's Congress which as you know is an organisation of fifteen years standing. We mention this to show what we state here is not only our deep personal conviction, but also as far as we can judge, the conviction of a large body of Indian women. It is scarcely necessary to tell you that we appreciate the sincerity of your message, but we are amazed at the attitude betrayed in it of the Indian. Indeed your Prime Minister by contrast shows a grasp of realities which is refreshing. However painful it may be, he has recognitions about the status of India occupies in British hands. It is the dependency which can and is being maintained at British will. He knows he has no need of the consent or cooperation of India's thinking sons and daughters in anything that he wants for fighting her. He takes care to pay tribute to the valour of Indian soldiers, who are part of the army occupation in India. These soldiers, you should know, are utterly unconnected with the social life and activities. They are not free to enjoy any national life without incurring heavy penalties. Nor has your Prime Minister any difficulty of raising money by taxation or the so-called voluntary contributions which he wants to. We do not complain of this helplessness, but we must not be blind to facts. How can there be any such situation of things that is impatient of foreign intervention with the forcible aid we have diverted to. The fact is, we are wholly wrong in our attitude of things. We are surprised at your quoting untruths in your Mr. Roosevelt's announcement. You quote to say that the whole world is divided between human slavery and human freedom. The fact is there is no such thing as human freedom for Asiatic races, only not for India, nor is there for the virile Africans. As a result, whatever it may be of war, will not alter their condition for the better save by their own efforts. As we see realities it is this war between the British Empire and the Nazis and the struggle for world domination, in effect, exploitation of European races. We cannot be in love with democracy and Fascism, but we cannot be expected to be in love with British Imperialism. Perhaps you will understand why we, as women, are not to stand up for truth and violence as against untruth and violence, which surround us. We admire the self-sacrificing British women of

BATTLE OF ATLANTIC
GERMANS SUFFERING HEAVY DAMAGE
First Lord on Britain's Achievement
The Battle of the Atlantic was fierce and eventful, but everyday and every night British counter-attacks, both by surface vessels and aircraft, were increasing and the Germans were undoubtedly suffering heavy damage. This statement was made by Mr. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, speaking at Mansfield.
The destruction of the Bismarck and her supply ships together with the damage inflicted on the Gneisenau and the pocket battleship off Norway would prove great factors in contributing to Britain's ultimate victory in the Battle of the Atlantic.
Although merchant shipping losses in April and May were undoubtedly grievous, it must be remembered that a considerable part of these losses were incurred through German air-raids on Greek ports and that the loss would not recur.
In the face of Germany's intensive counter-blockade the extent to which Britain had maintained food supplies and an increasing flow of imported munitions was a substantial achievement due partly to the new ships built and others purchased, chartered or captured. It remained to bring in the ships ordered in America and the Dominions as well as to increase Britain's own output.
Mr. Alexander expressed the belief that the recent stories of absenteeism and slackness had been greatly exaggerated.
A. P. Bombay, June 22
The Police made a lathi charge and subsequently opened fire and dispersed crowds that resorted to stone-throwing this afternoon. Only a few persons are reported to have sustained minor injuries. It is reported that when a funeral procession of about a thousand strong was nearing its destination, a crowd of about a hundred people belonging to the other community started throwing stones on the main procession. Crowds became restive and turbulent and lathi charge was ordered. One shot was fired which had the desired effect and the crowd dispersed. Earlier in the day one man was fatally stabbed.
whom you write with just pride. How we wish you had taken a braver and prouder part by telling your men to wash their hands clean of human blood. You might not have succeeded all at once, but you would have laid the way to the establishment of permanent peace. We take leave to doubt the wisdom of women aping men in the black art of human slaughter on a scale hitherto unknown.
Lastly, let us point out the anomaly of British women asking India, though a slave nation, to help a slave-owner in distress instead of asking the slave owner to undo the wrong and cure himself of initial sin and thus ensure moral justness of his own position. This presentation of the picture may appear unpleasant to you, but it is nonetheless sincere and we could not answer your sincerity except by being equally sincere.

CONSTRUCTION OF LOCOMOTIVES
Discussion at the Standing Committee
(From our Correspondent)
By Wire SIMLA, June 21
It is understood that discussions of the coming meeting of Standing Finance Committee for Railways will include the question of construction of locomotives in India.
Ajmer Railway Workshops which hitherto was used for manufacture only of Metre-gauge locomotives have now been equipped for Broad-gauge work. According to the latest information the Workshops have accepted an order for Broad-gauge locomotives for the North-Western Railway. These will not be ready before next year.
On receipt of further equipment workshops may be in a position to accept further orders from other Railways. It is stated that the Ajmer workshops are now being employed to maximum capacity with nearly 3,400 workmen. The production of ten locomotives per year will not however be enough to meet all Railway requirements as in 1939 and 40 alone Indian Railways had placed orders outside the country for 58 Broad-gauge Locomotives.

"GET RID OF HERR HITLER"
Mr. Bevin's Letter
A. P. Calcutta, June 21.
"One essential thing at the moment is to get rid of Hitler and his regime in order that we can be free to carry on the work of collaboration as well as constitutional development on an orderly basis" says Mr. Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labour and National Service, in reply to a letter written by Mr. Aftab Ali, President of the Indian Seamen's Union.

RUSSIAN FORCES BEHIND DNIESTER

What has Hitler Promised to Rumania?
Possible Involvement of Soviet Interests
London
(By Cable)
The recent talks in Moscow between Hitler and Gen. Antonescu, the Rumanian dictator, were followed with great interest in Turkish political circles. It was noted that Rumanian publications expressed satisfaction with "Hitler's recognition of Rumanian rights" and added that Rumania "prepares herself to do her duty in South-East Europe."
The Turks believe that the nature of the developments may involve the Soviet and Germany in a clash despite their non-aggression pact.
They deduce that Hitler could not have promised to Rumania the return of Dobruja or Transylvania ceded to Bulgaria and Hungary by Axis orders, but she may have consented to Rumania trying to recover Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina from Russia and using force if persuasion fails.

"WE SHALL HELP RUSSIA"

British Premier's Broadcast

In a broadcast on Sunday night Mr. Churchill, British Premier, analysed the international events culminating in the invasion of Russia by Germany.
He said: "We shall have one aim that is to destroy Hitler and the Nazi regime. We shall never negotiate with Hitler. We shall continue to give fight both in air and sea. We shall bomb German towns day in and day out so as to make the German people feel what suffering they have inflicted on other innocent peoples

"We shall give whatever help,
we shall to Russian people.
We shall offer Russia economic co-operation that is in our power.
This is no class war. This is a war in which the whole of British Empire and the commonwealth of nations is engaged without any distinction of class, creed or party. It is not for me to say what action United States might take in the face of this new event. But if Hitler attacked Russia so as to create diversion for us he is openly mistaken. Russian danger is our danger and that of the United States

Germany hopes to destroy the lives and happiness of millions of people living in China and India by this latest act of aggression. Invasion of Russia is a prelude to the invasion of Britain. He hopes to divert the whole might of army and air force on Britain after he hopes to succeed on Russia.

Mr. Churchill concluded:
"Let us redouble our efforts while life and hope remain."

ASSEMBLY CONGRESS PARTY

LEADER REVIEWS THE SESSION

"Has Endeavoured to Carry Out Congress policy Faithfully and Courageously"

Sgt. K. Chengalaraya Reddy, Leader, Representative Assembly Congress Party, has issued the following statement:—

The first Session of the Representative Assembly under the new Constitution has just come to close. The Congress Party has endeavoured to faithfully reflect the official policy of the Mysore Congress on the floor of the House. The Congress party has worked like a team and it is a matter for congratulation that many non-congressmen have shown their active sympathy and good-will to the stand taken by the Congress on certain vital issues like prohibition, compulsory basic education etc. It is neither possible nor necessary to review in full the work of the Assembly during the last few days. But I am issuing this to state the real position regarding certain matters.

It is being asked by some as to why the Congress Party resorted to a "stay out" at the time of the Dewan's address to the Assembly. That decision was taken after prolonged debate and consideration of all aspects of the matter and it was felt that the least the Mysore Congress could do to demonstrate to the Government as well as to the public their great dissatisfaction at the utterly undemocratic manner in which the new Reforms were implemented, was to stay out. This is a constitutional mode of protest which is usually adopted in analogous circumstances.

There appears to be some misunderstanding in regard to the Representation concerning the removal of disqualifications etc., imposed on Congressmen.
The Representation was allowed to be made in the House after full deliberation as to the propriety or otherwise of doing the same. It was yet another attempt to show to the Government and the public that the Government have been pursuing a policy of vindictiveness against the Congress and an opportunity given to the Govt to state if they so chose, to act fairly and justly at least hereafter. The speeches made on behalf of the Congress and the reply given by the Dewan in this behalf amply prove that the stand taken by the Congress Party was a manly one calling upon the Government to render justice and thereby retrieve their reputation which had been considerably damaged. It was in no sense a case of supplication and it was made abundantly clear that the Satyagrahis neither desired nor sought any favour.

There have been some queries as regards the voting in the Assembly and it has been particularly asked why the Congress had only 74 votes when the Civic Guards' Bill was put to vote. In the first place the method of taking division in the Assembly is highly unsatisfactory.
Taking votes by counting of hands in the Assembly comprising of 310 members is bound to lead to incorrect results. The Congress as well as the Government realised this in the course of the proceedings. Also no division bell was rung to appraise the members who were in the lobbies to enter the House before voting was taken. I drew the attention of the Dewan-President to these deficiencies and it is hoped that arrangements, which are in vogue in popular Assemblies, will be made in our House also. According to the Standing Orders no one can challenge a declaration of the result of voting by the President and therefore we could not challenge the declared result. It is also true that some Congress members who were in the lobbies at the time of voting just before the interval could not participate in the voting. But subsequent voting on other matters amply demonstrated the solidarity and discipline of the Congress Party as also its success in securing the sympathy and support of even non-congress members. The Congress resolution on Basic education secured the willing support of no less than 177 members as against 88 secured by the Government.
The voting on the issue of Prohibition was still more striking in so far as only 32 voted with the Government and the rest either voted with the Congress or remained neutral. The full strength of the Congress except for some absentees for unavoidable reasons was also available at the time of voting on the Salaries' resolution.

I congratulate the members of the Congress Party in the Assembly on the splendid way in which they acquitted themselves through out. I am confident that the Congress Party in the Assembly will grow from strength to strength and will be long be able to secure a greater and more definite support from

ANOTHER TRIPARTITE CO-OPERATION

Reuter's Washington correspondent says that in the quarters it is envisaged a economic co-operation result between United States Russia and Britain.
Lord Halifax, British Ambassador in Washington made special call on Mr. Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State and conferred with him for over two hours even non-congressmen policies and programme of Congress.

The verdicts given by the House in the matter of consorary basic education and prohibition are of considerable importance. It is plain that House constituted as it is now disapproves of the policy the present Government towards these matters and mistakenly wants a change.
The Government will either to implement the wishes of the House or choose to carry on unconstitutional ignoring the wishes of the representatives of the people.
If they choose the latter the demand of the Congress for immediate establishment of Responsible Government is irresistible.

There are several matters on which I may briefly dwell. But I must begin from doing so now.
The Dewan-President though was helpful at times was impartial on certain other matters. To quote one instance the debate on the sala-

Official Advertisements to Newspapers

Replying to a question of Mr. T. Madanah Gowda, the Minister for Law stated that the 'Tainadu', the 'Viswakarnataka' and the 'Deshabandhu' were getting on an average Rs. 1200, 800 and Rs. 6,000 per year respectively by way of advertisement charges from Government. Instructions had been issued that the 'Deshabandhu' might also be given advertisements of the Judicial Department.

The Minister told Mr. D.S. Mallappa that none of these three papers had obtained Government loan.

ter, stated that the Government had not instructed that judicial advertisements should not be given to the 'Tainadu' and the 'Viswakarnataka'. He presumed they were getting such advertisements. There was no Government circular that the 'Deshabandhu' alone should be subscribed, and not the 'Tainadu' and the 'Viswakarnataka' by the Village Panchayats.

Mr. G. Girimaji Rao: Is it not a fact that the Director of Public Instruction has issued a circular that the 'Tainadu' should not be subscribed for by the schools?

Answer: Notice.

The Minister stated the Government was not partial in distribution of advertisements to newspapers.

Mr. A. Bhimappa Naik: Is it to be considered that the payment of Rs. 6000 to the 'Deshabandhu' is subsidy for that paper's support to Government? (laughter)

No answer was given.

To Mr. T. Mariappa's question the Revenue Minister replied that a circular had been issued that village officials should not take part in political activities. Prior to 1939, such circulars had been issued twice, he added.

Fierce Battle on the Russian front

Great battle is raging among several points on the 1,500 mile front from the Baltic to the Black sea between Russian and German armies.

Latest news is given in a communique issued by the High Command of the Red Army. Germans seem to have occupied Brest-Litovsk but far from the demarcation between German and Soviet Occupied Poland. North of Brest-Litovsk Germans occupied three villages.

A heavy thrust was made along the Lithuanian capital on Sunday afternoon but was repulsed by Red Army with destruction of German 148 mm. anti-aircraft. Further south another German thrust was made on a triangle facing the Ukraine but here too Germans were hurled back by counterattacks of the Red Army. Communique gives no details of the fighting on Rumanian front.

The air communique says that Soviet have destroyed 32 German planes on Monday thus making total of 126 enemy planes in the first two days of the war. Communique also mentions the capture of 2000 German prisoners including several officers.

Replying to supplementary questions, the General Secretary said some of the non-officials who were consulted in respect of the report of the Public Service Commissioner were members of the Council. The Public Service Commissioner had since submitted his final report and the Government's final order was likely to be issued shortly. The Commissioner's report was based on the rules in force in Mysore and elsewhere. It was not possible to state whether the Government would obtain the opinion of the Assembly and the Council on the Commissioner's report.

Mr. D. S. Mallappa: If the Government do not consult these members before they pass the final order, will it not give room for public agitation?

The General Secretary further stated that the Government had not passed any interim order but had expressed their opinion in some of the proposals of the Commissioner.

WEDNESDAY—JUNE 25, 1941

MYSORE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

The first session of the newly reformed Legislative Council has been conducting its business in an entirely changed atmosphere. In the sessions of the old Council Dewan used to preside and his colleagues in the Executive Council were seated on the dais. In the present session the fact that a non-official President presides, lends a new charm to the proceedings. The Ministers, all the four, are seated on the floor of the House along with other members of the Council. This is an indication of the changed circumstance that those Ministers enjoy no greater privileges than other members. And it was particularly gratifying to find that the President insisted on the observance of the ceremony of oath-taking on Ministers also. This may be considered by pedants as a very small point, but we, who have an intimate acquaintance with public opinion, can vouchsafe to the fact that the non-official section of the House has felt more than satisfied on the stand the President took. This is a primary advantage in having a non-official President. From the proceedings of the Council on the first day, we find that the non-official President has acquitted himself well and has done his best to uphold the rights and privileges of members, in the matter of supplementary questions. Even though the Minister sought the protection of the chair, the President insisted that straightforward replies should be given to members. We hope that the President would consider himself to be a custodian of the rights and privileges of members of the House irrespective of the consideration that they are Ministers, ex-officio members, nominated members or elected members.

We find indeed a great difference between the atmosphere of the Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council. This difference is mostly due to the fact that in the one body the Dewan who is the Executive Chief presides and in the other, non-official who has no part or lot with the Executive presides. This makes all the difference. The Dewan, however liberal and progressive he may be, cannot associate himself from the notion that he is the framer and signator of Governmental policies and actions, and that he should be the custodian of the rights and privileges of Government. As such there comes an inevitable clash when as President he has to control a House which sometimes expresses a strong opposition to Governmental policies and actions. He cannot fulfil the noble function of being a custodian of Government interests as well as of the rights and privileges of independent members. Necessarily, the Assembly has to reduce itself to a body of petitioners or of people who make representations to Government. All these long years, the Representative Assembly functioned no more than as a petitioning body. Whenever it raised its head in independence, Dewan used to snub it and in its very nature, the Assembly could not rise to the stature of a Parliamentary body or a House of Legislature.

In the recent session of the Assembly, the untenability of Dewan presiding over the House was brought out clearly on more than one occasion. It is impossible for Dewan to conduct the proceedings of the House quite impartially specially when clashes occur between the Executive and non-officials. The temptation is greater for Dewan to lean towards those, who for the time being, maintain law and order. It is not a personal defect, but it is a defect inherent in the system itself.

We, therefore, appeal to Government to see to it that from the next session of the Representative Assembly, a non-official presides over the Assembly meetings. This reform is necessary in the interests of Government itself. The Dewan also would be saved from unnecessary odium. If it is necessary, an amendment of the Act may be introduced to effect the necessary reform.

From what we observed of the proceedings of the newly constituted Legislative Council on the very first day, we are prompted to urge on the Government the desirability and necessity of having a non-official President for the Assembly also. We hope, the public would take up this question and agitate effectively with a view to having the necessary reform achieved.

MEETING OF LABOURERS

Congress Leaders Address

Bangalore, June, 23

A public meeting was held at the Municipal Gardens, Bangalore on the evening of the 23rd inst. 4 to 5 thousand labourers from the several Mills in the City had gathered. Sjt. K. T. Bhaskaraya presided. Sjt. K. Chongalaya Reddy, K. Samyannam Kamaya and Malavalli Veerappa spoke. They pointed out that negotiations were going on for a speedy settlement of the Labour disputes and it was rather inopportune to make any lengthy speeches on the merits or otherwise of the disputes between the Mill-owners and the labourers. They congratulated the labourers for putting up an united front and cheerfully taking up the suffering on themselves in a truly non-violent manner. They appealed to the labourers to strengthen their Union in all possible ways and more especially by increasing the members on the roll. They hoped that a speedy settlement agreeable to all parties would be arrived at.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

FIRST DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

Bangalore, June 23

The Mysore Legislative Council passed a resolution, today, fixing the Deputy President's salary at Rs. 200 per mensem.

The resolution was moved by the Finance Minister. Khan Bahadur Mohamed Abbas Khan moved an amendment that the salary should be Rs. 500.

Mr. L. S. Raja (Congress) opposing the amendment said that the dignity of the Deputy President did not rest upon the salary he received but upon other qualities he possessed.

Mr. T. Ramachandra (Nominated), Mr. Rudrappa (Congress) and Mr. T. Mariappa (Congress) opposed the amendment.

The amendment was put to vote and declared lost.

Mr. H. Venkataramayya (Tumkur) opposing the main resolution stated that the Deputy President had no work to perform which necessitated salary.

Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy (Mysore) agreed with the previous speaker.

Mr. L. Vema Reddy (Kolar) supported the resolution.

Mr. S. Narayana Rao (Congress) said the House generally favoured the resolution which, he hoped, would have a far-reaching effect on the relations of different groups in the House.

A Point of order

A point of order was raised whether the House could refuse to vote for the Deputy President's salary contrary to the direction of the Act.

The President ruled that the House could discuss "no salary" motion also.

The resolution was put to vote and carried by overwhelming majority; 49 voted for and 3 against.

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) requested the Chair to make division arrangement in accordance with the observance of democratic principles in the House.

The Finance Minister, then, presented the State budget with a speech. His speech is published elsewhere in this issue.

Amendment of Foreigners

Registration Act

The Minister of Law (Mr. A. V. Ramanathan) moved that the sub order 2 (a) of Standing Order 31 be suspended and that the Registration of Foreigners (Amendment) Bill be taken into consideration at once. The definition of "foreigner" in section 2 of the Registration of Foreigners Act, 1940, said the Minister, did not indicate the nationality, after marriage, of a woman who was not a foreigner but was married to one. According to well-known principles of international law as well as under the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, a woman took, after marriage, the nationality of the husband. In order under the Act, that might arise was proposed to be added to the definition of "foreigner" that a foreigner should be deemed to be a foreigner.

The Law Secretary (Mr. H. V. Narayana Rao) seconded the motion.

Congress Opposes

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) opposing stated there was no sufficient reason for suspending standing order thus depriving the House from exercising its privilege in this behalf.

Mr. Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar particularised the Bill as a "prudent and wise" measure.

Mr. A. Bheemappa Naik (Congress) supported his Leader.

The motion for suspension of Standing Order was put to vote and declared carried by 41 votes to 16. The Congress Party voted against the motion.

The motion for taking the Bill into consideration at once was put to vote and declared carried. The Congress Party did not vote.

The House rose for lunch.

Re-assembling after lunch, the House passed the bill; the Congress Party again remained neutral.

Civic Guards Bill

The Minister for Law (Mr. A. V. Ramanathan) moved that suspending sub order 2 (a) of Standing Order 31 the Civic Guards Bill be taken into consideration at once. The bill provided for the constitution of civic guards and their functions and duties. It afforded the civil population opportunity to help the police in the protection of life and property of the people in times of danger. In peace time, the civic guards might well engage themselves in rousing civic consciousness in the people. In the Representative Assembly the Minister stated that the civic guards were free to resign and he repeated that assurance. The Minister hoped that the Civic Guards would be a well-knit and permanent organisation in the State doing civic work. Already about 600 persons had enrolled as Civic Guards.

The Law Secretary seconded the motion.

Mr. Mariappa's opposition

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) said that no emergency to protect life and property in the State had arisen which required a measure of the kind suggested. To do public service no act was necessary and the Red Cross work, for instance, worked without any law.

Messrs O.S.N. Sheriff, M.C. Linga Gowda, T. Ramachandra and G. Girmaji Rao supported the measure.

Voluntary Effort proposed

Mr. L.S. Raju (Congress) said that the measure was 'important' as it was full of mischief. One member saw goondaism in Nazim But Mr. Raju had no doubt in stating that goondaism was present in imperialism and also in the future Civic Guards. He felt that voluntary effort based on sacrifice and love was more beneficial than the civic guards. The speaker suggested to the Minister for Law to provide funds for the Congress Party to establish a volunteer corps which would have the courage to sacrifice for others. It was dangerous, he added, to suspend standing orders to get through the bill.

Mr. A. Bheemappa Naik (Congress) opposed the motion for suspension of Standing Order.

Mr. Mohamed Sait (Mysore) preferred voluntary effort to Government "jabardasti."

Mr. Belur Defends

Mr. Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar said that Mysore copied the best that was in British India. Did not the Mysore Congress copy the name of the British Indian Congress, he asked. The speaker in-

Official Advertisements To Newspapers

Government Policy Questioned In Council

Bangalore, June 23

At question time in the Mysore Legislative Council, a volley of questions was put regarding official advertisements to newspapers.

Replying Mr. T. Tare (Gowda Law (Rajasevaprakashta A. Ramanathan) stated that the Government had been giving advertisements to be published in the Kannada Dailies of the Mysore State and those papers were the 'Tainadu' the 'Deshabandhu' and the 'Viswakarnataka'. All published in Bangalore. 'Tainadu' advertisements in the 'Tainadu' had been stopped from December 1940 to April 1941 (inclusive) and in the 'Viswakarnataka' from November 1939 to August 1940 (inclusive) but advertisements had been resumed to them now. The Government had not been recommending only the 'Deshabandhu' to the village panchayats from last year. Advertisement to the 'Tainadu' had been stopped when there was no need.

Question: Whether it had come to notice of the Government that almost all the village Panchayats in Pavagada Taluk are getting the 'Deshabandhu' whether they are aware that many of the Village Panchayats where there are no facilities for daily post are getting bundles of seven copies of consecutive dates of the 'Deshabandhu' on one day?

Answer: Government had no information.

Question: Whether the Government will be pleased to give any instructions to the local Revenue Officers in the State to see that proper discretion is used by the Village Panchayats in getting newspapers?

Answer: Specific instructions to this effect do not appear necessary.

Answering supplementary questions, the Minister stated that the Village Panchayats asked permission to subscribe for the 'Deshabandhu' and permission was granted. The members might bring to notice of Government the cases where the Village Panchayats were forced to subscribe to the 'Deshabandhu'.

Mr. T. Mariappa: Do the Government give advertisements to the 'Deshabandhu' to be published daily and to the 'Tainadu' and the 'Viswakarnataka' once or twice weekly?

The Minister for Law: Planning for advertisement campaign cannot be canvassed on the floor of this house.

Question: In giving advertisements, is not circulation of the paper most important?

Answer: Not necessary.

Question: Is it not a fact that one by name Mr. Desikachari, deed welcomed voluntary effort. If they had Rajus, Chongalaya Reddys and Venkatappas only, we would not require this measure at all in the State. But where are we, he exclaimed.

Mr. T. Madayya Gowda (Congress) Mrs. Yashodhara Dasappa (Congress) and two other members opposed the measure.

Discussion on this bill had not been concluded when the House rose for the day.

PRESENTATION OF BUDGET

FINANCE MINISTER'S SPEECH

Bangalore, June, 23.—Presenting the annual budget, the Minister for Revenue and Finance said:—

1. (1) of the Government of 1940 lays down in respect of every year, a statement of the State for that year to be laid by Government and the Legislative Assembly. I am accordingly presenting the annual financial Budget for 1941-42. The Council will deal with two stages first a general statement and next the vote demands for grants.

2. The Budget and of the Memorandum presented by the Finance Minister have already been sent to you. Copies of the Budget and the closing of the Representative Assembly this month have been provided to the Secretary's Memo and of the Dewan's speech at the Representative Assembly will give you a clear idea of the details of the Budget and also of the features noticeable in it. The general features of the Budget as also the provision of revenue and expenditure have been discussed at the Representative Assembly and also in the Press are doubtless aware of discussions. It is therefore necessary for me to explain the Budget at any length. I confine myself to a brief statement of the salient features of the Budget.

3. Estimated of 1940-41

The Budget for the current year is based on a Revenue of Rs. 439.61 lakhs and an expenditure of Rs. 438.61 lakhs. In the Budget, an improvement of Rs. 60 lakhs in revenue is expected, and the revised provision of expenditure shows a saving of Rs. 25.98 lakhs. The revenue transactions of the year are thus expected to be with a surplus of Rs. 45,000 lakhs anticipated.

4. Estimated 1941-42

For the coming year, I expect to realise a revenue of Rs. 458.24 lakhs and to expend Rs. 454.24 lakhs. The result being a surplus of Rs. 1.20 lakhs.

5. Important changes in the Budget introduced during the year have been referred to in para 15 of the Secretary's Memorandum. I will explain the large changes between the Original Estimates of the current year and between the Budget Estimates of the current year.

6. I invite the attention of the members of the Council to the published on pages 2 and 3 of the Memorandum. The Government is increasing the provision for development department on account of Administrative and Protection being at the minimum level.

The expenditure on the Medical, Irrigation, Education, Agriculture and Industries Departments shows appreciable increase.

Among the big additions to expenditure provided in the next year's Budget, mention may be made of (1) Rs. 1 lakh on account of extra expenditure connected with the Constitutional Reforms (2) Rs. 2.79 lakhs for new irrigation works (3) Rs. 3 lakhs for the expansion of primary education and the revision of the salaries of teachers in Primary and Secondary Schools, (4) Rs. 3 lakhs for the Bangalore City Drainage scheme and (5) Rs. 1 lakh for the Chitaldurg water supply scheme.

Substantial contributions have been provided to the Irrigation Development Fund, the Inter-Village Road Fund and the Industrial Development Fund.

Capital Programme

The Jog Falls Project, the running of a second power line from Mysore to Bhadravathi and the electrification of towns are the important items of Hydro Electric works provided for in the next year's Budget. Under Irrigation Works, a provision of Rs. 2.50 lakhs has been provided to open the left bank channel from Mandagere anicut and to improve the Chamarajwadi Left Bank Channel estimated to cost Rs. 5.12 lakhs, sanctioned during the current year.

A provision of Rs. 18 lakhs has been included for improvements to the rolling and for the manufacture of hoops, etc., in the Iron and Steel Works, Bhadravathi.

Public Debt:

The 6 per cent loan for about one crore of rupees was discharged during the current year and the discharge of the 6 per cent loan for Rs. 25.39 lakhs on 1st November, 1941 has been notified. After the discharge of these loans, the outstanding public debt will stand at about Rs. 7 crores, repayable only after 1951. For the discharge of the outstanding debt on the due dates, the annual contribution of Rs. 18.78 lakhs from the Revenue Account (with interest accruing thereon) will be continued.

As explained in the Dewan's speech, against a total liability of about 14 1/2 crores on account of permanent and unfunded debt, the investment on productive works is about 20 crores.

I invite reference to page 39 of the Financial Secretary's Memorandum, which contains an analysis of the revenue and expenditure of the State in two parts, Part I relating to ordinary revenue and expenditure, and Part II referring, on the one hand, to the interest charge-borne by Government on their borrowings—both funded and unfunded debt—and the contribution for a Sinking Fund for the repayment of the Public Loans on the dates of maturity, and on the other to the net receipts realised from the—productive capital works on which the borrowings are invested. It will be seen therefrom that the results of Part II are showing surplus since 1934-35, i.e., the undertaking of these productive works has resulted in profits (after meeting interest and sinking fund charges) and the profits so realised have increased from about Rs. 6 lakhs during next year. Out of this surplus, it is proposed to utilise Rs. 43.48 lakhs for the need of the ordinary administration, which should otherwise have been met

Congratulations to Non-Official President

Mr. K. V. Anantarama's Speech

Bangalore, June 23.—Rajamantaprasanna K. V. Anantarama congratulating Mr. D. H. Chandrasekharaiah, First Non-official President, Legislative Council said:—

Before we begin the proceedings of this session, the first under the Reformed Constitution, I rise to offer you the heartiest congratulations of the members of the Council on your appointment as the President of this Council. This appointment marks a great change—a forward change—in the constitution of this Council. Till now the President and the Vice Presidents were the Executive heads of the administration. Hereafter the Council will carry on the work of Legislation with the Members of Government and the Non-official Members working together on an equal basis under the Presidency of one who belongs neither to the Government nor to the parties in the house. We are glad indeed that the selection for the President's place should have fallen on you who has had such a long and useful experience as a member of the Houses of Legislature. The duties of the President are as various as they are important. He presides over the deliberations of the House and enforces the observance of all rules for preserving order in its proceedings. He is the guardian of the rights, powers and privileges of the house. It has been said that the authority of the Speaker in the House of Commons in England has been the result not so much of express rules but of long custom, ancient ceremonial and deliberate policy. We have, in this Council, to develop conventions and traditions calculated to ensure smooth and orderly working. This will naturally depend on the manner and extent to which the members of the House and the President work in mutual co-operation.

On behalf of the members of this House, I offer you our whole-hearted co-operation in the arduous and important duties that you enter upon today and wish you a most successful term of office.

By increased or additional taxation I am sure that you will agree that the capital investment and public borrowing stand fully justified, taking the results, as a whole.

It is true that we should be prepared to meet a contingency of large shortage in the revenue from the Gold Mines and our commercial enterprises, some time or other in the future, but as a safeguard against the risk, our expenditure programme each year always includes a large provision for non-recurring or special items of expenditure which is susceptible of alteration or reduction in the light of the available resources for financing expenditure. We have also been trying to minimise the recurring expenditure as far as practicable.

In conclusion, I may state that the financial position of the State is sound.

The Finance Department has been endeavouring and will continue to endeavour to regulate the annual expenditure within the resources available and also to realize maximum economy and efficiency for the money spent or proposed to be spent.

Revenue Inspector, is canvassing for the 'Deshabandhu'.

Answer:—That question does not arise.

The Chief Secretary replied to a question that he and the Publicity Officer distributed advertisements under order of Government and this year Rs. 1,20,000 had been allotted for advertisements half of which was to be met by Commercial bodies.

Mr. A. Bhimappa Naik:—Should not the Government give more advertisements to papers having large circulations?

Answer:—It depends upon the nature of benefits expected of such advertisements.

Question:—What is the policy pursued by Government in extending advertisement patronage to newspapers?

The Minister sought the protection of the chair.

The President:—The members want to know the policy underlying the advertisement patronage to newspapers. He is within his limits.

Question:—Has the advertisement patronage by the Government anything to do with the policy of papers?

Answer:—It is not in the interest of the public to link up the two.

Answering another question, the Minister stated that the Government had not recommended the "Tanadu" and the "Visvakarnataka" for the village panchayats to subscribe as such recommendation was not necessary.

Mr. G. Girmaji Rao:—When those papers are full with the Congress news, have they space for advertisements? (laughter).

Mr. T. Mariappa:—Do papers apply for advertisement patronage?

The Minister said he was unable to reply.

To another question, the Minister replied that the distribution of advertisements to papers was made to the requirements of clientele, territory and the factor's needs. He further stated that the Commercial concerns determined the benefits accruing from advertisements in particular papers.

Question:—Have you a list of newspapers which can be subscribed by for the village panchayats?

Answer:—I cannot answer in respect of a matter which does not exist.

The President:—you answer the question straightaway.

Answer:—There is no such list.

Question:—Who is responsible for suggesting papers which can be subscribed by the village panchayats.

Answer:—I have no information that I can usefully add to what I have already stated.

NOMINATION TO LABOUR SEAT Dissatisfaction Among Labourers

Bangalore June 23

Great dissatisfaction prevails among the labourers in as much as the Government have nominated a non-labourer to represent them in the Legislative Council. It is against the spirit in which privileges were sought to be accorded to the labourers in Mysore by giving seats for their representatives in the legislatures. That a nomination came to be made instead of allowing the workers themselves to choose their own representative is unsatisfactory enough. But the nomination of a non-labourer has made the matters worse.

TOWARDS RUSSIA

Mr. Eden Explains in Commons

RUSSIA WAS NOT DISLOYAL TO

Mr. Eden explained the British path to the House of Commons that Britain was taking in co-operation with Russia in the Hitlerite Empire. The Government made it clear during the period of collaboration that assistance will be mutual and reciprocal basis upon Britain agreed.

As regards Poland Mr. Eden said that the Polish Nation would gain them their freedom. "Our policy for Poland remained."

German allegation answered

Discussing German allegations against Anglo-Soviet agreement Mr. Eden said "though we desired much such an agreement between the Balkan countries were run by Germany no such agreement unfortunately presented itself and the reason for this was Soviet desire to severance of their pact with Germany." Mr. Eden revealed that before German attack he had warned Soviet Ambassador of the danger to his country but Soviet Government even then were reluctant to avoid expression of opinion. QUESTION OF CIVIL LIST OF RULERS

DISCUSSED IN SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF RULERS

"SEPARATE PERSONAL EXPENDITURE FROM EXPENDITURE ON STATE ADMINISTRATION"

(Associated Press of India)

Bombay, June 25

The Special Committee of Rulers met today to examine the items which should ordinarily be charged to the Rulers' Civil List and the reasonable basis whereon it should be settled where it has not been separated already from expenditure on State administration.

His Highness the Jamsaheb, the Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes, presided. Others present included the Maharaja of Bikaner, His Highness the Maharaja of Dewas and Their Highnesses of Sangli and Wankar.

It was noted from information received from various States that a substantial majority of the members of the Chamber of Princes had already separated the personal expenditure of the Ruler as distinct from the expenditure on State administration and had settled it on a reasonable basis and that in most other cases the matter was receiving active consideration.

In this connection it was recalled the Chamber of Princes unanimously adopted a resolution which inter alia recommended settlement upon a reasonable basis of purely personal expenditure of the Ruler as distinguished from public charges of administration. A tentative list of items framed by His Highness of Bikaner was considered in the light of tentative decisions of the last meeting of the special Committee. Certain unanimous decisions reached, which were placed before the Princes' Standing Committee, are not intended to fetter the discretion of individual Rulers, but are designed to assist such Rulers as had not already done so and may so already done to separate their civil desire to separate their civil list from public charges of administration or to review demarcation of civil list already made in their budgets.

MYSORE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

An Interesting Point of Order
Bangalore, June 24
In the Mysore Legislative Council, today, at question-time, the President observed that the members should sit down after the first questions being asked. Such a practice was in vogue in well-known assemblies.

Several members represented that this arrangement would cause considerable inconvenience to them. The present practice of the member, standing till he exhausted his questions and elicited replies might be continued.

When the Leader of the House did not resume his seat upon after he replied to a question put to him, the attention of the Chair was drawn, and amidst laughter he took his seat.

The Leader of the House (Mr. K. V. Anantaraman) however, agreed with the Chair that two members should be standing in the House simultaneously. As soon as the member puts the question, he should resume his seat so that the concerned member on the Treasury Bench might rise in his seat to reply. If this new arrangement were followed, the Leader of the House added, many of the supplementary questions that were being put at present and that were not directed at eliciting information would themselves be ruled out.

Mr. K. Shankaranarayana Rao suggested that the "older section" of the House might be exempted from the observance of the new arrangement if it came to force.

Mr. M. P. Somasekhara Rao said that there was no justifiable reason to depart from the practice hitherto followed in the House. No inconvenience he declared, was caused by the prevailing arrangement.

Mr. C. Narasimhaiah observed that the members need not learn to stand "when to sit and when to stand." He and several members including Messrs Belur Narasimha Ayyangar, Mr. D. S. Lalappa, L. S. Raju, P. Mahalingam, T. Mariappa and L. S. Reddy favoured the continuance of the present arrangement.

The President said he would be ruling tomorrow, after considering the observations made by the members.

Questions and Government Members
When the House was about to proceed with the election of its Deputy President, Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) submitted that a healthy discussion might be developed in the House, constituted under the new Reforms, by the Government Group refraining from participating in non-official elections, as such participation influenced the results thereon, although they, as members, had no right to vote.

Belur Narasimha Ayyangar observed that no effort should be made to take away the fundamental right namely right to vote of any member of the House. The Leader of the House (Mr. K. V. Anantaraman) said under the altered conditions of the new Reforms, the Government Group was only 13 members in a House of 64; they were obviously a minority. It was not correct to suggest that a particular group of members should not exercise their right to vote. Government had considered thoroughly the point raised, and the Minister added, the Government members would exercise their vote.

Organisation and Administration of Primary Schools

Dr. K. N. Kiani's Suggestions to Teachers

Bangalore, June 24
Dr. K. N. Kiani, M. A. (Hons.) A. M., Ph. D., DIP. EDN., Special Officer, Elementary Education, Bangalore, as President of the Bangalore District Primary School Teachers Conference held to-day made the following speech:

This is a Conference of teachers engaged in imparting instruction to the children of Primary Schools. As such I would like to talk to the teachers as a person who has had something to do with the organisation and administration of Primary Schools in some capacity or other during the past six years.

Firstly every teacher should go to the school in time and remain in the school during the school time and impart instruction to the children during the entire school time. No teacher should be absent without taking leave.

Secondly no teacher should go to the classes without previous preparation. A teacher who goes to the class without preparation wastes his time and that of his pupils.

Thirdly every teacher who handles the I Year Class should have a record of the lessons finished by each pupil of that class at the end of each week. He should survey the progress of each child as the school year goes on, and be in a position to pull up the children who are backward in their studies. This record will enable us to reduce stagnation and consequent wastage in Primary Education, which is colossal at present.

Fourthly every teacher in a village should know the parents of the children and should be able to advise the parents on the education of their children. Parental Co-operation is of the utmost value in the spread of mass education.

Fifthly every village school should maintain a list of children of the village between the ages of 6 and 12 who are not in the school. It is the duty of the teachers to ascertain why each child is not sent to the school and they should persuade their parents to send them to school so that they might become literate.

Sixthly every teacher should study Educational Psychology with special reference to child development and should base his instruction on the most modern principles of Educational Psychology. It is the business of the teacher to make his instruction interesting to the child and see that interest is maintained throughout the school period.

The seventh point is the school should teach children habits of personal cleanliness. Most children, especially in rural parts, come with very dirty clothes and with unclean bodies. Half an hour a day spent on teaching the children how to be clean would be well spent. Keeping the school premises and the school building clean and neat would be a good lesson to the children in enabling them to keep their houses tidy.

The eighth point is children should be taken to the surrounding places and should be taught Geography, from a practical point of view. They should be taught how to study nature and learn simple scientific truths directly from nature. In this manner the children's vocabulary and language in general will improve because they will be more interested to know about things and natural phenomena in their natural setting them in the class room.

The ninth point is that a teacher should read one daily news paper, gather general information about every day happenings, and interest children in them without transgressing into the field politics. In the IV Year Primary Class talks may be given to them about the course of the present war with the aid of the World map. It would be most fruitful instruction to tell them about the events happening in Mysore State and ask them to read out to the other children of the class well selected portions.

The tenth point is that the village teacher should interest himself in adult education. He should try his very best to found an adult education class. If adults are educated the education of children will be an easy affair.

The Government have graciously improved the scales of the Primary Schools Teachers. It will be possible hereafter for a large number of Primary School Teachers to rise up to a pay of Rs. 40 per month and earn a pension of Rs. 20 per mensem, provided they work hard and earn their increments in each grade and earn the successive grades that are open to them to get. If any teacher does not work hard and does not rise in the Department, the mistake will be his own and not that of the Government.

PURIFYING SAND FOR GLASS MANUFACTURE

CHEAPER PROCESS DEVELOPED

Industrial Research Bulletin

Simla June 26

How the Iron content of certain Indian sands can be reduced to below the limit of 5 parts in 10,000 thus making the sands suitable for the manufacture of high quality glassware, is shown in the Indian Industrial Research Bureau Bulletin entitled "Purification of Indian Glass-making Sands," issued by the Director of Scientific and Industrial Research today.

The process described in the Bulletin is suitable to Indian glass manufacturers in areas where high quality sands are not locally available. It does not involve the use of mechanical equipment and is stated to be cheaper than other known processes. Its commercial success has already been put up to test abroad.

Purity of sand is essential to glass-making. While some sources yield sand of sufficient purity the majority of the sands are contaminated with iron particles of iron which impart a greenish tinge to the glass. For the manufacture of clear colourless glass, sands of relatively high degree of purity are sought. Such sands may have as low an iron content as one or two parts in 10,000 parts of sand. Higher proportions of iron, say up to 5 parts in 10,000 can be conveniently dealt with by using certain neutralising chemicals aided directly to the raw materials forming the glass batch.

The majority of sands, however contain as much as 40 to 50 parts or more of iron in 10,000 parts. Such sands can only be used for low quality glass. However, certain chemical processes have been developed for purifying these sands and the Bulletin deals with the application of such a process to sands of Indian origin.

In India most of the glass factories are situated in the United Provinces and obtain their supply of sand either from Bargahat and Loghar near Naini or from Sawai Madhopur in Jaipur State. The price of these sands varies from Rs. 3 to Rs. 4 per ton at the sand pits. Owing to long distances from the sand pits, factories in Calcutta and Bombay have to pay as much as Rs. 15 to Rs. 25 per ton. By applying the forces described in the Bulletin to locally available sands, manufacturers could effect substantial economies in transport costs.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Third Day's Proceedings

FREEDOM OF VOTE TO GOVT.
OFFICIALS

Questions in Council

BANGALORE, June 25
When Mr. D. H. Chandrasakurthy took his seat on the Presidential chair at 12 noon today in the Council Hall, the third day's proceedings of the budget session of the Mysore Legislative Council commenced.

At question-time, Mr. M.
Madayya was informed by the General Secretary (Mr. J.
Appaji Gowda) that the Public Service Commissioner's proposals regarding the proportion of appointments to be reserved for the candidates of the depressed classes were under the consideration of Government.

Mr. H. Venkatramayya: After the expiry of the term of office of the present Public Service Commissioner whether the Government would appoint a Mysorean to that post?

Mr. J. A. Gowda:—Government cannot commit to it in advance.

Village Officers and Elections

Mr. A. Bheemappa Naik elicited the information from the Minister for Local Self-Government (Mr. H. B. Gundappa) that there was no circular or rule preventing Government servants to vote for any candidate they liked in the General Elections.
They could exercise their vote in favour of a candidate who had stood on the Congress ticket if they so chose. There was a circular allowing freedom of voting to Government servants.

Answering supplementary questions, the Minister said he was not aware that several village officers had been served notices by their superior officers taking objection to their voting for Congress candidates. The Government might have received petitions alleging interference of officers in free exercise of vote by officials in elections. If necessary Government would enquire into the matter.

Mr. L. S. Raju:—Is it the policy of the Government to give almost freedom to vote to officials as they liked?

Answer:—Surely.

Question:—Do Government take serious notice of infringement of such policy by any Officer?

Answer:—Surely.

Mr. C. Narasimhayya (Mysore). was replied by the Secretary, P.W.D. (Mr. M.G. Mehleri) that the construction of the Kapini reservoir for generating power was deterred but the question of taking it up for irrigation purposes was under consideration of Government.

SOVIETU. S. A. LIFTS BAN ON RUSSIAN ASSETS

The United States Treasury has lifted restrictions on Russian money assets in the United States. The Secretary of Treasury, Mr. Margenthau, has signed an order after consulting the Department of Justice. The action in effect reverses President Roosevelt's order of June 14 freezing all Russian assets in the United States. It is apparently the first concrete step to aid the Soviet against Germany.

appoint the President, Legislative Council as the person before whom every member of the Legislative Council shall before taking his seat, take and subscribe to the oath of allegiance to H. H. the Maharaja in the form set out in the schedule of the Government of Mysore Act 1940.

"Deshabandhu" Editorial

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) drew the attention of the chair that the "Deshabandhu" dated 24th June 1941 had attributed motives to the Congress Party in the House in respect of questions put by it about the distribution of official advertisements to newspapers. He requested the Chair to take proper action on the paper and guard the privileges of the members of the House.

The President assured that he would peruse the editorial of the paper and take action if necessary.

Mr. L. S. Raju on Res. Govt.

General discussion of the State Budget then commenced with the speech of Mr.
L. S. Raju who strongly pleaded for the establishment of full responsible Government in the State. He characterised the new Reforms as not even being a shadow of democracy. He condemned the introduction of the State which was a "pernicious system" and not recommended by any committee appointed in the State.

QUESTION-TIME IN COUNCILPROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED BY MEMBERS

President's Ruling

Bangalore, June 25

Regarding the arrangement to be followed by the members, during question time the President gave a ruling today in the Legislative Council, which stated:

The point raised yesterday is as to whether a member who desires to put a series of supplementary questions should resume his seat after asking a supplementary question and after receiving an answer to it rise again to put his next question, and whether the member answering the question should similarly rise when he answers, resume his seat and then rise again to answer the next supplementary question. It is a well-known principle of Parliamentary practice and procedure that only one member should speak at a time, and that he should rise when speaking. This appears to be the practice prevailing in almost all deliberative assemblies, even with reference to the putting of supplementary questions and the mode of answering them. In the case of supplementary questions, this procedure, to which the members of this House have not been accustomed in the past, may perhaps cause inconvenience to them by neces-itating frequent risings and resumption of seats on their part, and this aspect of the matter has also been admitted by the Leader of the House. The Mysore Legislative Rules and the Standing Orders of this House do not however contain any specific provision regarding the procedure to be followed in the matter of supplementary questions and answers. In view of the general desire expressed by a large section of the House, the Chair is in favour of continuing the old practice and watching its progress for some time. It is hoped that the opportunity thus afforded for two members standing at the same time on the floor of the House would not be utilised to put an endless flow of supplementary questions, or to carry on a regular dialogue or for both of the members to speak simultaneously or for infringing the scope of supplementary questions.

Mr. Munshi Explains

I AM A BELIEVER IN
"AKHADA" MOVEMENT

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI EXPLAINS HIS DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

MAHATMA'S ADVICE TO THOSE WHO DIFFERED FROM HIM

Mr. MUNSHI'S RESIGNATION AND AFTER

(Associated Press of India)
Wardha, June 26
Mahatma Gandhi has permitted Mr. K. M. Munshi Ex-Home Minister Bombay to resign from the Congress. Sometime back Mr. Munshi had written to Mahatma Gandhi setting out his views on the question of non-violent self-defence where to Gandhi replied advising him to resign from the Congress to obtain freedom of action unhampered by restrictions entailed by Congress non-violence.

Mr. Munshi in a letter to Gandhi refers to two points raised by Gandhi in a letter to Bhagial Lala namely those Congressmen who are in favour of violent resistance must get out of the Congress and shape their conduct just as they think fit and a Congressman may not directly or indirectly associate himself with gymnasia where training in violent resistance is given. Mr. Munshi says he cannot reconcile himself to these injunctions. "If life at home and shrine and honour of women are threatened by goon-demons, organised resistance in self-defence appears to me the paramount duty, whatever form that resistance may take," says Mr. Munshi. Mr. Munshi also points out that for a number of years he had been actively connected with Akhada movement in the Province. Therefore he says, he could not pretend to follow Gandhi with such mental reservations. "I cannot lie myself not to preach help to organise or sympathise with organised resistance to violence in self-defence by all possible means," declares Mr. Munshi.

Gandhi replying to this letter says he had already made clear that violent resistance becomes the duty of those who have no faith in non-violence. On the course of a statement during the correspondence Gandhi says that he discovered the course of discussion with Munshi that while he accepted in the abstract, principle of non-violence with all its implications, he felt the greatest difficulty in coming up to it more so as with intimate knowledge of Bombay he was sure, he could not let Hindus with him much less the Muslims and others. Hence he advised Mr. Munshi that the only dignified and brave course for him was to resign from the Congress and attain freedom of action unhampered by restrictions entailed by Congress and non-violence.

Mr. K. M. Munshi has resigned from the Congress. In a statement he says:

"I feel that the interests of the country demand that with my view on the question of self-defence, I should not continue any longer to be a member of the Congress."

In a letter to Gandhi, Mr. Munshi says that he could not pledge himself not to help, organise or sympathise with organised resistance to violence in self-defence by all possible means.

Gandhi, in a statement, congratulates Mr. Munshi on taking the step, and hopes that his resignation from the Congress will enable him to utilise his faculties so as to make a decisive contribution towards the establishment of lasting peace in Bombay.

Gandhi adds "By his action, he would open the door for those Congressmen to resign whose practice could not accord with their thought."

When interviewed Mr. Munshi said that he would first watch the reactions of the country.

Mr. Munshi is leaving for Bombay to-day.

COMMUNAL FURY SHOULD BE ENDED

LEADING BOMBAY BUSINESSMEN CONFER

A. P. Bombay, June 25

Grave concern over the continuance of communal disturbances in the City, particularly stray assaults and stabbings of unwary pedestrians was expressed at a largely attended meeting of prominent Hindu and Muslim businessmen of the City at the Indian Merchants Chamber to-day. Several speakers appealed to the Governor to "take immediate and effective steps to put an end to those communal disturbances and see that law and order restored in the City."

Mr. M. C. Gbia, President of the Indian Merchants Chamber, presided and those that attended the meeting included Sir. Purushottamdas Thakurdas, Mathuradas Vissanji, Sir Rahimtoola Chinoy, Sir Sultan Chinoy, Mr. Manusbudhar, M.L.A. (Central), Mr. C.B. Mehta, Sir. C.V. Mehta Mr. B.N. Karanjia, ex-Mayor of Bombay, Mohamed Ali Alla Bux M.L.A., Raja Bahadur Govindlal S. Motilal Abubaker, Beg Mohd, Ibrahim Fazal Rahimtoolah.

The meeting unanimously condemned the riots in the city and expressed deepest sympathy with the victims of the riots and their families. Speeches were made at the meeting appealing to Hindu and Muslim businessmen to cooperate and join together in putting down riots and to leaders of both communities to bring about an atmosphere of peace.

One of the resolutions adopted states: "The so-called riots in the city have dislocated trade and commerce in the City by withdrawing that faith and confidence and security which was their backbone and apprehends that unless the meaningless and suicidal attacks and stabbings affrays were put down even the industries in the City may suffer leading to a weakening in war efforts. Bombay's trade and industries afford very good example of work by cooperation of both Hindus and Muslims and this meeting considers that this important cooperative working on which the prosperity of the city depends would be destroyed if the present situation continues."

POINTS OF ORDER

Interesting are the points of order raised by members in the course of the proceedings of a Parliamentary body. Standing Orders give a general guidance in the matter of transacting business. But, in the course of the proceedings, occasions arise when doubts crop up as to how the business should proceed at a particular point. It is also possible that the Chairman or transgression of the rules of business. On such occasions, it is the duty of valiant members to call attention to the chair with a view to maintaining the order of business. It has been the experience of Parliaments that very often chairman cannot give a ready guidance on the spur of the occasion. Sometimes guidance is lacking in Standing Orders and sometimes no precedent is found. Parliamentary practice gets perfected by practice itself. It is humanly impossible to forestall all possible occasions and devise in advance remedies and solutions. On such occasions a wise chairman would seek guidance from the House itself and decide the point of order in accordance with the general sense of the House. No chairman could behave like an autocrat or dictator over the House. His success or failure depends on the way he commands the esteem and cooperation of the House. A chairman of a meeting is no policeman, nor even a general, he is only a friendly guide and path-finder of the House, with a view to transacting business in an orderly and expeditious manner. He only can be successful as a chairman who knows the art of give and take and is dexterous in its practice.

Points of order are of various hues and colours. A clever tactical parliamentarian can suddenly impede the rapid flow of business in a house, by raising a knotty point of order. In Parliaments, the opposition employs the device of points of order to checkmate the progress of unwanted official bills and measures. As we mentioned earlier, one cannot foresee in what form and shape the point of order is raised. It is for the official spokesman on such occasions to obviate the difficulty by suggesting a way out. Discussion both for and against the point of order is raised and allowed by the chairman and it sometimes so happens that after listening to both the sides, the chairman may on the spot give his ruling or postpone his ruling to the next day. If the ruling is postponed, the discussion on the subject will proceed but the votes will not be taken. It is only after the ruling is given on the point of order, that the rule may or may not be taken on the proposition, according to the ruling given.

As we have shown above, points of order are the spice of parliamentary proceedings. A dignified and statesmanlike chairman is an intelligent point of order raised on the proper occasion. A House in which no point of order are raised is deemed to be a perfect House. Parliaments are a mark and drawing attention of the House, have sometimes specialised in the art and practice of points of order.

Now to come to our Legislative Council. Mr. D. H. Chatterjee, a member of the Council, has already proved himself to be a match to any shrewd parliamentarian edging on points of order. More than one point of order was raised and the President gave his ruling in an effective manner, we may say, even an admirable manner.

It was with more than passing interests that we awaited his ruling on an interesting point of order raised in connection with the behaviour of interpellators during question time. It is well known that if more than one member stands at one particular moment, the business of the House would be put to confusion. The Parliamentary understanding is that every member addresses the chair and not the House. It is therefore obvious that only one member can catch the eye or the 'ear' of the chair at one particular moment. If two or more members stand or begin to address simultaneously the chair cannot see or hear both at that particular moment. It is, therefore, the law of necessity that has established the parliamentary practice that not more than one member should be on his legs at a particular moment. This practice makes for orderliness in the House.

During discussions, there can be no difficulty for observance of this practice. It is easy to observe it. But, there are occasions when more than one member would be on his legs, specially when there is a desire on the part of several speakers to "catch the eye" of the President. On such occasions, the chairman would have to wait for a second or two to restore order. It is only one of the many that the Chairman could permit to speak and the rest would be obliged to sit.

Coming to the question-time it is really a ticklish point to decide whether more than one member could be on his legs at a particular moment. It is correct parliamentary practice to insist that only one should stand at a time, but the Minister who has to reply would be obliged to sit and stand, stand and sit, an infinite number of times, until the questioners exhaust themselves. This was the difficulty experienced when the point of order was raised. It goes without saying that the Minister should stand while he replies. Regarding the interpellator also, the President has conceded that he may be on his legs until his questions are over. Thus, at a particular moment, two members of the House would be on their legs. We hope the House would need the working given by the President in this connection. He says, "It is hoped that the opportunity thus afforded for two members standing at the same time would not be utilised to put an endless flow of supplementary questions, or to carry on a regular dialogue, or for both of the members to speak simultaneously or for intruding the scope of supplementary questions."

This is surely a concession granted to the House which consists of many grey-haired elders who had it difficult and

VINDICATION OF PLEDGED WORD

SIR AKBAR HYDARI'S SPEECH AT MINISTERS' CONFERENCE

Bombay, June 25

An appeal for communal harmony and determination of Indian India to strain every nerve to stand by Britain and vindicate the indeleble right of human spirit and sanctity of pledged word was voiced by Sir Akbar Hydari addressing the Fifth Session of the Committee of States Ministers today.

"War or no war" said Sir Akbar Hydari, "there is one matter which concerns our very honour and good name among peoples of the world. It seems to me that it is high time that leaders of public opinion in British India and Indian States, whatever be their party, concentrated their efforts on communal harmony and, at least for the duration of the war, established a working truce under which bitter controversies may be banned and an atmosphere created wherein the best elements of India, official and non-official, work together for the protection of life and property in the country. In this connection, the recent welcome attempts in Behar and the Punjab where the leaders of the Congress and Muslim League and other parties spoke in the same platform for this cause, are promising instances which may well be emulated throughout India."

Referring to war Sir Hydari said: "We are meeting at a time when Nazi aggression has reached the Middle East. And now even Russia, Germany's friend of yesterday, whose foreign minister was being embraced by German Ambassador almost at the very moment when the Nazi divisions were marching into the Russian territory, has been brought in the orbit of that aggression. The horrors of war are thus approaching almost the gates of India. At such a time it is but natural that our gaze should be set on events, particularly in the theatres of war. The inspiring stand of brave people of British Isles, the re-conquest of Abyssinia, the advance of Allied forces in Syria and in parts of Africa, where the Indian soldiers including those from the States have made history augur, with generous and timely help of America, a final victory. Indian States, big and small, have maintained their great traditions by spontaneous and liberal contributions towards war efforts. Apart from their untold contributions in cash and investment particularly in interest-free loans, Indian States set out on active service, at their own expense, large sections of their forces; while quantities of war material and equipment are also being supplied by us. Still greater efforts however will be needed. In this connection there is another matter to which your attention is being invited in one of the items of our agenda, that is 'War and internal security.' The maintenance of security within our territories which has owing to war led to substantial increases in budgets of States, is itself a great contribution to defence of India. I am mentioning these efforts in no vainglorious mood, but only to show that Indian India has and is determined to strain every nerve to stand by Britain and under God's providence vindicate the indeleble right of human spirit and sanctity of pledged word."

uneasy to stand and sit and sit and stand. This is a species of exercise which is unsuited to the aged stiff limbs which require rest and consideration. And also as one honourable member suggested, if a questioner sits down, it is liable to be misunderstood as his having exhausted his questions. In order to avoid this misunderstanding also the questioner is allowed, as per the present ruling, to continue standing until his questions are over.

This concession to the House, we deliberately call it concession, it is nothing else—is liable to be withdrawn if under its shelter, the scope of supplementary questions is infringed. We have seen in Br. Indian Assemblies, and the process of rising from one such concession is granted and assuming seat goes on interminably during question time.

Indian States Ministers Conference

Several Constitutional Problems Considered

Mr. Madhava Rao Congratulated on Elevation to Dewanship (Associated Press of India)

Bombay June 25

The main subject of discussion at today's meeting of the Indian States Ministers Conference at Taj Mahal Hotel is understood to be the question of war and internal security. It is gathered that there was a general discussion on this subject and the consensus of opinion appeared to favour the view method of cooperation adopted by Hindus and Muslims and Congress in Punjab and Bihar should be adopted in all States in order to create communal harmony. Such a step it is pointed out was essential in the present conditions in India and it should be the concern of all State Governments to bring about complete harmony among their subjects as this would go a great way to meeting the problem of internal security. Further discussion on the subject was postponed.

The committee is also expected to consider the constitutional problems arising from the recent political developments in the country. It is gathered a number of sub-committees will be appointed to discuss these questions and formulate views thereon.

A communique issued at the end of today's meeting says, special committees were appointed for consideration of rules for settlement of boundary disputes in Indian States and on the question of release of information affecting States extra territorial rights exercised or claimed by the Government of India in respect of certain categories of persons in States and certain matters connected with the claims of heirs of deceased persons in States and certain matters connected with the claims of heirs of the deceased persons in Indian States regarding savings banks deposits.

Other matters considered related to acquisition of residential and non-residential property in British India by Ruling Princes, definition of the term "Direct heir", expenditure incurred on use of British Indian or State troops in States, representation of States on provincial advisory committee for supply, and desirability of ensuring a liaison at centre between the representatives of States and Supply Department of the Government of India, share of Indian States in surcharge of petrol, prospecting and mining leases within territories, States' formation of Transport Boards in Indian States and certain points relating to Crown representative's Police force and law. Unanimous conclusions were reached and draft resolutions on these subjects will be considered at the meeting of the committee tomorrow.

The important question of war and internal security affecting States has been postponed for detailed discussion tomorrow.

Sir Shanmukham Chetty's letter resigning from the Committee was read and it was resolved to convey the greeting of the Committee on his recent appointment and its appreciation of his valuable work at the meetings of the Committee.

The Committee also decided to send a message of congratulation to Mr. N. Madhava Rao on his recent appointment as Dewan of Mysore.

ELECTION OF Dy. President

GOVERNMENT ATTITUDE CENSURED

BANGALORE, June 25

Shri H. Siddaiya, President of the Mysore Congress, has issued the following statement to the press: "The election of the Dy. President of the Legislative Council was held yesterday. Sjt. M.C. Linge Gowda declared elected he having secured 36 votes as against 12 votes secured by Sjt. A.K. Jayamuthu. The attitude adopted by the Government in this connection deserves prominent public notice and protest if not severe censure."

The Congress permitted Jayamuthu Raju a Harijan Congress member, to contest the election even when they had put up their official candidate in accordance to the usual practice obtaining in British India. It decided to support Sjt. Chennigaramiah, the Harijan independent candidate, in the event of Shri Jayamuthu Raju being eliminated in the process of election. The object of Congress was to support a natural and legitimate demand of the Harijan community to secure a position of honour and to enhance their status.

An analysis of the result of voting is very revealing indeed. Out of the 68 members amongst 40 are elected members and the other 28 comprise of 15 nominated Officers, 4 Ministers and nine nominated non-officials. One would have expected in the circumstances the Government to back up a Harijan candidate. I can see no justification why the party affiliation of any official candidate should be weighed with the Government. If however, Sjt. Jayamuthu Raju's being a member of the Congress was viewed as a disqualification in the eyes of the Government they could have decided to back up the other Harijan candidate Sjt. R. Chennigaramiah, who according to the Government had nothing to do with the Congress. It was expected to the Government to have remained neutral and helped the Harijan candidate to that extent whoever might have been the Harijan candidate. A disingenuous suggestion to that effect was made by the Leader of the Congress party who appealed to the Treasury Bench to remain neutral and allow the non-official elements to select their own. Failing even that they could have allowed a free choice to the Officers. That the Government wanted to support a candidate who had the affiliations of a particular party is evident from the fact that even from the point of view of academic qualifications they could have preferred a better candidate.

It cannot be denied that this was a Government who had the 15 official members and 4 Ministers to vote for Mr. Linge Gowda who is the Secretary of a Pro-Government Political Organisation. Nominated state that many nominated officials were tempted to follow the cue and vote with the officials. It is therefore a fact that all the 32 votes secured by Sjt. Jayamuthu Raju were from non-official members and against 17 of non-official members secured by his rival. It is excluded Sjt. M.C. Linge Gowda would not have got more than 10 votes of the non-officials. (See page 4)

PLEA FOR RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT

L.S. RAJU'S SPEECH IN COUNCIL

GENERAL DISCUSSION ON THE BUDGET

Bangalore, June 25
For the establishment of a responsible Government in Mysore was made by Mr. L. S. Raju in the Mysore Legislative Council, to-day, speaking on the budget. Rajadharmaprakashta K. Shankaranarayana Rao, hoped the day was near when all the members of the Government including the Dewan would be elected representatives of the people.
L. S. Raju (Congress) opened the debate. He said that nearly three scores of years ago that the late Dewan Maharaja inaugurated the Mysore Legislative Assembly. In his opinion it was, no doubt, a mistake to associate the Government of Mysore with the Maharaja. But those, who were of the opinion that it was the sowing of the seed for a responsible government introduced in the State. We are now, Mr. Raju said, the Seal Committee's recommendations were hardly satisfactory. And the Srinivasa Sastri Committee's recommendations were not merely unsatisfactory but reactionary in respect; there was not the shadow of responsible government in them.

L. S. G. Minister
Mr. Raju, proceeding said, that the present Minister for the Self-Government was a member of the Srinivasa Sastri Committee. On November 1938, when he presided at a meeting in Sir M. N. Krishna Rao Park (Bangalore), the Minister was one of the speakers. The Minister made a forcible and trenchant speech condemning the system of administration in Mysore in the most scathing manner and urged for the immediate establishment of responsible government in Mysore. The speech which he said, Mr. Raju observed, was quite true and very forcible. Mr. Raju did not call that speech seditious, although if the full report of the speech had been sent to the present Advocate-General, different opinion might have been taken by him. In any event, Mr. Raju knew the Minister for the Self-Government now did contemplate then that he would be a Minister of a Constituent Assembly like the present one. Mr. Raju could dare say the Minister did not be much enthused.

The speaker, continuing, condemned the introduction of a pernicious system not recommended by the Commission for the Better Government. Mr. Raju hoped that the Government might be for a better though a few things had occurred even after the change might not induce him to be optimistic. Who was there so base as not to demand freedom for the people of Mysore and the Princes of India.

Mr. Raju asked Who was there that did not wish to get rid of the foreign yoke which was choking us all and did not desire to be free, he asked. Even the Muslim League, who were asking for Pakistan, loved freedom. Their Pakistanism was an internal affair. Mr. Raju was sure that once freedom was obtained and the foreign yoke removed, the ozone and oxygen that would be produced in that free atmosphere would melt this Pakistanism, and Hindus and Muslims would continue to remain united as brothers in a common motherland (Hear, Hear)

Maharaja's Belief in Democracy
Mr. Raju said there was on ray of sunshine which induced him to believe that Mysore would soon see good days. Recently His Highness the Maharaja, in delivering his inaugural address to the joint session of the Legislatures, stated that he was a convinced believer in democracy. They were grateful to His Highness for those noble sentiments. It behoved the members-Official, Independent and Congress-of the House, Mr. Raju said, to strive for translating His Highness's belief in democracy into actual practice and put their utmost and united efforts for evolving as early as possible a fully democratic constitution in Mysore, which meant Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja.

Continuing, Mr. Raju asked for the introduction of legislation for the abolition of untouchability in the State, and more provision in the budget for expansion of primary education and adult literacy campaign. He wanted better provision for rural development. Mr. Raju suggested labour legislation to improve the labourers' lot.

Prohibition
The speaker urged for adopting total prohibition in the State. Referring to establishment charges, Mr. Raju suggested a cut in salaries and abolition of special or extraordinary pensions or privileges to retired men.

He pleaded for raising free allowance of water to the citizens of Bangalore City from 3,000 gallons to 4,000 gallons exclusive of free allowance for flushouts.

Mr. Raju, concluding, said they should continue their efforts to stop the payment of subsidy to the British Government until they succeeded.

"Perfectly Sound Finances"
Khan Bahadur Mohamed Abbas Khan congratulated the Government on its "perfectly sound" finances and its progressive policy in respect of nation-building items.

Mr. Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar (Bangalore District) was not satisfied with the financial policy of Government. The Government were not frank, he said, in explaining their finances to the representatives of the people:

"Work the Reforms in Proper Spirit"
Mr. O. S. N. Sheriff, (Bangalore) pleaded for the working of the new Reforms in proper spirit so that the joint efforts of all in this direction might, at the end of the present term of Legislatures, take them to a higher stage of constitutional development. He congratulated the President on his appointment who was zealous guarding the privileges of members and the dignity of the House and who had already contributed to the healthier and more democratic atmosphere prevailing in the House.

The speaker, next, pleaded for more attention of Government to expansion of education, betterment of the ryots and medical aid.

Mr. Sheriff asked the Government to introduce legislation for the removal of untouchability and to take up prohibition boldly.

Lokasevanirata M. S. Dave Gowda asked for more facilities for the people of Malnad, particularly ryots.

Need for a Port
Mr. Madayya Gowda (Congress) explained that the ryots were the backbone of the State whose interests, he complained, were not fully looked after by the Government.

Proceeding, Mr. Madayya Gowda regretted that Mysore had still to pay subsidy, for the abolition of which they had to strive. Mysore had suffered considerably in its trade for want of a port. He hoped the efforts to possess Bhatkal would before long be successful. He urged the need for joining Sattyamangalam to Chamarajanagar by rail to facilitate trade in the South.

Mr. C. Narasimhayya (Mysore District) said that a plan should be drawn for each village as to its requirements and amount provided for the same. He congratulated Government for its loan policy of discharging debts of higher rate of interest and borrowing at lower rate of interest.

Urges for reduction of Establishment Charges

Mr. Mohamed Sait (Mysore) pleaded for reduction of establishment charges, which on comparison with several other States, he said, did not warrant. He suggested revision of scales of pay in every department of Government according to present conditions. He wanted that a minimum of fifteen rupees per mensem be fixed as salary for menials.

Referring to medical aid in the State, the speaker protested against the existing rule demanding one anna fee from every out-patient in the hospitals of the Cities. The rule was not in keeping with the dignity of the Model State. He asked for more encouragement for ayurvedic and unani medicines.

Proceeding, Mr. Mohamed Sait asked for the sanction to the Mysore City Municipal Council to elect its members from among its members. Repeated requests had been made to that effect and he was sorry those requests fell flat on the Government. The speaker complained that the local bodies had no sufficient freedom which he requested should be conceded.

He observed educational facilities for Mussalman were lacking and hoped that Government would remedy the wrong. Mr. Mohamed Sait appealed to the Government to give adequate representation to Muslims in various ranks and railway services. He requested Government to encourage home and cottage industries for which at least Rs. 2 lakhs might be provided in the budget.

Disinterested Service Urged
Rajadharmaprakashta K. Shankaranarayana Rao (Nominated) was glad that the present Government composed of two non-officials. He looked forward to the day when all the members of Government including the Dewan would be elected representatives of the people (Hear, Hear) In this House, there was perfect co-operation and amity between the Khaddar-clad members and the Government members. Though they had come from different doors to this House, to which was entrusted all the interests of the State, had to discharge their responsibilities disinterestedly and sinking all petty differences.

Responsible Government
About responsible Government, Mr. Shankaranarayana Rao stated there were two definitions for the term. Firstly, the term signified a government containing the very best intellectuals of the country. Secondly, it meant the government composed of members elected by the people by the exercise of a very large and wide franchise. Good government depended upon the people themselves, he said. Responsible government would come gradually, he said, commensurate with the enlightenment the people got.

Proceeding, the speaker referred to the budget and said that the Government had to bestow their earnest attention for the solution of the unemployment problem and for the improvement of villages. He suggested that a scheme should be drawn and implemented for training uneducated and patriotic youthmen in rural welfare work who would after training, go to different parts of the State to carry on village improvement work in co-operation with the villagers. He also suggested for founding a small industrial centre at Doddaballapur for training youngmen in useful small industries.

Prison Reform

Mr. Shankaranarayana Rao was glad that in the budget provision that Rs. 4,000 had been made for certain improvements to the Central Jail and Rs. 50,000 for the acquisition of land to build a new building to house the present Central Jail. He had no doubt that the Government would accept all the recommendations of the Prison Reform Committee, which were in the interests of those unfortunate who were behind the prison bars.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

MR. K.C. REDDY'S REMARKS ON DEWAN-PRESIDENT

To The Editor, 'Daily News', Bangalore City

Dear Sir,
In Mr. K. C. Reddy's review of the work of the Assembly Congress party published in your esteemed daily at yesterday, the first para contains the following observation:

"I must however, regretfully, state that the Dewan President though he was helpful at times was not impartial on certain other occasions."

Please allow me through the valuable columns of your esteemed daily to point out that honourable members of the Representative Assembly might not to bring such charges against the Dewan President on the floor of the Assembly.

Since the Chair would be defenceless in press and on the platform. My honourable friend Mr. K. C. Reddy would certainly have been within bounds if he had brought such a charge against the Dewan President on the floor of the Assembly. It would have given an opportunity for other members to speak for or against the matter concerned. It is also for the Chair to explain its ruling in closing the discussion on the salaries resolution after Mr. Veerakumar's speech.

I think it to be a well established parliamentary practice for members of the legislature not to impute anything against the President outside the legislature. In the present case Mr. K. C. Reddy had an opportunity either by a speech on the floor of the House or by a written representation then and there to appeal to the President to be impartial in allowing honourable members to speak both for as well as against the resolution.

Not having made use of the opportunity on the floor of the House it is not in keeping with our parliamentary practice to turn to the press to make such allegations especially when the President would in the nature of things, be not in a position to reply through the press.

Yours Sincerely,
Bhoopalram R. Chandrasekharaiah

members. Yet the Harijan candidate who secured a overwhelming majority of the votes of the elected members loses and his rival wins! And why? Because of the cursed attitude of the Government and their whip against the Harijan candidate!

The Government stands exposed, shorn of all its pretensions in their boasted sympathy for the Harijans. The Harijans cannot afford to ignore this act of utter unfriendliness towards them on the part of the Government. The Congress is pledged to work for the amelioration of the Harijans and they will do well to rely more upon the Congress rather than on a Government so unsympathetic and opportunistic in character.

This is yet another glaring instance. It shows that the Government are working the new Reforms, retrograde as they are in many respects, in an utterly undemocratic manner. The power given to the Legislative Council to elect its own non-official President and its own President later, is illusory in so far as the Government nominees can always be made to win whatever may be the merits or claims of other candidates. This latest action of the Government coming on the top of their recent nominations to the Legislatures, the constitution of Ministry etc., not to mention their previous exhibition of unparalled hostility and animosity during the election times beyond a shadow of doubt that the Government are as wooden and bureaucratic as ever.

COUNCIL PASSES CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Interpellation on Punitive Police in Turvanur

Bangalore, June 26
 The fourth day's proceedings of the budget session of the Mysore Legislative Council commenced this noon at the Council Hall, Public Offices, Mr. D. H. Chandrasekharayya, President, presiding.

At question time, Mr. T. Tare Gowda (Congress) was informed by Mr. M. G. Mehri (Secretary, P. W. D.) that there was a proposal to construct a tank at Chamandihase, Sirsi taluk, and estimated cost was Rs. 47,500 and the area that the tank might irrigate was 200 acres.

High School for Sirsi

The question of establishing a high school in Sirsi would be considered on its merits, replied Mr. J. M. Imam (Education Minister) to another question of Mr. T. Tare Gowda. If the Sirsi Municipal Council came forward with proposals for starting a high school agreeing to meet the financial and other liabilities involved and if the Government were satisfied that the Municipal Council could shoulder this responsibility, the question might be solved.

Present Policy to Continue

Replying to supplementary questions of Mr. O. S. N. Sheriff, the Education Minister stated that the present policy of continuing grant-in-aid schools had to continue for sometime. The City Municipalities gave grants to newly started schools in cities. Mr. L. S. Raju:—will the Government start high schools independent of the contribution or sharing of responsibility of the local bodies?

Education Minister:—That is not the present policy of Government.

Reference to Maharaja's Speech

Mr. Belur Srinivasa Ayyangar rose in his seat to refer to His Highness the Maharaja's speech referring to the appointment of non-official Ministers, when the President ruled that His Highness's speech should not be discussed in the House.

Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy asked whether the chair would not permit members of the House to refer to His Highness's utterances to point out the departure of Government, if they noticed, from the policy laid down by His Highness.

The President explained that no ruling was that questions should not be asked relating to His Highness's utterances.

Muslim Representation in Railway Workshops

Mr. Mohamed Sait elicited the information from the Education Minister (Mr. J. M. Imam) that 91 Muslims were being employed in the Central Workshops of the State Railway, which worked up to 8 per cent of the total strength. Appointments were based upon efficiency, determined by the local appointing authority. The Minister added, in reply to a supplementary question put by Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy.

Punitive Police

Replying to a question of Mr. A. Bheemappa Naik (Congress) regarding imposition of punitive tax on the Lingayat and Reddy communities of Turvanur, Chitradurga district, Minister for Law (Rajasevasakta A. V. Ramanathan) stated that the posting of punitive Police in Turvanur was the direct consequence of the Forest Satyagrahi which continued from the middle of October 1937. During this period no less than 261 date trees were cut down or uprooted. Sixty three persons were convicted in 19 cases, seven of which were registered under the Indian Penal Code for rioting with deadly weapons, and the remainder under special and local laws. Local shop-keepers were induced to close their shops and to refuse to sell provisions to Government Servants, attempts were made to oust the Public and Excise Staff from their dwellings; the local doctor was ostracised and school-masters who attempted to enforce discipline in the schools were threatened. Attempts were made to cut off the water supply by demolishing the water main line. It was also openly declared in the village that all boundary marks would be destroyed if Thakur Takas were enforced. Owing to the general state of lawlessness which prevailed in this village and its immediate vicinity, the staff of the local police outpost had to be specially reinforced from 16th September 1939 to 18th October 1939. Even then there were clear indications that the disturbances might be repeated unless special precautions were taken. In all those unlawful activities the ignorant villagers were directly instigated by the well-to-do persons of Lingayat and Reddy communities and it was for this reason that the tax was levied on members of these two communities.

The decision to post punitive police was taken by Government on the strength of reports by local Officers including the Deputy Commissioner, the Minister replied to a supplementary question.

Question:—Did the Government verify the reports of the local Officers?

Answer:—The Deputy Commissioner was sufficiently responsible to be depended upon by Government.

Question:—Among the convicted of Turvanur?

Answer:—Notice.

No General Elections In Provinces

Government of India State Their View Point

(From our Correspondent)
 (By Wire) Simla, June 26

The increasing communal tension in the Provinces is mentioned as the main reason for Government's reluctance to order general elections this year for Provincial Legislatures. So far as Central Legislature is concerned there has never been any doubt of Government's intention to extend the term of both Houses but position in regard to Provinces has been different as in four Provinces there are Ministers functioning, and according to present information Burma Government intends to hold elections in normal course in the near future.

Need for a uniform policy in British India whether they are Provinces with Ministries or otherwise is accepted but the fact that if general election is now ordered communal cry may be vigorously exploited in the election propaganda which may tend to worsen communal situation as reported to be influencing the Government in their decision to postpone elections by a suitable amendment of the Government of India Act.

Question:—Was there any communal clash between the two communities, namely those of Reddy and Lingayat, in Turvanur which necessitated the imposition of punitive tax?

Answer:—No. It was imposed as a result of the Forest Satyagraha.

Late Mr. B. Narasinga Rao

The Council then passed a resolution moved by the Leader of the House, expressing its condolences at the sad demise of Rajasevasakta B. Narasinga Rao, who the Leader of the House said, was a member of the Legislative Council for nine years and a member of the Lower House for eighteen years and also connected with several committees. The deceased held an honoured position in the public life of the State.

Mr. T. Mariappa (leader of the opposition) associated with the sentiments expressed by the Leader of the House.

Messrs. Belur Srinivasa Iyengar, C. Narasimhaiah, Mohamed Sait, M. C. Ling Gowda and D. S. Mallappa expressed their condolences.

The President associating himself with the sentiments expressed by the members of the House said that the late Mr. Narasinga Rao was almost a pioneer in legal profession in which he rose to eminence and stood by the people fearlessly. The resolution was passed, all the members standing. The President informed that the resolution would be communicated to the bereaved family. General discussion on the budget then continued.

COUNCIL ADJOURNS FOR WANT OF QUORUM

FOURTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS OF BUDGET SESSION

BANGALORE, June 26.—For the first time in its history the Mysore Legislative Council adjourned twenty minutes earlier this evening for want of quorum. In order to participate in the elections to the Mysore University Senate, the Mysore Accounts Committee and several non-official members were not present in the House for lunch interval; some officers and members also were not present. At 4.40 p.m. Mr. H. S. Mariappa (Congress) drew the attention of the Chair that there was no quorum in the House, where the President said he would wait for ten minutes, and when there was no quorum even then he would adjourn the House for tomorrow. After ten minutes the President found there was no quorum; consequently he adjourned the House.

Press Comment and Privileges of House
Before the House proceeded with the general discussion on the budget, the President said that Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) had yesterday brought to his notice an allusion of the "Deshabandhu" dated June 24, stating that it was a breach of privileges. The Chair considered the question but was unable to find any precedent in well-known deliberative bodies. The questions involved in the present case were, firstly, what were the privileges of members of this House; secondly, whether there was a breach of any of these privileges by the paper; and thirdly, what procedure was to be adopted in such a breach. The President requested the members of the House to beseege their thoughts on these points and assist him in arriving at a decision.

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Congress Party) appealed to the Government to draw up and follow a vigorous plan for expansion of elementary education in the State. The electrical department yielded good profits which warranted reduction of electricity charges. He urged the Government to expand of rural electrification.

Continuing, he deplored the unsatisfactory nature of the new terms and condemned the interference in the recent General Elections. At present there was considerable discontent among the people owing to the system of administration. Unless full responsible Government was established in the State, people could not be contented at all. He appealed to all members of the House, particularly the official members, to join with them in their efforts for realising His Majesty's noble faith in democracy in the State.

Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy, raising point of order, asked the Government whether members could speak during budget discussion on matters other than budget. The President declared that the rules did not prohibit. Mr. Mariappa, proceeding, referred to land revenue policy and asked the Government whether they had consulted the policy they were pursuing. Even most moderate men had urged revision of land revenue policy in the interest of the ryots. He urged the Government to heed this demand.

Mrs. Yashodhara Dasappa (Mysore City) expressed her surprise at the continuance of the old policy by the new Government constituted under the new Reforms. The old policy could not take the State to prosperity, and radical change in the outlook of the Government was needed, which she said, could only be possible by establishment of responsible government.

The speaker complained that the Government were not extending sufficient facilities, and paying proper attention to women's education and appealed for more funds for expansion of elementary education.

Education Policy Criticised
Mr. B. S. Puttaswamy (Mysore District) said that he was disappointed with the budget which was not directed at great improvements of the several nation-building activities in the State. Even the new Government had no definite development programme for the prosperity of the people. The people who eagerly expected that the new Government with the two people's representatives in it would have an enlightened programme for the prosperity of the State were disappointed.

The speaker, proceeding, said that the Government were not following an equitable policy in respect of expansion of elementary education. Government had allotted nearly Rs. 15 lakhs for the University, while they had allotted Rs. 13 lakhs only for elementary education (excluding education cess of Rs. 7 lakhs) which ought to be their primary duty. He suggested that the period of primary education of four years to be increased by two years and also to change the curricula to suit the conditions in Mysore.

Public Service Commissioner's Report
Mr. Puttaswamy urged the Government to appoint an efficient Mysorean as Public Service Commissioner after the term of the present incumbent. The Public Service Commissioner's position should be quite independent of Government control. He asked the Government to consult the House on the Public Service Commissioner's report before the Government passed final orders on it.

Mr. Puttaswamy felt that in the matter of imposing certain excise duties, for example sugar and matches, the State Government appeared to be obliged to adopt the Central Government's directions. The local Government was something like an agent to collect the duties and remit large portions of them to the Central Government. He urged the Government to assert themselves and safeguard the State's interests.

More Time Asked
Dr. T. C. M. Royan represented that the time left today for general discussion of budget was very little considering the large number of members who were yet to speak and requested a day more might be allotted for the same.

The Leader of the House (Mr. K. V. Anantaraman) stated that the budget had to be passed in the House before the beginning of the financial year on July 1.

The President observed that there was no rule governing the conduct of the House which stated the House should pass the budget before that date.

Mr. T. Mariappa (Leader of the Opposition) stated that though the Standing orders provided four days for discussion on cut motions, only three days had been allotted for the purpose. He requested that a day more might be given.

The House agreed to the suggestions.

The President requested the Leader of the House to communicate to the Dewan the sense of the House.

Drink Evil
Mr. Deva Rao Sivaram (Nominated), in his speech on the budget, pleaded for eradication of drink-evil but warned against any sudden change which, he said, was fraught with difficulties. A tangible decrease from Rs. 69.8 lakhs in 1929-30 to Rs. 51.5 lakhs in 1941-42, resulting in a net fall of Rs. 18 lakhs in the course of two decades was noticeable.

Referring to funds, the speaker said it was wise on the part of Government to have provided for them, which had now accumulated to Rs. 394 lakhs. A steady continuation of this policy would ensure the stability of the capital undertakings.

Industrial Policy Praised
Mr. Deva Rao said that the Industrial Policy of the State was well planned and the impetus they were having now as a result of the war had given them an opportunity not only to consolidate their position but also to serve the Empire with great war-effort by largely contributing the necessary material. He was also glad that the Industrial Research Board, constituted by Government, had under consideration many schemes which, he was sure, would be taken up at the earliest possible opportunity to add to our industrial resources with particular reference to the utilization of bye-products, which was a very important item in all industrial programmes. He was at the same time for building up a number of useful and paying cottage industries which would help the agricultural population. He really felt there was great scope for expansion in this direction; and if the same attention which was being paid to major industries was bestowed upon the cottage ones, and a definite programme of funds was laid out for the prosperity of the State was bound to increase on a large scale. He was glad of the large scale of the special Committee of the Cottage Industries and hoped for a larger measure of result therefrom before long.

Education in House-Keeping for Women

Proceeding, Mr. Deva Rao Sivaram urged the need for a vigorous expansion of primary education and eradicating illiteracy. He desired adequate attention to be paid for compulsory instruction in physical culture and games and also provision of free midday meals for poor students.

In the House, the President observed that at the present moment a large number of women with the help of an educational institution would not be able to do so. He suggested that some ladies should be appointed to teach in the House. He suggested that some ladies should be appointed to teach in the House. He suggested that some ladies should be appointed to teach in the House.

Retrenchment in Salaries
He said that with the use of the additional Railway and development of industries, education and medical relief, public health, the Government would naturally have to increase the number of officers and could not grudge the expenditure. Those officers were the pick and cream of our youth and had dedicated themselves to the service of the State. They had contributed largely to the marvellous progress the State had achieved. Their salaries were fixed in good old days when prices of commodities were very low. Most of them were overworked and the speaker had often observed them taking bundles of files to their houses. They had to maintain a standard of life befitting their status. Their brethren in British India provinces got better remuneration for similar work turned out. Instances were not wanting where people of our State had boldly moved out and were getting on far better. Hence any attempt to hit their pockets would be driving our intelligentsia outside and any attempt at retrenchment would only bring down the efficiency of administration. He strongly advocated increase of salaries to the low-paid officials, clerks and school-masters.

Mr. M. Ramachandra Rao (Nominated) congratulated the Government on its sound finances and urged the need of greater attention to nation-building activities. He requested the Education Department to provide educational facilities for Telugu speaking people by starting Telugu Schools in the State. He regretted Mysore had no port to improve its trade and hoped before long Bhatkal Harbour would be in possession of Mysore.

Session Extended by two days
The Leader of the House informed the President that the Dewan was pleased to extend the session by two days, one day for budget discussion and another for cut motions.

The President formally announced the same.

Expansion of Medical aid Urged
Dr. M. Royan (Indian Christian) asked for expansion of medical aid in the State. He suggested construction of tuberculosis sanatorium and a diabetic ward as an adjunct to Victoria Hospital in Bangalore.

Mrs. Nagamma Srikanthayya (Bangalore City) pleaded for further educational facilities for women and for improved schemes of medical relief in rural areas.

Need for Labour Legislation
Mr. A. Bhoomappa Nank (Congress) deplored the prevailing labour conditions and urged the need for their improvement. He suggested a legislation for the purpose. He wanted centralisation of Municipal High Schools in order to facilitate their transfer, as a mark of encouragement of teachers in them.

The speaker appealed for earnest and speedy efforts to improve the lot of the Depressed Classes. He said he had been

Bangalore, June 26
The Government Direct that the order issued under Section 144 Cr.P.C., Prohibiting any individual or group of persons from entering into or offering prayers in the big mosque at Tyamangondula is extended for a further period of six months from 25th June 1941.

Only about 7,000 acres of land had been distributed free to these communities. It was not at all sufficient in view of the fact that they formed one-sixth of the population of the State.

Mr. Bhoomappa Nank said that the trains were not met and railway accidents were frequent in the present which reflected on the efficiency of the Department. The remedy was in the sanction of increment of salaries to locomotives. As there was no question in the House of this, the Government was adjourned for the day.
